Seventy year old George D. Folsom, the original maintenance man for this university is retiring next July after 37 years of service here.

Mr. Folsom began his work here in 1918 while the school—then called FSCW—enrolled only girls and no more than 365 of them at that.

"Wish it was still all girls, too" he declared emphatically. "Boys are too rough on furniture and other property," he explained.

Had To Behave

Girls had to behave themselves then, he reminisced. They were not allowed out anywhere, not even downtown without a chaperone. There were no dates as girls today have, but male callers could be received in the Bryan ... which was supervised by a watchful matron.

... on the campus was discouraged, and no benches were provided for those who wanted to linger outdoors. After ... doors were firmly ... unless of course, concerts or lectures were being held. Then the girls could attend in a carefully chaperoned group.

Still Happened

Nevertheless, in spite of—or perhaps because of careful supervision and strict rules, girls still managed to get proposed to. Mr. Folsom, himself, married an FSCW girl!

She was a Tallahassee girl who went to both high school and college at FSCW. After graduating, she taught school for three years while he saved money for a home.

On $50 a month, he built a $785 home, bought a $70 lot and had it all paid for in 3 years. The house, now neighbor to Florida Hall and home of the School of Home Economics, has weathered the years well.

For 15 years, Mr. Folsom, who calls himself a "master mechanic" did all the maintenance work for the school with the help of about 6 assistants and a budget of $100 for materials.

Now, an extensive maintenance program costing approximately $500,000 annually is executed by workers in six, large specialized departments.

Variety of Jobs

Mr Folsom supervises the Metal Shop or department, but by virtue of long experience, finds himself doing a variety of jobs and acting as a consultant for workers in all departments.

Even Mr. Ray Green, resident engineer for the university and a sort of "head man" at the maintenance building, says he does "whatever Mr. Folsom tells me to do."

"Back then," Mr Folsom remembers, "all the repair work was left up to me." I did everything from buying supplies to cutting diamond rings off girls' fingers."

Specialized Now

"I've even washed dishes and cut meat," he said. "Now everything is so specialized that they have an outside man just to repair elevators."

"There was no specialization when I started working," he added. "I learned carpentry from my father, worked for $1 a day in a plumbing and tin shop, and even dug ditches. Experience was my school."

Now he has 17 grandchildren, including a grandson who is a Junior at Florida High. This boy still finds use for his grandfather's old model A, which had already seen 21 years of service before it was given to him. "Runs good, too," commented Mr. Folsom, who recently bought a '55 Ford.

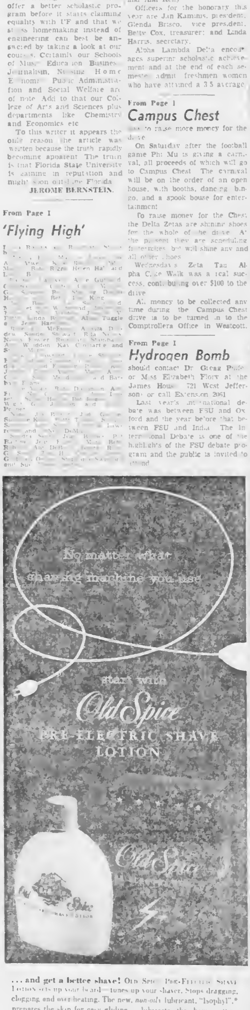
The first maintenance shop was located beneath Reynolds Hall, said Mr. Folsom. The only other buildings were Bryan, a part of Broward, East Hall (where the Science Building is now located), Westcott, and the present Social Welfare Building, then a gym with an enclosed pool.

Hog Pens

There were hog pens where the present maintenance building is located, said Mr. Folsom. The only land then owned by the university was on the east side of the old Quincy Highway. This street ran under what is now the Womens Gym.

Among the crowd of men working in the maintenance building, Mr. Folsom can easily be identified by the bright red suspenders he constantly wears. These are a gift from Coach Jack Haskin, who, says Mr Folsom, "is the kind of man who never forgets the things you do for him."

Lot of Work



"I'd done a lot of repair and construction work for Haskin" said Mr Folsom, "so he bought me these suspenders on his trip to Chicago this summer."

"He says he is next going to buy me a cap to match," chuckled Folsom, "but now, I'm not so sure that's a good idea. As it is, my wife objects to the suspenders!"

REGULAR ACTIVITY BOOKS AVAILABLE

All students who were issued temporary activity books must turn them in immediately.

Regular books may be gotten in exchange for the temporary one from Mrs Katherine Vernon in the Westcott Ticket Office.

REBELS IN OUR MIDST?

We received a letter in the form of a press release from the public relations department this week. Frankly, we don't know how to take it—and for a while we started not to. It's written by a person who calls himself Thadeus P. Thockmorton.

You form your own opinion. It reads like this:

"Well suh. Ah found 'em.

"Ah've been lookin' for a football team heah in the south to provide a good measure up to all the Southern standards of Rebelry. Ah mean, yell, scrap, and plain ol' southern gumption. And it seems that the Florida State Seminole bunch is mah type of bawl club.

"Ah watched those young 'uns tangle with a pretty fair bunch of mountain boys from Virginia Tech last Saturday, and they did themselves right proud! It's been a long time since ah've seen a bunch o' critters fight back from near disaster to almost a game out of the fish'

"Now, ah'm anxious to see mah team tangle with Wally Butts' Dawgs from Jawja. Tain't no secret that Jawja is gonna' run in a bit hurry, but Ah sorta got a hankerin' to see these young fellers of Tom Nugent tie a tin can to that Bulldawg tail. Believe they can do it, too.

"Ah just wanted all to know that from now on, the office of Honorary Secretary of the Confederate Air Corps is located at the athletic dept. Florida State University. Ah'm in solid."

That's it. His letter sounds like a pretty good deal, assistant Paul Odom jumped on the bandwagon. He's now a Pop, too.

SEMINOLE POW WOW—

Here now, is the second in a series of question and answer sessions with head football coach Tom Nugent. The Tribe mentor volunteered to answer any question pushed his way on the FSU situation. Address your questions to the Flambeau sports desk.

Edin White, FSU Sports Publicity Director, questions coach Nugent.

Q Coach Nugent, there has been a lot of talk about some dropping off the Florida State football team. Would you care to comment on this?

A Yes. I would. We divide our squad up into two units Monday. These are the A squad and the B squad. We rotate our two for just three quarterbacks. The coaches decide on three are to work with the A squad. All other quarterbacks are moved to the B squad. So, last week Mike Norman was moved down to the second quarterback and Bill Smiley and Jack Overton were also moved to the B team. We make it a policy that all boys moved to the B squad that it is now up to them to come back up to the A unit. After such a meeting last Monday, some ten men moved up to the varsity. Earlier we had moved halfback Billy Weaver and center Hobo Ackerman on the same basis, but they have both now moved up to the A squad. But the three, Norman, Smiley and Overton, after the division was made, decided they didn't want to put out, so they didn't show up for practice. Smiley did come by and tell me that he was withdrawing from school and appreciated all we had done. But he and Norman haven't shown yet. They just disappeared.

Q To date, Coach Nugent, how is morale on the Florida State team?

A The morale now is the greatest I had a meeting with the squad this past Monday and had a straight from the shoulder talk with them. I told them as far as I was concerned the spirit was the greatest. I said, "You are the best there is. It is now up to show that you are the best." I told them that some could atone for some talk around town by showing that they were the best when they take the field. And we had the best practice this week I have ever seen. Every one looked terrific! The team that is now running No. 1 offense lined up But the No 2 team is out to replace them and there is nothing doing on plays that are used. Either They want the job in an actual game So, we'll alternate teams in practices, and see who will play the best football.

Q What hurt FSU most in the VPI game?

A Those short passes over the middle They also had very fast runners We made some tackling errors, too.

Q What helped FSU make such a tremendous comeback?

A Conditioning VPI was not in as good shape as we were physical conditioning is beginning to pay off We had them on the ropes in that last quarter, and I think if the game had been four minutes to go, we would have won it. We had men there at the end who had played the whole game, like end Bill Schornburger and tackle Bob Barber, and they were still going hard at the finish. They are in good condition. Billy Weaver was our spark plug. That is something we have been needing all year. And Saturday Odom and quarterback Vic Prinzi provided that spark Now we're ready to move.

Pirates Victors In Intramurals

By M. L. WALTERS

All three basketball games last Monday night in the intramural league, turned out to be close affairs.

In a West Hall feud the Pirates made the Penthouse Gang walk the plank 47-46. They took a big 12-3 bulge in the first quarter, and made it 26-19 at the half. But with one minute to play the Gang went ahead by a point, all to no avail. Adams' 21 and Clendenin's 14 helped the winners, but Tom Powell had a "no night" and got 22 for the losers.

The Baptists beat the Rebels 39-35, with the Rebels closing fast at the finish. Especially did the timecheck help the winners, when Galloway, who had bagged 23 points, fouled out with 3 minutes to play.

In the closing minutes the Methodists went ahead to beat Magnolia. Hall 39-32, holding only a 21-19 lead at the third quarter.

THE FRATS—

In the fraternity division the ATO outfit squeezed out the DTD's last Tuesday night 41-40. It was close all the way with ATO ahead at the quarter 10-4, at the half 22-17, and at the three quarters 27-26.

The LCA's helped themselves to a 52-36 win over SPE with the whole squad getting into the scoring.

SAE and the PKP's were close most of the way but SAE opened the gap in the final quarter to win 44-28.

TENNIS—

The men's tennis tournament opens next Tuesday on the varsity courts, located near the circus lot.

All matches begin at 4 p.m. every day Monday through Thursday. Both singles and doubles will be played, with the first entries playing on Monday and Wednesday and the dorm-independents on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Matches will be best two out of three sets Tournaments will be on a double elimination basis.

Drawings and scores are posted on the bulletin board at the student center, and the Gold Key board in front of the Centre.

Williams Leads FSU Hoopsters

As the tallest member of the FSU varsity basketball squad, 6-5 Roy Williams will be at the starting center post this year

The Thomson, Ind. junior was 6th man on the squad last season playing in all games His outstanding work under Coach Hall was instrumental in besting Georgia, which Bob says was the best game he played.

Bob will have his hands full in the opener against N. C. State. His opposing center will be Ron Scrivo, 6-8 wallpack's oominee for All-America honors at center.

The Tribes' personnel agree that this will be the roughest game of the season.

All students are to present their Student ID cards at the gates when entering Campbell Stadium for the Georgia game tomorrow night.

Students are requested to have the cards ready so as not to hold up entrance. Everyone is requested to come early.

Some 20,000 are expected to be on hand.

Rafael Lecauno and Ronny Amster are the Tribe musclemen elected by their teammates to co-captain Coach Hartley Price's national champion gymnastics team for the coming year. Both are seasoned veterans.

Ampster, Lecuona To Lead Gymnasts For Coming Year

By LARRY BLOCK

The Co-Captains of the gymnastics team for the 1955-56 season are Rafael Lecuona of Havana, Cuba, and Ronnie Amster from Chicago, Ill.

Rafael, who is the title holder of A.A.U. meets in Florida and Georgia, is co-chairman of this year's Gymkana production.

His first major competition was in 1946, at the Central American games in Columbia. He captained the Cuban team in the Olympics of 1948 and 1952. He has also appeared in the Pan American games at Buenos Aires in 1951, when he finished first in the side-horse and at Mexico City in 1955 placing second in the same event, which is his specialty.

He has been declared "the best gymnast of Cuba," by newspapers and sports writers.

Bill Roethlein, former All-around gymnastics champion here, put Rafael in contact with coach Hartley Price. Coach Price was instrumental in bringing Rafael to FSU.

The dark-haired Lecuona is the youngest of three children and is a junior majoring in Advertising. A transfer student from the U. of Arizona, the fair-haired Ronnie Amster "was very surprised at being elected co-captain of the team.

Ronnie attended Senn High School in Chicago winning the intermediate championship in his junior year and coming right back in his senior year as the city's gymnastics champion.

He last competed in the 1953 Central A.A.U. tournament, finishing first in the horizontal bar, his specialty, first in the side horse, and second in parallels. Ronnie was chosen as the All-Around champion of the meet.

Ronnie served three years in the Army, 18 months of it overseas in Germany. He's married, has an 11-month old baby boy and is a junior.

"Ronnie will make a fine captain and he proved himself at the Nation meet to have a competitive heart. Rafael and Ronnie should make a fine combination," said head coach Hartley Price.

Gymkana is less than a month away When you see the show there will be many performers out front taking bows. But let's not forget the people who work backstage. The prop men, set designers, artists, secretaries, program editors, tryouts, costume makers, and everyone else connected with this production. Without them there is no show.

The judges for the Miss Gymkana Court of Honor will be Bob Leigh, of Publicities; Ed Whitlesey, director of Public Relations; Hop Flynn, director of Radio and Television, Mildred Parrish, executive secretary of the Alumni Association and coach Hartley Price.

High Scoring Contest Expected In Tribe-Bulldog Meet Tonight

By ALAN WHITMARSH

Faced with the problem of stopping the nation's leading passer, the Florida State University Seminoles tackle the Bulldogs from the University of Georgia before an estimated 20,000 fans in Doak S. Campbell stadium tomorrow night.

The Bulldogs after a slow start, came on with a rush against North Carolina last week, mainly thanks to the aerial arm of quarterback Dick Young, who has established himself as the nation's leading toaser with 56 completions good for 687 yards.

The Seminoles, however, have found a new offense themselves as of the fourth quarter of last week's VPI game when they exploded for three lightning touchdowns and then sat back to coast out from under the Gobblers' noses.

Georgia lost their opener to Mississippi, 26-13, thru barely squeaked by underdog Vanderbilt, 14-13, and were soundly thrashed by Clemson, 26-7, last week they suddenly found themselves and turned a supposedly close game into a 34-7 rout of North Carolina.

The combination of Young to end Jimmy Orr is the key to the Bulldogs' offense, but they have some fine running backs and the Seminole line will have its hands full. Coach Tom Nugent has been stressing the importance of blocking all week, however.

Most of the injured members of the Tribe have recovered fully, though there is still a question whether or not Al Pacifico is ready for full-time duty as yet Lee Corso and Billy Weaver will probably see plenty of action, though.

The starting backfield will include Vic Prinzi at quarterback, Corso and Billy Odom at the halves and Bud Leonard at full back.

Corso and Odom were the sensations of last week's last-ditch rally. Odom's 60-yard kickoff return was the longest in school history, and Corso, who has been hammered much of the year by injuries, is evidently in his best running form thus far.

The starting line is still uncertain. Tom Feamster, Ham Babee and Ronnie Schornburger will see most of the action and Don Powell and Bill Proctor at the tackles. Vince Gibson, Lee Bagget and Jerry Barber have been holding forth at the guards while dependable Bob Crissinger is the center.

Feamster has been hauling in passes at a rate which will allow him to surpass his record-breaking total of 28 set last year. He has hauled in nine aerials in the first three games, at which pace he will have 36 by season's end.

Statistically, Billy Odom, who also does as well back defensively leads everybody in the rushing department, with a 6.1 yard-per-try average in the first three games. Corso is on even terms with Odom in net gain, though, with 81 yards, while is averaging 4.3 yards per try.

This is a big one for the Seminoles, for they are seeking even terms in the won-lost column. In addition, they're after revenge for a 13-0 defeat at Georgia's hands last year.

A plus capacity crowd of 20,000 is expected to see this one, and last year the two teams drew a record-breaking gathering of over 19,000 for their season-opening battle This one should be even better, and tickets for it have been selling for many weeks The student section has already filled up and students are being issued end zone seats. It is undoubtedly THE game for 1955.

Terwilliger Set Track Records

By DAVE EVANS

By running around the school house in Annapolis, Md., at the tender age of five, Jack Terwilliger won his first race. Now, as an FSU varsity track star, Jack is still going strong.

In the winter of the year, Jack received a penny from the teacher as a reward. Jack says he hopes this does not hurt his amateur standing with the NCAA.

However, Jack began to run in earnest during his freshman year at Naval Prep, he set eight track records—four of which still stand.

In his senior year at the regional meet held at Tampa Terwilliger won four events—all he was allowed to run in—and set records which still stand in three of these, the 100, 220, and 440 yard dashes.

At the same meet in Gainesville Jack equalled the still unbroken 220 yard dash record.

While a freshman at Florida State last year, Jack finished second in the 440 and won being nosed out by a Sigma Chi fraternity brother, Charlie Pruitt—after, 58"s to 56½. (Wonder if Jack was still a pledge then?)

During the fall workouts Jack has been working on starts Much he says have been the weak spot in his running. He already notes some improvement, he adds.

Junior 'Tribe' Meets Robins

Florida State University's Junior Varsity moves into the second round of its 1955 campaign tonight when it meets Robbins Air Force Base in Doak Campbell Stadium.

Though overshadowed by the varsity-Georgia clash tomorrow night, the JV game looms as one offering many fireworks.

Coach Paul Odom's charges were nosed out 19-14 in their season opener by the Georgia Tech JV's and the Baby Tribe is out for a measure of revenge.

The Flyers, boasting a gigantic line and a fine running and passing attack, will have many seasoned veterans playing at many positions and the Tribe youngsters will have their work cut out for them.

Tickets for the game are $1.00 for adults and $.50 for children. FSU students will be admitted on their activity books.

Tennis Team Needs Men

By GARY ALLEN

"The FSU tennis team is still sadly lacking in quantity of members this year," stated Coach Skeeter Pitchford

This year's squad has only returning lettermen from last year; two seniors one junior, and one eligible post-graduate, which does not constitute a team for intercollegiate tennis exams There is a minimum requirement of six upperclassmen to each team.

The interest shown by the upper classmen has been very low, with only one junior trying out for the team On the other hand the freshmen have shown quite a bit of enthusiasm with eight players.

A plus 17 scheduled tennis games, but hopes to gain more before long Coach Pitchford is trying to line up some freshman meets for the experience It would provide

Tennis team members are not qualified to receive a letter until they have participated in at least half of the scheduled meets, and emerged victorious In at least one of the matches.

The Epic Of Mark 'Wiljohn' Twain Or Cave Climbers Meet Tom Sawyer

By WILJOHN

All you could hear was the whimper of wings as hundreds of bats flew by in the darkness. All you could see was a dim glow from the helmets of boys, crawling on their bellies into the darkness of the cavern.

On October 1st, four boys from Phi Mu Alpha, including this reporter, and Tropi Sawyer, Flambeau photographer, descended into Indian Cave an undeveloped cavern near the Florida Caverns in Marianna. Our purpose was to explore, chart, and photograph this area. We had received permission for this from the State Ranger Service.

Hard Task

If you have ever done any "spelunking" (cave climbing) you know that it isn't easy when you are unencumbered with equipment. But when you are carrying lights, rope and camera equipment, it is almost impossible.

Florida Caverns is this state's bid for the local Carlsbad trade but is developed to the point of having foot paths and electric lights. But one mile north of the Caverns, buried in the woods, is an overgrown hole in the ground. This is the entrance to Indian Cave. Undeveloped, in places almost inaccessible, this cave is one of the most fascinating sights any of the five of us had yet seen.

Feet-First

The cave must be entered feet-first and descended into in a series of short drops. When the bottom is reached, you have a choice of turning to the right and crawling at a forty-five degree angle through a fissure or continuing on into the back of the cave and climbing a ledge to get at a series of tunnels.

One group turned to the fissure first. It was easier to get at. Climbing through here, one comes to a large room, perhaps fifty feet high in spots and over two-hundred and fifty feet long. Stalactites and stalagmites are in profusion, many of them of varied colors and compositions.

Overpowering

We advanced until we discovered one of the overpowering features of this room. The rear of this room is a Student Center for bats. There were hundreds of them, rising in clouds from the cracks and fissures in the walls and dropping in swarms from the ceiling. You don't quite know what you have missed till you have spent two or three hours in the company of a cave of irate bats. Actually, they are quite harmless being fearful of light, noise and smoke. This was a point I couldn't be convinced of at the time.

Tom managed to get a few pictures of this room; one of them taken from a vantage point fifty feet above the floor on a ledge we managed to reach after a few harrowing moments. The temperature in the cave remains at a constant 61-63 degrees and we had some trouble keeping the lens from fogging so if you want to try it, remember that.

RIVER ONCE

The room is the result of the turnings of a long-dried up river that once flowed under this section. The back water caused by the curve in the river bed caused the high, vaulted ceilins to be carved from the soft limestone. Time has allowed the formation of tremendous sugar-loaf columns.

Returning through the angle fissure, we clambered to the back of the cave and tied two of our number. After half an hour of searching, we found them in a tunnel in the rear. This was when we wound up our day, crawling flat on our stomachs for almost two solid hours through a little tunnel no more than three feet high at any time.

Five Hours

At the end of five hours in the darkness, we emerged into the sunlight. First came Tom Sawyer, carrying his camera and equipment. Second came Tib McGinley carrying Wendell Bartholf. Bob Parrish came next with the rope and lamps. And, finally, I came, finishing a last minute interview with one of the bats who had attached himself to our party. Someday I'll print that interview.

Another Trip

The same group that covered, and are responsible for this story, hope to make another trip soon to some completely unexplored caves in Georgia. This will, in all probability, be a week-end trip with the Falling Fire spending the night in the cave. Just them and the bats.

In A Hole—Wendell Bartholff and Wiljohn (whose last name is Schiffermuller) are caught by camera deep inside underground cave during their "expedition."

Spelunkers—Members of the cave exploring team pause for brief rest as they are photographed from ledge over 50 feet away. They seem to be saying, "How do we get out?"

Homecoming Queen Election Plans Revealed

Definite plans for the election of this year's Homecoming queen have been announced by Barbara Graham, chairman of the homecoming queen committee.

Sororities, fraternities, dorms, and any other organizations following procedures set up by the committee may sponsor a candidate.

Selection of the queen will be done on the basis of beauty, personality, school spirit and her contribution and service to the school. She will represent FSU throughout the year at numerous local and state functions, explained Graham.

An 8 by 10, black and white, glossy photograph of the candidacy, enclosed in an envelope with candidates name and address and name of sponsor must be taken to Miss Adams, at the information desk in Lonunire Building, by 5 p.m., October 28.

Preliminaries will be held Friday, October 28, when five finalists will be chosen. Pictures of the finalists will be posted for finals on November 4. Winner of the contest will be announced at the Pep Wow, Friday, November 18.

No extension of time will be possible, October 28, 5 p.m., is the deadline. For any additional information, call Barbara Graham, 2-2450.

Scabbard, Blade Pledges Six Men

The National Society of Scabbard and Blade tapped six men into membership during pledging ceremonies Tuesday afternoon.

The new pledges are Graham Carothers, Wayne G. Patton, Herbert Lassiter, Lavern Williams and Julian Hodge.

Scabbard and Blade Society members are selected on the basis of character, scholarship and outstanding military achievement. The officers of Scabbard and Blade are: Percy Steele, Captain, George Behenna, First Lieut. Kenneth Jarrett, Second Lieut., and Bob Jones, First Sgt.

Theatre Dancers Express 'Movement Through Space'

By MARGARET MILLER

Drama is not always expressed verbally. At FSU, life with its situations, emotions, and impressions is enacted wordlessly by "movement through space."

The movements are made by members of the Theatre Dance Group, an organization of students who are interested in dance and dance productions. Each spring they present "An Evening of Dance," a program of contemporary dance numbers planned and performed by the students themselves.

Professional

The program has professional characteristics, probably due to the time spent beforehand in consistent practice in technique and careful planning. The Art, Speech, and Music departments aid the Theatre Dance Group in making the production as professional as possible.

There are now 50 student members of the group, including those chosen Tuesday after final tryouts. The new members are Jackie Altman, Karen Bedinger, Carolyn Boli, Mary Ann Bryant, Martha Bunker, Doris Burr, Charlotte Curry, Ann Grayson, Doris Gregory, Gail Hicks, Barbara Huckabee, Geraldine Jennings and Diane Johnson.

Adviser

Faculty advisor is Miss Nelle Bond Dickinson, assisted by Nancy Smith and Velda Mock. Musical directors are Carlisle Floyd of the School of Music faculty and Lester Brueh. Mr. Bruch accompanies all university dance classes and assists the Theatre Dance Group as accompanist.

Both Floyd and Bruch, accomplished pianist and composers, have composed many of the musical arrangements for numbers used in the annual dance production. As befits contemporary dance, most of the arrangements are modern in mood, style—complete with clashes and eratic melody.

The Speech, Art, and Music departments furnish aid in lighting, set design and backgrounds, and in return, the Theatre Dance Group appears in both musical and speech productions. They also traveled to Sarasota with art students and performed for the art convections there.

Not only the Art Department but the Art Education Department, as well, has assisted in designing sets. Twice Mr. Newcomb, art instructor, has demonstration school has designed sets for the group.

The spring performances to fill the second purpose: to develop appreciation of contemporary dance on this campus and in this area. Officers of TDG are Barbara Corbell, president; Dan Harmon, vice president; Sue Rogers, secretary; Lucile Thacker, production manager; and Maxine Fletcher, publicity chairman.

Clark To Attend '55 Homecoming Here November

General Mark Clark, president-general of The Citadel, will attend Florida State University's '55 Homecoming celebration November 18-19.

Accompanying him will be the Summerall Guards, a 50-man crack drill team which will march in the Homecoming Parade and in the half-time show along with the Marching Chiefs.

Named for the late General Charles Pelot Summerall, the drill team stands for a phase of military excellence.

Chairmen

R. K. Shaw, business manager, is chairman of three major homecoming committees for the big two-day event. He is assisted by co-chairmen of his committees. Dr. R. R. Appleby, finance; Alice Henderson, general arrangements; and Ben Adams, barbecue.

A conference on "Mutual Problems in Federal and State Relations," sparked by Governor Collins will open the Homecoming activities Friday morning. Members of the Board of Control, Cabinet, Florida Supreme Court and the state legislature will be honored as special guests at the conference and other events.

Committee Heads

Mildred Parrish, Jane Adams, alumni affairs; Jack Anderson, Nancy Vaughn, game ceremonies; Dr. R. R. Oglesby, Graham Anchors, arrangements; Dr. Moseley, Ed Steinberger, decorations; Robert Bradley, Kappa Sig organization; Barbara Graham, queen; Ann Tait, Will Hallam Durham, float decorations; Dr. Sam Neel, Jim Tippin, prizes and awards; Dr. Hoskin, Manley Whitcomb, Pow Wow; Bob Leigh, Dr. Wilson Doyle, publicity; Betty Anderson, Merrill Craig, publicity, Tom Day, campus decorations; Dr. James McDonough, Mrs. O. C. Collins, float decoration judging; Katherine Brown, Phi Mu; beth Lynn, Garnet and Gold Ball Banquet.

Students Here Interested In Play? Nope . . .

The American collegian is supposedly interested primarily in cars, sports, and social life—and not in studies. A survey taken here at Florida State University proves this isn't true.

Out of 1,603 new students who were given a questionnaire, 656 listed "Outstanding courses offered in your chosen field' as a main reason for choosing the university. All but 108 considered it at least of some importance.

Following closely were "Scholastic Standing of the College," and "Cost per Year."

Association with other students, alumnae and alumni, and parents also ranked highly. Seamons reason why FSU was chosen.

The college catalog was a principal factor, but contacts with high school counselors, teachers, and athletic coaches weren't considered too important. Visits to the campus were of varying importance to a thousand but a main reason to only about 120.

The survey will be used on a larger scale to determine what students look for in a university.

Within Two Years, Says FSU Veep

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

Florida State University's admission requirements will probably be tightened within two years, Dr. A. B. Martin, vice-president, said yesterday.

Faced with soaring enrollments, the three state universities were authorized by the Board of Control Friday to establish stricter entrance requirements.

Until now all graduates of accredited white high schools have been accepted at the University of Florida and Florida State University although an effort has been made to discourage those who compiled below "C" averages.

More Power

The Board's action now makes it lawful for the universities to refuse admission to the less accomplished high school graduates.

Dr. J. Broward Culpepper, associate secretary of the Board of Control, said the law setting up the Board gives it the power to establish such requirements. The Board's action makes it optional with the universities, however, he pointed out.

Vice-president Martin said he anticipates a faculty committee will be named by Dr. Doak S. Campbell, FSU president, to draw up new requirements in consultation with regular groups such as the academic committee.

Hasn't Conferred

Dr. Martin said he hasn't actually conferred on the subject with Dr. Campbell, as the president has been recovering from a cold.

FSU must plan together with the University of Florida in setting up new requirements, both Dr. Martin and Culpepper said. The Board of Control's policy for several years has stressed equal policies for both schools.

Little Chance

Dr. Martin said anyone who earns less than a "C" high school average has little chance to do college work. Decisions of the FSU admissions committee have not been and will not be based exclusively on grades, however, Dr. Martin commented. He said the student's overall record and the opinions of his high school teachers and advisers are taken into account.

At present, it was also said, out-of-state students who cannot meet the "C" average level are refused admission. It is not likely out-of-state students will be confronted with stiffer requirements under a new set of rules, Dr. Martin commented.

By Spring

Asked if the new requirements will be decided by spring, Dr. Martin said, "I hope so. It is also possible, he said, that the change be made even more exclusive in the indefinite future. Entrance examinations, he said, will also be used.

Dr. Culpepper said the Board's decision to allow stricter university entrance requirements was reached with the proposed even

No Buses Sponsored For Tech Game Says Senate

Today Deadline For Frosh Office

No buses will be going to the Georgia Tech game sponsored by the Student Senate reports Senator Carolyn Close, chairman of the Recreational and Social committee.

Since cut-rate student tickets were unobtainable and last year's similar project was not successful, the committee declared the plan unfeasible.

Alternative

As an alternative, the Senate voted to encourage local groups to charter their own buses with Senate providing chaperons. Miss Close disclosed that the people wishing to charter buses must contact her at Reynolds Hall by tomorrow noon. The buses will leave at 5 a.m on Saturday and return at 9:30 a.m. on Sunday.

She went on to say that Katherine Warren, Dean of Women, has arranged with the dorms to relax regulations on closing hours, etc., for women students who go by chartered bus with a chaperon. Women students will not be given late permission if they go in private cars.

The Cost

For groups who wish to charter their own bus the following information was submitted by the Recreational and Social Committee: cost of Greyhound bus ticket per person $7.12; football ticket, $4.20; meals estimated $3.68, total per person—$15.00

The athletic ticket office stated they have reserved 1468 tickets for the game with Tech; price will be $4.20 per ticket. To date there are still 1300 available. If you wish to purchase a ticket you must do so by Thursday at the athletic office. They may also be purchased at the Reynolds Terrace Hotel in Atlanta from FSU athletic business manager Eddie Cubbon.

No Joe -- Just Betty This Year

By BOB DOLLISON

The annual Joe College-Betty Coed contest has been replaced this year with a Betty Coed contest; Joe College couldn't make it.

Evidently through some mix-up all the sororities sent in a picture of their candidate for Betty Coed instead of their Joe College choice. Naturally, the fraternities sent in a picture of their favorite coed cutie, so a Betty Coed contest it is.

Voting Tuesday

Sponsored by the Pi Kappa Phi fraternity and the Delta Gamma sorority, the Campus Chest project started yesterday and will last through tomorrow. Voting for Betty Coed can be done at Malone's, the student center, or the dining hall at a penny a vote.

A trophy will be presented to the winner on Wednesday night after the contest has officially ended. Last year's winners were Betty Goodwin, received by Kappa Sigma fraternity, and Jim Massinese, sponsored by Alpha Delta Pi sorority. The project earned $175 for Campus Chest.

Candidates Are:

The candidates for Betty Coed that are chosen are Bobby Craig, sponsored by Tri Delta; Jo Jones, Zeta Tau Alpha; Nancy Graham, Kappa Sigma; Mary Ed Williamson, Pi Beta Phi; Carmine Rasineri, Alpha Gamma Delta; Carol Dailey, West Landia Dorm; Maxine Hudson, Alpha Chi Omega; Shirley Jackson, Sigma Kappa; Ruth Williams, Phi Kappa Tau; Judy Deale Bryant Hall; Barbara Christmas, Chi Omega; Sally Fussel, Kappa Delta and Peggy Ann Fernald, sponsored by the Phi Mu's.

Kappa Delta Pi Takes In 44 Today At 5:30

Kappa Delta Pi, an honorary organization for education majors, will hold its annual initiation ceremony today at 5:30 p.m. in the Lounge of the Union.

A banquet honoring the new members will be held immediately after the initiation in the Suwanee Room.

Dr. J. L. Wattenberger, Director of Community Coordinated Florida State Department of Education, will be the speaker at the banquet. Music will be provided by Miss Harriette Morrill.

Cruce, Beatrice; Dittman, Donald; Dodek, Murrie; Dutch, Ann; Edwards, Mary Lou; Ferguson, Elizabeth; Fredheim, Catherine; Griffith, Mary; Haymon, Sylvia

Noted Sociologist Will Speak Here

Dr. William F. Ogburn will speak on "Some Reminiscences of Graduate Schools I Have Been" at the Graduate class coffee hour this Thursday.

Dr. Ogburn is scheduled from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m. in the large lounge, Longmire.

Ogburn, a visiting professor of Sociology at Florida State University, has taught in and visited some of the leading universities in Europe, the United States, and Asia.

Refreshments will be served prior to and following Ogburn's talk.

'55 Investiture To Be Tomorrow

Dr. R. R. Oglesby, Dean of Students, will deliver the main address tomorrow night at the Senior Class Investiture ceremony.

His topic will be to "Finish the Course."

The service will be held in Westcott Auditorium, beginning at 7 p.m. All seniors are asked to meet at the Auditorium at 7:30 p.m.

Following the devotional to be given by Jimmy Joanos, Florida State University President Doak S. Campbell will invest the Seniors and the Sophomore brothers and sisters will cap them.

The processional and recessional will be performed on the pipe organ by Mrs Ramona C Beard of the FSU School of Music.

Barbara Bachman, Senior Class Vice-President and Investiture Chairman requests the presence of all the Seniors at this ceremony, which is given solely for them All the girls are supposed to wear their formal collars on this occasion.

The Junior Class Marshalls for the event will be Shirley Morgan, Ruth Henshaw, Paul Cox, and Jim Moore

The seniors will not wear their caps and gowns to class on Thursday as in past years, but later on in the year, the Senior will be given the chance to wear their caps and gowns to classes on a special day set aside for them.

Gymkana Contest Preliminaries Set

Preliminaries for the Miss Gymkana Contest take place tomorrow night at 7 p.m. At this time 18 finalists will be selected.

Each fraternity, sorority, and dormitory may enter four contestants. The girls will wear tee shirts, shorts and heels and will be judged on beauty, charm, poise, cooperation, and speaking voice.

Judging the contest will be Bob Leigh, of Publications, Ed Whittlesey, director of Public Relations, Roy Flynn, director of Radio and Television, Mildred Parrish, executive secretary of the Alumni Association and coach Hartley Price.

GYMKANA COURT

'Clear, Vigorous' Writer Praises Marine Concert

By HOWARD HARTLEY

Ta-Ta-Ta-Ta!

Thirteen members of the U. S. Marine Band horn section standing in a line in front of their pretty red, white, and blue uniforms before the footlights in Westcott Auditorium Friday night, overwhelmed the first six of approximately 1,500 "Semper Fidelis."

"The President's Own," captured a packed house in short order with a precise and surprisingly melodious performance. Under the competent, crisp baton of Captain Albert Schoepper, the musicians came alive. Ovations were generous, and encores throughout the concert more than doubled the length of the program.

Highlights of the evening included a vigorous rendition of "Rhapsody in Blue;" Beethoven's Rhapsody," a medley of applause-evoking traditional Southern songs, and a series of coronet solos by Sgt. Bramwell Smith.

The piano soloist for "Rhapsody in Blue," Sgt. T. Irwin Reddick, turned out an energetic and vigorous version of George Gershwin's jazz classic in spite of a slightly heavy orchestra. He was called back time and again to satisfy enthusiastic FSU students, faculty and townspeople.

Among his encores were his own arrangement of John Green's "Body and Soul," reminiscent of Eddie Duchin; a trio session composed of drum and bass assisting him with "I'll Remember April," and a titillating finale with a surprise ending, "Ponchinella" by Villa Lobos.

Sgt. Bramwell Smith, if "Dandy Easy" manipulations of his instrument are discounted, gave a highly satisfying performance on "Stardust," and "Over the Rainbow." Students that chose to let him go by before "Dark Eyes" in a truly "gone" manner, polishing off "Stardust," many echos and shall and talking listeners "Over the Rainbow" with studied carelessness.

We were duly impressed by his speed and clarity.

The versatility of this nation's oldest musical organization is truly amazing. Berlioz' "Witches' Sabbath," the first movement of his "Symphony Fantastique" was originally scored for a trebendous orchestra and chorus.

The arrangement presented by the Marine Band captured the essential feeling of the work although parts of it were shallow due to an unmistakable lack of strings.

Perhaps the Marines overreached the musical limitations of their organization in attempting this work but the performance did demonstrate extreme adaptability and intricate coordination.

Lovers of straight band music had a feast. Sousa's "The Stars and Stripes Forever," "The Washington Post March," and "Semper Fidelis" left nothing to be desired The born section was rich, well balanced and ably assisted by clarinets across stage

The youthful, virile strength evident in performances of "Carnival Day in New Orleans" and "Southern Rhapsody" deserve special mention, as well as the precise but unstifled leadership of Captain Schoepper.

It was a satisfying way to celebrate President Eisenhower's 65th birthday.

Homecoming Contestants' Photos Asked

Photos of sponsorships of all Homecoming Queen candidates must be turned in one week from today to Ann Uhlich, Sandra Gibson, chairman of the homecoming committee.

Mrs. Lonsmire, Director's office, is also place the candidates picture. She asks that 8 by 10, black and white matte photo, says Ann Uhlich.

These photos will be required for each of sloosy prints as was previously reported.

In addition to sororities, fraternities and dormitories, any organization on campus may enter a candidate.

Beauty, poise, personality, school spirit, and contributions of service to the school will be basis on which the queen will be chosen.

The winner will represent FSU throughout the year at numerous local and state functions, said Miss Graham.

The finalists will be chosen in a preliminary judging Friday, October 28. Finals are to be held Nov. 4

The Homecoming Queen, Betty Ann Uhlich will announce and crown her successor at the Pow Wow, Nov. 18.

Sorrmitories Plan Cats Meow' Dance

A "Cats Meow" dance will be held on the roof of West Hall Saturday evening from 8 to 11 p.m.

Open to the entire student body, the dance is sponsored by the "Penthouse Gang" of West and Gilchrist Hall.

Admission is 50c stag, 75c drag, the proceeds going to the Campus Chest.

Music will be courtesy of the Jukers.

Where's Smoke Signals?

The question of the month: When a Smoke Signals coming out?—is one for which we have no answer. But we can tell the student body why it hasn't come out before now.

The causes are twofold: the budget for the publication, and the present "investigation" of university publishing procedures by the Associated Industries committee with consent of the Board of Control.

The magazine's budget allots $4,300 for printing and engraving costs this year. After estimating a cost of more than $1,000 per 24 page issue with cover in color, a figure based on similar costs of printing with private concerns last year, Editor Don Heidel had only two choices: he could reduce the number of issues from an expected five to three, or he could find some other way of producing the magazine for less cost.

Choosing the latter, he consulted the duplicating department and estimated that more issues could be printed within the budget using their facilities than could be produced with the same amount of money by private print shops. This is where the two causes overlap.

At about the time duplicating began working on the magazine, the Associated Industries protested to the Board of Control that the printing on campus, of Orange Peel, U. of F.'s humor magazine was in competition with and violating the principles of free enterprise. This, Associated Industries charges, is socialistic practice on the part of the universities.

When it was learned that the preliminary committee of this group was expected on campus last week, all signs of any work on Smoke Signals were removed from the duplicating department. Work they disappeared to is an unanswered question, but we venture to say the orders for such action came from the administration, rather than from the duplicating department.

We asserted in an editorial several weeks ago that our operations were not "socialistic," and defended them in the light of money saved for the State and its taxpayers, as well as the benefits gained in greater production for the same cost.

The processes by which this money is saved are above criticism. The attempt to hide such a process implies guilt and lends an air of insecurity to all such operations. We are sorry to see that no efforts have been made to counterattack or even counteract the charges flung at the universities.

If we are right, and we assume the truth is ours, there is nothing gained by waiting for the Associated Industries to report to the Board of Control and in turn await their decision. If they decide we are wrong, and we cannot conceive this, then it will be time enough to spend University money unwisely.

Surely the Board of Control will not be pressured into putting money in the pockets of those who seek the profits of state contracts. If they do, we guarantee the taxpayers will want to know why.

Granted that if University printing departments were to compete with outside firms for jobs outside the University's needs, then the Associated Industries would have a case. But such competition, to our knowledge, does not exist.

The University has an obligation to the students to publish Smoke Signals as soon as possible, as cheaply as possible, and in the open, where the costs and benefits can be analyzed by anyone. Smoke Signals is paid for by the students through student activity fees, and we too, have a right to determine its mode of publication.

It's About Time

The Board of Control's decision, last Friday, to raise the standards required for admission to the State Universities, is one which has long been needed.

The present standard, that of graduation from an accredited high school, has already cost the state an overwhelming sum in caring for and trying to educate students who are not vitally interested in a four-year curriculum, as well as those who do not have the ability required to achieve a degree.

Vice president of Florida State, Dr. A. B. Martin, has announced that any additional requirements, when set up by a joint state university committee to be appointed soon, will not go into effect before the fall of 1957.

We agree wholeheartedly with the board's statement: "The privileges of college education should be denied only those who have not prepared themselves for such a program."

The standards of education in Florida, whose system rates only 37th in the United States, have already been too generalized and standardized. With stricter regulations on the number and quality of students allowed to enter, these standards should rise appreciably.

Band Spoils Record

While we have long been proud of the Marching Chiefs' spirit in cheering the team at football games, we were appalled at their actions Saturday night.

It was, we think, and we hold ourselves open to criticism for saying this, poor conduct on the part of members of that group in diverting the spectators' attention to imaginary fights in the stands and invisible flying objects in the clouds.

All this while the Seminoles were making a valiant last stand to stop the Georgians from making that final TD.

...Still More Witch-Hunting

Our comment on the Board of Control's recommendation that the political philosophy background of college professors be studied closely before they are hired is this:

For every witch hung in Salem, the interest in witchcraft doubled. For every man unfairly indicted, two innocent persons were suspected and forced to suffer the guilt attached to the guilty party. For every man who fights the discussion of certain ideas, there are two who will rise to spread the whispered points in controversy.

Board Chairman Fred Kent should qualify his statement as to the exact number of instructors in business administration supposedly "teaching the children that the government owes them a living," and the effect it is having upon the students. Does he forget the student's right to challenge such a statement? Or does he conclude that the theory is so popular in its extent as to make contradiction unlikely?

UC Women Get All Night Permits

Boulder, Colo. (UP) — Senior women at the University of Colorado will be free to stay out as late as they wish this year, according to an announcement by Dean of Women Mary-Ethel Ball. The proposal has been approved by the Board of Regents and the University Executive Committee and President Ward Darley.

Under the plan, door keys will be given to each senior, the coed, or girls are mature enough to be trusted with the new privilege. Seniors would be required to sign out of their residence when they intend to be out beyond the regular closing hours or overnight. Publication of information on signout slips or absence of the key privilege would be the only penalty. Persons supervising the program would reserve the right to check signout information at any time.

A Better Measure

Adventures In Solitude

By DICK VICTORY

Larry found two kinds of people alluring: cocktail waitresses and bartenders, and at the moment, the latter were the most endowed.

The years had soured him on association with youth and upon the past and except in very rare cases and even then, any admiration or kinship he felt for friends of days gone was late coming. He had had no appreciation for them or their situations when their lives had touched and with pities', had almost upon him, he reacted, and now thrived on strangeness.

Behind the bar, the bartender was accomplishing things with a minimum of movement. It was fun, but that was not the reason for his lack of rapidity. It was simply not his nature to hurry. If anything was to be done—it would be done, and done completely, but in no case quickly.

The bartender had picked the end of the bar for the fan, placing it in position to blow down the length of the counter and to move glasses skillfully when they were emptied, an indication to him that it was time for refilling.

The standards of bartenders and the work of bartenders so efficient that sometimes as he watched those hard figures hovering over the counter to pass on to the bartender their worries he would think of the whole thing as a ritual, the bartender a confessional priest.

Larry found all this strange and pleasing, more than once he had come in without the price of a tap beer, just to sit and watch with wonder the workings of a world he had not yet probed (but planned to) or really lived in (but hoped to).

Afterward, after the newness had worn off—sitting in the dim light with the heavy odor of ale—and old ideas revisited him, he would come back to his apartment and examine himself, each one with the same answer. He had been over it a thousand times, self-doubt, frustrated confidence, unchecked enthusiasm — through all the stages. And one thing was always clear: there was something within him that was not wrong, something had spoiled. Something rotten from the past still hung on, and though it might be dying, it was rank and spread even in death.

In his bed, thinking about these things, even his pains and mock him. Three pains are lined up neatly against the wall and to Larry they seem to be passing judgment. Look, he thinks, one pain is wearing my tragedy another laughing, and the other pair curls its upper lip.

Quickly Larry leans over the bed, hoping to vomit, but since he had just taken off regarding his situation as very grave, he is jarred by the sight of his clean, cleanly as a doctor severs an umbilical cord. And when I'm finished, I'll mop up the mess and put it in a pail and mark it Oblivion and that will be the end of it. From then on I can be myself, not a dangling bonnless puppet!

Unknown Heroes

TO THE EDITOR:

Three FSU students apparently on their way home for the weekend took time out last Friday to extinguish a fire along Route 20. With no thought of their own safety and actions stopped their 1955 Ford, Lincoln number 23-575, and began beating and stamping the flames that were busily burning their way toward a wooded area along the road.

The fire subdued, they continued their trip somewhat the worse for wear. The names of the students are unknown, but they can be mighty proud of being good citizens.

Femmes' Rights

TO THE EDITOR:

Male and female.

A relationship that has existed since long before anyone could do anything about it. Fortunately.

Unfortunately, sometimes people try to complicate the situation by deliberately, and with malice aforethought, attempting to reverse the roles. The se less by raincoats . . . before dressing in college this year. I naturally was curious to see what the trend in clothes was on the American campus, both male and female. In almost all of the magazines I investigated . . . Look, Collier's, etc., I found two trends: which, since their introduction, have been enjoying an immense popularity in our college and universities — the casual, and the continental look.

The casual look does not concern us at this time, but the continental in that's a different matter. Bermuda shorts, which have long been an accepted fashion in other countries, and are becoming one in ours do not, it seems, enjoy the same popularity on the FSU campus that they do on others. The Florida State women, long praised for their combination of propriety and modernity, have been refused the right to wear shorts. Bermuda or otherwise — shorts, pedal-pushers, etc., and should.

Veteran Ponders Legion's Actions

By JEROME BERNSTEIN

I'm a veteran. For the past two years I've given yesterday's and today's veterans organizations and the possibility of joining one.

For a long time I've watched the American Legion, particularly their conventions, and as a result have been pretty well satisfied. Then last week my confidence left. It was shaken, and I wondered if perhaps other veterans on campus were also disappointed.

Many veterans take the American Legion for granted. Many feel that an organization as big as the Legion and the two major political parties and members of local, state, and national government should be okay.

But when the organization makes and passes a resolution calling for the United States to withdraw from the United Nations, it goes on to request that we stop aid to India (economic aid), and that we withdraw from the U.N. Emergency Force in Korea. It would question the organization. And I wonder how many members the Legion has in Washington?

Many times during the Korean War I agreed with a more agressive policy in Korea. I heartily agreed with our military leaders who wanted to bomb and destroy the bases of supply for the communists. But since this was declared and since we did salvage a truce I can't see breaking it. To bring South Korea into the unification of its country by itself. Particularly when the United States is not willing to assure a winning team.

Forgotten Men Of The Night

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

The only differences you may note between a morning and afternoon newspaper may be quality or size, but they are literally as different as night and day.

Those whose work hits the streets in the afternoon lead fairly normal lives in what is by nature an abnormal profession. They rise at a reasonable hour, eat breakfast in the morning lunch at they have time; at noon, and dinner in the evening.

At the end of the day the reporter, ad man, and editor ride home with their fellow men; they are subject to the same traffic as other white-collar workers.

Across town it is an on, the product of their labor begins streaming from grumbling presses into, eventually, the hands of newsboys who set forth to daily business biaered battles—the free-for-all fight for the attention of the passers-by whose glance must be caught by biaer and blacker type bolder and more imposing headlines, and more sensational treatment of the news.

The afternoon newspaper is still only one of a number of daytime activity.

The birth of a morning newspaper, on the other hand, is a wonderful process sent and understood by few outside the Fourth Estate.

Most of the reporters and editors eat their breakfast at 11 a.m.; their lunch around 6 p.m., and their dinner sometime after their work is done in the small hours of the morning.

The men whose sallie fingers set and com-

Magic Carpet Leaving On Orbit 14

This week, let's take an imaginary, Alice-in-Wonderland tour across an imaginary university campus for a series of strictly imaginary interviews.

We're likely to come up with some quotes that you'll never see in print, even in imaginary newspapers. We've got a magic carpet, tired of the 3:30 grind here at the end of class and not have our interviews confined to any particular area.

We're approaching Toodle-oo U. Down on our right is the athletic field, where the coach is trying to teach a couple of tons of assorted muscle into a football team.

The coach is very glad to see us, and is eager to tell anyone how pleased he is to see spread publicity from talking to representatives of student publications. Our echoes sound like three wire service reporters as we approach. He believes that the University youth of today are the leaders of our nation tomorrow.

For our first question, we ask him about the game that Toodle-oo played the previous Saturday.

"Coach," we ask, "do you think the score really told the story of how the game went?"

"Absolutely!" He does not hesitate with his answer. "I figure there will always be control us. We were lucky to get away with just a 50-0 loss. And as far as the score not telling the story, that's ridiculous. Anyone knows that it's not the score to tell which team won a ball game."

This throws some light on the subject of athletics. We thank him and blast off. (Our carpet has a rocket assisted take-off mechanism.)

We glide in to Rootie-too college and immediately spot a character we presume to be connected with student government.

A freak weather change has sent the temperature up near 100, but he is wearing a dark blue suit, with shirt collar buttoned and tie perfectly in place. He is sitting all alone in the blazing sunshine, practicing several forms of smiles. A photographer once told him that a tan shows up well in newspaper photos, so we cannot persuade him to move into the shade.

"Does your student government really represent the students?" we ask him.

"Why, billy" he replies. This smile stops and he leans forward. He is now practicing the serious, heart-to-heart approach.

"The student government, he goes on merely a bunch of kids playing at making laws. The real purpose is to give the participants a chance at being where the press is. Of course, we pass laws sometimes that the administration disapproves of, but I never supposed a law that the football mascot's nickname will be changed from hoo-hoo to haddock Toodle-oo has ever gone into effect. It stuck. The student government stood fast, wouldn't budge an inch. We . . ."

We feel that we have been enlightened on student government, so we leave, just as the remaining kids do during the dinnerbell speech for next student election.

At Hi-standard U., we glide in on a high green acre of lawn, directly in front of the administration building. We meet the dean of women coming out, in lavender pants and a sweater, on her way to an administration board party at the near-by coast.

We have a subject of prime interest to university women all over the nation. We ask her what she thinks of girls having to wear slacks to coats over their Bermuda shorts.

"Heavens," she says, "I think anyone who wears Bermuda shorts shouldn't be seen in public in the first place. Now the old standard dress code, which covers with two fingers rolled up, I'm all for. They're neat and should never be covered. Gotta run, now. Daddy's waiting."

She dashes off, and we walk slowly back to our carpet, lost in thought over some of the answers we have received. Our carpet is a snap still new and thick, ripples with the progress of the breeze.

We climb on and head it for the next mental institution.

From The Sidelines

CHAPTER IV—YOU NAME IT

There was a football game in Campbell Stadium this past Saturday night. The final score was 47-14, with the Tribe on the short end. But that's not the way it should go in the book.

Admittedly—and there are few to deny this—Georgia should have won. But by no more than one or two touchdowns. With the exception of four definite breaks against the Tribe, Georgia could have been the winner by almost 28-13.

There are arguments both for and against those breaks. Some football followers will tell you a good football team makes its own breaks. So let it be with Georgia.

But we were on the sidelines Saturday night and we followed the contest play-by-play up and down the field. And this is our opinion.

We've never seen a more brutal football game.

The Tribe had been primed for the game. Nugent had shuffled his starting eleven after the final quarter of the VPI game the week before and the strategy the Tribe mentors used during the week of practice which followed had both the new eleven and the sidelined original crew ready for anything. And with that anything being Georgia, fireworks followed.

It was a replica of the annual Army-Navy clashes right from the starting kickoff. You, who were there saw that. A fumble on the opening kickoff gave Georgia its first touchdown. And for the rest of the first half it was a good football game—about as even as a game can be. Georgia scored again and FSU came through with seven points. With the exception of that first-play-from-the half might have easily ended in a deadlock.

That first half was a hard played one, but it was good hard football.

The second half—well, you saw that too.

Whatever Wally Butts told his staffs in the dressing room during halftime, no one will ever know. But we'd like to. This we know. He was as mad as a hornet when he went into that dressing room. And his charges were about the same when they came out.

Results, a 33-point second half for the Bulldogs—not to mention the black eyes, bruised noses and numerous aches and pains that ensued.

So Florida State lost its third ball game. And the spankings continue to get rougher. But we can all remember that the more resistance and retaliation you show, the more you can expect to take—to take.

Florida State went against Georgia with one idea—that they were to beat the Bulldogs. They are not to be denied for losing. Either, they are to be commended for playing the game they did.

Doubtless, you, the reader, will not be swayed by what we say here. But this we ask you to understand. That no one loses a football game or takes a backward step purposely. We're all here for one purpose—that of furthering Florida State University. And at times we need to help each other.

Physically, we can't do too much for a football team. Mentally, we can.

The choice is yours.

A FAN FOR CORSO

Seems someone was popular among the Georgia rooters this past Saturday night. One of the Flambeau staffers overheard a lady comment on halfback Lee Corso after he danced around the Georgia secondary a couple of times.

It was something like this.

"There goes that little spanning man again. They can't stop him."

Then she aptly adds

"Guess they should try sitting on him."

SOMEBODY THREW US A CURVE

Anyway, if you'll look across to the opposite corner of this page you'll see something new. We call it "Co-Ed Corner" and you'll see it there each edition. It's a column by and for the co-eds, written by a freshman miss—Juanita Jacob.

It's success will depend greatly upon the response of the co-eds. We hope you'll get behind Miss Jacob.

Tribe Can't Beat Georgia's Butts

Bulldog Coach Wins Second In Row From Young FSU

By ALAN WHITMARSH

The toughest bunch of Bulldogs that a Seminole Indian has ever met passed through Tallahassee Friday night as the University of Georgia football team brutally used Florida State's gridmen as a stepping stone with a 47-14 triumph before what may have been the largest crowd in school history.

The up and coming Georgians, who have finally found themselves after a bad start this year, were held to a 13-7 lead at halftime, but they came out for the second half fighting mad and before four minutes had two more touchdowns and turned the game into a rout.

Looking for a crackerjack passing attack but little running power from the opposition, the Seminoles were jolted out of their class by the hard-charging Georgia backs who around out 243 yards, more than every powerful Miami could muster from the Tribe forward wall.

Ringleader of the Bulldog ballcarriers was captain and fullback Bobby Gerrard. In 14 carries he ground out 128 yards and scored one of the Georgia touchdowns. You can't stop what Gerrard though because halfbacks Jimmy Orr and Wendell Tarleton run like demons and so did most of the other fired-up Georgia backs.

Two bad breaks gave Georgia their first two scores as the ever-prominent Bulldog nose advantage of everything handed them in a distinctive fashion. A fumble on the kickoff gave them possession on the FSU 40 on the first play of the contest, and eight plays later Wally Butts' charges had themselves a 6-0 lead.

Then late in the same period a wobbly, short Bulldog punt hit Seminole defender Don Pos-key despite his efforts to keep away from it and an alert Georgia man grabbed it at his own 34. Three running attempts by Dick Young, who led the nation in passing at gametime, made it a quick 13-0

Late in the second quarter, the Seminoles came back mostly on the aerial arm of field general Lee Swantic. Swantic's 47-yard completion to end Ham Bubee at the Georgia 24 set things up and three line freefooted Seminole quarterback did the rest of it himself—going 13 yards to score. Bill Proctor's extra point made it 13-7 at the intermission.

The Marching Chiefs' and Colleiana's combined "Rhapsody in Blue" presentation during the halftime break was something to behold but it was fullback Garrard of the enemy as he exploded 67 yards after a runaway pass reception for a touchdown on the first scrimmage play of the third period.

Before the dazed Tribe could recover, Tarleton picked off one of Swantic's tosses at his own 44 and was off to the FSU 22.

LEE CORSO, Seminole left halfback somehow got five yards out of this headon collision with the stout Georgia forward wall. That's FSU guard Jerry Jacobs underneath and the only Georgia lineman identifiable are guards Don Shea (65) and Willie Fowler (64).

High Scoring Contests Mark Frat Intramurals

Five games marked frat intramural basketball last Tuesday in the West Gym, but only one could be called a contest. Four were one sided scoring contests.

The one real game saw the Phi Kappa Tau's trail until the last few minutes and surge to a 42-38 win over the D.T.D. five. It was excellent defense and an offensive game that brought the PKT from a 28-21 deficit at the half to victory. Behind led the winners with 12 points, McElroy had 9 and Woods 10. Purvis was high for the losers with 14.

The Kappa Alpha outfit swamped T.E.P. 90-12. The crowd was complained as to why the KA manager kept his team "pressing" hard all the way, just their hard-trying, but, outclassed opponents.

Theta Chi also rolled against Kappa Sigma in a 55-12 win, the losers scoreless at the first quarter and behind 27-4 at the half.

ATO poured 16 players on the floor in their 45-21 win over PKP with Ed Gaggelo the leader.

Sigma Nu beat Sigma Chi 30-24 principally because of sharper shooting as the tempo of the contests were even. Callahan was high man with 12 points. SN led at the half 16-8 and opened up a lead only in the last five minutes.

Theta Chi now leads one league, Kappa Alpha another and Alpha Tau Omega the third. All have three wins and no losses.

Play resumes tonight at the West Gym at 5 p.m. The "hot" games will be at 6 when PKA and TC meet; both are undefeated. The 6 p.m. game between PDT and SN could also be close. The schedule:

Tuesday, Oct 18
5 p.m.—TKP vs. SC.
6 p.m.—PKA vs. TC.
7 p.m.—LCA vs. KS
8 p.m.—PDT vs. SN.

Thursday, Oct. 20
5 p.m.—PKT vs. PKP.
6 p.m.—SAE vs. ATO.
7 p.m.—SPE vs. KS.
8 p.m.—PKA vs. LCA.

The Dorms

Three close games marked last Wednesday's dorm league basketball and the standing tightened with Baptists and Senior Hall in the lead with three wins and one loss.

Senior Hall pulled the Baptists into a first place tie with a fast morning 41-34 victory. It was the first half that turned the trick as Senior Hall piled up a 39-24 lead, only to see it melt away in the second half as Gentzell and Mattews began hitting the hoop. Gennzell ended the evening with 20 points and Matthews 13. Jim Hogan with 18 led the winners.

The Methodists squeezed out a 31-30 contest over the Rebels. They led 20-18 at the half, but it was their accuracy at the free throw line in the last half that gave them a win over last year's champs. Vic Rhenkis with 16 points was high man in the game.

Magnolia Hall came to life, and beat the Pirates 50-37, after being behind at the half 28-16. Wally Hamrick had 17 points, John Woods got 16, for the winners.

Wednesday, Oct. 19
5.30—Rebels vs. Pirates.
6.30—Baptist vs. Magnolia.
7.30—Senior Hall vs. Penthouse.

Tennis

The intramural tennis singles and doubles are under way this afternoon on the varsity courts, near the circus grounds, with matches starting at 4 p.m.

The fraternity tournaments are being played on Monday's and Wednesday's with the dorm-independent club matches on Thursdays and Thursdays.

Both tournaments are double elimination, a club having to be beaten twice to be eliminated. Matches are two out of three sets.

Drawings and scores are posted at the student center and the Gold Key board in front of Longmire.

Artmier Boosts Cagers' Hopes

Dick Artmier returns to play his fourth and final year with the Tribes hoopsters.

The 6'1" senior from Clarksburg, Indiana has a 13 point average in last years' play, with a high of 24 against Loyola.

Dick played four years of ball at Clarksburg High. In his senior year he was high scorer and team captain.

His specialty is in fine defensive play, and he is usually assigned to the guarding of high scorers of opposing teams. On offense Dick's favorite shot is the one-hand push.

"I'm looking forward to playing in both tourneys over the Christmas holidays, especially the one at Miami," he said.

Dick is majoring in Physical Education and would like to go into the coaching field.

"We're looking forward to a fine season," he said, and I'm sure the student body will be behind the team all the way.

Holder Returns For Gym Team

By LARRY BLOCK

One of the many outstanding performers that will appear in Gymkana is the National AAU Champion champion Don Holder.

The soft-spoken native of New Jersey attended Dickenson High School in Jersey City, and won the all-around junior championship in gymnastics for his work on the parallel bars rings. He worked with the Swiss Gymnastic Society, one of the foremost clubs of gymnastics in the country.

Don was a member of the United States Olympic team in 1952 which went to Helsinki, Finland. In 1953 he won the Side Horse championship at the Florida and Georgia AAU's.

The former two year co-captain captured the Florida and Alabama all-around championship, and finished first in Calisthenics at the Georgia AAU in 1954. The following year found Don a member of the team which competed in the Pan-American games at Mexico City finishing second in the long horse and rings.

Don is married, and his wife, Connie, is also a gymnast winning several medals. Don, a member of the ROTC who expects his commission in January, is a Physical Education major and plans to settle in Florida and coach Gymnastics.

On October 28 coach Price will take his entire group including the Gymkana Court of Honor and the Tallahassee Tumbling Tots to Thomasville, 44 and was off to the FSU 22.

Co-Ed Corner

Juanita Jacob

I would like to welcome all co-eds to this new column, in hopes that you will enjoy reading about the activities and stories which occur around the campus concerning women's sports. Our objective is to encourage you to participate and enjoy yourselves in these activities throughout the year.

The spotlight this week is in the field of archery. And you don't have to be a second "Robin Hood." Even if you don't know how to hold a bow, come out and we'll do our best to show you. This program is not a part of the intramural activities but is to be organized as an Archery Club. Therefore, you may participate in the club and still play in intramurals.

Marilyn Coffey is acting as sports manager until further officers can be elected within the club. We are anxious to get started so that when FSU has its Sports Days with other colleges and universities throughout the state and out of the state, those women who come out for archery would be called on to "arch" for the competition. There would also be a "play-off" for women participating here on campus.

Everyone is welcome to come out and take part. We would especially like to encourage all the graduate and day students of the campus. We are sure you'll have a good time and will meet many new people this way.

The first meeting will be held this Thursday at 7:00 in Room 213 of the gym. All those interested...

FSU Physics Expert Tells About Space

By STEVE KLEID

"Man will keep on trying until he makes it, or finds out definitely that he cannot."

That statement was made by Dr. Don-ley Snyder, of the FSU Physics Department, asked his opinion whether he thought man would ever reach another planet.

The Doctor went on to explain that the most potent obstacle to space travel is not the construction of a space ship, but man himself.

"It is not inconceivable," he stated, "that life cannot exist in outer space."

Dr. Snyder pointed out that man's makeup is not such, at present, that he could stand the physical and mental rigors of sustained space travel.

Difficulties

In any event, the technical difficulties still have not been overcome. The main problem confronting scientists, he said, is that of sufficient fuel. Propulsion of a rocket depends upon matter ejected in the direction opposite to the direction of the rocket's travel.

To propel a space ship past the point where the earth's gravitational pull would cease to be an important factor, would require a speed of approximately seven miles per second. The maximum velocity of a rocket depends upon the fraction of the total weight that is fuel. The larger the fraction, the faster the speed of the rocket. A space ship composed of 100% fuel would have no limit to its speed, and consequently, its range.

All Fuel

Obviously, a ship composed entirely of fuel cannot be constructed, and one composed of even 85% of fuel would still not be able to attain the speed sufficient to escape above the ground. Such gravitational force.

When questioned upon the possible solutions to this problem, Dr. Snyder stated "It is impossible for us from here to another planet in a single space ship." He went on to tell of the two ideas of independent construction at present: the space satellite, and the step rocket.

DR. SNYDER

In the first theory, a station would be constructed to revolve around the earth at a given distance above the ground. Since it could then take off from earth, and land, after a comparatively short flight, on the satellite, to refuel, and also to enable it to get a head start on its next take-off.

The step rocket would be a series of independent rockets fired one within another, to be used in succession. According to Dr. Snyder, a five-step rocket would be more than sufficient to reach the moon.

Equal Forces

Somewhere between here and the moon is a point where the gravitational force of the moon equals that of the earth. That point is the one that must be reached before the ship would be free of the earth's gravitational influence. From then on, the greater pull exercised by the moon would enable the ship to practically coast.

Of course, the expenditure of fuel would be tremendous since energy would be needed not only to propel the rocket into space and to return it to its home base, but also, any change of direction would cost fuel, and all braking of the ship for landing would depend entirely upon the rockets, this time used in the direction opposite to the direction of flight.

The days of the comic book and dime novel monopoly on space flight are numbered. It has become an integral part of the scientific research of the world. In our time we must see the first interplanetary rocket take off to launch mankind upon a path leading to the stars.

Science fiction is rapidly becoming science fact.

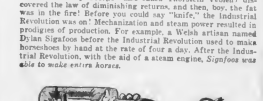
ADVENTURES IN SOCIAL SCIENCE: NO. 1

"The proper study of mankind is man," said Geoffrey Chaucer in his immortal Canty at the Bat, and I couldn't agree more. In these tangled times it is particularly proper to study man and how he lives, how he functions, how he works. Accordingly, this column, normally devoted to slapdash waggery, will from time to time turn a serious eye on the social sciences.

In making these occasional departures, I have the hearty approval of the makers of Philip Morris Cigarettes, whose interest is not only in promoting the pleasure of young Americans by providing them with a gentle cigarette, matchlessly blended of vintage tobaccos, grown with loving care and harvested with tender mercy, then cured with compassionate patience and rolled into firm, tasty cylinders and brought to you in king size or regular, wrapped in fetching packages of lively crimson and pristine white, at prices that wreak no havoc on the most stringent of budgets; but who are equally concerned with broadening the minds and extending the intellectual vistas of every college man and every college woman.



I, for one, am not unmoved by this great-heartedness in the makers of Philip Morris, and though I know it is considered ethic those days to disparage one's employer, I shall not. Indeed, I shall cry "Huzzah!" for the makers of Philip Morris. I shall cry "Huzzah!" and "Bon appetit!" and "Stout Fellows!"

But I digress. For our first lesson in social science, let us turn to the study of economics, often called the queen of the social sciences. Sociology is the king of the social sciences. Advertising is the jack. Economics breaks down into two broad general classifications: 1) coins; 2) folding money. But before taking up these technical aspects, let us survey briefly the history of economics.

Economics was discovered by the Englishman, Adam Smith. He published his theories in 1778, but everybody giggled so hard that Smith, blushing hotly, gave up the whole thing and went into the rough drop business with his brother.

For long years after that, economics lay neglected while the world busied itself with other things, like the birth of Victor Hugo, the last days of Pompeii, and the Bunny Hug.

Then one day while flying a kite during a thunderstorm, the American Henry George also called Thorstein Veblen discovered the law of diminishing returns, and then, boy, the fat was in the fire! Before you could say "knife," the Industrial Revolution was on! Mechanization and steam power resulted in prodigies of production. For example, a Welsh artisan named Dylan Sigafoos before the Industrial Revolution used to make horseshoes by hand at the rate of four a day. After the Industrial Revolution, with the aid of a steam engine, Sigafoos was able to make entire horses.

"Sometimes we give to those entire horses."

And so it went—factories rising from the plains, cities burgeoning around the factories, transport and commerce keeping pace—until today, thanks to economics, we have smog, depressions, and economics textbooks at $5.50.

©1955 Max Shulman, TMF

The makers of Philip Morris, who bring you this column, are no economists, but they do understand supply and demand. You demand gentle smoking pleasure; we supply the cigarette that has it—Philip Morris, of course!

Church News

Dr. George A. Lensen, assistant professor of History will speak to the Unitarian Fellowship on "Religions of the Orient" Sunday evening at 7:15 p.m. at the Methodist Student House.

Dr. Lensen, who studied and lived in the orient for some time is the author of the recently published "Russia's Japan Expedition of 1852 to 1855."

BCM

Dr. William Kirk, faculty advisor of the Student Christian Association, discussed the work of the organization in the past, present and future at a meeting held recently.

He explained that the SCA is a branch of the "Y" clubs which include the YMCA, YWCA and the high school Y-Teen and Tri-Hi-Y. The SCA is a group of young men and women of all denominations who strive for a better understanding of each other.

Hillel

A Lox and Bagel supper is scheduled at Hillel Sunday and will cost 50 cents.

Those planning to attend should contact Jerry Klonsky at the Hillel House phone 2-3920, prior to Wednesday at noon.

Officers for this year are Jerry Klonsky, president; Jack Strassberg, vice-president; Dot Breslar, secretary and Mimi Greenberg, treasurer.

Baptist

Baptist activities for the week are:

Tonight—Vesper services at 5 :30.

Speaker will be Dr. Ralph Cleaver, School of Missions in Louisville.

Thursday — Bible Study group meeting at 4 p.m. at the Kole Service group meeting at 6 p.m.

Friday—Faculty-Student Banquet at First Baptist Church.

Saturday—Baptist players will present a comedy at 7 p.m. at the Student House.

Let's go, FSU. Our coeds are big girls now. They know what is proper attire and what is not. Any woman wants to dress in a manner that she can be proud of, and if I may add my feeble voice in the matter, they're doing all right, when they get the chance

Baking Science, 1st 'Career' Project, Is Very Complicated

By MARTY REEVES

There is more to being a Baking science major than just whipping up cakes and pies in an air-conditioned kitchen — it also includes wrestling with such subjects as accounting, engineering, chemistry and physics.

Selected to be the first in a series of career emphasis weeks, the department of Baking Science and Management has organized six Florida State University four years ago, and this year inaugurated a five-year program offering a Bachelor of Science degree. A total of 82 students were enrolled these past four years.

Many Goals

These students are not only trained in the science and technology of the baking process; the school also strives to make business managers, personnel specialists and distribution and sales experts out of them, said Dr. L. A. Rumsey, head of the department.

In order to do this, 14 seperate courses are offered, covering everything from principles of bread and roll production to distribution and marketing of baked products.

munity college system in mind.

Legislature Authorized

The 1955 Legislature authorized for a study of the proposal, which would establish a system of two-year colleges built around the existing junior colleges. These schools, and existing junior college schools would serve a three-fold purpose, according to Dr. Culpepper, of providing general education, terminal programs for those interested in specific professions, and adult education.

Qualified junior college graduates would be admitted to the older, larger, state universities.

Report In 1957

The Council for the Study of Higher Education in Florida has been assigned the project and is to report to the 1957 legislature, Dr. Culpepper said.

He admitted it is possible the more stringent entrance requirements will take effect before the community college system is established.

Desegregation

Desegregation Dr. Martin noted, is not a factor in the Board's decision. He said, "Assuming eventual desegregation comes about, qualified Negro high school graduates would be admitted on equal terms with white students. Dr. Culpepper said.

Stiffer requirements are not in prospect for next year's freshman classes Dr. Martin noted, yesterday even if they are decided upon by spring they must be published a year before taking effect.

PHILOSOPHY CLUB MEETS TONIGHT

The Philosophy Club will meet tonight at 8 p.m. in room 406 Lonamire. Topic for the evening will be introduction by Dr. J. L. Ice of the philosophy department and will deal with the basic fields in Philosophy.

Campus Chest Slates Supper, Derby Projects

A box supper, soap box derby and faculty stunt night are the latest projects designed to raise money for the Campus Chest.

Tickets are now on sale at the Scott and the Seminole Club in the "Y". Club Box Supper will be held this Thursday at 6 p.m. on Landis green. The box which costs 75c, may be obtained at the box supper.

Alpha Gamma Delta sorority and Phi Delta Theta fraternity are sponsoring a Soap Box Derby to be held from 3:00 to 4 p.m. October 28 down College Avenue from Copeland to Macomb Street.

Each sorority and fraternity will be teamed off, with the building the cars and the winner driving. An entrance fee of $5 will be charged to each entry.

Heats, positions for which will be drawn, will run and winners from eash heat will compete against each other.

Trophies will be awarded for the prize winning sorority and fraternity while second place winners will also receive trophy.

The racer is to be 6 feet long, 30 inches high, and 46 inches wide, with 150 pounds total minimum weight.

For their Campus Chest project, the Tri-Delts are sponsoring a Faculty Stunt Night Oct. 25 in Opperman Music Hall at 8:00 p.m., where at least a faculty member from each department will perform.

. . . and that its noted author, Henry Morton Robinson (Columbia '23) will be man most burned in effigy on row in campuses this fall! It's guaranteed to enrage the latter men of "Moline Suhnormal" and "Turpentine Tech" . . . redden the faces of state universities' "professorships" (that's what Robinson calls 'em) . . . wound the tender feelings of every drum majorette in America.

You'll smoulder at Robinson's jibes at courses in chain-store management and embalming! Burn at his references to state universities as "educational rubbit warrens." What young people are doing at General Electric

Young engineer pioneers in design and sales of new tiny transistors

The germanium transistor—some smaller than the eraser end of a pencil and able to operate on a few thousandths of a watt—is probably one of the most promising developments in the electronics field today. It opens the way to new midget radios, TV sets flat enough to hang on a wall and many other exciting possibilities.

One of the men who helped design and perfect these tiny transistors—and the man who is now head of sales for all General Electric germanium products—is James H. Sweeney, Manager—Marketing, Semiconductor Products Department.

Sweeney's Work Interesting, Vital

As early as 1948, Sweeney was head of a group that studied the design and possible uses of germanium products. He gained national recognition for his work in developing and introducing these products to other industries, and when a new Semiconductor Products Department was formed in 1953, Sweeney was a natural choice for the job of marketing these products.

25,000 College Graduates at General Electric

When Sweeney came to General Electric in 1941, he worked in many different departments until he finally found the work he wanted to do. Like Sweeney, each of the 25,000 college-graduate employees is given the chance to grow, to find the work he does best, and to realize his full potential. For General Electric has long believed that: When fresh young minds are given the freedom to make progress, everybody benefits—the individual, the company, the country.

JAMES H. SWEENEY joined G.E. in 1941 after graduating with a B.S. degree in E.E. from the University of Pennsylvania. During World War II he served four years with the Army.

Supreme Court Refuses To Order Integration At University Of Florida

The Florida Supreme Court refused by a 5-2 decision Wednesday to order immediate integration at the University of Florida.

In the case of Virgil Hawkins, 48-year old Daytona Beach Negro who has for six years sought admittance to the University of Florida Law school, the Court ruled testimony should first be taken on whether there would be harmful effects of his attendance.

Our Duty

The Court, while stating it "Our inescapable duty to analyze" by the United States Supreme Court order governing a prompt start toward integration, said it would present "grave and serious problems affecting the welfare of all students and the institutions themselves and will require numerous adjustments and changes at the institutions of higher learning and these changes and adjustments cannot be made satisfactorily overnight."

Integration elsewhere in Florida's public school system is seen to hinge on the outcome of the Hawkins case.

Dissenting

Dissenting from the majority opinion were Retired Justice H. L. Sebring and Justice Elwyn Thomas.

Sebring, now dean of the Stetson University Law School at Gulfport, held integration should begin immediately.

"Therefore, whatever may be our personal views and desires in respect to the matter, we have the binding obligation imposed by our oath of office to apply to the issue at hand the federal constitution as presently interpreted by the Supreme Court of the United States and in its application to recognize and give force and effect to this new principle . . . that the doctrine of 'separate but equal' facilities . . . has no place in the field of public education in Florida, even though our own constitution and statutes contain provisions that require the maintenance of the separation of the races," Justice Sebring wrote.

Separate Opinion

Justice Glenn C. Terrell, agreeing with the majority, wrote a separate opinion holding segregation was intended by God Almighty.

The Court ordered Alachua County Circuit Judge John A. H. Murphree to take testimony from Hawkins, the university, and other witnesses to determine whether or not the University of Florida "is ready at this time to accept Negro students."

The Court ordered a transcript of the testimony be delivered to it within four months.

No mention was made by the Court of Florida State University, as no Negroes have applied here for admission, and, according to Chief Justice E. Harrison Drew, any future cases will be judged individually and not necessarily on the precedent of the Hawkins case.

Hawkins' suit for admission was rejected by the Florida Supreme Court on August 1, 1952, on the grounds he should attend the Florida A & M University law school in Tallahassee. On May 15, 1954, eight days after it historically ruled school segregation unconstitutional, the United States Supreme Court ordered the Florida tribunal to review Hawkins' suit in the light of the May 17 decision.

Publications Board Posts To Be Filled

The student body will fill three vacancies on the Board of Student Publications in a election to be held November 1, the same day as freshman elections.

According to a constitutional amendment passed last spring, the board will consist of five students, two of whom will be appointed by the Student body president with the consent of the Student Senate. three students to be elected by the student body, and three faculty members. The editors of Smoke Signals, Tally-Ho, and the Florida Flambeau are to be non-voting members.

No Choices

Student Senate President Coyle Moore said yesterday he has not had time to consider prospects for appointment to the two board memberships filled in that manner. He added that he will announce his appointees as soon as he has a chance to decide on them.

Candidates running for election are Jim Putnam, Nancy Graham, Irma Cox, and Eleanor Kirby. The campaign expenditure for this post is limited to $15.

Junior Or Senior

The three elected members must be of junior or senior standing, and have a grade average of 1.3. Each member must have had previous experience on student publications, one which must be at Florida State. Two years of semester hours of class work in journalism above the 200 level.

Objectives of the Board of Publications are to select the Editors and Business Managers of the three FSU student publications, supervise financial aspects of the publications' management, and make recommendations concerning editorial policy.

First Time

The board will be set up for the first time this year, having been provided for in a bill passed by the Student Senate last year. The bill, a constitutional amendment, was subsequently approved by the students in a constitutional referendum.

Broderick explained that the Tally-Ho staff has been doing its best to get the proofs out as promised, but circumstances beyond the control of the editor or staff members have severely impaired processing. He asked students to bear with the Tally-Ho staff until the problem is solved.

Dr. Hudson Rogers SPEAKS AT COFFEE HOUR

Poetry Selections Featured At 'Hour'

Selections from American poetry will be read at the English Coffee Hour today, by Dr. W. Hudson Rogers, head of the English department.

The weekly event is scheduled for 4 p.m. at the Westminster House.

Native of Virginia

Dr. Rogers, a native of Virginia and graduate of Davidson College, obtained his MA from and the University of Virginia in 1916. He went into the Army, after which he taught both Latin and English, before coming to FSU in 1922. The doctor has been a member of the faculty, though he did return to Virginia to acquire his Ph D in 1932.

In the literary field the doctor edited a book Best of Browning, in 1941. He also wrote "History of the Book Review." At the present he is working on a history of Shakespeare.

Here 33 Years

During his thirty-three years here Dr. Rogers has served as acting dean of the College of Arts and Sciences at FSU and as a member of the State Library Board. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa Modern Language Association of America National Council of Teachers of English, American Association of University Professors, Rotary Club, as well as many other scholarly, professional and civic organizations.

The English department welcomes students, faculty and public as well to its informal atmosphere and weekly talks.

Campaigning Begins At 5; Runners Listed

SS Qualification Test Slated For November 17

Civilian Service College Qualification Test will be administered November 17, under the supervision of Dr. Mark Ulrich, Director of the Test Service Bureau.

Testing will be held in Longmire Auditorium, Thursday, at 8:30 a.m.

Applications for the test are available in the Selective Service Office 115 Westcott, and must be mailed on or before November 2.

70 or Above

For undergraduates not planning graduate work, a passing score of 70 or higher will mean that the student need not secure a draft place in the upper one-third of the Freshman Class, the upper two-thirds of the Junior Class. Satisfactory progress must be maintained each year, and deferment may be earned by qualifying for the proper rank in the appropriate class even though the student makes a low score on the test. A student is allowed to take the test only once.

Must Make 80

For the student who plans graduate work, a score of 80 or higher must be made, or he must qualify for the upper fourth of the junior year class. These requirements have been in effect since September, 1954.

Every student who has not yet secure duty and is eligible for Selective Service must file the information form in 115 Westcott. This does not include undergraduates deferred by ROTC or AFROTC. This information enables the office to provide the student by keeping the board informed that its records are kept in a full-time student.

Karl Presents Art Citations

Dr. Adolph Karl, acting head of the Department of Art, presented citations to fourteen Florida State University art students at the opening of the exhibition of the Iowa Print Group in the FSU Art Gallery, Monday.

The students were selected by the staff of the department for art work done last year at FSU.

Meritorious achievement awards went to Joyce McRae, Jackie Stoches, Don Heidel, Laura Chapman, Alex Hay, Kenneth Pufford, Peter Albrecht, and Franklin Adams.

Honorable Mention went to Jerry Cotton, Wallace Reichert, Orville King, Ray Wynne and John Gray.

Miss Gymkana Court Selected

A total of twenty-two co-eds will comprise this year's Gymkana Court of Honor.

Judging was held Wednesday night. It was the largest turnout of girls in the contest's history, having 100 contestants.

THE QUEEN

The Queen will be chosen on either Nov. 9 or 10.

Judging the contest were Boo Leish, Director of Publications; Ed Whitlicey, Director of Public Relations; Roy Flynn, Director of Radio and Television; Mildred Ireland, Secretary of the Alumni Association, and Coach Hartley Price.

The contest began at 7:40 with all applicants walking past the judges' table Fifty-two remained after the first elimination. The girls were coached by Anita Wall, Miss Gymkana of on Oct. 28

First Vote Held For Hop Royalty

Primary elections for the King and Queen of the Sophomore Hop were held yesterday at Westcott and the Student Center.

The names entered on the ballot during yesterday's primary were assembled from the list of names nominated on Tuesday.

Any person receiving over one nomination had his name placed on the primary ballot.

At the polls yesterday, each sophomore class member could vote for five women and five men as the court will include the top five women and men in the voting.

Finals Tuesday

The finals in the Sophomore Hop King and Queen contest will be held Tuesday. On that day every Sophomore can vote for one male and one woman out of the top ten in the primary.

The two who receive the most votes during the finals Tuesday will be crowned the King and Queen of the Sophomore Hop during the dance Saturday night.

Announcement will be announced until the dance, which is scheduled for 9 p.m. at the Women's Gym.

Tally-Ho Snaps Will Be Taken Thru Thursday

Time to have Tally-Ho pictures taken has been extended through Thursday from 9 to 5, 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. on the fourth floor of Longmire.

Because of the tremendous amount of students who waited until the last minute to have their pictures, this action had to be taken, said Tally-Ho editor Jim Broderick.

According to Broderick, the majority of students who have had their pictures have been fraternity and sorority members. This is to their credit, he said, but there is no reason why the entire student body shouldn't take enough interest in their 1956 yearbook to have their picture in the class section, commented Broderick. The response from the Freshmen and Sophomores has been especially poor, Broderick continued, in contrast to last year when the majority of the underclass pictures in the book were of Freshmen. "With the Freshmen composing the largest underclass group on campus, it seems strange that they should be so poorly represented, especially on the part of male students," he added.

Broderick explained that the Tally-Ho staff has been doing its best to get the proofs out as promised, but circumstances beyond the control of the editor or staff members have severely impaired processing. He asked students to bear with the Tally-Ho staff until the problem is solved.

'Blithe Spirit' Sales To Begin

Advance sale of tickets for the Speech Department's first production, Blithe Spirit, will start Wednesday October 26.

The tickets will be sold at the box office of Conradi Theatre as they have in past years, but will be handled by Mrs. Vernon at the central ticket office in Westcott.

All seats will be reserved and students are urged to get their tickets ahead of time. They will be on sale every day from 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

The nights of the performances, Oct. 28, 29, 31, and Nov. 1, ticket sound vice-master Gay McAteer, Martha McGinnis, Shirley Metz, Sue Shivea and Joy Smiley.

The Devilaires will be featured and the formal affair is open to everyone There will be no admission charge and refreshments are on the house.

Candidates in the primary for King are Emil Abood, Leo Bazetti, Bill Bebner, Drew Branch, Sonny Casca, Wade Crews, Bill Cullom, Bob Dunkel, Jerry Dye, Karl Edwards, Jack Hoover, Frank Kancy, Fred Kenney, Hank McCann, Doo Neal, Bob Payne, Paul Perry, Dick Sherlin, Bill Strickland, Jack Taylor, Graham Teasley, Bill Weaver, Jim Webb, and Ron Witherington.

Running for queen are Karen Bedinger, Layte Bowden, Lois Buckholz, Barbara Emmett, Chris Gymochos, Martha Gorard, Joyce Hooks, Karen Kimple, Jeani Kitchens, Beverly Laurent Patsy Mayers, Jo Ann Pearce, Gay McAteer, Martha McGinnis, Shirley Metz, Sue Shivea and Joy Smiley.

Science Lecture Sparks APO Drive

"The Constellation of Autumn" was the name of the planetarium lecture given by Dr. Green at the opening of membership drive for Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity.

A physics professor, Dr. Green is a faculty advisor of the fraternity which proposes "to assemble college men in the fellowship of the Boy Scout oath, to develop friendship and promote service to humanity."

Film Year

Now in its fifth year on campus, APO has about fifty active members. Its major projects include hospital visitation, supplying and maintaining radios in campus hospital rooms, operating a book exchange for students throughout the school year, supplying campus guides for special events and supporting Scout matters and assistants for the Tallahassee area.

Supreme Court Decision

The Florida Supreme Court, in its decision delaying racial integration at the college level in this State's universities, has, on its own action, implied that "public mischief" should now come in the form of the state's segregation laws are to be maintained.

The 5-2 decision request includes Alachua County Circuit Judge John A. H. Murphree, of Gainesville, conduct a study to determine whether or not the University of Florida's law school "is ready at this time to accept Negro students," and whether or not Virgil Hawkins, 46-year-old public relations director for Bethune-Cookman College at Daytona Beach, can enter the law school without creating "public mischief."

Murphree's study is confined to four months by the State Supreme Court order, but this adds four months, possibly another year (depending on the Court's action after studying Murphree's study) to the six years which Hawkins has already spent; seeking entrance to the law school through his rights of legal process.

* * * *

While the Supreme Court's reluctance to comply with the United State Constitution is disappointing, it at least admits that the Board of Control "cannot lawfully refuse to admit the realtor (Hawkins) to the University of Florida law school merely because he is a member of the Negro race and "separate but equal" facilities have been provided for him at a separate law school."

But, the Court added, "grave and serious problems affecting the welfare of all students and the institutions themselves" will result from the admission of Negro students to white universities, and such action "will require numerous adjustments and changes at the institutions of higher learning and these changes and adjustments cannot be made satisfactorily overnight."

What the Court failed to submit to the public in its decision is the fact that such adjustments will not be made and will not until such action occurs and the strength of the public's humanity to fellow mankind is put to a test.

Granted, serious race riots could be started by members of either race, there will be some agitators of violence on both sides; there will be the "I told-you-so" and "Look-at-the-apple-I've-got-that-you can't-take-away-from-me-ugly-jungle" comparisons on both sides of the fence—but it is impossible to solve such problems until one is actually in them. Granted, they cannot happen overnight, since the prejudice did not occur overnight, either.

And so long as segregation is allowed to exist, prejudice will continue to be strengthened, if not by verbal dogmatics, then through imitation of society's norms, as permitted by law.

We regret that Justice H. L. Sebring is retired. His opinion reflects the right and duty of man to man.

We also regret that Justice Glenn C. Terrell threw himself wide open to criticism in publishing his defense of segregation based on the following theory:

"When God created man he allotted each race to his own continent according to color. Europe to the white man, Asia to the yellow man, Africa to the black man and America to the red man.

"But we now are advised God was in error and must be reversed."

Coming from the dean of the Court, Terrell's opinion does not speak for rational consideration of the problem by the highest court of law in Florida. We hold his opinion to be an evident disregard to the fundamentals of both Christian doctrine and scientific logic.

If we had heard this argument aired from a soapbox on the corner of First Street and Swamp Avenue in Wood Hollow, we might be able to dismiss it. But, coming from the pen of one of the most distinguished members of the Florida bar, we must ask what he means.

If his logic is soundly based, what are we doing in the red man's country? Maybe we have the wrong idea about God, but we have the file exhumed the worth of the individual, and was wise enough to foresee that man's intelligence would soon carry him across an ocean.

* * * *

The law of the United States recognizes only one race—the human race. Any laws contrary to the nature of this premise are prolonging the advent of peace and respect as qualities characteristic of life among all races in our nation. And, we might add, a nation is only as large and as great as the laws which its states enforce and the people, in turn, pay heed to.

The longer the action of integration is postponed, the harder the battle for understanding will become between the two races involved here.

We appeal to the dignity of the State Supreme Court, to its sense of duty to all U. S. citizens, black or white, and to its regard for the United States Supreme decisions of the past and their implication be affirmative and positive in effecting desegregation at the level of higher institutions as soon as possible. Preferably, immediately after, if not before, Murphree's study is completed.

Restating Letters Policy

The Florida Flambeau recently received several letters to the editor which it could not print due to the authors' nonconformity with our letter policy. Wanting everyone to have a town-person's comment aired to the student body, we again restate our policy.

One of the student's most cherished democratic institutions is that of the letter-to-the-editor.

In a society where everything is done en masse individual man has preserved the sanctity of his own opinion partly through his often scanty, sometimes quizzical, frequently outraged, perhaps complimentary, but always sincere missive to his favorite journal.

There are certain rules by which he must abide, however. One is that he must sign his name. In printing a letter the newspaper is undertaking a vast responsibility, and for its own protect on, must know who wrote the letter. Upon request, it will either omit the signer's name or not print the letter.

Letters must be in good taste and to a good purpose. No newspaper is bound to print what is questionable on the grounds of decency.

Finally, a newspaper is the only judge of how much room it has for letters. Letters which exceed the limit may be printed, but more often are cut to the 250 word limit.

This is the Florida Flambeau's policy, and will be carried as a standing box on our editorial page.

For Upperclassmen Only . . .

After reading numerous articles in other collegiate newspapers on the advent of "Hat Week," some of which culminate in a "Black Friday" for Freshmen, we have a suggestion which might remedy the current "spirit-you-all" battle between sophs and rats on the campus.

Why not have a "Rat Week" here, inverting however, the relationship which is supposed to exist between upperclassmen and the frosh class?

For instance, all freshmen with rat caps on would have the right to quiz upperclassmen during this week, on their knowledge of the Honor Code, the Alma song, and the Alma Mater. To carry the fun one step further, any upperclassman unable to answer his younger quizmaster, would have two choices: A freshman court for upperclass "rats," or wearing that particular frosh's rat cap for the next two hours. Any takers?

Letters To The Editor

Defends 'Chiefs

To the editor:

I was sitting in the area of the band at the FSU-Georgia game, and in regard to your editorial in Tuesday's Flambeau entitled Band Sucks Record . . . I would like to point out a few incidents which I observed.

First, there were obvious signs of drinking in the stands directly behind the band, and there was presence of whiskey bottles, drink mix and paper cups.

Secondly, while the band was on the field for the half-time show, one person of college age moved into the band section, picked up an instrument, and damaged it considerably. Not only that, but this same individual also blasted on the instrument during the performance of "Hymn to the Garnet and the Gold," by the entire band and Cheerleaders. This single incident ruined the entire effectiveness of the school song.

Thirdly, as the band members were returning to their seats in the stands after the half-time show one of the persons sitting behind the band pushed a drummer, causing him to fall and to do the unconscious plus picking up several programs.

Fourthly, band members did divert the spectators' attention to musician's fault in the stands and invisible flying missiles in the clouds.

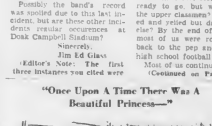
Possibly the band's record was spoiled due to this last incidents, but are these other incidents regular occurences at Doak Campbell Stadium?

Sincerely,
Jim Ed Glass

(Editor's Note: The first three instances you cited were obviously worse than the last, but editorial comment to persons of such character and immaturity would have had to be made on their level of our comments were to reach home. We know the Marching Chiefs knew better, and only wished to remind them that in spite of what other individuals do, they, as a group, can control the pace for the majority of student conduct at football games.)

Still More Spirit

Dear Sam:



Walking to my classes today I noticed your many and varied letters concerning Freshmen. All of the signs seemed to be condemning the freshmen for their lack of school spirit. Perhaps, some freshmen should explain to you exactly how we feel about the subject of school spirit, rat hats, rat court and etc.

The very first night that we were on the FSU campus, we participated in a large pep rally. At that time, all of us were all set to go for the Garnet and Gold. We were ready to give our all to be sent to our "Alma Mater." The first football game against North Carolina State, was a much anticipated event. We all distributed about our rat caps and strutted to the game. That game was the most disappointing example of school spirit that I have ever seen. We were ready to go, but where were the upper classmen? We cheered and cheered but did any one else? By the end of the game most of us were ready to go back to the pep and spirit of high school football games.

Most of us continued for their

Flambeau--Phi Mu Alpha Style

By HOWARD HARTLEY

Reb Short, of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, wasn't satisfied with Florida Flambeau coverage of his organization, so he published his own version of our newspaper on the PMA bulletin board in the Music School. We thought it important some of his original copy here; strictly what-ful thinking.

The lead story:

"EPSILON IOTA WINS NATIONAL AWARD! (should have been EPSILON—

Receives Its Twenty-First Award for Achievement.

They've done it again! Nowhere in the history of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia has it happened before, nor is it likely to happen ever again.

Enthusiastic Epsilon Iota chapter, with a merrer beginning in 1954 of two emeciated oboe players, has again risen to the top . . . by winning the National Achievement Award for the 21st consecutive year.

Epsilon Iota, known for its abhorrence of any form of mediocrity, is rather proud of its many, many trophies Our photographers . . . captured for us this small but representative sampling you see at right. (Photo of a few thousand sparkling trophies)

When questioned as to what reason he had to offer for the astounding success of the chapter, President Karl "Mr. Philip Morris (columnist's note: alias Carl Moore) had the following to say. "Well, we got, all sott bunch of fellers een der chup. Dey all vork hardt, train hardt, und dey hit hardt. Only think ize, some of dem ize stupid, und don't know vat der gut English, but vit eun you do?"

ture accompanying this story), recipient of Best Pledge Award from the Epsilon Iota letter. After nine semesters of psuits-taking ceremonie, Mr. Anzer proved himself worthy of membership with an overall grade-point average of .0005. He is a featured soloist with University Symphony, and Concert Choir, Women's Plea Club. He has, in addition, unique distinuktion of being the longest-tenmusician in the school of music. Rire-bushed from his head to his toes, tall inclusive.

Good luck, Brother Anzer, and welcome PMA.

Choose A Mom

Of greatest recent concern to the brothers the choice of a housemother, to be made at forthcoming beauty pageant in Sarasota, Fla. Idols. Pictured are the five semi-finalists, chosen for their motherly attributes. These kind ladies . . . (Pictured) will be judged by beauty quickies who voted "The one I'd like mom to be tucked in by at night."

It goes without saying that the brothers are excited about moving into their house which was built somewhere in the early eighties from discarded apple crates, telephone poles, tomcat skins, and miscellaneous forms of debris lying at them by benevolent cooks who were thrown into ecstacy by the pledges' rendition of a hymn song.

The house, with accommodations for one hundred, is equipped with lifetime canoe insurance, a library replete with Mad Comic Books, and Minnie Pearl records. The lack of seating is a difficulty which will be solved in the very latest in hitching posts and fly-swatters. (Photo of a swank colonial mansion labeled "Our Home")

On the whole, we still think our version of the Flambeau is more accurate, if less tasteful.

The Dissenter

Two Decisions Improve Education

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

Within the past week, two very different governmental bodies arrived at decisions affecting the level of education on the Florida State University campus.

The first was the Board of Control, which gave the state universities permission to stiffen their entrance requirements.

The other was the FSU Student Senate, which burst its traditional bounds to urge a higher minimum scholastic standard for students already enrolled.

The Board of Control's action allows FSU to reject high school graduates who couldn't make it here. Previously, the university system has tried to discourage them but has never had the authority to turn them down.

The Board of Control's action was the best they could take short of building several new universities on the campus.

One cogent objection is the theory that everyone is entitled to an education. This holds true throughout high school, but only certain educational facilities catch up with the demands upon the public purse. Florida has hardly enough to accommodate everyone in state colleges; some regulations as long as they are based upon a measurable ability, are constitutional, ethical, and proper.

Scholastic ability is the best measure of fitness for college. Many are the dashing, handsome, and wealthy who have muddled through high school and come to college because all their friends do so.

Often so, even when they cannot write readable English, so sadly lacking in history their only concepts of our heritage are George Washington's cherry tree and Abraham Lincoln's honest business practices, so ill-read they cannot hope to apply themselves to college work, they are a parasitic drain upon college facilities and professors.

The worst aspect of this situation is despite the which it has on the level of work the college. If poor students must be accepted, then many of the better students once in are crowded out.

Undoubtedly scholarships based on ability should be provided with the money that is taken on people who don't really want, and can't appreciate, a college education.

Once a student is enrolled however, he should make atrocious grades and still remain on the university rolls indefinitely. This is the FSU's work without being suspended

On Wednesday night, with only one member dissenting, Student Senate moved to rectify injustice, which is a wrong because it begets wrongs, and drive by a motion of instruction and assignment.

Students who do so poorly cannot graduate but their continued presence harms those who want and work to learn. Senate said it felt this should be carried out as soon as possible.

Few are so gifted as to dash through college without flunkins, or teetering on the perilous brink, in at least one course. This is quite different from failing half one's work.

Grades are not the only indication of intelligence but they are the best that we have. Some students who have applied A College and turns out thousands of graduates but whose intellectual standards be dreaded lower and lower is not reaping the academic rewards of prestige and scholarship.

Wandering With Wiljohn

Answers To This Week's Gripes

By WILJOHN

It seems that my last column on the Varieties has stirred up a lot of rumor and storm among the students who felt I was aiming at them in particular. Such was not my intention nor do I think I singled out any one person or group. However, my answer to these people is that, if you feel that the finger points toward you, it is not my fault but the blame of an aiming characteristic of your own conscience. There is a saying about a shoe size or something.

Well, West Hall has definitely decided to throw the 810 dance-dance affair. I, frankly, am glad to hear it. I feel that such a step forward in increasing the variety of campus activities is a much needed thing. There is a lot of grumbling from the men who can't afford to take Sigma Chi or Phi Delt dates to parties. No such thing! Every one knows that only a limited number of men will feel that such an evening will fit into their budget. That is why only 100 tickets are being released. There are certainly many that will give much anything that they aren't included in, merely to hold up and slow down the works for everyone else.

This is one of the best ideas to raise money for Campus Chest that I have heard. And it gives the dorm men a real reason to support, not, I know, I can hear you already: "You shouldn't need a reason to turn that dime in for Campus Chest; I should like, someday, to have someone bring me a stripe and, at the same time, to come equipped with an alternate solution or a better idea. These people who complain just to hear themselves make noise . . .

The rumor, well substantiated, has it that the reason we only have three guests appearing on this years Artists Series is because the rest of the money was given to the Marching Chiefs. With the exception of Anna Russell, the other billings are not virtually nothing. There was probably even some money made on the Marching Band. I wonder why the Artists' bill was subjected to this cut in favor of the Chiefs?

And, in conjunction with last Tuesday's editorial, there are only 4,000 Smoke Signals printed to cover the demands of an approximate 5,500 enrollment. Now, each student pays for his or her Smoke Signals in the Activity fee that means there should be enough doubt to print one for every student. Where has the rest of that money gone to? Don Heidel, the Smoke Signals editor, has secured everything for it and has met with seeming ignorance at his whereabouts. One thing is sure, it was not allotted into the Smoke Signals budget.

In answer to this week's question: Yes, I am a member of Phi Mu Alpha.

Within the next few weeks, this column will carry guest features by Professor Theron Welch of the Music Department, David Wade, Steinman and Ryan Edwards. If you would like to submit a 400 word column on music to be printed here or if you know of someone who would like to see a column by, send in your columns or suggestions to Box 453, Campus Mail.

Film Fare Offers Westerns, Navy

By WANDA SUE OWEN

If you like "cowboy" movies I am sure you will enjoy The Tall Men starring Clark Gable and Jane Russell which started Wednesday and plays through Tuesday at the Florida. This movie has all of the ingredients such as Indian fights, cattle stampedes, outlaws, and gun fights, plus a love affair between Jane Russell and Clark Gable for real romance.

Some people are of the opinion that Gable's movie career is a has-been, but for the first time has reminded his enthusiasm for film and movies, and that the "King's" career is again on the upward trend to be on top.

Gable plays the role of Black Ben Allison, the "Tall Man," an authoritative trail boss in the early days of the West.

Jane Russell, the only woman in the picture, portrays Nell Turner, a fearless and beautiful western girl.

Robert Ryan, as Nathen Stark, tries for and steals the attentions of Miss Russell, and Cameron Mitchell is seen as Clint Allison, Gable's younger brother.

Jane Russell's brother, Jamie Russell, portrays an Army lieutenant who tries to help Gable and Jane Russell's romance.

The picture was directed by Raoul Walsh and produced by Harry Brown.

Playing at the State today and tomorrow is another western adventure, Shotgun, which is also produced by Robert Jacks.

Sterling Hayden, a former outlaw, now a sheriff, is forced to fight his former pals, a professional outlaw hunter, match wits and skill in the movie. Yvonne De Carlo contributes to the plot as a fun-loving cowboy girl trying to make her way to California for a fresh start in life.

From this struggling early western life you can jump into recent years at the Naval Academy, in Allied Artists' production of An American Story. John Derek and Kevin McCarthy are brothers in love with the same girl, Diana Lynn.

The screen play includes a football game between Navy and Army, two rescues at sea and a helicopter to jet plane combat over Korea for a struggle fight between the brothers.

An Annapolis Story as seen at a special screening in Hollywood was rated as "Good."

Investiture Held Wednesday For Class Of 1956

The members of the 1956 graduating class were officially invested at the annual ceremony Wednesday night in Westcott Auditorium.

Following a devotional given by Jim Joanos, Florida State University President Doak S. Campbell formally initiated the ceremony by capping Bob Crenshaw, President of the Senior Class. Sophomore brothers and sisters followed by investing their seniors.

Dr. R R Oglesby, dean of students, addressed the group saying, "The senior who has come through this far with the flame of curiosity burning bright is fortunate indeed. For he will never truly finish the course. He will rather move into a new neighborhood where Shakespeare, Galileo, and Leonardo da Vinci live."

Quoting from "the Harvard Report on General Education in a Free Society," Dean Oglesby continued, "The educated man is articulate both in speech and writing. He thinks rationally, logically, objectively, and knows the difference between fact and opinion.

"When the occasion demands, however, his thought is imaginative and creative, rather than logical. He is perceptive, sensitive to form, and affected by beauty. His mind is flexible and adaptable, curious and independent. He knows a good deal about the world of nature and the world of man and about the culture of which he is a part."

The processional and recessional were performed on the organ by Mrs Ramona C Beard of the FSU School of Music.

GraduateRecordExam Slated For Today

All new graduate students must take the Graduate Record Exam which will be given in Room 124 Science at 1:30 p.m. today and from 8 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. tomorrow.

These tests are composed of three parts including an aptitude test, an area test, and an achievement test in the student's special field.

All Homecoming Shots Due Tuesday

Sororities, fraternities, dorms and other organizations have been asked to turn in pictures of their Homecoming Queen candidates.

The deadline is Tuesday, at 5 p.m.

Pictures must be put in an envelope with the name and address of the candidate and sponsor. These are to be turned in at the information desk in Longmire.

In spite of the best plans of Sophomore Class Proxy Bill Culpepper, our Rat Court panel, and myself, nothing happened. Rat caps slowly but surely disappeared. Ambitious Sophomores threw up their hands in disgust when pregnant Rats ignored the summonses to Rat Court which they had slaved so to collect.

Wha' Hoppen?

The Freshmen blamed it on the Sophomores. The Sophomores blamed it on the Freshmen. Frankly, we don't blame anyone. We only wonder 'wha' hoppen.'

At least there is one bright note in the folding of the Rat Campaign. There's no Freshman-Sophomore Day — and no dunking in Westcott Pool for us.

Since Freshman-Sophomore Day was the deciding event to see whether some 1500 Freshmen continued wearing their Rat Caps, or discarded them after their victory, there is no use to have it. That is, unless the two gals still wearing their Rat Caps want to Indian Arm Wrestle muscular Bill Cullom and throw him in the pool.

Depend On You

Therefore, whether this bill will be passed depends a lot on you. All you are required to do is to use the old democratic principle of writing to your senator or congressman. Express your desire to have him vote for approval when this bill comes up. At the present time the bill is lying dormant in the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee.

...of this month.

I have been approached by several persons who asked what basis they were using to decide who would receive their checks this month and who would not.

No Basis

After checking with several authoritative sources, I learned that there is no actual basis but that they would get out as many checks this month as possible and the rest next month. This is due to the recent merger and the increased workload that will present itself around the middle of November.

Here is something important! This requires the action of each and every vet on this campus as well as other campus' throughout the nation. A congressional bill has been introduced by Senator Milton R. Young (R.N.D.) and designated S 331. This bill proposes an across the board increase of about $40 per month for persons attending college under the Korean GI Bill.

Increase Allowance

The measure would increase the training allowance for vets without dependents from the present $110 per month to $145. Vets with one dependent would have their allowance hiked from $135 to $175, while those with more than one dependent would have an increase from $160 to $205 per month.

The bill has received no consideration as yet from a Senate Veterans Affairs Subcommittee headed by Senator Herbert Leh-

'New Moon' Principal Should Find It Easy

By MARTY REEVES

Playing the male lead in Sigmund Romberg's "The New Moon" this fall should be "old stuff" to Bud Greene, if past experience is any indication.

A special student, Greene has the part of a French nobleman disguised as a bond-servant. He is a very strong-willed man who believes in democracy and equality for all," said Greene, adding that there is also the romantic and human side of him.

First Song

Born in Lake Worth, Greene first sang in public at the age of five, when he appeared on an amateur radio contest. Then nothing happened for about ten years, he said, until he reached high school. There he did solo work with various choruses and took part in several plays, including "Dear Ruth" and "An Wilderness."

Two years at Palm Beach Junior College came next, along with a lead in Gershwin's "Girl Crazy" and solo work with more choruses, including the Romany chorus, made up of "gypsies." Greene also worked two seasons with the Palm Beach Playhouse.

Cut Short

His professional career was cut short, however, when the inevitable letter from Uncle Sam arrived. For most of his two-year stay with the Army, Greene did solo work with the 489rd Army Band at Ft. Benning. He also took the tenor lead in "The Chocolate Soldier" with a professional organization in Columbus, Georgia, and appeared in several plays.

One week after he was discharged, he arrived at FSU. In the month he has been here, this tenor has not only been chosen for the "New Moon" lead but also has a role in "Blithe Spirits", a Speech Department production.

Modest

In spite of his experience, Greene is very modest about his achievements. "I want to say how fortunate I feel that I could come right into something like this after coming right out of the army," he said. Declaring how much he enjoys working with the rest of the cast, he says that "the entire cast is very talented and capable of doing a fine job. The direction is very capable."

As far as future plans, Greene says he hopes to go into professional work singing and acting. He prefers musical comedy and semi-classics to opera.

FSU's Music Therapy Is A New Twist

By MARTY REEVES

"Music hath charms" is an age-old saying. Just recently, however, the idea has taken a therapeutic and scientific form in the professional world—that of music therapy.

Now in its second year as part of the curriculum at Florida State University, the program is taught in only five other universities throughout the country.

Ten Students

Ten students are now enrolled in Music Therapy at FSU. Meetings are held regularly with Donald E Michel, chairman, and member of the music faculty, to discuss phases and new developments in the field. In addition, they plan visits to nearby clinics, where they sometimes entertain, as well as observe.

Two weeks ago, two of the members, Richard Sheffer and Janice Watkins, accompanied Michel to the Sixth Annual Conference of the National Association for Music Therapy held in Detroit. Sheffer and Miss Watkins brought considerable background to the conference themselves, as both worked as psychiatric attendants at Elgin State Hospital in Illinois last summer.

Happy Solution

Many students entering this field find a happy solution for using their musical skills in ways which accomplish much the same ends as those of the clinical psychologist, social worker, and nurse.

Music therapy is not anything mystical or magical, however, stressed Michel, adding that "music is no cure in itself. It's value lies in its contribution to the 'total push' program and the place of the music therapist on the therapeutic team."

Many Aims

Its many aims, according to NAMT, are in influencing the mood of the patient, improving morale, providing constructive spare time activity, promoting self-expression and release, and perfecting skills which build self-esteem.

This applies mainly in the field of mental illness. Music, however, is being found useful as a therapeutic tool in other areas, such as crippled or handicapped children, and in other long-term treatment centers such as TB hospitals.

Faculty-Student Enthusiasm—This trio at Florida State University attended the National Association for Music Therapy conference recently in Detroit. Seated is Donald Michel of the music faculty, keenly interested in the material collected at the conference by his students, Janice Watkins and Richard Sheffer.

Varied Projects On Tap--- Including 'Queen' Contest

By ARLIEDA RIES

Watch the thermometer in back of Westcott climb with Campus Chest contributions.

Numerous and varied projects are spinning up all over campus with donations to be earned for the Chest in view.

As their project the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity is sponsoring the Campus Chest Queen contest starting Monday. The queen will be chosen from sixteen contestants, one representative from each sorority.

Displays

Booths displaying the contestants' pictures will be displayed at the Student Center, Kahlers, and the Seminole Club. Votes will be a penny each with the total amount going to the Campus Chest. The winner will receive a trophy and will ride in the homecoming parade.

The entrants and the sororities they represent are: Madeleine Elmore, Alpha Delta Pi; Gloria Harris, Alpha Omicron Pi; Myra Anne Lay, Alpha Xi Delta; Adrienne Daly, Chi Omega; Margaret Mills, Delta Zeta; Layte Bowden, Kappa Alpha Theta; June Silay, Sigma Kappa; Ruth Shuman, Zeta Tau Alpha; Pat Deal, Delta Delta Delta; Gretchen Oetjen, Alpha Chi Omega; Carol Thatcher Gamma Phi Beta; Deane Jackson, Kappa Delta; Margaret Ann Ballinger, Delta Gamma Barbara Emmett, Alpha Gamma Delta, Shirley Borrell, Phi Mu, and Stew Bolton, Pi Beta Phi.

Soap Box Derby

Next Friday at 3.30 p.m marks the start of the Alpha Gamma Delta sorority and Phi Delta Theta fraternity sponsored Soap Box Derby. Each sorority and fraternity are paired to form teams, with the men building the cars and the women driving. An entrance fee of $2.50 will be charged each entrant, proceeds going to the Chest.

The Derby will become an annual affair with two trophies going to the winning sorority and fraternity on a rotation basis.

Teams Entered

Competing teams are: Alpha Omicron Pi and Lambda Chi Alpha, Alpha Xi Delta and Tau Epsilon Phi, Alpha Delta Pi and Phi Kappa Tau, Delta Gamma and Sigma Phi Epsilon, Delta Zeta and Alpha Tau Omega, Delta Delta Delta and Pi Kappa Alpha, Sigma Kappa and Sigma Chi, Kappa Alpha Theta and Theta Chi, Pi Beta Phi and Kappa Alpha, Alpha Chi Omega and Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Zeta Tau Alpha and Kappa Sigma, Gamma Phi Beta and Sigma Nu, Phi Mu and Alpha Kappa Psi, Kappa Delta and Delta Tau Delta, as well as Chi Omega and Pi Kappa Phi.

Balloon Sale

The latest project of the Pi Kappa Tau fraternity will be to sell balloons at the Villanova game on November 6. With Delta Gamma as co-sponsors they recently netted $245 with the Betty Coed contest for the Chest. Anita Anderson of Alpha Delta Pi was the winner in this contest.

FSU's Campus Chest drive has consistently been one of the best in the South," said John Gleason, Regional Executive of the World University Service. Monday afternoon at the Campus Chest meeting in Lounsbury

"The World University Service, is a college relief effort, in which some 130 major universities in the United States participate," remarked Mr. Gleason, in defining the WUS

There are 29 countries taking part in the WUS effort. According to Gleason, over fifteen million dollars in the United States alone has been donated by students since World War II. Funds received by the WUS are used to buy educational supplies and help classroom material, to build health centers, student hostels, and for scholarships.

CHAPTER V—THE HUMP

Ever wonder what runs through a fighter's mind when he's the canvas tying to raise himself.

There can be but two answers.

He'll either drop back to the canvas and take the easy way or he'll stand up and face even rougher treatment with a shot, somehow, he'll eventually come out on top.

The Tribe might be compared to that fighter.

Just be a slightly dented 'magic of believing' attitude that coach Tom Nugent will take into Atlanta Saturday. And a slightly roughed-up team that'll go into Atlanta to face —more punishment?

But the Tribe is now in the position to see that glimmer hope. They're almost over the hump. After Georgia Tech Villanova, Furman, The Citadel, Mississippi Southern and University of Tampa. They expect to win those five. Should do so, they'll finish with a six and four record—and how our football teams have bounced into major college with a record.

Enough said.

Ex Georgia Tech this week. The Atlanta school is presently ted 15th in the nation by the Associated Press. And they'll on the rebound this week from a 14-12 loss to Auburn last day—a win which has been termed as the greatest in Au- ly football history.

Naturally, Florida State is the definite underdog. And after Seminoles' 47-14 loss to Georgia's Bulldogs last week, it'll hard to find anyone who believes they have a chance for poet.

But there's always that chance.

After looking at the films of the Georgia game this week ach remarked:

"We looked awful good in some parts of that game. And moved the ball well on those two touchdown drives."

And of Georgia Tech, he said.

Naturally, we know they're a heavy favorite to win. But ard to win it on the field."

ad Nugent—perhaps better than anyone else—should know means to upset the mighty Engineers. He did it as coach VMI team in 1950. And it was a sound trouncing.

He tells it this way:

We went into Atlanta having lost only one game that year naturally, we were a heavy underdog. A group of newspapers met us at the hotel and began to needle us. They did it ach an extent that I had to chase them off by saying—we're his bes. Tech. We're gonna do it good."

The fellas heard me tell the writers that," continues Nu- "They did the rest. We had two touchdowns called back. we won, 14-13."

And now they have the deepest respect for Nugent in lanta.

But it won't be VMI-Georgia Tech tomorrow. It'll be FSU- rgia Tech. And we've all seen the odds.

Regardless, before it's even written, we'll just call Chapter The Hump." The Tribe is almost over it.

SEMINOLE POW WOW—

Two questions on tap this week. Coach Nugent on the an- ers and Elgin White doing the asking.

Q Will the FSU team "come back" in these last five games the schedule?

A Yes, definitely. This team never quits. You know, we our reserves playing in that last quarter against Georgia. one on the bench got into the game. It gave us a chance ee what all the boys could do, and also, gave a needed rest. top players for the rest of the schedule. As a result, we so no serious injuries in the Georgia game.

Q What does the future hold for your FSU team in major ball competition?

A With another crop of good freshmen added to this year's ty squad, and with the return of 3 or 3 top flight boys in ervice now, we should be able to go with the big boys. We several big backs. 5 or 3 more king-sized tackles, then we'll get the much needed relief and rest which is necessary in own day football. But we'll get there . . . just watch us in couple of years.

Tribe Ready For Tough Engineers

JUMPING right into the middle of what might be the toughest football game they'll enter this year, the Seminoles will be trying for an upset over Georgia Tech this weekend. Reading left to right, the Indians in the air are Tom Feamster, Bob Barber, Al Pacifico, Bob Crenshaw, Jerry Jacobs, Bill Proctor, and Ronnie Schomburger. The back-

FSU Hopes For Comeback Against Tech

By ALAN WHITMARSH

The business of big-time football gets tougher and tougher each week for the young Seminoles of Florida State University.

After four straight rugged opponents, the Tribe goes to Atlanta tomorrow for what may be their toughest to date, the Ramblin' Wreck of Georgia Tech.

The Yellow Jackets of Bobby Dodd lost their first Contest of the year last Saturday, to a fired-up underdog Auburn team. Coach Tom Nugent's gridders know what Auburn is like after last year, so they realize they have a rough afternoon ahead of them.

Previous to that loss, the Ramblin' Wreck had defeated Miami, 14-6 Florida, 14-7, Southern Methodist, 20-7 and LSU, 7-0. They haven't been able to get a really high-scoring offense underway this far, but a sturdy defense has been making up for it.

The Seminoles took a rugged pounding from the big Georgia line last week, and Coach Nugent hasn't work this past week and none of the injuries would seem serious.

It was feared for awhile that the injured ankle of Bubba Barber would not respond, but trainer Don Faulk asserted that Barber should be 100% and ready to start tomorrow afternoon.

We're taking it easy in practice so that some of those minor bruises can heal," said Nugent. Barring any further bruises, the Seminoles may go into this contest in their best physical shape of the season.

The starting lineup for the Tribe looms much the same as the one which started the Georgia game, with a few exceptions. Joe Holt will be back to his regular post at fullback and Bob Crenshaw will probably resume starting duties at center.

The ends will be Ham Bisone and Ronnie Schomburger, the tackles Bill Proctor and Bob Barber, the guards Jerry Jacobs and Leo Bagatell, with Crenshaw at center.

The backfield will once again be led by Sam Stanley, who earned his old starting role by scoring both Seminole touchdowns against Georgia. Speedy halfbacks Lee Corso and Billy Odom will start, with Holt back at full.

If Coach Bobby Dodd of Tech is tempted to take the Seminoles lightly because of his team's heavy favorites role, he might be shocked back by the memory of an afternoon in 1950, when Coach Nugent brought a 3-touchdown underdog VMI team (Continued on Page 6)

Cude Joins Gym Team

A welcome addition to the year's gala gymnastics team is pretty Beverly Cude of Noroada, Ohio.

A graduate of Noranda High School, the petite brunette was the all-around champion at the Canadian Sokol Gymnastics meet held in Montreal. It was the first time she had entered in the Sokol competition.

In 1954 she won the Northwestern Quebec Ladies Open Diving championship at Kirkland Lake, Ontario. Prior to that Beverly competed in the Canadian Dominion championships in Windsor, finishing third all-around.

Having no specialty as yet, Beverly concentrates on the balance beam, free calisthenics, uneven parallel bars, and side horse vaulting. These, however, might lead to her being named an all-around champion.

While attending high school Beverly was a member of a gymnastic club that put on shows and exhibitions throughout northern Quebec, and Ontario.

The nineteen-year-old freshman is the oldest of four children and the only girl. "I'm glad I came to FSU and am sure I'll enjoy my four years here," she said. Beverly is a Physical Education major, and plans to return to Canada after obtaining her degree.

Intramural Basketball Pace Increases As Climax Nears

After last Monday night's games in the independent intramural basketball leagues, six teams left with a possibility of getting in the playoffs for the title. The two high teams are to play off for the championship after the final league schedule next week. Only the Methodists and Rebels are out of the running, but the results of their games can knock other teams out of the running.

Last Monday the Baptists beat Penthouse 47-41, but the west hall players were in the game right up to the finish. It was 20-19 at the half and 35-31 at the third quarter Galloway's 15 led the winners, but Powell had 18 for the losers.

The Pirates knocked the Methodists out of the running with a 45-28 win, with Bill Clenderin leading the winners with 20 points. An overdose of dribbling and inaccuracy at the basket cost the losers heavily.

Senior Hall just barely nosed out the Rebels 37-34 Senior Hall led 17-16 at the half and 27-23 at three quarters but the Rebels went ahead with 3 minutes to play but could not hold the lead. The big advantage to Senior Hall was their 13 free throws vs 4 for the losers.

As of Oct 18, Baptist and Senior Hall are tied for first with four wins and a loss. Magnolia, Pirates and Penthouse are all 3 and 2. Baptists have scored 187 points to date, and Senior Hall 184

One good, close game marked the fraternity basketball league on Tuesday night on west campus.

Sigma Nu was nosed out by PDT 25-24. It was a tight defensive game all the way with the half time score 14-12. Both teams had everyone in the scoring with Hempel being high with 10 points.

Sigma Chi added to the woes of TKP in a battle for the cellar. Neither team had won a game but SC took the contest 46-21.

Wold To Start At Center Slot

Gary Wold, a six-foot, seven-inch senior, will be playing from the forward post this season when Coach Bud Kennedy's basketball squad takes the floor.

This is not new to Gary. While playing for Madison East High School he alternated between center and forward positions.

Gary turned down various other college scholarships that were offered him as he "decided to travel." He first intended to try out for football, but then switched over to basketball.

His best game point-wise last season was against Stetson, making 22 points. Overall he dropped 240 points through the hoop.

The exhibition game against the Phillips Oilers provided Gary with his top thrill in Basketball as that game he was guarding former All-Americans Chuck Darling 6'8" and Bob Maddock, 6'10".

"We could have a great team this year, as we have some of the best ball players in the south," Gary commented, adding that the Miami tourney "will be the best tournament I've ever played in."

The Tribe will remain here over the Thanksgiving holidays to practice and keep in shape for its December tournaments.

Gary is majoring in Business Administration, specializing in accounting and insurance, and plans to remain in the South.

Co-Ed Corner

by
Juanita Jacob

Hi there, Co-Eds.

Volleyball is making a big hit with the women of the dorms and sororities. There's a lot of enthusiasm being displayed out on the field during practice. Because, as many of you might know, Monday, Oct. 24, begins the intramural tournament.

Everyone is real excited about it.

Every dorm and sorority has had a good number present every time. Reynolds Hall, whose unit manager is Marion Benson, leads the dorms with the number participating.

And way up among the sororities is Phi Mu, whose manager is Melanie Paulette.

You're all to be congratulated.

Tony Moore volleyball manager, has happily stated that "the number of women out for volleyball this year is greater than last year."

This shows that the intramural program is expanding each year.

The unit managers for the dorms and sororities have been announced. Here they are:

Kappa Alpha Theta, Carvi James; Kappa Delta, Jeanne Ford; Phi Mu, Melanie Paulette; Pi Beta Phi, Ann Hoffman; Sigma Kappa, Cynthia Maxon; Zeta Tau Alpha, Joan Harmon.

The dorms:

Bryan, Tony Moore, Broward, Faye Moses; Cawthon, Shirley Johnson; Florida Hall, Callie Trowbridge; Gilchrist, Regan Ray; Jennie Murphree, Harriett Day Students, Majory McDonald.

Volleyball Tourney To Start Tomorrow

The Third Annual Northwest Florida High School Volleyball Tournament is scheduled for 8 a.m., tomorrow in the Florida High gymnasium.

Sponsored by the FSU varsity volleyball squad, eight teams are expected to vie for the trophy this year. Last year, Quincy High School was the winner, with Havana High runnerup.

The tournament will be in the form of a double elimination contest. Refreshments will be served.

Senate Says Scholarship Standards Must Be Stricter

Resolution Asks For Stricter Upperclassmen Regulations

By HOWARD HARTLEY

A resolution urging the administration of Florida State University to establish a higher minimum scholastic standard for upperclassmen was passed in Student Senate Wednesday.

Senator Liz Cerny, chairman of the Labor, Student Services and Education Committee, introduced the resolution with a statement that "since FSU has no stricter policy of retention other than that stated in the 1954 catalog: 'a student, other than a first semester freshman, who fails in more than half his work will be suspended for one semester for poor scholarship,' initative and quality of students tend to be lowered."

Higher

Cerny pointed out that the University of Florida, among other state institutions of higher learning has higher requirements for upperclassmen than does FSU. Upperclassmen at U of F who flunk more than half of their work are automatically suspended.

In a rebuttal to Senator Edwards' statement that "every student who are making 'F' are learning something," Senators Close and Mansfield emphasized the crowded conditions at FSU and stated their belief that students who couldn't remain at FSU because they were unable to find a place to stay are being robbed by students who are incapable of profiting by college experience, as evidenced by continual poor scholarship.

Better Opportunity

[illegible] opportunity a [illegible] cannot stated [illegible]

[illegible] have [illegible] the minimum [illegible] point average [illegible] intended [illegible] minimum [illegible] upperclassmen.

Flunk 8 Hours

Under the present set-up an upperclassman can flunk eight hours of a 16 hour schedule, make 'D' on all the others, come back to school, repeat the process and still remain in the university.

There are other regulations which restrict graduation, but Senator Cerny feels that even allowing students who are continually below the minimum standard for graduation to remain is too lenient, and is depriving others of the chance for a college education.

Specific recommendations for changing the existing rule are not included in the resolution. Senate is leaving this aspect up to the administration. The resolution was passed nearly unanimously. Only Senator Edwards voted "no".

Many New Pins Evident

By CHARLET POITEVINT

Many proud Greeks can be seen sporting spankin', brand new fraternity or sorority pins around campus these day.

Tri-Delta, Zeta Tau Alpha, Delta Gamma, Delta Tau Delta, Theta Chi, Kappa Delta and Sigma Alpha Epsilon pledges were recently initiated.

Delta Gamma

Jackie Altman, Elizabeth Cerney, Carol Deul, Charlotte Lacy, Sandra Smith, Joyce Steven and Sylvia Willis have donned the golden anchor of DG.

Carol Deul was awarded the Scholarship Cup and Jackie Altman was voted recipient of the Best Pledge trophy.

Zeta

New Zeta initiates are Sally Erickson, Denise Johnson, Pat Peace, and Sarah Umstot, while Ann Dye, Peggy Wright, Joan Wadsworth and Jane Soper are now Tri-Delt actives.

Theta Chi

DTD

After Dale Gallagher Delta Tau Delta was initiated, the brothers honored him at a banquet held at the Silver Slipper.

Delt pledges elected officers last week. They are Clete Blaes, president, John Miller, vice-president, Don Ray, secretary, Sam Burns, corresponding secretary, and Bill Lewis, treasurer. Lamar Allen, Arno DeCorgie and Ben Watkins have joined the pledge class.

SAE

SAE initiates include J. A. Carey, Donald Ramsey, Frank Reuss, Stuart Gould, Bill Grow, Vic Pranzi, and Don Johnson.

The pledges recently elected officers who are Charlie Ward, president, Tuffy Parsons, vice-president, Sheull Johnson, treasurer, Gerald McArthur, secretary, Dick Bellows, chaplain, and Bert Daly, sergeant of arms.

KD

Kappa Delta extends its congratulations to new active members, Mabel Hinson, Martha Pate, Diane Stagall, Marilyn Mason, and Ann Walker.

Dance

Sigma Chi and Kappa Delta are co-sponsoring an informal dance at the Student Center Saturday night from 9 to 12.

The Kappa Alpha chapter of KD celebrated the 58 anniversary of their sorority's founding last week. The FSU chapter is 50 years old and is the oldest college sorority on the campus and in the state.

SAE

No, that wasn't a Hobo convention at the SAE house last night. It was a Hobo party the SAEs gave for the Theta's. An annual Brother-Pledge football game to be held October 29 is the next event on their agenda. A combo party will follow the game that night.

High Society was theme of the Theta Chi's party given recently for the Delta's. The word has it that a few Theta Chi's are about to lose their pins as well as their hearts. When they do, a campus first will take place as a new type of pinning ceremony is being created for the occasion.

Alpha Xi

Alpha Xi Delta's entertained the Kappa Sigs last week at a dessert party. The frat's pledge class wrote and dedicated a song to the girls and Nancy Cubbon sang for the group.

Alpha Gam

Alpha Gam pledge officers are June Grant, president, Pat Hartness, vice-president, Arlene Sargent, secretary, Rae Sheldon, treasurer, Sylvia Dearon, sergeant at arms, Carolyn Bolt, chaplain and Barbara Johnson, Jr Pan-Hellenic representative.

The Alpha Gams are honoring their pledges this Saturday night from 9 to 12 with a combo Party. Danny Cunningham will provide the music and everyone is invited.

win. A huge 29-10 lead at the first half turned the trick. Earl got 16 points for the losers and Ashley 13 for the winners. TC had 13 free throws to 5 for PKA.

Kappa Sigma lost their third straight to LCA 57-23. Fred Woodward leading the winners with 17 points. Otero got 11 for the losers.

The final games of the regular schedule are next Tuesday.

Oct. 25, Tues.

5—SAE vs PKT
PDT vs TEP
7—KA vs SC
8—DTD vs PKP

The playoffs begin on Thursday, Oct 27 with the top two teams in each of the three divisions in the playoff. Theta Chi is leading Div I, Kappa Alpha heads Div II and Alpha Tau Omega with 3-0 tops Div III.

Current box scores and schedule of playoff games are posted at the Flag Pole bulletin board at the student center and on the Gold Key Board at Longmire.

TENNIS

Second round matches of the intramural tennis double elimination tournaments are on tap for next week.

At 4 PM on the varsity courts daily from Monday through Thursday play in the dorm and frat divisions will be played, in both singles and doubles.

Draw sheets and schedules are posted at the student center and Longmire.

NOTICE

Students wishing to officiate in the intramural touch football leagues should make application to WC 425.

The tough football leagues get underway at the close of the [illegible] schedule.

Flambeau photo: Mitzy Kline

Gambling Hall Exposé?—Not exactly. Pictured are a group of unidentified FSU women waiting to have their pictures taken for TALLY-HO. Lines got so long last week that some took to playing cards on steps leading to Ninth floor, Longmire Building, as above. Situation caused Editor Jim Broderick to comment in desperation: "Somebody get me out of this!"

Estimates Of Expense Due

Over 100 candidates will commence their campaigns for office this afternoon at 5.

Freshman office and board of publications candidates must submit expense estimates by 5 p.m. this afternoon or be disqualified. Secretary of Elections Betty Willmon has warned.

If any candidate foresees his estimate will be late he must inform Miss Willmon, or undersecretary of elections Miss McCullough before 5 p.m. at the Kappa Alpha Theta House.

The estimates may be left at the Longmire Building information desk. Expense limits are $30 class president; $25, senators; 15 other class officers and board of publications.

Starts Today

Active campaigning begins this afternoon at 5 and with 100 freshmen seeking the 11 offices every available wall space will be festooned with posters, if past trends hold true this year.

Elections committee sources said Sunday according to expense estimates which had already been submitted most candidates are spending near the limit for their offices.

Regulations governing campaign posters in places other than women's residence halls, which have set rules of their own, are:

Posters must be removed within 48 hours after the end of the primary, or 48 hours after the run-off, depending upon whether the candidate wins a berth in the final contest. No adhesive tape or material may be left on woden or brick surfaces.

No Nails, Tacks

No nails or tacks may be driven in trees or walls of buildings. No placards may be stuck to plastered walls with scoach tape or other adhesives.

According to statutes passed by Student Senate, if any university property is defaced the candidate whose name appears on the election material involved, will be held responsible if the person who posted the placard may be identified.

Candidates were reminded by Florida Flambeau editor Jayleen Robertson campaign letters must be submitted to the Flambeau office, 213 Longmire, by 5 this afternoon. Letters must be typewritten, double-spaced, and not over 150 words long.

The foregoing statutes are subject to enforcement by the Honor Court.

Polling Places

Polling places on Tuesday's election, which will last from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m., will be at Westcott Building, Seminole Club and the Student Center, staffed by Sophomore Council, and at

Just A Little Laving—It's all in fun as Caroline Brown and Norman Trippodo hug John Paul Davis during rehearsals for "Blithe Spirit."

'Spirit' Manager Not Too 'Blithe'

By BILL KING

There are times when playwrights should be shot—and this is one of those times.

The things a stage manager has to put up with from those guys is down right disgusting.

For instance, take Noel Coward's farce, BLITHE SPIRIT. Master-at-last if you want it you can have it. I'm stuck with it. Oh, don't get me wrong, its a terrific show, a laugh a line and Dr. Duree's cast is going to give a wonderful performance starting Friday night. Its just the technical aspects I'm complaining about.

Senseless

Now, Noel Coward has been writing plays for eons, but I do believe he took leave of his senses (to coin an old phrase) when he wrote the stage directions for Blithe!

Its no wonder the mortality rate of stage managers is so high. What with having to figure out such things as flying pillows, spirit breezes supposed to be different from nail breezes, tapping tables and cloudy crystal balls! and how on earth do you make a spirit glow green?

Four Weeks

We spent four weeks designing, building and painting a beautiful set for ent, and final exams.

Noel's play—and what does he want us to do with it? Practical by trair it all apart in the last scene!! It seems a couple of spirits are let loose who aren't particularly fond of the man of the house and try their best to do him in.

Now, us all right with me if they are angry with Charles, but I certainly wish they would take care of him in some dark alley—anyplace but in our beautiful set—we worked so hard on it.

Will Be OK

I guess everything will work out all right—its really such a good show. Sometimes I find myself laughing so hard I loose my place in the script and don't get the cues for flying apricot soufflé's worse on time, but I'm sure they'll be OK. Opening night I should be a full fledged hocus-pocus-spiritualist.

Who knows, maybe I'll open a shop of my own . . . "Swami Se-ensiki" . . . serves all, past, present and future.

Film Club Show 'The Medium' Set This Week

Suspense film, The Medium, will be shown Tuesday night in Westcott School Auditorium at 8 and 9:30 p.m. It will be the second film presentation of the season open only to Film Club members.

"The Medium, a Broadway success of two seasons back, was directed and produced by Gian-Carlo Menotti. Being an adaptation of opera, it is essentially a stage production.

"The Medium may not offer much on cinematic effects, but it does, however, come closer to grasping what any other film is attempting to the Saturday night movie crowd," a reviewer wrote.

Melodramatic Plot

To the advantage of course is the melodramatic plot of the film as to the stage play. A shadowy and narrative continues the article, however, cameras close to the principals. Menotti and his Alexander Hammid, rather than imitate the unbelievable stage production, have made a blend of Madame Butterfly apartment, the charm of her seance with Mr. Peel, are shown at dramatically as a kind realistic to the fact that one is suna

Violence Emerges

The violence latent in the work emerges with great effectiveness on the secret of the haunting, writhing, and at all the while.

The fake spiritualist who is suspect that the powers she was working against, murders d anything more sinister sadistic in the film. The music gypsy boy who is her assistant, practices his magic on the maddened out of pure hate.

Re-Create Roles

Powers and Lee Coldon of the original New company, re-create on film roles of Madame Flora and while Anna Maria Alberghetti, the fourteen-year-old prodigy starred Carnegie Hall Audiences last winter, takes Monica pure and child like beauty. Includes the Saturday Review

AV To Show Films Tonight

Tonight's Audio-Visual Center will deal with the subjects of and aviation.

The movies, shown in the Audio Center trophy room at 7:30 to 9:30 p.m., are as "Flying Business Man" and "Airport America," part of a series of educational non-commercial films dealing with general aviation.

"A Place to Live," the first in a series of films dealing with the people of old age. The movie is a presentation of the problems of the aged in today's society with special emphasis on the standards for homes for the aged.

"Neighborhood Story," a dramatization of a settlement house worker, a 16-year-old boy, and his boy's family.

Students Choose Royalty Of Sophomore Hop Today

Dunn, Senator, Returns To FSU

Sophomore Senator Peter Dunn has returned to school and to her Senate seat which she resigned last summer, effective when she'd have to fill by appointment.

She withdrew this fall intending to practice for the 1956 Olympic swim team. Miss Dunn said upon learning the tryouts will not be held until next fall, she decided to return to school.

The possibility of making the Olympic squad would be too big a gamble against three semesters.

Dean of Women Kathryn Warren said Miss Dunn is being readmitted after nearly a semester's absence because of good academic capabilities.

The effect of her return on student government officials is thought to be one of relief. Last year when a seat was vacated, it occasioned a bitter, contentious debate and an unsuccessful constitutional amendment provision for special elections.

Prior to Miss Dunn's return, Student Body President Curle Moore announced he had "every confidence woman" under consideration for the appointment.

'Queen' Pictures Not Turned In

All nominations for homecoming queen have not yet been turned in according to Barbara Graham, chairman of the homecoming queen elections.

"All nominees must have pictures turned in to my committee by 5 p.m. today," she emphatically declared, "otherwise they will be ineligible as contestants."

Elections Friday

Preliminary elections will be held in Westcott Building between the hours of 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Tables will be set up in the hall of the first floor of Westcott, and the ballot boxes and pictures of contestants will be located there. Students are required to present their I. D. cards in order to vote, and voting will be supervised by members of the Seminola committee.

Nominees are sponsored by fraternities, sororities, and dormitories on campus, and an estimated twenty girls will be represented in the preliminary contest. Of this twenty only five finalists will be chosen in preliminary elections.

Finals Nov. 4

From these nine, the homecoming queen will be chosen in a final contest, which will be held Nov. 4. Again the final elections will be held in Westcott during the hours of 9-5, and students must present their I. D. card in order to vote.

The winner and 1955 Homecoming Queen will be announced and presented at the Pep Wee rally. Further information concerning the elections may be secured from Barbara Graham, phone 22450.

Final elections for the King and Queen of the Sophomore Hop are being held today at Westcott and the Student Center.

One man and one woman will be chosen for the royalty with four other couples composing their court.

Twenty candidates were chosen last week for the runoffs.

Final candidates for the Queen's title are Karen Boddington, Martha Cranford, Karen Kimple, Patty Marley, Martha McGinnis, Shirley Metz and Joy Smiley.

Running for King are Sonny Cason, Bill Cullom, Karl Edwards, Len Hoover, Hank McCann, Don Noel, Bill Strickland, Owen Trestle, Bill Weaver, and Ron Wetherington.

The theme for the dance centers around "Black Magic" revealed Joy Smiley, Sophomore Social Chairman. Decorations of the floorshow, and the entire dance will carry out this theme.

This year's royalty will be crowned by Coyle Moore, student government president.

Music for the dance will be furnished by the Devilaires. The dance is formal.

"All students are invited this year," emphasized Miss Smiley. "In previous years only Sophomores have been allowed to attend but the sophs wanted to invite the Seniors since they are

New Exhibit

'Susie Q' Is At Museum

By OSCAR JOHNSON

In the University Museum, around five corners from the main entrance, you run suddenly into a new exhibit: Susie Q.

Try it someday. Susie is like no girl you've seen before—unless you've been running around recently in the Amazon rain forests.

History Unknown

Her entire history is unknown but she was at one time part of the Carter collection of relics donated to the Museum. Susie, however, was not given to the University. She was given specially to Dr. Raymond Bellamy of the sociology department here.

There she received her office nickname. There, also, she ran into trouble. What happened is not exactly known, but it is suspected in some quarters that Dr. Bellamy's wife objected to the new member of the household.

Passed Along

Anyhow, it wasn't long before the University with all due ceremony, was presented with a gift. That gift was Susie Q. Dr. Bellamy passed the shrunken head from the wilds of Equador.

It wasn't until this week that Susie Q received her deserved home in the University Museum located in the Seminole Club Building.

Killed By Jivaros

At one time or another, around 85 years back Sue Q was a member of the Jivaros tribe attacked deep in the rain forests

Dad's Day Set For Villanova Contest Nov. 5

Florida State University will hold its first Dad's Day November 5.

This is a day on which all dads of university students will be honored.

The main event of Dad's Day will be the Villanova-FSU game. Half of isle 12 and all of isle 13 will be reserved for students and their dads. The students can use their regular tickets for this section and dads' tickets will be only half price. Other members of the family and friends may sit in this section, but the price of their tickets will be regular admission.

On Sale Today

Tickets for the Villanova game so on sale today at the Athletic Ticket Office at the Student Center.

Letters have been sent to the fathers of all boys who will participate in the football game that afternoon. These fathers will wear a number corresponding with that which is on their sons' football uniform and will be recognized at half time.

Most Fathers

A trophy will be given to the fraternity having the most fathers present at the game. This trophy will be awarded on a percentage basis according to the number of students in the fraternity and the percentage of fathers who had representing them.

Additional trophies will be awarded to the sorority and dorms with most dads present.

Other Awards

Other awards include those to the dad who has made the farthest distance to attend the game, to the father who has the most children who have attended FSU, but he must have at least one in school now.

If a students belongs to a sorority or fraternity but lives in a dorm, he may register his father at both places. This will allow both places to get credit for the dad.

Eddie Cudson athletic business manager, who is promoting Dad's Day explained that this is already a big event on many larger campuses and that he hopes to make it one at this university.

Picnic Lunch

A picnic lunch is planned for Saturday at 12:00 noon. It is open to all students and faculty members and their families. Tickets for th event to be held across from the stadium are now on sale from Hans Tews at $1 per ticket.

Reapportionment Is Subject Of Speech

The Politics Club will hold it's first meeting tomorrow, in Carothers Auditorium at 8 p.m.

Senator Wilson Carraway from Dade County will speak on Florida Reapportionment.

New officers who will preside at the meeting are Beverly Dupertpresident; Arnold Melcher, vice-president; Edna Runnels, secretary - treasurer; Harold Lember, program chairman; Dan Mahan, publicity chairman and Karl Edwards, membership chairman.

Gymkana Sales Begin Monday

Tickets for Gymkana will go on sale Monday at 8 a.m. in the Athletic Trophy Room, announced Ed Cubbon athletic ticket manager.

The show runs from November 7 through the 12.

Tickets are 50 cents for students and $1.00 to non-students. 1.D. cards must be shown with the purchase of student tickets and extra seats are available each night for students body with tickets for all performances sold as a "first come first served" basis.

"Last year many of the students did not get to see the Gymkana production because ticket sales were made at the gym. Confusion will be avoided this year as the students can pick the night they want to attend and purchase their tickets well in advance," explained Cubbon

Bailey's Idea Impracticable

Will teaching "America's moral and spiritual heritage" in the public schools be in violation of the precious democratic doctrine of church and state separation?

School Superintendent Thomas D. Bailey does not think so, and has launched a plan to institute such instruction in the schools. It would be non-sectarian.

Yet we cannot agree that religious instruction of any sort belongs in the schools, for America's heritage is as much a freedom from religion as a freedom to choose any particular sect.

Let us present Mr. Bailey's viewpoint as quoted in the Florida Times-Union.

"It is not my intention to inaugurate a program for sectarian religious instruction in the public schools and I do not contemplate any abrogation of the traditional separation of church and state.

"What I propose is the development of materials to assist teachers in developing appreciation and understanding of moral and spiritual values and in more effectively presenting the contribution of religion to our American way of life.

"It is a well known fact that our governmental institutes, legal systems, social practices, political concepts, and services for promoting the general welfare have their basic origins in religious concepts. The Declaration of Independence, our national and state institutions, and our Bill of Rights reflect moral and spiritual convictions held by our founding fathers. These relationships need to be made crystal clear for our children and youth.

"Instruction in the background of our legal system and our social practices cannot be complete without reference to their religious origins.

"To ignore in our schools any reference to God when our Declaration of Independence and pledge of allegiance to the flag and our coins in daily use all refer to the existence of an almighty deity is to ask teachers to instruct in darkness."

At first glance, this seems an entirely commendable proposition. If it will truly involve the opinions and suggestions of representatives of various faiths. Yet there are certain fallacies in the reasoning stated above.

While it is true organized religion has played a tremendous role in the development of our nation, much of that history was written by people who belonged to no organized faith and held views regarded as heretical and atheistic in their times.

Thomas Jefferson, who wrote the Declaration of Independence, was a deist. He believed in a God, but belonged to no church. Thomas Paine, the propagandist who helped pull the revolution out from "The times that try men's souls," was the apostle of deism.

An objective, analytical, study of religions and the role they have played in America would be a great and wholesome education for any student. We can not be assured that an elementary school or high school level approach would remain untainted by the personal opinions of the teachers, or that it would be reasonably inclusive.

There are a multitude of different sects and beliefs in America, as well as many people who are religious but non-sectarian and many who do not choose to believe in God. If any of these are slighted in the public school study of religion, that study becomes sectarian in fact if not name.

It is not the role of the school to instruct students in religion. Neither do we believe teachers are "instructing in darkness" if they cannot elaborate in class on religious affiliation.

Organized religion, with its churches, revivals, Sunday schools, newspaper columns, and other ways of reaching the people, is doing a very effective job. It is indeed regrettable that most people are not exposed to all religions but are committed to one at birth or in childhood, and a rectification of this philosophical error would be one sterling point in favor of religious instruction in school.

But we can hardly be sure this instruction will remain an objective study of the various politically and socially significant beliefs prevalent in American history. And until we can guarantee this objectivity, and assure each parent that his beliefs will be fairly presented in an unbiased manner in school, we have no business tampering with the treasured principle of church and state separation.

History is partly written in the tragedies of governments who, although sincere and well-meaning, taught and ruled in favor of individual religions at the expense of free thought, intellectualism, and political liberty.

Precedent?

The Florida Supreme Court is expected to announce this week whether Governor LeRoy Collins is constitutionally eligible to run for Governor in the 1956 election. We hope its decision does not read:

"God created Governors to hold office four years. We do not wish to reverse His fudgment . . . "

"Site" Indefinite

Wish those music majors could make up their minds. The "Future Home of Phi Mu Alpha" is currently bounded by a flagpost, a tree, and the music amphitheatre.

So far, the sign has traveled from the construction site of the new library, to the tree in front of Tarkey Murphree Hall, and finally to the above described location. May it rest there in peace.

A Moment Of Reflection

Editor's Note: The editor of the Daily Texan seems to have hit upon a topic often dismissed as sentimentality. Perhaps he has to say, we feel, in general describes our campus, our own personal problems as well . . .)

By WILLIE MORRIS
Texas Editor

THE OKLAHOMA GAME moments of social drunks leaves the stone face of an academic city still and deserted.

Ours is a vast campus, where you can drift alone in the afternoon quiet and sense that deep security that springs from it.

Occasionally you have to retreat from people . . . from junior proms and parking, Union expansion and athletic Councils, and all the speculation and design that won't mean much a decade from now.

So you take a break in the dull mid-afternoon monotony and wander over the campus, and you light a cigarette and yield to the impressive quiet of complete solitude.

THE IMPACT of stone often is impersonal, is now warm, and the obtrusive clatter of thousands on crowded sidewalks is back at noon.

A shy autumn wind disturbs the trees, recalling the countless lost voices of those who have lived amidst all this, joined fraternities and cursed the draft outsensed professors and read economics, then departed for the civilian land of things beyond.

DYING MOONLIGHT reflects on windows, catches a pale orange on the desks and books of those who defy a misunderstanding society to impart the warm, all-consuming heat they found many years ago.

The place and the time are bigger than you or they. Time passes as men pass. And you, who are twenty and alive with a billion hopes, are quite temporary.

The biggest story in our lives is not how to dupe the Russians or freeze tuition, but how to find ourselves.

LIFE is an eternal intrigue. The child is father of the man. The voice of humanity is sad and still. Over us all is—something. Truth is beauty, beauty truth. No man is an island unto himself. We are 2 billion universes. And on.

But where is meaning?

Somewhere within walking distance of the oak under which you sit is the book that will answer your life, the person who will show you the way, the girl who will make you less unhappy. And somewhere, you trust, is the unknown promise that will make the next 50 years worth living.

THAT'S why it's good, now and then, to escape the sound and fury, the self-cancelling vacillation. Alone with your thoughts, you comprehend some of the greatness of the place, the greatness that is profuse, that overflows, that touches the hearts and minds of big presidents who will have portraits in the Main Building and little editors who will never again be heard.

Won't Anybody Listen?

TO THE EDITOR:

Last week I wrote you to inquire about the ridiculous—I think state of affairs regarding the ban on shorts as applied to the women in FSU. Since that time, I have expected at least some comment upon the part of someone (not counting the afore-mentioned letters) who was quite vociferous who at least would have the courtesy to explain why this ban is in effect. But nothing.

So I shall forthwith venture out a little further upon the field of honor, and take the privilege of being anonymous.

Fully realizing that I am but a very small fish in the pond of a very large dog, I did not expect a tremendous upheaval to take place, sweeping before it all opposition—the dramatic approach; but as Mother always said, it is very lonely to be ignored.

Now will somebody (any body) please explain rationally to me, and with graphic examples, why this rule. Ridiculous and inappropriate as it is, should persist despite constant criticism, and against the wishes of the vast majority of the student body? Modern also told me that it is hard to complain when one does not know who one is complaining about.

Hoping to hear from someone before I (and I) graduate, I remain,

Still Respectfully,
STEVE KLEID

Dean's List

TO THE EDITOR:

In the past it seems that it has been the policy of the Flambeau to publish the names of the students making the "Dean's List" the preceding semester.

I as well as several other students, are wondering if last semester's list is going to be published 'Spring Semester 1955.'

J. H.

(Editor's Note: The Dean's List was announced during the Summer School session. The printing of such a list would involve several gallays of news space, space which we have felt could be better used with more current news up to now. However, if we receive a number of requests to print it, we shall be happy to dig it up and do so.)

It Could Be Verse

(Editor's Note. The following appeared in Sept., 1785, in the New York Daily Advertiser.)

In the year 1775 Seth Williams of Taunton, a tanbellied hero, having escaped the vengeance of the populace of that place, by fleeing to Boston, they took his House, and carrying him to the Liberty-Pole on full bia mane and tail, which occasioned a wag to write the following at that time:

The Complaint of Poor Tib
Hear now all ye Yahoos who ride on horse back.

And pity the case of a backney'd old Jack.

Long time I have served, without kick or skin;

And trudg'd with the load of sad and still. Over us all is—something. Truth may master John Squirt.

I still travell'd on, from tavern to tavern,

Without stimulation from spur, or from bitch—

And two to requite all my labour and toil,

I'm unjustly deprived of both mane and tail.

To complete the dire plot, of my tragical story,

I'm in danger of seeing a posterior!

Can clatter or manhood, consent with reason.

Accuse a poor horse of rebellion or treason?

Can such a wild fancy e'er enter man's pate,

That I'm member of parliament, or minister of state?

Or saddle my back with such a burden?

As to tax me with seeking a pension or place?

If with hay, and good oats, I am treated but civil,

Lord North, and the forces may go to the devil—

Political squabbles I wholly give over,

And ruminate only on herds grass and clover;

Also! Beasts of character shun to be greed.

And leave it to Asses to manage the state.

This Was Marital Bliss In 1785?

(Editor's Note: The following column, unsigned, appeared in the Sept. 1, 1785, issue of the New-York Daily Advertiser, printed and edited by Francis Childs, whose print shop was on "Water Street, between the Coffee House and Fly-Market." The article was titled, "On the State of Marriage In South Britain.")

If you see a man and woman, with little or no occasion, often finding fault, and correcting one another in company, you may be sure they are man and wife. If you see a gentleman and lady in the same coach, in profound silence, the one looking out at one side, never imagine they mean any harm to one another; they are already husband and wife. If you see a lady accidentally let fall a glove or handerchief, and a gentleman take it next to her kindness to her of it, that she might gather it up, man and wife.

If you see a lady presenting a gentleman with something sideways, at arm's length, with her head turned another way, speaking to him with a look and accent different from that she uses to others, it is her husband. If you see a man and woman walking in the fields in a direct line twenty yards distance from one another, the man striding over a stile, and those on set ceremenele, you may swear they are man and wife, without fear of perjury.

If you see a lady whose beauty and carriage attract the eyes, and engage the respect of all the company, speaks to a genteel gentleman, who speaks to her in a rough accent, not at all affected with her charms, you may be sure it is her husband, who married her for love, and now slights her.

The Dissenter

TV Has Mal-Hypnotic Powers

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

At its last meeting, the Board of Control appropriated $1,000 for television sets for Florida State University dormitories. This act was not so much a symbol of cultural generosity as it was a testimonial to the power of television.

The purpose of the request, Dr. Doak S. Campbell, FSU president, told the Board, was to stave off pleas from coeds that they be permitted to bring television sets for their own rooms. Should the university be unable to circumvent this, the affect on scholarship would be great.

The premise of Dr. Campbell's action seems to be that if there are TV sets in the television sets in a dormitory, their use can be regulated and students won't spend all their time entranced before the weirdly glowing, black and white screens.

It may be safely predicted that once television sians any foothold in the dorms, scholarship will plummet.

WEST HALL MAY be the test case. Small but raucous sets have been installed on unit floors there and will be ready by the time dorm government they may remain on at all times, with volume subject to control by the nearest conscientious housedrone.

At least one fraternity, incidentally, keeps its set off during school hours on the theory men can't be made to study but the alternatives can be kept to a minimum.

Television, the product of twentieth-century science, is fascinating. Equally fascinating is were the automobile and the motion picture, but they have lost their novelty. The medium of television still possesses some serious and exotic fascination, but entranced humans into twenty-four hour devotion before the silver screen.

THERE ARE MANY good offerings on television, of course. It can't be beat for sustained events. And sometimes Steve Allen's sophisticated "Tonight" on NBC and varietry from the woeful mediocrities of Ed Sullivan to Milton Berle) reflects credit on American entertainment.

The problem is the overall—thing about it is that the human is rarely self-willed enough to choose the best of bad and still, there are many things he knows he should do, the foolish programs, the cheap shows, worm-like pleading of the sponsors, the unbelievably aggravating commercials ensnare attention.

Television came to my home because one person who had the presence of mind to break the set was not appeased by the house, awaiting shaking. his eyes bloodshot from lack of sleep.

"I've got it with me. I've got the Monster," he declared "It's yours. From now on I'm going to get enough sleep and will eat cook meals instead of canned ones and will grow work once in a while also," he wept.

Thus, a family which I formerly spent Sunday afternoon listening to good music now rolls its eyes and sits transfixed on television. We have a frequent guest—the strong-willed soul who gave us "The Monster."

A Better Measure

Parking Daze Or—Counting Spaces

In an attempt to evalute the problem, the writer took a little investigating Thursday afternoon and came up with the following figures. There are approximately 71 parking spaces on the street which runs in front of the Seminole Cafeteria to Call Street. Counting the green to the street in front of the Women's Gym and in back of Bellamy, I found 14 spaces from Magnolia Hall to the side street by the gym. I also counted 36 parking spaces around and in back of Bellamy and the Women's Gym.

RE-CROSSING the green I counted 19 spaces facing Call St. (These figures conform to the Journalism Building which came to 19.) I then counted the spaces running from South Copeland to Call St. which came up to 15. The total amount of spaces on the one side being 34. By subtracting this figure from the total figure of spaces on the street the results are 39 spaces

Taking the 39 spaces and adding them to the 36 parking spaces on the other side of the Women's Gym, a numerical figure of 75 results. Bellamy's FSU parking spaces which would take care of the 61 overflow cars which have to park off campus at night. Seventy-five spaces which could be added if one spaces are counted on the Magnolia-Women's Gym street.

Adding the 75 spaces to any of the two buildings being reserved for off campus parking along with the 17 spaces in front of North and South Copeland, 19 in front of the Journalism and Journalism Building to be reserved for off-campus cars if needed.

Have The Chiefs Declared War?

By WILJOHN

Since the Marching Chiefs, without aid of either alcohol or a suitable provocation, seem to have declared war on anyone who dares to open them without praise or Hosannahs on their lips, let the innocent stand clear and the guilty take to the hills.

In Friday's column, I took a swing at the rather poor and limited Artists Series we are treated to this year. One of the things I felt was this happened to have something to do with the Chiefs. No mention was made in that column about my thinking that the Chiefs were in the wrong or that they had anything to do with the whole procedure. I merely stated that the Series was poor and questioned the necessity of shortning the Series budget.

Unfortunately, the band leaders think that I have taken up the tomahawk against them and that I want them all sent out of town or extabulisbed. I have been bombarded with notes, letters and comments on the condition of my sanity, my health and my attitude. It is to laugh. I must say that all of these have come from the leaders and individuals of the organization. The directors and leaders have responded in a most laudible manner and have shown great tact and understanding in the matter.

So allow me to state these things.

1. I HAVE NO, nor have I ever had any-bitter feelings toward the Marching Chiefs. I feel that they are a fine group and the present leaders of this school's spirit end downright the best single representative of FSU. I can think of no other organization that could possibly come into being that could ever hope to replace them. I do think that certain individuals within the group could do something to advance the cause of the general public and mature standards of the Marching Chiefs.

2. I FEEL that the group's general attitude is entirely too self-conscious and quite often extrinsic to others feelings toward them. Such an attitude leads to self belief that there must be something wrong that hasn't been noticed yet. I do not intend that this statement should be applied to all the members of the band nor in any way to the faculty connected therewith. There are a few members who are spoiling the impression left with their immature and pretty attitudes. There are some like that in every organization.

3. IN GENERAL a group that has never had any previous occasion to be criticized should welcome a sincere and well-meant comment—not mine, in this case about their behavior when it becomes apparent enough to be singled out. The feeling of "we are so much misunderstood" or "you were so much happier before you came" You never print anything about us unless it's bad" is childish and unbecoming. I am sure that the group considered to read the rest of the editorial page they got so hot and bothered about, they would have seen that they received less criticism for their actions than any of the other noted disturbances at the game. I hope that, in the future, the critics of the critics will at least scan the general outlay before screaming.

In closing, may I say that Mr. Whitcomb has shown a very fine attitude toward the whole procedure. had I seen him, I should have strunk me up first thing and then advised the Flambeau to get a new columnist.

Heck Again, It's Another Tech

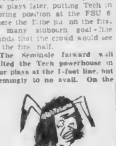
Mighty Georgia Tech Defeats Undermanned Seminoles, 34-0

By ALAN WHITMARSH

An acute lack of depth hurt the Semi-noles fought the Yellow Jackets of Georgia Tech almost on even terms for most of the first half then succumbed to their opponents' superior manpower, 34-0.

For 28 minutes, the Tribe held the heavily favored Jackets to a 7-0 margin, but a touchdown in the final two minutes of the first half and two quick ones in the third period erased their hopes of an upset.



It was the fourth straight loss for the Seminoles at Tem-pe-rent and much the same situation as the first three, when the Tribe was on almost even terms at halftime, but were forced to give up their manpower lead in the second half.

The Jackets unleashed a surprisingly effective air attack for the first time this season, though they ran up 290 yards on the ground, they were forced to depend on their passing offensive when the chips were down for the most part.

After the Seminoles failed to gain on the kickoff, Pat Veazelle sent a bouncing pass out of bounds at the Tech 3-yard line, but the Tech team came right back.

Halfback George Volkert broke through tackle for 73 yards a few plays later, putting Tech in scoring position at the FSU 6. There the Tribe put up the fire-wall of many stalwart goal-line stands that the crowd would see in the fall.

The Seminole forward wall halted the Tech powerhouse in four plays at the 1-foot line, but seemingly to no avail. On the WHIPPED BUT, STILL GAME next play as Buck Wells kicked out of trouble Jacket quarterback Wade Mitchell brought it back 35 yards and Tech led, 7-0.

After the kickoff, the Seminoles made one of their few excursions of the afternoon into the Tech 43, but after that they were unable to move and a Seminole point carried over the

Basketball Into Stretch With Tennis Starting

Intramural basketball moves into its stretch-drive with playoffs for both the dorms and fraternities this week, as teams attempts to crowd it from the intramural scene. Tennis singles and doubles move into full swing at the Varsity courts after opening last week.

The Dorms

The only real close game of the intramural basketball season was played last Wednesday at the west campus gym when Magnolia Hall upsetting the league leading Baptists in a double overtime thriller. This threw the league into a flock of ties that will be played off before the top two teams can be crown their league championship series next week.

Magnolia simply outplayed the league leaders, were more alert and took advantage of sloppy ball-handling and week rebounding. They scored on field goals by Bill Chapman, who had 11 points, missed more than 20 shots, well pointing the whole first half. J. Lang with 10 led the winners. It was Bob Bullock's field goal of the game in the second overtime that proved the winning point.

The Pirates closed out their season with a 58-45 win over the Rebels and assured themselves of a spot in the playoffs. Tom Adams was high man with 18 points. Prater was the king pin in the losers offense.

Senior Hall went into the league lead with a 42-33 win over the Hall Rebels with Gaser getting 25 for the winners.

The final league scheduled games were on at press time last night, so scores were not available. The team standings up to the final games were:

Team	W	L	Pts.	Opp.
Senior Hall	5	1	226	221
Pirates	5	2	270	244
Magnolia Hall	4	2	159	148
Baptists	4	2	225	205
Methodists	3	3	145	175
Penthouse	3	3	200	195
Rebels	1	5	169	205

Mondays results and playoff schedule will be posted on the bulletin boards at the student center, Lonesome and west gym.

The Frats

With the results of last Thursday's struggles in the fraternity basketball leagues, the playoff situations became INSAFU. The final games of the regular schedule will be played tonight in the West Gym, and who will come out as first and second in each of the three divisions will be a toss up.

The LCA remained in the running by beating the PKT's 35-30. It looked like smooth sailing with for the half but only the half as the half but only the bold said the Blue team at the finish. Woodward with 14 points spelled victory for LCA.

PKT kept their pleas for bonus alive by sneaking by PKP 26-25, after PKP had held what looked like a good lead, 17-11 at the half. The losers could muster only 9 field goals the whole second half.

SAE pulled away at the finish to beat ATO 51-42, but it was a close night of the way with the half time score 21-19. It was at the free throw line that the winners excelled sinking 19 free buckets to 9 for the losers. Kreiber with 22 points led the winners.

Tonight SAE meets PKT and the winner will be in the playoffs, where the top two teams in each division go into a single elimination playoff. SAE and PKT have a 2-1 record. ATO will be 3-1 in Div. III.

PDT meets TEP and must win to qualify. A loss will throw them into a tie with SN, KA's play SC and a loss could put them in a first place tie in Div. II.

In Div. I Phi Chi and Lambda Chi Alpha are 1-2 with their games complete.

The playoffs begin on Thursday Oct. 27 at the West Campus gym with one game at 7 p.m. and one at 8 p.m. Watch the Gold Key Longmire, Student Center and West Gym bulletin boards for the drawings.

Tennis

The intramural double elimination tennis tournaments got under way last week and will continue daily at 4 p.m. on the new varsity courts near the ROTC building. Watch the bulletin boards Monday through Thursday on all six courts.

In the opening frat singles Tom Barrows of PDT beat Ross Carson of PKT 6-2, 6-2 in the first of DTD upset Jack Curtis of TC 6-4, 3-6, 6-2. Dick Sweetapon of SAE beat Mel Flaischer of SC 6-4, 4-6, 6-4. KS failed to show against Chas. Mimm of KA and defaulted Sonny Sellers of SU to Manuel Lorenzo of TEP 6-0 6-1.

Losers now go into the losers bracket and another defeat puts them out. The frat singles scheduled this week:

Frat Singles Wed. Oct. 26, 4 p.m.
Winners bracket:
PKP vs PDT
DTD vs SAE
LCA vs KA

Elliott To Pace Tribe Gymnasts

The tradition of brinning outstanding gymnastic athletes to FSU is again shown in the person of Bob Elliott.

The Amarillo, Texas, freshman has an imposing record in Trampoline competition.

For the past two years, 1950-1954, first place in the Texas Aerial Council, 1952 '53 1955 the Southwestern AAU champion at the National AAU meet held at Los Angeles in 1954 and Rochester in 1955 he again placed first. In international competition at the Canadian Dominion Open, his outstanding performance again won him first place.

In Elliott's last year in Amarillo Senior High he had numerous offers from outstanding colleges throughout the country, but through elimination and contact with coach Price and members of the team decided on FSU.

Besides working at his specialty Elliott is head director of the Tallahassee Tumbling Tots. At present he is a Physical Education major and a member of the AFROTC.

Naturally Bob will be seen on the trampoline in the forthcoming production of Gymkana. "We hope to break the NCAA and Nationals titles this year," he said.

Miami Juniors Humble FSU

The Florida State University "B" team had much the same trouble as their varsity had experienced Saturday, as the University of Miami "B" squad used the air lanes to effect a 19-0 victory at Mount Dora.

Jacksonville's Bonnie Yarbrough hurled two touchdown passes, one in the second and fourth periods, to hand the Baby Seminoles their second loss of the season against one win.

Using the same drive series made famous by the U. of M. varsity, the Baby Hurricanes dominated play throughout, but never ventured into the FSU B's to penetrate farther than their 30-yard line.

Though they garnered but 145 yards through a sometimes stubborn FSU forward wall headed by Stuart Keith and Pat Ganser, the Miami juniors traveled 228 big yards through the air lanes.

The Miami B's scored the first time they got their hands on the ball when Don Kriel took a FSU punt on his 25 and raced 60 yards to the Seminole 15. A penalty pushed things back to the Baby Tribe's 1-yard line and after that it was easy for Bobby Wright to go over for the score.

Both of Yarbrough's touchdown passes were to end Jack Gale, one for 21 yards and the other for 17. As contrast to the Miami yardage totals, the FSU B's could garner but 35 yards rushing and 32 through the air lanes.

Co-Ed Corner

by
Juanita Jacob

Is there co-ed?

This week we have two very important items to report on.

We are happy to announce the success of our Sports Day which was held Saturday. At this time three schools participated in various activities such as volleyball, basketball, softball, tennis badminton, swimming and shuffleboard.

Many of the girls who are in the physical education department worked hard to make it a success. The winners of the events are as follows:

Softball—Madison; basketball-Madison, volleyball—Florida-Rich, table tennis—Greenville; badminton Madison; free plays at the I-Leef line; and swimming—Florida High, and shuffleboard—Florida High.

Everyone had a good time. The next Sports Day is Saturday, October 29. At this time seven schools will be entered. Much preparation is being made here so that everyone will have an equal good time.

Strike! Spare! Have you guessed what the activity is?

It's bowling.

Practice started October 6 and continued through October 21. The tournament started yesterday and will run through November 22. Women who have had no previous experience are now having an opportunity to learn to improve themselves. The main purpose of this organization is to get more women to take an interest and to improve in their skill.

For those who are not familiar with the game, coaching is provided.

Twenty-six teams have practiced during these three weeks and we expect 24-25 teams representing sororities and dormitories on campus to participate in the tournament. It will run on a round robin basis with the winner and undefeated team.

A play-off between the leagues and dormitories will determine the champion.

And a trophy will be awarded the winning team at the end of the tournament.

We're so glad that this program has encouraged so many to participate. We sincerely hope that everyone will find some form of recreation this year that they will want to engage in.

of the Amazon." Museum Curator Russ Mac Nees, various small tribes lived in the region in semi-isolation.

Every once in a while the Jivaros took it into their heads to take somebody else's head. The reason for this explains West, is the drive believed in every human blood revenge for wrongdoings.

Not Rational

The Jivaros were "wild and warlike" but refused their enemies' blood strictly because of a blood revenge instinct. Instead they believed that whenever a member of one tribe died—even for such a natural reason as snakebite—there were sure to be Pirated from one of the black magic of another tribe.

So after one or two deaths they formed a war party and went whooping through the jungle after the offending tribe.

When they came back, it was with somebody's head.

Painstaking

West carefully explained the painstaking process by which the Jivaros conserve the human-sized heads after the shrunken variety. They are boiled with herbs to prevent skin from the lips and nose. They are filled with hot sand to "cooks" allowed to dry, and sewed.

With all his care they should look little prune when "it all done. However, "take a look at the process."

Career Emphasis Courses Named For This Week

"What good is Sociology?", "What careers are available for a Political Science major?"

These questions and others will be cleared up this week by the second program of Career Emphasis Week, sponsored by the Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement.

Although the Sociology field is young, it is growing rapidly. Sociologists are employed as agencies, scientists, social researchers, and practitioners.

The office's second training for a wide range of related occupations such as social work, personnel work, the ministry, religious education, and recreational leadership.

Promotes Interest

The major in political science is designed to promote an active interest in public affairs, and to prepare for teaching and research in the social sciences and international relations.

It provides a broad background for government service and civic work, and offers a pre-law curriculum.

A number of Florida State University graduates in political science are now active in state and local politics as party officials, state legislators, and judges. Others are in administrative and professional positions in such civic action groups as the Cross and YMCA

Many Groups

There are many private citizen groups, civic agencies, and foundations which are engaged in political research for public use.

Political science is the usual route to career possibilities in the U S State Department, in the Foreign Service, and in international agencies as the United Nations.

Students interested in more detailed career information should contact the Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement.

Then we decided to invite the Freshmen to the Sophomore-Junior Day which is scheduled for this Saturday. Of course we would invite the Juniors, so we decided to throw the party open to all classes,' she said

Decorating will start Friday and continue on Saturday morning. "Refreshments will be served to all those Sophomores who will come and help with the decorations, so how about some help" concluded Miss Smiley.

FSU Freshman Finds Brother After 12 Years

By PAT SMITH

Ann Wyatt, a freshman from Meridville, Ala. has every reason to wear that lucre smile she has been exhibiting the past few days. After 12 years of searching she finally located her missing brother.

On June 11, 1943, in New Castle, Ind., Ann's father died, leaving Ann, age 6; one brother, Teddy, age 7, and one sister, Carol, age 4. Her mother was in a hospital, therefore leaving no relative to take the three children into their home.

Adopted

In a few weeks the shy and frightened little girl was adopted by Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Wyatt of Meridville, Ala.

For 12 years Ann did not hear a word about her brother or sister. She was once told that Teddy had been adopted by some Steelarts in Indiana, but she could neither find out their first name nor where they lived.

Indiana Vacation

Last summer Ann and her step-mother went to New Castle, Ind., on vacation. While in Indiana Ann and a friend inquired in several towns trying to locate her brother, but no clues could be found because of their lack of information.

But on October 6th, an article appeared in the local newspaper in Muncie, Ind., telling about a young man named Theodore A. Stewart, age 19, of Muncie, who had an automobile accident. The name and age of the Stewart boy sounded so similar to the description given by Ann, that a friend of Ann's got the boy's address from the article.

Added Up

When the friend visited the Stewart home she talked with Teddy and his mother. Together the three people put all the facts together and decided that Teddy was really the missing brother.

So now Ann is waiting on a letter from her brother telling when and where they will meet for a reunion. Together they are going to start the search for Carol.

'Blithe Spirit' Opens Tonight In Conradi

Curtain Time Set At 8:15

Tonight is opening night for BLITHE SPIRIT, Noel Coward's farce about spiritualism.

Curtain is at 8:15 at Conradi Theatre. The show is scheduled for a four-night run tonight, through Tuesday with all seats reserved.

Tickets may be purchased in advance at the central ticket office in Westcott or at the Conradi box office from 7 till 8 p.m. the nights of performances.

Blithe Spirit is the story of Charles and Ruth Condomine, played by John Paul Davis and Carolyn Brown, and their encounters with the spirit world.

The Plot . . .

Charles, a novelist, is planning a book about a homicidal medium and invites Madame Arcati (Kitty Culpepper), the local medium, to give a seance for him and his friends. Dr. and Mrs. Bradman (Bud Greene and Michael Sias).

The seance, while quite confusing and chaotic, doesn't seem to have succeeded. But after the guests leave Elvira (Norma Tippodo), Charles' deceased first wife, appears in spirit form.

Elvira is visible only to Charles, and Ruth, the second wife, believes he has had too much to drink. After receiving several insults which Charles to Anita were directed at Elvira, Ruth storms off to bed, leaving the two to renew old acquaintances

Gives In

After a few days of Charles' apparent hallucinations, Ruth half-heartedly reads herself that Elvira is really with them, and begs the battle of woman versus ghost for the keeping of her husband.

The women do not like each other and numerous attempts are made by each to win their husband back to them. Elvira resorts to witch-craft on a small scale throwing vases around furniture, slamming doors and causing the maid, Edith (Jacqui Brandt) to have a brain concussion.

Action Progresses

Ruth calls for help and tries to bunnor Charles. She finally asks Madame Arcatu to send Elvira back to the spirit world. Charles doesn't like this kind of snake-in-the-grass tactics and decides to kill Charles so that she can have him all to herself.

She tampers with the steering apparatus on the car and then

Brazilian Author Speaks Today

Noted Brazilian author, Erico Verissamne, appears at Florida State University today.

Verissimo, Director of the Department of Cultural Affairs of the Pan American Union, will today deliver two lectures, which are free and open to both FSU and university residents.

At 11 a.m. he gives "A Portrait of Brazil" in Longmire Auditorium, and at 4 this afternoon Verissimo will lecture informally at the English Coffee Hour in Westminster House. Here, his experiences as an author will be emphasized and he will speak on "Frankenstein's Workshop: How Novel Characters are Born."

"Modern Czarina"

A native of a small town environment in southeastern Brazil, Verissimo calls himself a "modern gaucho." Before attaining success in his literary work, he acquired experience as a grocery clerk, bank teller, pharmacist, feature writer, editor, and translator.

Best seller lists since 1938 in both American and European countries have included many of his novels and children's books. Many of his works are available in Spanish, English, Italian and German as well as his native Portuguese.

The works of John Steinbeck, James Boyd, Somerset Maugham and Aldous Huxley have been translated by Verissimo into Portuguese.

Receives Reward

The Brazilian Academy of letters recently awarded Verissimo the Graca Aranha Prize and the Machado de Assis Prize for literature.

Senate Defines True 'Majority'

By HOWARD HARTLEY

Student Senate Wednesday passed a bill to define the term "majority" as "over half the ballots cast in a given election."

Senator Bachman introduced the bill

Prior to the passage of this bill election methods were left up to the Elections Committee which experienced considerable difficulty before the new system was inaugurated, with an excess of candidates obtaining a "majority" as it was then defined.

Proposed System

Under the former system "majority" was determined on a basis of the total number of votes cast, rather than on the total number of voters. Under the formal rule, therefore, a "majority" could be much less than an actual majority of voters

According to Senator Mansfield, the bill could possibly decrease some candidates who achieve a majority from participating in a run-off if a large group of candidates gain a greater major in the first primary.

An Improvement

Most senators, including Senator Mansfield, finally agreed that the bill is better than previous arrangements, however, and Senator Edwards, when questioned, pointed out, "the obvious difficulty in working out a regulation which is absolutely fair in all cases."

The bill was passed unanimously.

Confirmed

Mitzi McCollum's name was confirmed as Undersecretary of Elections by Student Senate Wednesday, after Senator Soles, of the Elections

Pictures will not be taken today because of shortage of film which will be scheduled for Monday.

SPEAKS AT FSU
Senator Wilson Carraway

Senator Explains Reapportionment

By OSCAR JOHNSON

"It is not wise to believe into the hands of the urban population complete control of our state government."

So said Leon County Senator Wilson Carraway in a speech before the Florida State University Politica Club Wednesday night.

Carraway sounded an appeal for a "balance of power" between the rural and urban interests in explaining his position as a member of the state Senate "majority block" on the 1955 re-apportionment problem.

Geography

In a speech given previously to the Tallahassee Rotary Club the Leon County solon declared that "geographical problems" should be considered in deciding the distribution of Florida's Senate seats. He said that population was not the only factor to be considered.

His opposition to Governor LeRoy Collins' views on reapportionment was a matter of principal said Carraway, and there was nothing personal in my stand.

Balance of Power

"It is my conviction and sincere belief that there must be a balance of power in the state legislature. Just as there is in the nation.

He said that even if the urban centers do not control the Senate they will have much power as the state government by being able to elect the Governor and other state officials. "However," Carraway continued, "they still think they are entitled to control the state's political destiny because they control the largest vote.

Economy Varied

"This is not so. Florida's econ...

For 'Chest'

West Hall Will Become A 'Club'

By PAT MARSTON

Want to go to a night club? For the Campus Chest project, West Hall is going to give the students in nearest thing possible to it.

Scheduled for next Friday night is a dinner dance complete with all the fancy details, revealed West Hall officials.

Everything from corsages to taxi service will be furnished. To avoid overcrowding, only a hundred tickets are available at $40 a couple," they added.

Ballet Dinner

The formal affair includes a buffet dinner style "all you can eat," dancing and a floor show.

Musicians will play for dinner while the cigarette girls give out free favors and cigarettes and flower girls will distribute corsages to dates

Included on the menu will be turkey, baked ham, roast beef, potato salad, fruit salad, mixed salad, pigs-in-blanket, cocktail berring, fried oysters and shrimp, shrimp salad, imported cheeses, assorted relish plates and pee or coke

Non-alcoholic cocktails will also be served.

Commodores

The commodores will play for dancing after the dinner. A floor show is scheduled with the dancing continuing until midnight.

Tickets on sale from any West Hall resident or available at West Hall.

We hope to give the students quality entertainment and to set a tradition for the future, explained Wilson Schiffermuller, West Hall Governor.

Biggest Donation

He added that West Hall hopes to make the biggest donation to the Campus Chest that has ever been made, with the proceeds from the dance.

"We're really pushing this affair," Schiffermuller declared. He said that a few students had expressed doubt that the dinner dance would be a success, but that those working on the affair believed that there are enough students on campus who would like to attend, to make it go over. "We're confident of success," he stated.

Opportunity

"Some may think the price is high. The important thing is, look what you get in return. Our menu has probably never been equaled on the FSU campus. Besides that, there will be music, dancing and a luxurious atmosphere. There probably won't be another opportunity like this in the Tallahassee area for a long time."

Panhellenic Dance Slated Tonight

Junior Panhellenic is sponsoring its first pledge dance tonight at 8:30 in the Suwannee Room.

The Commodores will provide music for old and new sorority pledges and their dates at the informal dance.

Entertainment will be contributed by various sororities for the dance show according to Marilyn Mason, dance chairman.

New Jr. Pan-Hell officers are Nancy Key, Alpha Omicron Pi secretary; Carol Uhlich, Pi Beta Phi secretary, and Anita Mazuros, Alpha Omega, treasurer.

Directing—Pan-Hel dance arrangements are Carol Uhlich, secretary, Marylin Mason, outgoing president; Nancy Key, president; and Aneta Maduros, treasurer.

Freshman Rally Slated Tonight

Who says the frosh haven't got spirit?

A pep rally and bon fire is scheduled for tonight to act the freshmen into shape and teach them some cheers, explained Freddy Freshman.

Planned to rally the rest of the Student Center at 11 tonight, all frosh are available as Spanish, English, Italian and German as well as his native Portuguese.

The works of John Steinbeck, James Boyd, Somerset Maugham and Aldous Huxley have been translated by Verissimo into Portuguese.

The rally is open to everyone and all frosh are especially urged to attend, says Freddy.

The Warwick Club is cosponsoring the rally, according to Al Dayes, president.

World, Teach My Son . . .

(Editor's Nota: The following is an article which first appeared in the September issue of Family Circle Magazine. The Furman Hornet reprinted it as wa ara doing, feeling it has a special significance. Read it, and you'll see what wa mean . . .)

My young son starts to school today . . . It's all going to be strange and new to him for a while, and I wish you would sort of treat him gently.

You see, up to now, he's been king of the castle . . . He's been boss of the back yard. . . . His mother has always been around to repair his wounds, and I've always been handy to soothe his feelings.

But now things are going to be different.

This morning he's going to walk down the front steps, wave his hand, and start out on the great adventure . . . It's an adventure that might take him across continents . . . It's an adventure that will probably include wars and tragedy and sorrow.

To live his life in the world he has to live in, will require faith and courage. So World, I wish you would sort of take him by his young hand and teach the things he will have to know. Teach him —but gently, if you can.

He will have to learn, I know, that all men are not just, that all men are not true. But teach him also that for every scoundrel there is a hero . . . that for every crooked politician, there is a dedicated leader. . . . teach him that for every enemy, there is a friend.

It will take time, world, I know, but teach him, if you can, that a nickel earned is of far more value than a dollar found. . . . Teach him to learn to lose. . . . and to enjoy winning. Steer him away from envy, if you can, and teach him the secret of quiet laughter. Let him learn early that the bullies are the easiest people to lick. . . . Teach him, if you can, the wonder of books . . . but also give him quiet time to ponder the eternal mystery of birds in the sky, bees in the sun, and flowers on a green hill.

In school, World, teach him it is far more honorable to fail than to cheat. . . . Teach him to have faith in his own ideas, even if everyone tells him they are wrong. . . . Teach him to be gentle with gentle people and tough with tough people.

Try to give my son the strength not to follow the crowd when everyone else is getting on the band wagon. . . . Teach him to listen to all men—but teach him also to filter all he hears on a screen of truth and take only the good that comes through.

Teach him, if you can, how to laugh when he is sad . . . Teach him there is no shame in tears. . . . Teach him there can be glory in failure and despair in success.

Teach him to scoff at cynics and to beware of too much sweetness . . . Teach him to sell his brawn and brains to the highest bidders but never to put a price tag on his heart and soul. Teach him to close his ears to a howling mob. . . and to stand and fight if he thinks he's right. Treat him gently, but don't coddle him, because only the test of fire makes fine steel. . . . Let him have the courage to be impatient. . . . Let him have the patience to be brave.

Teach him always to have sublime faith in himself. Because then he will always have sublime faith in mankind. This is a big order, World, but see what you can do . . . He's such a nice little fellow—my son!

Leave "Spirits" At Home

The controversy as to drinking at football games has evidently not been solved with an appeal to the maturity of the students involved. Incidents at the last home game proved that some students cannot achieve a moderation which keeps their conduct on the mature side of the line.

But the problem does not rest alone with the students. The Flambeau has been advised that a large measure of alcoholic consumption at the football games is being done by adults and other persons of college age, not affiliated in any way with the University.

While we do not condone drinking at a football game in the first place, we do not feel we should have to advocate a prohibitive law for the sake of keeping up appearances. In a final appeal, we ask only that students and townspeople who feel they must drink excessively come to the games in the Seminole spirit, and leave the "spirits" at home for postgame celebrations where they can spoil no reputation but their own.

Editor Explains Tally-Ho Pix Delay

BY JIM BRODERICK

First of all I want to thank all of you who have been made to suffer the inconvenience and discomfort of waiting in long lines, perhaps to be turned away several times because of the crowds, and yet have made a joke of the mess, took it with a smile, and returned again and again until you finally got your picture taken. Thank you for your understanding. It's your calibre of person, and you seem to be in the majority on the FSU campus, who made me say to an Editor one which I am proud to hold.

Here's the story on the delays. To be perfectly frank, we just bit off more than we could chew. This past summer I got together with members of the administration and we decided we'd try something altogether new this Fall. Instead of hiring an outside photographer to do all the FSU Publications work, the university would place a professional photographer on the payroll, and he, with student assistants, would take care of all of my photographic needs for the 1956 Tally-Ho. It worked out pretty well on paper. But I'm sure everyone can understand that any untried project has many unforeseeable kinks which throw a monkey wrench in the best-laid plans. So it's been with the Photography Staff. We've all had to learn a lot trial-and-error basis, and everything just hasn't progressed as smoothly as we'd hoped it would.

SO IT'S BEEN with the Tally-Ho class pictures. Last year there was much difficulty and many complaints from people who forgot or couldn't make the appointment which they made at registration. I thought that if we could open the studios in the afternoon and evening with no appointments we could accommodate almost everyone.

For the first few weeks while we were taking Just Senior pictures the schedule worked perfectly. Then, following the Senior, operations slowed up so badly that in desperation, in order to get underclassmen to come in, I set up the October 21st deadline. I needn't relate the results of that announcement. It seemed as if the entire student body waited until the 19th, and then descended upon us like a swarm of locusts.

And it's been that way ever since. We're doing our very best to get everyone in and out as quickly as possible, but portrait photography is something you just can't rush. It's difficult to do good work on a mass-production basis, and it's even more difficult to get a perfect portrait in a few minutes on the photographer's stool.

UNFORTUNATELY we're just not going to take all the portrait photographs. Bob Blackwelder. He's a student volunteer who gives up lives out on West campus. He spends five to six hours a day behind that camera—time that he could be spending at home or studying—and he isn't receiving one red penny for his labors. He's already done more than I could ask of anyone without payment, and should he quit tomorrow I'd understand for a penalty.

And so it is with everyone else who is working long and hard to produce a yearbook. The girls who subscription sales, the boys who sell pictures, type cards, and do the dirty work. The boys in the dark room, working under extreme handicaps to develop and print the negatives and get them in the hands of the students. The typists, the layout-engineers. They're not being paid, all they receive in return for their services is a free picture and their name in the book. Sometimes things go wrong that we're powerless to rectify. It's no-one's fault, but all we can do is redouble our efforts to correct the situation, and ask that those people who are inconvenienced will try to understand.

IN THIS LIGHT I hope the few individuals who have been extremely rude and abusive to the photographic staff and to me when their pictures weren't ready, or they were inconvenienced in some fashion, will consider that these people are not hired to work on the Tally-Ho; they all volunteer their time and services in order that we might produce a yearbook for all the students, one of which you can all be truly proud. They don't have to take abuse from anyone. I hope everyone will take into consideration that if there's a delay there's a good reason for it. We're not deliberately planning things that way, and there's no excuse for ungentlemanly or unladylike conduct to emphasize that you've been annoyed.

I'd like to personally thank everyone who accepts the discomfort and inconvenience with graciousness, but unfortunately that's impossible. The best I can show my thanks is to give you a 1956 Tally-Ho that will be a truly outstanding one.

Dear Mama Seminole

DEAR MAMA:

Me tired. First he huntun half day underneath big pile of colored "fect me. Please" paper for findun Longmire Building Council. Findum, findum me autumn in line many hours to getum picture took. Hope this prove to editor that best way to take 'um pictures is by appointment like done for many moons. Tally Ho is good book. Anything be um good after wahum for it so long.

Georgie readum paper; it say, "Posters be put on big boards in front of women's dorms". All day me lookum for big boards. Still me not see, guessum it like whole pot full promises. Big Council make just sounds good. Tepee must support, we not need beat in building where council meets. Him say they got plenty hot air already.

Watchum papers for heap, heap big story about Student Big Chief. Him gottum fires lit under folks; who wish him wouldn't stick his nose in contracts. Betcha him gettum his way . . . you watch.

Tomorrow Big Brutes and Maidens go to Reservation. They talk while day about leadership. Me hope they learn'um this good, steady worker, not "300 posters Pete," is often real leader. Dictionary not say politician or officer is leader. Sometimes is sometimes not.

Mamma, me worried too. Man who sit'um on Big State Court, him say Council Great Spirit not washum brave with dunkum in cup. Wonder if Great Spirit not washum braves with dunkum in cup as good method of judging braves' worth as color of skin is considered in u-v-e-i-l-e-s whereas college studeos are considered adults. Can't we be juvenile delinquents, like they are? Can't we learn, win or lose, and still be adult enough to conduct ourselves in a way to make our college proud of us?

Me just simple freshman, let's show our upper classmen what real school spirit is.

Need For Spirit

TO THE EDITOR:

I have just returned from attending a gala Homecoming at my former high school. Our local team was defeated 40-7, which was their fourth loss out of five games. Our school spirit was wonderful in every way—loud, continuous, sincere and very enthusiastic.

I couldn't help but compare it to the spirit here at FSU. How can the football players put any feeling into the game if the crowd can't put any feeling into their cheering? After all who should cheer more to get out there on a dirty muddy field and get knocked around, bruised and knocked around if their fellow students can't put any punch, pep and spirit into their cheering? When they're losing they need our support more than when they're winning.

High school students are grouped as children, but they are, whereas college students are considered adults. Can't we be juvenile delinquents, like they are? Can't we learn, win or lose, and still be adult enough to conduct ourselves in a way to make our college proud of us?

Me just simple freshman, let's show our upper classmen what real school spirit is.

Among the 1555 incoming group of freshmen, there are a few students who are not here for a good reason for living. Perhaps if the public here were made more aware of the fact, the list of these young men could be improved. May I use the FLAMBEAU to get word around that several freshmen are willing and eager to work at various part time jobs, before school classes, after classes, evenings, and Saturdays?

The relatively few townspeople and faculty who have given employment to the freshmen with whom I am directly concerned, seem delighted with the effort they have put forth. The student HAVE to work if they wish to stay in school, and their motto seems to be that for every dollar they earn, they put in a dime in return.

There you have it, Mr. Editor.

If each of us made it a point to interest ourselves in our fellowmen, it would be not a matter to keep these born happily occupied. And ours the greater gain, perhaps by keeping in touch with eager youth, young ideas, and unspoiled enthusiasms. PHONE 3-1749 for more information

Room For Study

TO THE EDITOR:

I am sorry, but this room is only for teas and receptions. You will have to study downstairs like the rest. Thanks for the way of asking me to leave the musty and dismal second-floor lounge of Longmire.

I had my shoes on. My feet were on the floor. I was studying. I don't know what crime I was committing against the secret tomb of Longmire except possibly using it. For that I am very sorry. I will probably

Odds & Ends

Fate Can Be Devilish At Times

By HOWARD HARTLEY

Life has a way of dealing to you under the table when you least expect it, sometimes . . . Carlie Driggers, a graduate student working toward his master's degree in theory in the school of music was pretty pretty last week. He was comfortably fixed as college students go. He owned an LP record collection worth about $1000 dollars, a Hi Fi set, a valuable collection of books, and an average college wardrobe.

He rented a home of his own where he could work peacably on his thesis, and if some knotty theory problem came up, he could unravel it on his own upright piano.

LAST WEEKEND Carlie packed a change of clothes, secured his apartment carefully, and went to Jacksonville with a friend. On Sunday evening he returned to Tallahassee and stopped at Howard Johnson's for supper . . . Got tired of food you like to linger over . . . but Carlie Driggers would not have lingered over Johnson, if he had known what a reception Fate had already arranged for him.

After supper, the young graduate student and his friend drove to Driggers' apartment. It was about 9:00 p.m.

The first unusual thing that Carlis noticed was that his car, although he had parked it neat in the house, had been backed down the driveway almost to the road. He investigated and discovered that the lock had been forced.

Burglars? Perhaps.

He strode vigorously over the lawn with the intent of getting his car keys and stumbled over something . . . too dark to tell what.

When he reached his front door, he noticed that it had been forced open. He was almost sure he had been robbed by then, but this idea wasn't to confuse him for long.

When he reached inside to turn on the light he felt the wall. There was something — not with the wall . . . the front wall was smooth usually, now it was rough and soft.

Then he knew. His hand came away red-black.

HE LOOKED immediately straight ahead, out into the woods behind the house . . . his rear wall was gone. Most of the roof was gone. The entire apartment was completely demolished.

Carlis went back to the car and got a small flashlight. It didn't take long to see the whole story. Everything was a charred mess . . . the upstairs, the downstairs apartment burned down to ashes, the Hi Fi set a mass of fused wires. Everything.

By the following afternoon he had filled most of the details. A neighbor, a certain Mrs. Triggers, had seen a white truck leave the work and pulled the handle on a fire alarm. It was too late when the fire trucks came.

FERRELL HAD broken into his car and backed it down the drive to save it from the flames. Driggers would not, of course, be responsible for the fire, but that wouldn't bring back his thesis.

Graduation in January, as he had planned, was now impossible. It would mean another semester . . . reanalyzing scores, compiling bibliography over again. Clothes? He had a shirt on his back, and the change he had taken to Jax. Nothing else remained.

Perhaps the best thing Carlis still has left friends. From what we hear, they are out going to let him down.

What's Behind Election Cardboard?

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

Tuesday, although the weather bore an autumnal briskness, the campus blossomed. Instead of leaves, however, there were multicolored clusters of campaign posters, and vernal warmth was provided by three loan ninety freshmen anticipating the campaign.

To weary janitors solicitous of their painted and plastered walls, these campaign posters are not exactly blessings.

The campaign literature, with all the trite and original agreements on the new and the old, so-new ideas, the hand-lettering or the bold is natural advantage in running for re-election.

Is this democratic? Do not the voters choose officers on qualifications and experience? Sometimes they do, but how can the democratic theory live up to itself when so many people are running?

IN REALITY, only a few freshmen will know enough of their classmates to make reasonably logical choices, and many freshmen will know no candidates. Most will be acquainted with only a few, and, naturally, will support their friends.

The voter ballot in hand, can only hope he's outside the limit.

High school experience means little, for college office holders responsibility and no account of high school background can necessarily provide the maturity without which student government drowns in wasted words.

Neither can it be logically said, "H. Onesy is against raincoats over Bermuda shorts so I'll vote for him." Aside from the fact EVERYONE—students, that is—loathe the regulation all the resolutions and statutes of Student Senate couldn't alone change the rule. This applies to all rules backed by the administration.

THE PEOPLE who are elected next Tuesday will have a big job. They require runners who will owe their election largely to chance, although in many cases fraternities and sororities will unite their votes behind a single name in the contest when so many are running.

Only after their election will the winners be able to distinguish the new and the old, so-new ideas, the hand-lettering or the bold is natural advantage in running for re-election or aspiring to higher office, and much desirable remains in student government year after year this way.

The officeholder can best be judged by his attitude toward his job, and not so much by his stand on individual issues.

The biggest single weakness in student government is a preoccupation with the mechanics of government. As President Coyle Moore stated it, a "preoccupation with re-arranging your own furniture."

An associated weakness can be seen in the make-the-laws-tougher approach to cheating and other violations of the Honor System. Wise officeholders vow to find out what the basic principles of honor are disrespected and to correct that fault.

The type of politician who gets in because he seeks prestige or fun or merely something you think's first of his own personal clique of friends and supporters. The wise officeholder thinks

'To Hell And Back' Plays Here

By WANDA SUE OWEN

Audie Murphy's biography of his World War II combat experiences, "To Hell and Back," is brought to the screen as a tribute to the young Texan who became the most decorated soldier when he emerged from World War II as its most famous hero.

The Universal-International film, starring Audie Murphy is currently playing through tomorrow at the Florida Theatre. It is filmed in Technicolor and CinemaScope.

Similar to Audie Murphy's best-selling war novel, "To Hell and Back" is the story of a young life from a youngster on a poor farm in Northeast Texas through his days when Murphy received the Congressional Medal of Honor—the highest honor the United States bestows.

"TO HELL AND BACK" is a tribute to Audie's receiving the citation, constitute the unfolding of "To Hell and Back."

The film tries to reveal the inner thoughts of men as they face death together under enemy fire. Sometimes the attempt is successful, but sometimes it is not. Murphy doesn't pay to make friends—they always get killed."

A war of another kind is depicted in "Lucy Gallant" which is now playing on the Malbry screen at the State. Jane Wyman plays the title role, and Charlton Heston appears as Fast Gun Cole, the farmer-oil millionaire. Claire Trevor, Thelma Ritter and William Demarest have the other supporting roles.

THE STORY is based on the best seller novel, "The Life of Lucy Gallant" by Margaret Echols. Jane Wyman is stranded in small Texas town when her state selling wardrobe to the oil-rich farmers' wives. Lucy's plans for the opening of the state establishment specializing in high design of fashion are thwarted by the oil millionaire once, almost at the altar, she resists the romantic advances of Casey Cole, until she realizes both love and success at chance at marriage.

At the State Sunday and Monday is a western with a brother-hates-brother theme. Jeff Chandler and Ernest Borgnine play the leaders—Bill and Sam Mayhew—in "Road to Denver," which is based on Dorothea Kent's Evening Post story. The two brothers compete for the love of the same woman. Elizabeth Fulton plays the girl. Chandler and Borgnine use different roads to secure their fortunes. Paul Picerni and Lee Van Cleef supporting. Jesse Hornsee is seen as a hot-headed, trigger-happy young fellow.

CONTINUED TUESDAY and Wednesday is State will be "Women's Prison" produced by Ida Lupino and husband Howard Duff who not just made three movies in a row.

On the screen they are very antagonistic and each other, but off screen Mollie Duff's official whose sadism is calmly exposed by Lupino playing the warden of the prison.

Other roles in the production are played by Jan Sterling, Cleo Moore, Audrey Totter and Phyllis Thaxter, all of whom play prison inmates.

'Student Body's Been Shortchanged'

By WILJOHN

It is the considered opinion of this writer that someone, in this case the student body, has been short changed on the Artists Series this year. It has come to my notice that we could have had many more and varied stars this year. I have already mentioned the Jazz Concert at Jax at The Philharmonic was passed up. Add to that Art Ferrante and Lou Teicher, duo-pianists who boast that they have never been asked to play a song that they didn't have a two-piano arrangement for their repertoire.

The Don Cossack Chorus could have been brought here, too. A fine Russian male chorus that's appeared quite frequently on the University of Florida series so why not on ours? The Roger Wagner Chorus is also looking for bookings in this part of the country. Anyone that has heard this chorus do the Liebeslieder Waltzes knows that they can be booked in, probability, only by The Florida Flambeau.

WE ARE getting the Minneapolis Symphony, another money-maker. We could have had the Houston Symphony or the Boston Symphony and brought Charles Munch here.

The comment that some people didn't like Dave Brubeck seems to have barred all jazz from campus. However, we could have had, and can still get probably, Gerry Mulligan's Quintet, Erroll Garner, and perhaps even Chet Baker when he gets back from his European tour this spring.

There are dozens of bands making concert tours this year from Jan Garber to Elliott Lawrence and Rugolo with his studio orchestra. I'm for this classical music scene all the way but that isn't any reason to short-change the popular music. I think that's here to stay. I don't like this idea of giving people what they want to like and disregarding the things that will hold their interest, even if they don't have a background of knowledge or sense.

AS FOR SINGERS, we could get such popular vocalists as Kitty Kallen, Kay Starr, Tony Cornell, and the Four Freshmen. Of the new artistic field, Ivan Petroff, Russian baritone and Jan Peerce are two of several fine but well known singers.

In short, if this school wants to be able to look older than other state universities in the South and laugh when they refer to us as "the little sister," we should start taking attractions like that will be able to at least equal, if not outdo those of the afore mentioned schools. We're considered a small-time school until we put on the big-time in everything we undertake. Even Thomasville has a better Series than this year. Many of our students are built into that Series and forgetting our own. All that happens, it's time to take a good look at the Artist Series arrangement on this campus. Thank heavens we have Anna Russell this week. That is the only bright spot on a traditional looking program this year. Let me say warm you when you hear Anna Russell emmies one of the funniest women in show business.

The Campaigners Promise

The Flambeau Prints Election Letters

Treasurer

DEAR FELLOW FRESHMEN:

Tuesday's election will determine whether our class will have the type of leadership that will enable it to make a good record during this year

It is my desire to have the privilege of serving you as your Treasurer so that I may help our class leave its mark on our campus as the finest freshman class in the history of FSU.

If elected your Treasurer I promise to be faithful and honest service that will be a credit to our class. Your vote and support will be greatly appreciated

JOHN BELITZ.

FRESHMEN:

Your troubles are over, freshmen, if you elect Dodie Evans to office as your treasurer. I'm a Georgia girl who has had experience in saving that Confederate dollar.

As treasurer of our class I would: (1) support our president (2) handle our money wisely (3) keep accurate records and (4) be trustworthy.

I think some of my experiences in high school have helped to qualify me for this position. I was a junior class officer, officer in the glee club, the "Orets, the Girls Athletic Club, the Future Homemakers of America, a member of the Teen Board, a cheerleader, second place winner of the essay contest sponsored each year by the Jacksonville Club of Atlanta, and have been active in church work.

Remember your choice at the Caroline Evans for YOUR treasurer and watch that freshman bankroll roll upward.

CAROLINE EVANS.

DEAR FRESHMEN:

On Tuesday, October 25, you will go to the polls to cast a very important decision. for you will use your ballot to determine the head your freshman class through this coming year. I hope you all will use good discretion and thought in electing the most qualified and capable of the candidates.

The office of Treasurer is a responsible one for it has to do and its requirements. I feel that I have gained valuable experience as I have served as Secretary of the National Honor Society last year. If I am elected to this office. I only promise this—to sincerely serve you to the very best of my ability and to live up to the highest ideals of our class. May I say that every vote will be appreciated. See to remember on Tuesday—REDRICK for Treasurer, and we will work together to make the Freshman Class of '56 the best ever.

DIAN REDRICK.

DEAR FELLOW FRESHMEN:

I'm the little piggy-bank poster you see on campus, and I'm all for an FSU freshman class. I'm for Florida Treasurer, Jan Hester.

She's been awfully good to me in the past years, because she knows just how much money to feed me and just how much to take out when I'm hungry. She's used me as the storehouse for the funds of many clubs before she came to Florida State, and now I'm empty and I'd like to be filled with your funds so Jan could use them for you.

I would appreciate your votes for Jan Hester for Freshman Treasurer. We will both serve you faithfully.

JAN HESTER.

DEAR FELLOW FRESHMEN:

You are about to elect the people who will be our class leaders for the coming year. One of the offices you will fill is that of Treasurer I would like very much to serve you in this capacity, and would do the job to the very best of my ability. Your support would certainly be appreciated.

CYNTHIA LAWRENCE.

DEAR FROSH:

As candidate for Treasurer of the Freshman class, I would like to ask your consideration and vote on Tuesday, November 2.

I realize the duties of Treasurer and will do my very best to keep our class treasury out of debt, fulfill, but I do promise that, if elected, I will do my best to be present at all my fellow classmates, to the best of my ability.

DEBBIE PINCKARD.

DEAR FRESHMEN:

When you go to the polls next week, don't just push the first lever that catches your eye. Don't say, 'Well, John Doe has a nice name, I'll vote for him.' Please, no. I'll use the intention of each candidate carefully, and try to determine which one will serve your best interests.

Remember: please vote, but vote carefully, because the leaders you elect will represent you.

BETSY ROSS ROBERTSON.

DEAR FELLOW FRESHMAN:

Next week you will take advantage of one of our most cherished possessions, the right to vote. In doing so, you should keep in mind the qualifications needed for public office. I think, I have these qualifications.

I am running for the office of Freshman Treasurer, and I would appreciate your vote. Yes, appreciate your vote on one condition; that you think I am the candidate for this office

So fellow freshman, weigh the facts carefully, and be sure of your decision

CHARLIE SIZER.

DEAR FELLOW STUDENTS.

I am Pat Warner from Lakeland Florida, and I am running for treasurer of the freshman class. In high school I partipated in student government. Some of my other activities included officer of 4 service clubs, points committee chairman, and various other activities.

I realize that this office requires more than just past experience — it requires special qualifications such as honesty, good judgement, and a university

My interest and enthusiasm in student government and Florida State University in general will help me serve you well as treasurer of the freshman class. SO— Be A Good Rat and Vote for Pat.

PAT WARNER.

Women's Senate

DEAR STUDENTS,

I am Lou Baker from Jacksonville I graduated from Landon High School and I am running for woman senator of the Freshman class. I would appreciate your support. I feel that I can do a good job if I am elected woman senator that I will back the government which will be for the good for the most people

LOUISE BAKER.

DEAR FRESHMEN:

I am seeking election to Freshmen Senate.

I feel that I am well qualified to serve mainly because of my high school and community activities. I was a member of student council. I also participated and was active in various social and community organizations: chorus, interact, Spanish club, homemaking club and religious work in which I held several offices. During this time I maintained a high scholastic average.

If elected I will always strive to represent you and your opinion to the best of my ability.

I hope that the enthusiasm of the Freshman class to elect those candidates best fitted to represent you. Remember November the first is your chance to "Click with Bostwick." Be sure your vote will be greatly appreciated.

MARILYN BOSTWICK

TO MY FRESHMEN CLASSMATES:

FSU first freshman class section. This is my call as a candidate for senator of our class. I would very much like to represent you as I am interested in student government, having had experience in high school as student council work serving as president of the Senate. I would appreciate your vote as I am willing to serve you.

ROSEMARY McEWEN

My name, associated with Scotch plaid, is appearing on posters around the campus in the hope that you will give me your support when you go to the polls.

Being aware of the old cliche "with honors come responsibilities," I am willing to accept the large responsibility if you are willing to give me your vote.

ROSEMARY McEWEN

DEAR CLASSMATES

I seek an office in the Freshman class because I feel for two main reasons. First, I have a great desire to serve my class, and as a representative of the Women's Senate would give me an opportunity to express a great deal to me to be a part of a class and do my part in making the class the best ever. Secondly, I have a big interest in Student Government, having been in student organizations during high school, and it would be a big honor to serve on a fine Student Government program and help make it work in its function.

I do not offer any promises but I cannot fulfill. The only promise I give to you, the Freshman class, is that I will do my utmost to serve and represent you if elected. I believe I am capable and willing and capable of doing this job well. In closing, I would like to say that I hope you do know me, that I have high ideals, good character and ever-ready to appreciate your support in this campaign

MICKEY McMILLAN

DEAR STUDENTS

I am Wera Ann Melton and I am seeking a position in the Student Senate. If I achieve this office I shall work with you, the Freshmen, in promoting projects that will be beneficial

Vice-President

FRESHMEN:

My one request, as a candidate for Vice President of my class, is that look for the name JOE ANN BENNETT on the ballot Tuesday, and remember that it belongs to a classmate of yours who is sincerely interested in working hard to establish a reputation of endeavor, enthusiasm, and school-wide cooperation as the 1952nd Freshman Class of Florida State University

JOE ANN BENNETT.

DEAR FELLOW FRESHMEN,

November 1 is an important day for us, for on that day we will elect our leaders for the coming year. As there are so many candidates for each office, it is important to whom to vote for will be a difficult one.

I am running for the office of vice-president. If you feel that I am qualified to serve you in this capacity, I will appreciate your support in the coming election. If I am elected, I will do my best to live up to the duties and responsibilities of the Freshmen Class Vice-President.

BETTY JO BENZING.

DEAR FRESHMEN:

It is my earnest desire to serve you as Vice President of the Freshman Class I believe most sincerely that we have the best class that Florida State has ever known and I want to work to improve this class in every possible way.

It is important to work closely to the President in coordinating our activities.

Thus I will do to the best of my ability if you put your vote of confidence in me

JIM BILLARD.

DEAR FRESHMEN:

Tuesday you will go to the polls to make an important decision. You will elect your Freshman Vice President during the coming year. The decision is of the greatest importance.

I will determine whether or not you will have active, representative Student Government.

The only promise that I will make to you is that I will make the Vice President is that I will do conscientious work and service on behalf of the Freshmen Class. I should greatly appreciate your consideration of my candidacy for this office.

MIKE COPPS.

FRESHMEN:

Who's Who? Cats! The Freshman class of '53, '56 can be the best and most progressive in FSU history if FSU freshmen elect worthy and dependable class officers who are capable of assuming leadership!

I am a candidate for Vice President, and, if elected I promise to:

(1) Uphold the president's platform and suggestions at all times.

(2) Represent equally, and to the best of my ability, all ideas and polleies submitted to me by groups or individuals.

(3) Maintain absolute honesty and integrity during my period of office.

My high school achievements which I feel help to qualify me are, Senior Class officer, Beta Club, Quill and Scroll, Cheerleader, Church Organist, Red Cross Work, Band Member, and Girls Athletic Club.

I will appreciate your vote and support in the November election and remember—Fairchild will be fair with you as your Vice President.

ANN FAIRCLOTH.

HELLO ALL YOU FRESHMEN:

My name is Kay Jordan. I'm running for Vice-President of the freshmen class. I decided to run for Vice-President because I'm very interested in the Freshmen Carnival and in being a part of the class officers. If I'm elected, I will have a big part in the planning of the Freshmen Carnival. I want to make the Carnival this year one of the biggest ever, one the whole FSU student body will remember.

I think I'm qualified for this job, in high school I was Treasurer of Senior Class, Secretary-Treasurer of Spanish Hooor Society and Business Manager of the annual. I was active member of most all the clubs in our high school.

I will sincerely appreciate you considering my qualifications and came when you go to the polls to vote.

KAY JORDAN.

FELLOW FRESHMEN:

I am running for the office of freshman Vice-President on the basis of experience and sincerity, pledging to you my every effort during my course.

I will not make any outlandish promises but I do have a platform consisting of the following statements:

1 I will work and work hard for a bigger, better, and more colossal Freshman Carnival, one that will be remembered for many years to come.

2. I will strive to make the name of the freshman class will be recognized for its outstanding spirit, unity, and loyalty to Florida State University.

3 I believe the Freshman Class of 1953 should sponsor a project that would benefit FSU, not only this year but in the proceeding years.

I wish to say again that I am running for this office in sincere desire to serve. It is with these ideals that I ask you to consider me as your Vice President.

BOB MOREN.

FELLOW FRESHMEN:

I am running for the vice-presidency your freshman class, which I will be, if elected head for ever. The only way to have a really up-to-par class, though, is to start off with the right officers, and I feel certain that I am the position of vice-president capably.

I will always do my utmost to live up to the duties of the office of my ability and I will always endeavor to be "able" to take over responsibility in the absence of our president.

I will certainly appreciate your vote.

GRETCHEN OETJEN.

FELLOW STUDENTS:

The coming Freshman elections will certainly rank one of this year's high points. Sad to say, in the past, the class has not received much crilicism concerning our lack of school spirit. It is up to each of us to show that we can do great things for FSU. I feel that an intelligent choice of leaders is so vitally important. With your support and interest, I know we can prove we have one of the nations' finest Freshman classes.

I sincerely believe I can qualify for the position of Vice-President, and to this end, devote my time, energies, and interests to the job. My past experience, I feel, will be of use, as my enemies wisely and effiesinly. Some of these are a follower Junior Society, Beta Club, Senior Honor Society, Beta Club, Junior Civitans, band, orchestra, Citizen of the Mont sward, social club president, graduating who has also served many years. Vice president, science club secretary, FSU Social Studies Club president honor graduate.

Remember, you can "bet on your lucky star" when you cast your ballot.

PAT STARNES.

DEAR FRESHMAN CLASS:

I am Carol Traylor, your candidate for Vice President. Even though I enjoyed my high school life at Robert E. Lee, I don't feel it is important to dwell on my accomplishments, but rather on tomorrow, there. Actually, you are interested in my plans as your class officer. The Vice Presidency of the Florida State Freshman class is quite a responsible and time demanding job. Upon being elected, I plan to make this my only outside activity and therefore will be able to give the job all the time necessary. The responsibility, I can only give you my promise to fulfill every phase of this job to the best of my ability. An election speech is not worthy of a can. You can read the label but you are not sure what is inside until you open the can and see for yourself. If you feel I have the integrity to serve your Vice President, I would appreciate your vote.

CAROL TRAYLOR

Secretary

DEAR CLASS OF 56:

This coming Tuesday, you, as a freshman class at Florida State University, will use your democratic right to vote for one of the many things to consider in making this big decision, and the choice is yours.

As a candidate for Secretary of the Freshman Class, I sincerely hope that I will be your choice. I have been secretary of many high school organizations, the largest being the Clearwater High School Band Council as office. I was obliged to write numerous business letters, and minutes of all officer and Band meetings. I feel that I am well qualified to represent my class as its secretary.

I am very interested in helping my school and especially my class. I feel that running for an office is one of the best way to fulfill this wish. Besides the duties of secretary, I am interested in seeing my class at the top, which I am sure it will be.

I sincerely hope that you will consider PAT ANNA as your choice for Freshman Secretary.

PAT ANNA

DEAR FELLOW FRESHMEN:

I believe all of the qualifications of my ability and I will always endeavor to be able" to take over responsibility in the absence of our president.

I will certainly appreciate your vote.

GRETCHEN OETJEN.

FELLOW STUDENTS:

The coming Freshman elections will certainly rank one of this year's high points. Sad to say, in the past, the class has not received much crilicism concerning our lack of school spirit. It is up to each of us to show that we can do great things for FSU. I feel that an intelligent choice of leaders is so vitally important. With your support and interest, I know we can prove we have one of the nations' finest Freshman classes.

I sincerely believe I can qualify for the position of Vice-President, and to this end, devote my time, energies, and interests to the job. My past experience, I feel, will be of use, as my enemies wisely and effiesinly. Some of these are a follower Junior Society, Beta Club, Senior Honor Society, Beta Club, Junior Civitans, band, orchestra, Citizen of the Mont sward, social club president, graduating who has also served many years. Vice president, science club secretary, FSU Social Studies Club president honor graduate.

Remember, you can "bet on your lucky star" when you cast your ballot.

PAT STARNES.

DEAR FRESHMAN CLASS:

I am Carol Traylor, your candidate for Vice President. Even though I enjoyed my high school life at Robert E. Lee, I don't feel it is important to dwell on my accomplishments, but rather on tomorrow, there. Actually, you are interested in my plans as your class officer. The Vice Presidency of the Florida State Freshman class is quite a responsible and time demanding job. Upon being elected, I plan to make this my only outside activity and therefore will be able to give the job all the time necessary. The responsibility, I can only give you my promise to fulfill every phase of this job to the best of my ability. An election speech is not worthy of a can. You can read the label but you are not sure what is inside until you open the can and see for yourself. If you feel I have the integrity to serve your Vice President, I would appreciate your vote.

Freshman President

DEAR CLASSMATES:

I would like to discuss with you the candidacy for the office of Freshman Class President. I feel that the main qualification for this candidate should have are a desire to serve and a willingness to work. I feel that I have these qualifications and would like to them. I believe that I am willing to serve you, and will reward this confidence placed in me. I would like to see this year's class make a record that each freshmen class will be proud of. I would like to see us have the finest Carnival on campus. This is an opportunity that I want very much, and can assure you that I will not treat it lightly. I will work hard if you think my service will make me a good President.

RODDY ANDREWS

DEAR EDITOR:

I wish to become President of the Freshman Class and solicit your support in this office by vote for the job and qualifications.

I have a whole-heartedly in this of our Freshman class that will be interested in the history of school. All we need is greatness as enthusiasm, loyalty, and leadership.

My purpose in seeking this is basing my qualifications than any already presenting classes.

BILL CLENDINE

FELLOW FRESHMEN:

Finally I take pr my for your class officers and to impress upon you of voting in this election Do not vote on you feel are best to be our leaders for your class.

Deceptives have said that members class has grown spirit up to the present and they doubt that might be the case though to see their view-point. Former first we will have failure in silence these people and for all How can doubt our school spirit out and vote. I would have the honor to serve your class. I shall try to bring the which I know is present to the surface. Now this is done there will be push the good that a Freshmen class can do University.

CHAS. "GERRY" GORDEN

FELLOW FRESHMEN:

I would like to take this opportunity to introduce myself express my feelings concerning the office of Freshman President.

First of all I would like to the honor and privilege to know. I realize that this is extremely important office. I feel I am capable of holding this position because of my experience.

I enjoy working with persons and I believe together can make this class of 1955—a memorable one. I would greatly appreciate your help next Tuesday in the primary election!

TED BENJUM

DEAR CLASSMATES:

St. Petersburg I was President, Sophomore Senator, Junior Councilman, Class Historian, Key Club President, and a member of the Order of De Molay.

Let's show Sammy Seminole and the other upperclassman that we Freshman have a lot more spirit than was demonstrated by Rat Caps! Be sure to vote and remember Sallis for President.

BOB SALTZ

DEAR FRESHMEN:

We've come to Florida State and knowingly or exactly what to expect. We've come and faced the problems of adjusting to classes, dormitories, and the social part of college. Next Tuesday we will face our first big challenge as a class—that of electing our leaders for this year.

All candidates are equally capable of serving you, but it's up to you to decide which one will have the privilege. You are the one who will be most important. We all realize that everyone, any of us could be elected, a good president. Also, isn't that what we're striving for anyway?

I will appreciate your vote and support, and let's remember—a class isn't remembered by its leaders, but by what it does as a whole.

BETSY SMITH

Vice-President

FRESHMEN:

My one request, as a candidate for Vice President of my class, is that look for the name JOE ANN BENNETT on the ballot Tuesday, and remember that it belongs to a classmate of yours who is sincerely interested in working hard to establish a reputation of endeavor, enthusiasm, and school-wide cooperation as the 1952nd Freshman Class of Florida State University

JOE ANN BENNETT.

DEAR FELLOW FRESHMEN,

November 1 is an important day for us, for on that day we will elect our leaders for the coming year. As there are so many candidates for each office, it is important to whom to vote for will be a difficult one.

I am running for the office of vice-president. If you feel that I am qualified to serve you in this capacity, I will appreciate your support in the coming election. If I am elected, I will do my best to live up to the duties and responsibilities of the Freshmen Class Vice-President.

BETTY JO BENZING.

DEAR FRESHMEN:

It is my earnest desire to serve you as Vice President of the Freshman Class I believe most sincerely that we have the best class that Florida State has ever known and I want to work to improve this class in every possible way.

It is important to work closely to the President in coordinating our activities.

Thus I will do to the best of my ability if you put your vote of confidence in me

JIM BILLARD.

DEAR FRESHMEN:

Tuesday you will go to the polls to make an important decision. You will elect your Freshman Vice President during the coming year. The decision is of the greatest importance.

I will determine whether or not you will have active, representative Student Government.

The only promise that I will make to you is that I will do conscientious work and service on behalf of the Freshmen Class. I should greatly appreciate your consideration of my candidacy for this office.

MIKE COPPS.

FRESHMEN:

Who's Who? Cats! The Freshman class of '53, '56 can be the best and most progressive in FSU history if FSU freshmen elect worthy and dependable class officers who are capable of assuming leadership!

I am a candidate for Vice President, and, if elected I promise to:

(1) Uphold the president's platform and suggestions at all times.

(2) Represent equally, and to the best of my ability, all ideas and polleies submitted to me by groups or individuals.

(3) Maintain absolute honesty and integrity during my period of office.

My high school achievements which I feel help to qualify me are, Senior Class officer, Beta Club, Quill and Scroll, Cheerleader, Church Organist, Red Cross Work, Band Member, and Girls Athletic Club.

I will appreciate your vote and support in the November election and remember—Fairchild will be fair with you as your Vice President.

ANN FAIRCLOTH.

HELLO ALL YOU FRESHMEN:

My name is Kay Jordan. I'm running for Vice-President of the freshmen class. I decided to run for Vice-President because I'm very interested in the Freshmen Carnival and in being a part of the class officers. If I'm elected, I will have a big part in the planning of the Freshmen Carnival. I want to make the Carnival this year one of the biggest ever, one the whole FSU student body will remember.

DEAR CLASS OF 56:

This coming Tuesday, you, as a freshman class at Florida State University, will use your democratic right to vote for one of the many things to consider in making this big decision, and the choice is yours.

As a candidate for Secretary of the Freshman Class, I sincerely hope that I will be your choice. I have been secretary of many high school organizations, the largest being the Clearwater High School Band Council as office. I was obliged to write numerous business letters, and minutes of all officer and Band meetings. I feel that I am well qualified to represent that you, the Freshman Class will see fit to elect Mr. Nancy German, Secretary.

NANCY C. GERMAN

DEAR FRESHMEN:

My name is Dorothy Goodwin, and I am running for Secretary of the Freshman Class. I realize that there are many other very capable persons also seeking this position, but I hope that you will find my worthy of your vote. I intend to carry the full responsibility of this office to the very best of my ability. In the past I have served as secretary of several organizations, the majority being a part of my extra-curricular activities in high school. As a result, I am familiar with the necessary duties of a secretary. Whatever phases of this job I do not know, I am more than willing to learn. I hope my qualifications will measure up to your standards of the Freshman Class Secretary.

DOROTHY GOODWIN

DEAR FROSH:

Efficiency, capability, leadership, character, and a desire to serve are the qualities I possess as the charteristics of a fine secretary.

As I have been Secretary of Student Council, also the Key's book Staff and President of National Honor Society and Treasurer, I feel like I have the qualifications. If I am elected as Secretary of the Freshman Class, I promise to fulfill these requirements and even more. I guarantee that I will exert every ability I have to the betterment of our University Government and University Spirit.

A true Seminole booster will boost.

NANCY HEACOCK

FRESHMEN:

LYNN MARKHAM

DEAR FELLOW FRESHMAN:

Just as my clock posters keep track of the time of day, I would like to keep track of the minutes for the Freshman Class. Because I have served as Secretary of my Freshman Class and of the Community and Service Club in high school, I feel that I have the qualifications you as the electors are seeking.

Campaign promises are often broken. I shall not campaign on this air after elections. However, I do hope you remember that I know will carry through —I will serve you the freshman class faithfully and to the best of my ability.

ROBBIE PLUMMER

DEAR FRESHMAN CLASS;

I would like to take this opportunity to express my sincere desire to serve you as Secretary of the Freshman class. I would appreciate your considering me as a candidate for this office. My main objective would be to serve you in every way possible to the best of my ability and help magnify the potentialities of our Freshman class so that it shall stand as Florida State University's most outstanding.

Thank you for considering me.

PEGGY SLEDD

DEAR FRESHMEN:

Tuesday's election will determine whether our class will have the type of leadership that will enable it to make a good record during this year

It is my desire to have the privilege of serving you as your Treasurer so that I may help our class leave its mark on our campus as the finest freshman class in the history of FSU.

If elected your Treasurer I promise to be faithful and honest service that will be a credit to our class. Your vote and support will be greatly appreciated

JOHN BELITZ.

FRESHMEN:

Your troubles are over, freshmen, if you elect Dodie Evans to office as your treasurer. I'm a Georgia girl who has had experience in saving that Confederate dollar.

As treasurer of our class I would: (1) support our president (2) handle our money wisely (3) keep accurate records and (4) be trustworthy.

I think some of my experiences in high school have helped to qualify me for this position. I was a junior class officer, officer in the glee club, the "Orets, the Girls Athletic Club, the Future Homemakers of America, a member of the Teen Board, a cheerleader, second place winner of the essay contest sponsored each year by the Jacksonville Club of Atlanta, and have been active in church work.

Remember your choice at the Caroline Evans for YOUR treasurer and watch that freshman bankroll roll upward.

CAROLINE EVANS.

DEAR FRESHMEN:

On Tuesday, October 25, you will go to the polls to cast a very important decision. for you will use your ballot to determine the head your freshman class through this coming year. I hope you all will use good discretion and thought in electing the most qualified and capable of the candidates.

The office of Treasurer is a responsible one for it has to do and its requirements. I feel that I have gained valuable experience as I have served as Secretary of the National Honor Society last year. If I am elected to this office. I only promise this—to sincerely serve you to the very best of my ability and to live up to the highest ideals of our class. May I say that every vote will be appreciated. See to remember on Tuesday—REDRICK for Treasurer, and we will work together to make the Freshman Class of '56 the best ever.

DIAN REDRICK.

DEAR FELLOW FRESHMEN:

I'm the little piggy-bank poster you see on campus, and I'm all for an FSU freshman class. I'm for Florida Treasurer, Jan Hester.

She's been awfully good to me in the past years, because she knows just how much money to feed me and just how much to take out when I'm hungry. She's used me as the storehouse for the funds of many clubs before she came to Florida State, and now I'm empty and I'd like to be filled with your funds so Jan could use them for you.

I would appreciate your votes for Jan Hester for Freshman Treasurer. We will both serve you faithfully.

JAN HESTER.

DEAR FELLOW FRESHMEN:

You are about to elect the people who will be our class leaders for the coming year. One of the offices you will fill is that of Treasurer I would like very much to serve you in this capacity, and would do the job to the very best of my ability. Your support would certainly be appreciated.

CYNTHIA LAWRENCE.

DEAR FROSH:

As candidate for Treasurer of the Freshman class, I would like to ask your consideration and vote on Tuesday, November 2.

I realize the duties of Treasurer and will do my very best to keep our class treasury out of debt, fulfill, but I do promise that, if elected, I will do my best to be present at all my fellow classmates, to the best of my ability.

DEBBIE PINCKARD.

DEAR FRESHMEN:

When you go to the polls next week, don't just push the first lever that catches your eye. Don't say, 'Well, John Doe has a nice name, I'll vote for him.' Please, no. I'll use the intention of each candidate carefully, and try to determine which one will serve your best interests.

Remember: please vote, but vote carefully, because the leaders you elect will represent you.

BETSY ROSS ROBERTSON.

DEAR FELLOW FRESHMAN:

Next week you will take advantage of one of our most cherished possessions, the right to vote. In doing so, you should keep in mind the qualifications needed for public office. I think, I have these qualifications.

I am running for the office of Freshman Treasurer, and I would appreciate your vote. Yes, appreciate your vote on one condition; that you think I am the candidate for this office

So fellow freshman, weigh the facts carefully, and be sure of your decision

CHARLIE SIZER.

DEAR FELLOW STUDENTS.

I am Pat Warner from Lakeland Florida, and I am running for treasurer of the freshman class. In high school I partipated in student government. Some of my other activities included officer of 4 service clubs, points committee chairman, and various other activities.

I realize that this office requires more than just past experience — it requires special qualifications such as honesty, good judgement, and a university

My interest and enthusiasm in student government and Florida State University in general will help me serve you well as treasurer of the freshman class. SO— Be A Good Rat and Vote for Pat.

PAT WARNER.

Women's Senate

DEAR STUDENTS,

I am Lou Baker from Jacksonville I graduated from Landon High School and I am running for woman senator of the Freshman class. I would appreciate your support. I feel that I can do a good job if I am elected woman senator that I will back the government which will be for the good for the most people

LOUISE BAKER.

DEAR FRESHMEN:

I am seeking election to Freshmen Senate.

I feel that I am well qualified to serve mainly because of my high school and community activities. I was a member of student council. I also participated and was active in various social and community organizations: chorus, interact, Spanish club, homemaking club and religious work in which I held several offices. During this time I maintained a high scholastic average.

If elected I will always strive to represent you and your opinion to the best of my ability

I hope that the enthusiasm of the Freshman class to elect those candidates best fitted to represent you. Remember November the first is your chance to "Click with Bostwick." Be sure your vote will be greatly appreciated.

MARILYN BOSTWICK

TO MY FRESHMEN CLASSMATES:

FSU first freshman class section. This is my call as a candidate for senator of our class. I would very much like to represent you as I am interested in student government, having had experience in high school as student council work serving as president of the Senate. I would appreciate your vote as I am willing to serve you.

ROSEMARY McEWEN

My name, associated with Scotch plaid, is appearing on posters around the campus in the hope that you will give me your support when you go to the polls.

Being aware of the old cliche "with honors come responsibilities," I am willing to accept the large responsibility if you are willing to give me your vote.

ROSEMARY McEWEN

DEAR CLASSMATES

I seek an office in the Freshman class because I feel for two main reasons. First, I have a great desire to serve my class, and as a representative of the Women's Senate would give me an opportunity to express a great deal to me to be a part of a class and do my part in making the class the best ever. Secondly, I have a big interest in Student Government, having been in student organizations during high school, and it would be a big honor to serve on a fine Student Government program and help make it work in its function.

I do not offer any promises but I cannot fulfill. The only promise I give to you, the Freshman class, is that I will do my utmost to serve and represent you if elected. I believe I am willing and capable of doing this job well. In closing, I would like to say that I hope you do know me, that I have high ideals, good character and ever-ready to appreciate your support in this campaign

DEAR STUDENTS

I am Wera Ann Melton and I am seeking a position in the Student Senate. If I achieve this office I shall work with you, the Freshmen, in promoting projects that will be beneficial

So if you want Merritt vote for Merritt. Any help and support you can give will be appreciated. Thank you.

BETTY MERRITT.

DEAR FELLOW FRESHMEN:

Tuesday you will vote for the people you believe are best qualified for positions they are seeking. I would like for you to consider me, Julie Ann Milam, for Freshman Women's Senate. The reason I am running for senate is that I am sincerely interested in student government. As your representative I will do my best to always present your opinions and serve as your voice in the Senate. Read my red and white posters and "make a wise selection."

JULIE ANN MILAM.

DEAR FRESHMAN:

I am R B Munroe I am running for Women Senator.

If I am elected I will try very hard to live up to all of the qualifications of a woman Senator. Furthermore, I will try to bring up before the Senate any suggestions which you may put in the suggestion box from time to time.

My best wishes to every member of our freshman class whether they be running for offices or otherwise. Good Luck!

R. B. MUNROE.

CEIL FORENY

DEAR FRESHMAN:

Electing our Freshman officers is an important responsibility and your choice of candidates will determine the success of our class.

I am interested in serving you as a member of women's senate. I have done Student Government work in high school while a member of the Student Council and I feel that I have a working knowledge of such activities and would be able to serve you well.

I will appreciate any consideration which you give me when chosing your women senators and if elected I will do my best to carry out the duties of this office for the betterment of our class and the student body.

SANDRA SEARS.

DEAR FRESHMEN:

When election day rolls around, be sure YOU are at the polls.

As candidate for frosh senator, I will sincerely appreciate your votes. If I am elected, I will do everything in my power to execute this office efficiently and in the best interests of our class. Choose Wisely elect Nancy Space as your senator!

NANCY SPACE.

DEAR FRESHMAN CLASS:

I, AMELIA SINCLAIR, am running for one of your women's senators. I want to be your senator for it represents you, the freshman of Florida State University. If I am elected I promise to uphold the highest standards of our university, and to represent each and every one of you to the best of my ability.

I would appreciate your support in the coming election.

AMELIA SINCLAIR.

FELLOW FRESHMEN:

I'm Kay Taylor, from Mayo, Florida and I'm a freshman candidate for the Women's Senate. I am very anxious to become a part of the Student Government of FSU.

As for my qualifications, I was the editor of the Lafayette High School newspaper, a member of the Beta Club, salutatorian of my graduating class and I have held various class offices during my high school career.

I hope that you will seriously consider me for a position on the Senate as I am fully aware of the duties which are required for such a position and am willing to devote my time to this activity.

Please remember me on Election Day today!

KAY TAYLOR.

DEAR FRESHMAN,

I am a candidate for the office of Senator because I sincerely want to serve my school, and in particular, you, the students here at FSU.

My past experiences show that I am capable of holding such an office, but the past is of little use to us now. It is the present and future which we have to live and make rewarding.

Lengthy campaign promises would be meaningless, for no one knows what the future may bring. What we think is necessary now may not seem so important in a few months. Whatever the future holds, however, I will be working for what is best for FSU and its students.

Do not fail to take advantage of one of your most important privileges here—that of voting. And in doing so, remember that I would appreciate the opportunity of working for and with you as your Senator.

BARBARA JEAN TURK.

DEAR FRESHMAN:

I am Carol Uhlich and I would like to represent you as one of your women senators. I am sincerely interested in the student government of FSU and will do my utmost to represent the Freshman Class. I fully realize and am willing to assume the responsibility that comes with the office of senator.

I know we are all concerned in our first election and the people who will represent us, the Freshman Class. So May I urge you all to vote!

CAROL UHLICH.

DEAR CLASSMATES:

There are many ways in which we can contribute our different abilities to life at Florida State. I would like to serve by representing you in the Student Senate. Due to past experience in student council and public speaking, I feel that I could make my greatest contribution by serving in this area, and if you choose me as one of your representatives I will put the Senate first in my extra curricular activities and will devote my sincerest efforts and abilities to fulfilling the responsibilities of this office. For these reasons, I ask your support in giving me this opportunity.

NANCY WORRALL.

Men's Senate

MEMBERS OF THE FRESHMAN CLASS:

In the interest of good government, I would like to place my name before you as a candidate for men's senate. I want very much to be able to serve you as your Senator this year. If elected, I will remain open to discussion and suggestions at all times.

I ask you to place your vote of confidence in Hugh Coachman on Tuesday.

HUGH COACHMAN.

DEAR FRESHMAN:

Our class has already broken a couple of records this year. We're the largest class ever, and for the first time we have more men students in a class than women. Let's not be satisfied with these records; Let's be the best class as well as the biggest. That's why I'm running for the position of senator. I want to work with you and with the other class officers in building a great class, and a responsible government. You have three votes to cast next Tuesday for men senators. Think carefully and spend your votes to cast next Tuesday for men senators. Think carefully and spend your votes wisely to purchase capable officers and good government.

BOB DUMKE.

DEAR FRESHMEN CLASSMATES:

Tuesday I come before you as a candidate for election to the office of Freshman Class Senator. The job of Senator is one which requires many hours of hard work and personal sacrifices. However, it involves the kind of work that I enjoy very much, and I should sincerely appreciate it if you would consider my record carefully.

While in high school I served in Student Government, athletics, and as President of Key Club. I am vitally interested in Student Government and if elected your Senator, I will represent the class fairly and sincerely and consider it a privilege to do so.

CLIFF GWYNN.

FRESHMAN STUDENTS:

I am seeking the office of Freshman Senator and would like to take this opportunity to ask for your support. I have always believed that a position in Student Government should be treated as a job rather than an honor. It is in this light that I will treat the office if I am elected. I know I have the desire and I believe I have the ability to make you a good freshman senator.

ART MOORE.

DEAR CLASSMATES:

We are very lucky to have the type of student government that we have at FSU. It is up to us the freshmen to see that the school continues to benefit from this form of government and that our government continues to be progressive.

My platform includes: more practicable rules for women, the silly rules in existence have long been outdated, more emphasis on the honor code among the freshmen, better freshmen-sophomore relations, and in general more school spirit.

I would sincerely appreciate your vote in the coming election, but the most important thing is to VOTE!

DICK RHODES.

FELLOW FRESHMEN:

My name is Clarence Spivey. I am running for Freshman Senator. Although I have tried to see everyone, classes and all the other things of college life have made this impossible.

I have been active in various phases of student government in high school. However, the important thing to know is not what I have done, but what I will do if elected your Freshman Senator. I don't want to waste your time with a lot of silly promises. There are however two serious problems that confront the student body. These are traffic and women's regulations. I sincerely believe that a more satisfactory solution to traffic control can be worked out. In regard to women's regulations many of the rules that are forced on freshman women are down-right ridiculous. You elect me your senator, and I promise that I will work hard and long to represent the Freshman Class as a whole, rather than some special group.

CLARENCE SPIVEY.

DEAR FROSH:

As a candidate for the Men's Senate, I want to extend my best wishes to all.

I cannot hope to do the impossible but I can do the best I know how. I am not making any vain promises. I think my opponents and I understand we cannot do something we know little about because we have had no experience in FSU's legislature.

If I am elected I will do my job to the best of my ability and conscientiously.

The best of luck to everyone!

BILL WRIGHT.

Social Chairman

NETTIE BLACK

TO MY FELLOW STUDENTS

I would like to take this opportunity to inform my friends and classmates that I am running for Social Chairman of the Freshman Class.

I feel that I am capable of handling this office as I have had extensive training and experience in this field in the past, not only as your Freshman Talent Nite MC but in other campus activities.

Freshman Carnival will be devoted as a great spectacle this spring if you only elect me to this office. The experiences which I have encountered with this type of social work and organization would be too numerous to mention.

Your votes will be appreciated. Remember: I'M JUST A LITTLE GREEN FROSH BUT I'LL WORK MYSELF BLUE!

CLAIRE GREEN

DEAR FRESHMAN:

My name is Susan Helms, and I want to serve your class in the capacity of Social Chairman.

Being a Tallahassee girl, I had the opportunity to witness several of the Freshmen socials and have formed certain opinions of the bad and good aspects of how its activities are run. I feel I am qualified in this respect to serve you as the head and social chairman of our classes' activities.

During my years of high school, I as a member of many projects and clubs calling for social know how and organization. I feel I can do something for our class and so I am asking you to cast your vote for me.

Being a member of the Tall-Lassies, I have had opportunity to meet and talk with several of our freshmen and am looking forward to a Freshman class filled by plenty of get up and go. Lets make the Freshman year 1955-56 stand out as an outstanding year in FSU's history!

SUSAN HELMS

HI FRESHMAN:

I am Butch Johnson and I'm running for Social Chairman of the Freshman Class. I chose this office to further the social activities of our class.

Next semester we sponsor the freshman carnival, in which I will play a big part, if elected. I feel I have the qualifications to assume this office. In high school I was Secretary, Class Treasurer, superlative, cheerleader, program chairman for the school choir and I also had the lead in our high school productions.

My interests are highly social and I would like to continue these interests by being elected your Freshman Class Social Chairman.

In the elections Tuesday I hope that each and every Freshman will go to the polls to vote. This will further our class spirit and activity.

If you choose to elect me your social chairman, I will serve the best Freshman Class in the best way I can.

BUTCH JOHNSON

DEAR FRESHMEN:

Fun . . . Fun . . . Fun . . . We have to have some good social activities to get our minds off the grind of all our college work, and we need a good social chairman to see that we get them.

When you vote for social chairman next Tuesday, I hope that you will have my name in your mind. In high school I took part in numerous activities and had many chances to learn to work with others in planning socials. The job of Freshman Class social chairman is a big one, and I would sincerely try my best to live up to the duties involved if you will give me the privilege of serving you.

Our class will be the best ever and we want to begin now to take active part in the life of our university. Your vote for me would assure you of JUSTICE in the office of Social Chairman of the Freshman Class.

LOUISE JUSTICE

DEAR FRESHMEN:

The success of the class of '59 depends upon the unity of its members with willingness to work. I believe that the Social Chairman is the master key to this door of willingness and cooperation. Through the class sponsored functions and projects planned by the social chairman, the men and women of '59 will become friendly and enthusiastic about working together.

I hope, classmates, that you will give me the opportunity to be your social chairman. I am ambitious for our class and anxious to work for it that it may be, not just a success, but a great success!

MARY BETH ROBERTS

FRESHMEN:

Look for the big party hat, it's my trade mark
Because it's my ambition to give this school some spark
With spirit and parties and dances too.
I've got lots of ideas that are really new
If you want to be on the winning team,
Like the victorious Brooklyn
Dodgers,
Then elect for social chairman,
Your party girl Pat Rogers.

STRIKE UP THE BAND!

Learning the words of all the latest popular songs—as an[y] must who wants to amount to anything on campus—be[comes] more and more difficult. Take last night. I had the rad[io on] for no more than five minutes, and in that time heard two b[rand] spanking new songs—a jump tune called Rock With Me, H[...] and a hillbilly ballad called They're Hanging Ralph T. Sig[...] of Cock-crow.

And that's the way it goes. New tunes are absolutely flo[oding] the market. No wonder you're having trouble memorizing the lyrics.

But you don't have to be dull about it. I mean, when a so[ng is] playing and you don't know the lyrics, don't just stand [...] singing dum, dum, de, dum or lo, lo, lo or room room. Th[at's] very dull. Pick more interesting syllables—like slimp [...] kretch dinkle or mloth rolc.

Take, for instance, That Old Black Magic. Let's say [you] forgot some of the lyrics. Try singing this:

That old kretch dinkle
Has me in its mloth,
That old kretch dinkle,
That I slimp so gone,
Those icy dinkles
Running down my slimp,
That old kretch dinkle
When your roke meets mine . . . etc.

See? Interesting? What did I tell you?

But knowing the lyrics—or interesting substitutes—is not ne[arly] enough. To really rate on campus, you must also be acqua[inted] with odd and interesting facts about the composers. For exam[ple]:

1. Irving Berlin's name spelled backwards is Gnivri Nil[reb].
2. Rodgers and Hammerstein can only write music w[hile] whitewashing a fence.
3. Ludwig von Beethoven's hobby was collecting cold so[res].
4. One of our greatest songs was written because the [...] of an impecunious composer came home one afternoon w[ith a] canteloupe and a dog named Lassie. "Why did you bring ho[me a] canteloupe and a dog named Lassie?" said the composer t[o his] wife. "For the baby," she replied. The composer grew an[gry]. "Here we are flat broke," he cried, "and you come home [with] a melon for the baby, a collie for the baby!" Suddenly, stru[ck by] an inspiration, he rushed to the piano and wrote Melon[collie] Baby.

5. Cole Porter writes all his songs with a popsicle stic[k on] the side of a horse.
6. Hoagy Carmichael's hobby is spelling Irving Berlin's [name] backwards.

And what does the true music lover smoke? Why, Philip M[orris] of corris! Why? Because Philip Morris is a song of a cigare[tte], a veritable symphony, a melody serene, a tone poem, a can[tata], a lied, a chansonette, a fugue of one gentle puff upon ano[ther], allegro yet dolce, lively, mild, harmonious.

That's why.

©Max Shulman

To old Max's statements, the makers of Philip Morris, sponso[rs of] this column, add this second chorus: Try today's gentle Philip M[orris] in the bright new red, white and gold pack.

THE SCOTTY STANTON AWARD

Everyone loves the story of a success—and everyone shares in a tragedy.

The story of Scotty Stanton was one of both.

Scotty was an athlete—one of the finest gymnastic products to be turned out by Florida State University. His successes were many, his friends that many more.

But at the peak of his success, Scotty met tragedy.

His character was such that a story was written about him was a small one appearing in a collection of stories of human interest by one Edward S. Parker.

And to best convey our knowledge of Scotty, we borrow in part from Mr. Parker's work.

His name was Scotty. No one knew a great deal about the previous life for he lived creatively in the present tense when you first saw him you couldn't help but be tremendously impressed with his physical makeup and warmth and goodness that shone forth from his blue, deeply penetrating eyes. He was more than a sincere friend. He was a living inspiration to all persons that came in contact with him. . . .

The cornerstone of his life was built on the foundation of his gymnastic skill which was to him more than just physical. It was his whole way of life. That philosophy was tested when he raised it in acquatic exhibitions and with perfect trust when he would dive 185 feet below the surface of the water with nothing more than the mere essentials of air hose, fins and mask. . . .

"They were laying them off at the spring 'Wakulla' where Scotty did his diving. A new manager had taken over and was laying off many of the people who had worked the boats at the spring for many years," Parker recalled. "It was the work they were accustomed to for many years and then suddenly for the efficiency of the organization the new manager left them without employment. It was in this situation Scotty determined to help out his friends—one of his many acts of service . . .

He worked long hours putting on his divina exhibitions for tourists and every cent he got was turned over to the former workers at the spring. At the end of the week he came back to his apartment. The car sputtered and conked out of gas just as he pulled up in front. He came in—flopped down in a chair, and roared with laughter. 'I'm 26 years old. I've worked all week and this is all I've got to show for it.' He threw two pennies on the table.

Scotty wore a silver chain with a Saint Christopher Medal around his neck and was never seen without it. One day the chain snapped. His took it to be fixed but he was without a good luck charm for a day. The next day was the date of his diving exhibition where he was to repeat his 185-foot dive. . . .

"The crowd fairly pulsated with excitement that fateful day." Those he had helped during the lay-off were all there and Scotty was their hero. . . .

As he slipped into the water he said to one of the group, 'If I don't come up send them after me. This was an unusual thing for him to say for he had always displayed the utmost confidence in himself. He descended into the water, without bubbles, as those this time—went down to the ledge near the deep part. He disappeared and came out the mouth of the hole that went into the depths of the spring and after all this turned around and repeated the dive under the ledge and then rose to the surface. His hand touched the boat but then slipped off. . . .

As he sank a pleasant smile appeared on his face. His life had been lived in the service of others. He seemed completely at control with what was happening to him. . . .

"Three times they tried to retrieve his body but with no success. The air hose broke each time. The diver got down to Scotty on the fourth try and his hand touched the body but the diver current suddenly carried it into the dark hole and it sank over and sank into the depths. . . .

"Scotty was gone . . ."

So wrote Edward S. Parker of one of Florida State University's most forgotten athletes. Forgotten by some, but never by those who knew and worked with him.

Today, more than three years after his death, Scotty Stanton is a fond memory to many of the older gymnasts—and a legend to the newer ones

And that legend has been preserved

There's a trophy in the Trophy Room of the student center—the Scotty Stanton award. It's been there now for three years.

But the names of those who, through outstanding performances, have won the award are not on it. Nor is there an inscription on any of the other 26 trophies and awards placed there by the gymnastics team.

It's one of the few things at Florida State University that we consider to be an injustice.

And we ask you to agree.

Traditions are relatively few at this university But a tradition like that of the Scotty Stanton award should not be allowed to pass away

May we say that it exemplifies that which we have been trying to put across here—that athletics, regardless of type of form, stand representative of the game called life.

And we think athletics are pretty swell fellows.

Tribe Readies For Villanova Game

Basketball Ends 'Playoffs' Begin

Senior Hall and the West Hall Pirates came out 1-2 in the dorm basketball as a result of Monday's games and will begin a best two out of three game series at the west gym on Monday, Oct. 31 at 7 p.m.

The second game will be on Wed., Nov. 2 at 7:30 and the third if necessary will be on Thur., Nov. 3rd. The winner meets the first winner for the all-campus title.

Senior Hall wrapped up first-place in the final standing, but not without a real scrap with Magnolia Hall. The final score was 38-25 but Magnolia led at the quarter 10-8 and at the half 14-10. A case of upset fever gripped Magnolia in the third period and they scored only 3 points while Senior Hall plunked in 16 Johnny Wood made 12 of the losers and Jim Hogan 14 for the champs.

The Methodists played steady ball to upset the Baptists 42-32 and three players place into a four way tie. After a slow first quarter with a 6-5 score, the game broke loose in the 2nd with Vic Ebanks with 15 and Joel Shomaker with 12 paced the winners while Matthews had 16 for Baptist

Although the Rebels rallied valiantly and seemingly nosed out the Presidents 25-24 Monday, a recount gave the Penthouse a 24-23 win, leaving the Rebels last place. Bill Hamilton in the relay for the year Taylor got 21 and Bill Hall 17 for the losers.

The final league standings.

Methodists	4	3	187	212
Magnolia Hall	4	3	164	166
W Hall Rebels	1	6	221	259

The Pirates finish with scores for the season with 279, and Senior Hall second with 264. The Baptists finish with 246 Magnolia showed the best defensive basketball supporting 166 points or an average of 27 points per game.

Playoff Schedule—West Gym

Senior Hall 's West Hall Pirates

Mon., Oct 31—7 pm
Wed. Nov. 2—7 pm.
Thur. Nov. 3—if necessary

On Tuesday night the regular league games of the first basketball were completed with several games sizzling affair.

The final game saw the PKP team, which had not won a game this season work hard to beat the DTD's and almost doing it They led 11-9 at the half, kept a tight on the rough and tumble contest until the last 90 seconds when Purvis sank a basket to give the DTD a 37-35 win. J Clark had a chance to tie the score with 4 seconds to play but blew both free throws. Each team had 14 goals but DTD team had 9 free throws and PKP 7.

SAE dropped a well played game 34-30 to PKT when Bill Ellis the winners in the playoffs and eliminated SAE from further play. Woods with 14 points led the winners while Corey had 12 for the losers.

The KA's won the best contest of the night from the SC's 53-34. They led all the way but never had a comfortable lead. It was 11-8 at the quarter, 19-14 at the half and 25-20 at the third quarter. It was the long distance of Donovan and Copps that won for KA.

The TEP was again outmanned and outrunned as PDT won 53-31. Miller berg high man with 15 points.

The championship frat playoffs begin last night with scores unavailable at press time, but results are on the Student Center and Lonesmire bulletin boards.

The KA's No 1 team of Div II played LCA No. 2 team of Div I. TC No 1. in Div. I met PDT No 2 team of Div II. The coming games, in the double elimination series follows: "All games at the West Gym'.

The highest scoring team of the league was Theta Chi with 193 points. Kappa Alpha being second with 183 and LCA third with 175. Phi Delta Theta showed the best defense, their all court press keeping opponents to 90 points, an average of less than 23 points per game. Kappa Alpha was second in defense allowing opponents only 96 points.

Don Holder, one of Florida State University's more outstanding gymnasts, will take his regular part in the annual Gymkana Show to be presented soon. Tickets for the event are now on sale.

Stults Prepares Tribe Mermen For Rugged Swimming Slate

Coach Bim Stults has been putting his star-studded swimming team through rough work-outs for the past month to get them in condition for the tough schedule coming up.

This year the team will swim against the University of Florida as it will be the first time those two teams have met in a dual competition.

Garcia Is Possible Hardwood Starter

The fifth man on the Florida State basketball team may turn out to be Tom Garcia.

The 5.8" sophomore was a standout on the freshman team scoring 120 points in 6 games. Tom as a fine outside set man, using a two-hand shot most of the time

Playing only his junior and senior years at Ft. Myers Senior High, he lead his team in scoring and was voted a conference in his last year. Tom's coach was Mike Long, now the FSU track coach, who "encouraged me to play service ball."

Tom joined the Air Force after high school and spent his last two years overseas in Japan He was high scorer of the team and his outstanding playing placed him on the all-star Air Force Far-Eastern Team. Among the outstanding men he played against were Jim Iverson of Kansas St.; Ken Murray, from St. Bonaventures, LeRoy Leslie and Don Schaser of Notre Dame, and Bill Houghlin of the Phillips Oilers.

Tom's main interest after graduating is in the coaching field. While he was overseas he attended basketball clinics that were given by some of the top college coaches So impressed by his playing Tom was offered scholarships to Miami, Seattle, Denver and Toledy to mention a few.

Concerning the coming season Tom feels that everything hinges on the rebounds because we have the boys who can score. "I play better away from home and like being the underdog, because I'm small," he added.

The team, which has not lost a dual meet in the past three years, will have sixteen men returning plus seventeen freshmen.

Outstanding men returning are: Ernie Stock, Joel Jacoon, John Ruther, and Jim Julian who competed in the Pan-American Games representing Florida amateur Athletic Union championship 440 yd. medley relay team.

Both Stock and Graham Ruther set records at the Florida AAU in the 100 yr. breast-stroke and the 440 yd. free-style respectively last year.

Carswell Ponder, an Ocala boy should continue to be an asset to the team in the diving events.

Other men returning who should bolster the team's strength are Ken Abbott, Jim Baird, Roy Harris, Paul Kilbee, B B Rhodes, John Ruther, Dick Rinton, Norm Shipley, Mike Tschirret, and Phil Weing. Weing.

Two freshmen loom as outstanding performers. Charles Gentry in his senior year at Georgia Military Academy was named to the High-School Interscholastic All-America Team, while Ralph Wetzel placed second in diving at the Ohio state swimming meet.

Other Freshmen who expect to make a big splash are: Dick Carson, Howie Hilburn, Jerry Glassy, Paul Hammond, Silas Vieira, Pat McKown, Jon Koein, Buddy Prekup, Tom Rocencic, Don Smith, Glen Thompson, Chris Rost, Bob Waddell and Jim Wentworth.

There will be an organizational meeting of freshmen and transfer students interested in varsity basketball in the West Gym Gym from 3:30 to 5 p.m. Monday, October 31.

Practice starts Tuesday, November 1. You are requested to bring your own shoes and shorts.

'Sumpin' Gotta Give' Situation Looms For FSU-Mainliner Tilt

There is a popular song making the rounds today that is quite apropos to the coming Villanova-Florida State football game November 5. That song is "something's gotta give!"

TicketsAvailable To FSU-Southern 'B'-Team Game

Tallahassee football fans desiring to attend the Florida State-Mississippi Southern 'B' squad football game in Panama City this coming Saturday night will have the opportunity to purchase their tickets here prior to leaving for the game.

Florida State University Athletic Business Manager Eddie Cubbon stated today that he has 200 good tickets for the contest, and they will be on sale at the FSU athletic ticket office in the Student center building until noon Saturday. The ducats are priced at $1.00 each.

The game between Coach Paul Odom's Seminole 'B' squad and the yearling forces of the Southerner's stacks up as a natural all the way down the line. There is little doubt that the Mississippi youngsters will be out to even an odd score, trying to avenge the varsity's 1954 loss to the Seminole varsity.

In addition to the top flight football entertainment Mississippi Southern's fine musical organization the "Dixie Darlings" are scheduled to perform in pre-game and halftime ceremonies The "Dixie Darlings" are rated one of the top collegiate bands in the nation

The Florida State B team will be out to even their 1953 record to date. Odom's boys lost a thrilling 19-14 decision to Georgia Tech before rebounding with a convincing 21-0 win over Robins Air Force Base. In their most recent outing in Mt. Dora, the yearling Seminoles dropped a hard-fought 19-6 game to the University of Miami B squad.

The game is scheduled for Panama City's Tommy Oliver Stadium. Game time is 8 o'clock.

For barring an unexpected ice ball game, something will give in the way of a win for one of these teams.

At present, the Seminoles have a 1-4 record while the Wildcats from Philadelphia have yet to break into the win column. Both teams have been ensassing some of the finest football powers in the nation, and the terrific toll exacted from both of them in trying to master these obstacles has now set the stage for a real showdown for victory.

Villanova has vowed to slash teams as the Boston University, Indiana, Boston College, and N. C. State. The Seminoles have given way to Georgia, Miami, Virginia Tech, and Georgia Tech while exacting their late triumph from the same N. C. State eleven that beat Villanova, and they will be on sale at the FSU athletic ticket office in the Student center building until noon Saturday. The ducats are priced at $1.00 each.

Hi there co-eds.

Once again I would like to remind you of the volleyball tournament which started Monday. The games are now underway and are being played with a lot of enthusiasm.

Many of those who are not playing have come out to cheer for their team. This gives the women a great deal of encouragement.

We would like to invite each and everyone of you to come out and watch these games. They are really exciting and a lot of fun to watch.

Monday found Reynolds beating Broward 31-22 and West Landa defeating Jennie Murphree 1-0. This was really a close game for the winners.

In Tuesday's games, there were many exciting moments as when Bryan defeated Jennie Murphree in the overtime game of 32-31. This game really kept everyone on their toes

East Landa report on a victory for themselves by defeating Broward 40-15. Delta Zeta beat Alpha Chi Omega by a score of 31-27 and Delta Gamma were the winners over Delta Delta Delta by a score of 36-49

And then Alpha Delta Pi were victorious over Kappa Delta 33-24.

Another very close game was between Zeta Tau Alpha and Sigma Kappa.

Zeta Tau Alpha won by a very small margin of 28-26.

All the teams are to be congratulated on their sportsmanship, and outstanding sportsmanship.

Another league that is well under way is bowling. On Monday, Gamma Phi Beta defeated Delta Gamma.

Alpha Omicron Pi were the winners over Delta Zeta and Landa beat Chi Omega.

Tuesday found Kappa Alpha Theta winning over Zeta Tau Alpha and Florida being victorious over Broward.

Derby Set For Today

By ARLIEDA RIES

Projects to make money for the Campus Chest are still in full swing.

Today is Soap Box Derby Day co-sponsored by Alpha Gamma Delta sorority and Phi Delta Theta fraternity. At 3:30 this afternoon fifteen teams will compete in the race down College Avenue from Copeland to Macomb Street.

The teams are composed of a fraternity and a sorority each. The men built the cars, while each member of the sorority will drive.

Heats, positions for which will be drawn, will be run and winners from each heat will compete against each other until a finalist is victorious.

The Derby, which originates this year, will become an annual affair, with two trophies going to the winning sorority and fraternity on a rotation basis each year.

Contest Monday

As a result of photographical difficulties the Campus Chest Queen Contest is postponed until Monday, announces sponsor Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

Booths displaying the pictures of the sixteen contestants, who represent their individual sororities, will be located at the Student Center, Kahler's and the Seminole Club. Votes will be a penny each with the total amount going to the Campus Chest Fund. The winner will receive a trophy and ride in the homecoming parade.

Kappa Alpha Theta sorority is selling tickets this week for the Theta Sunday Party, to take place Sunday at the Theta House, 310 West Park Avenue. After making a contribution of 35 cents, which goes to the Campus Chest, everyone makes his own sundae, with any ice cream and topping. The party tickets for which may be purchased from any Theta or at the door, is open to one and all.

Nunn Night Cancelled

According to the Tri-Delts, the Faculty Stunt Night has been cancelled due to lack of participation, Campus Chest chairman Mary Nunn announced.

Senate Lauds FSU's 'Chiefs'

Senator Karl Edwards introduced a resolution in Student Senate Wednesday to send a letter lauding the "Marching Chiefs" for their service to Florida State University.

"Due to the fact that the 'Marching Chiefs' have received so much adverse criticism from certain quarters of late, I feel that the Senate should emphasize the powerful contribution of this organization to the welfare of Florida State University," he said.

He added that he believed "the 'Marching Chiefs' to be the most outstanding group on campus and that they have added more than any other organization to the spirit and prestige of FSU."

The resolution was passed unanimously.

Club To Form Card Section

The Warpath Club will organize a card section at the Villanova Game this Saturday afternoon, Harold Al Dayes, president of the group.

Dayes said 400 students will be needed to fill up the section, which will take up parts of sides 11 and 12. Tickets will be distributed in West Hall from 4 until 6 p.m. today through Tuesday. They will also be given out upon request at the Athletic Business Office in the Student Center.

The card section will be instructed by mimeographed sheets supplemented by loudspeaker instructions. Among planned demonstrations are flowers in the Marching Chiefs and to all Dads. The Villanova game has been designated as "Dad's Day."

A card section can be a tremendous boost to school spirit and really impress not only the teams but the fans on the opposite side of the stadium Dayes said. "With some cooperation we can arouse the enthusiasm and really work up some school spirit."

MOORE-HUGHES

Law Study Grants Now Being Offered

Applications are now being accepted for Henry Fellowships, and the Tulane School of Law Regional Scholarships, according to the office of vocational guidance and placement.

The Henry Fellowships offer opportunities for study in England, at Oxford or Cambridge University, and are open to men and women.

The Tulane Law scholarship, which is open only to men, offers $350 per year, or $1650 for the years of professional study. Requirements for eligibility for the scholarship are that a student have a "B" average, or be in the upper 10 per cent of his class.

Students wishing further information should contact the acting Director of Vocational Guidance, Mrs. Margaret Blair 203, Westcott.

Students Tackle FSU Problems At Conference

By MARGARET MILLER

"Why don't we . . ." and "How can we . . ." asked approximately 100 students who attended the Mortar Board-Omicron Delta Kappa leadership conference at the university camp Saturday.

This conference, held particularly for the benefit of leaders of student organizations, was nevertheless open to any and all students. Many students not representing campus organizations attended and contributed to the discussion on university problems.

Graham Carothers opened a general session at noon Saturday with a request for discussion topics.

No Reluctance

The students exhibited no reluctance in presenting their ideas, and approximately 20 topics were suggested in rapid fire order.

The included suggestions for raising admission requirements for the university, better elections methods, traffic and parking problem solutions, school spirit, women's regulations and better contact between foreign and U. S. students on campus.

Someone wanted to know why Smoke Signals didn't meet a deadline as does the Flambeau. One little girl was concerned when the group seemed to agree that a freshman section should be reserved for football games. "But what if we have dates?" she protested worriedly. But her anxiety was eased by another suggestion that freshmen have their dates sit in that section also.

Discussion Topics

Carothers reminded the group that the topics were only for purposes of discussion, and that no official action is taken on the suggestions at the conference.

"Of course," he said, "Student government leaders represented here may take note of the ideas presented and take action on them in Senate if they wish."

Following the initial general session, Dean Oglesby of Student Welfare addressed the group. Oglesby spoke generally on the obligations and characteristics of a leader. Remarking that leaders have to work with ideas, he commented, "The best place to find ideas is in books, and as college students with an opportunity to use books, the best place to find ideas should be on a college campus."

Three Groups

Following Oglesby's address, those present were divided into three discussion groups, led by Graham Carothers, Coyle Moore, and Joan Tawes. Then the three groups met again and presented reports from each group.

Among the suggestions made in the three groups was one stating that admission requirements should be raised to meet the physical capacity of the university to accommodate students.

Another method suggested for the solution of this problem was the elimination of students already enrolled, but not maintaining satisfactory scholastic records.

Lack of Power

On women's regulations, it was decided that the problem lay not with rules as such but in the lack of power of women students in presenting their opinion.

It was also suggested that those who make women's rules better publicize reasons for the rules. Through understanding of the rules, some student complaint and criticism might be eliminated, it was suggested.

The Bermuda shorts question was aptly represented in the skirt worn at the conference. About half the girls present wore sports clothes and the other half appeared in skirts and sweaters.

Little Water

During lunch, held picnic style on the camp pier, some students, noticing how little water is left in Lake Bradford, suggested that a swimming pool be constructed at the camp.

Latino Tickets Now Available

Gymkana tickets are now on sale at the Athletic Ticket Office in the Student Center from 8 a.m to 5 p.m.

Student tickets for the annual production which will run Nov. 7 through 12 cost 50c, non-student seats $1. Students must present their ID cards when purchasing their seats. There is a 25c extra charge for reserved seats.

Tickets are sold with a "first come, first serve" basis, reveals Eddie Condon, Athletic Ticket Manager, with a total of 800 seats available each night.

Tickets for opening night will cost 50c to FSU students, announced Coach Hartley Price.

'Funniest Woman' Appears Tomorrow

2nd ARTIST SERIES PERFORMER
Miss Anna Russell

Anna Russell acclaimed by the Boston Daily Record as "The Funniest Woman in the World," will appear in the second Florida State University Artist Series in Westcott Auditorium tomorrow and Thursday nights at 8:15.

Miss Russell has many varied talents. She is the leading soprano in the New York City Opera Company, has her own Broadway show and has appeared on television, radio and movies.

The prominent soprano has traveled all over Europe and Asia where she received outstanding raves for her versatility.

Critics have admired her ability to entertain all types of audiences from opera, symphony, and concert, to recording and music festival audiences.

Favorable comments about this international concert comedienne include "She Fractures Them," New York Times; "Priceless," Associated Press; and "Terrific," New York Herald Tribune. The Chicago Tribune ties it up by saying she is "One of the World's Greatest Entertainers."

Tickets may be purchased at the Westcott ticket booth Auditorium is $2 for students without activity books.

'Latino' Rehearsal Attended By 750

Gymkana's annual production got a dress rehearsal Friday night with a performance at the Veteran's Domiciliary at Thomasville, Ga.

Scheduled to open here Monday, "Latino," this year's production, will play in the Women's Gymnasium at 8 p.m.

A capacity crowd of 750 people attended the Thomasville showing. The audience composed mostly of World War 1 veterans, look forward to this annual production, reported hospital officials.

The work on the parallel bars by the gymnastics team brought forth the largest applause by the audience. Featured in this act were Cindy Cleo, Jamille Ashmore, Laird Anderson, Rafael Lecuona, Don Holder, Bob Murray, Joe Gusic, Tom McDonald and Don Smith.

Transpositions

Another act FSU students will see is the trampoline, with Jim Fatjanis, Barbara Neuefeld, Don Preisner, and all-around champion Bob Elliott, all performing with amazing skill.

Adding to the success of the show reported the audience, were the vivid colors in the costumes, which were designed by Jan Carter and worn by the troupe. The Court of Honor were presented at the beginning of the show.

Court Represents

The countries the Court of Honor will represent at the show are Alice Sullivan, Venezuela; Margaret McLean, Trinidad; Layte Bowden, Paraguay; Barbara Hendrix, Panama.

Frances Layton, Argentina, and Dora Delpy, Country Ireland; Barbara Hagan, Colombia; Linda Jones, Nicaragua; Joan Zorbaugh, Bolivia, Anita Anderson, Mexico; Anne Monroe, Puerto Rico, and Barbara Barrow, Guatemala.

Ruth Shuman, Uruguay; Jo Ada Williams, Costa Rica; Barbara Johnson, Honduras; Margaret Ann Ballinger, Dominican Republic, and Barbara Emmett, Cuba.

Tumbling Tots

The dancing, tumbling and trampolet work of the Tallahassee Tumbling Tots, side horse exhibition, and balancing acts, also brought forth considerable applause from the crowd.

This week will be spent in perfecting the show before its premiere Saturday to the students and the general public, according to coach Hartley Price.

Trip By Canoe Planned Here

University Recreation Association has scheduled an overnight canoe trip November 12 and 13.

Canoers will travel 26 miles down the Suwannee River, leaving Saturday morning at 8:30 a.m. from the Women's gym and returning Sunday evening.

Canoes will port out at Dell, Florida, spend the night at Camp Ba-Ho near Luraville, and port in Sunday at Troy Springs.

Students who have participated in a previous canoe trip at Florida State University are eligible for this excursion. A 50-cent fee will be charged at the time of registration, which will take place in Room 302, Physical Education Building. Registration deadline is Friday.

Reservation director Miss M. V. Alexander has estimated that food costs will not exceed $2. Full trip instructions will appear on the Reservation bulletin board in the Physical Education building.

Dad's Day Set This Saturday

Florida State University's first annual Dad's Day is slated for this Saturday, with festivities centering on the afternoon football game between FSU and Villanova.

Another feature of the event is a picnic from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Saturday. The picnic will take place in the wooded area near Campbell Stadium or, in the event of rain, in the Suwannee Room. Tickets, which sell for $1 per person, are on sale at the Longmire ticket office until Thursday noon.

Registration of dads is slated for Friday night from 7 to 9 p.m. and Saturday mornins from 9 to 12 a.m at the Student Center.

At Saturday's football game the players dads will sit behind duplicate numbers. Special sections will be reserved in the stadium for dads and their sons and daughters.

Reynolds Sets Harvest Dance

Friday is the night, 8:30 to 11:30 is the time for the Reynolds Hall annual Harvest Moon Dance.

According to Pat Hilton, social chairman, the formal dance, for which the Deviliers combo will play, will be held in the Reynolds recreation room.

One of the main events of the evening will be the surprise crowning of the Harvest Moon Queen by last year's queen Bobbe Craig. The court consists of Beth Bowen, Frances Lynch, Marilyn Madonia, Rita Nelms, Carol Mallinak, Pat Thornton, Peggy Buchanan, Jea Weimer, Frances Clark, and Ann Deberry.

Also on the program, the chairman of which is Nancy Colbourn, will be singer Jim Rauleston

Chris Ginocchio and Bill Cullom were crowned King and Queen of the Sophomore Hop Saturday night.

Attending the couple were Court members Layte Bowden, Patty Marley, Jeani Kitchens, Shirley Metz, Hank McCann, Bill Weaver, Lem Hoover and Ron Weatherington.

Originally scheduled for the Women's Gymnasium, the dance was moved to West Hall due to the amount of effort required to decorate the Gym in its present condition, explained Joy Smiley, Sophomore Social Chairman.

The Deviliers furnished music for the dance.

The entertainment included an accordian solo by Nettia Black, a pantomime by Edmasia Munz, a song by Karen Kimple and an interpretive dance by Jacqui Charles. The "Four Sophomores," a quartette made up of Deviliere members also performed. Tom Speck acted as Master of Ceremonies for the floor show.

B.O.P. Is Born Today

We hope the frosh are not the only students to vote at the polls today. Not denying the eminence of freshman class and senatorial elections, we want to remind upperclassmen that a special election is being held today to fill the student positions on the Board of Student Publications.

Conceived last Spring in answer to a faculty recommendation for a Board of Publications, the bill creating the Board of Publications, underwent an extended period of labor in which publications editors, the student Senate, and the administration sought to install some characteristics of each of the three parents.

Said Board will be born today—and the votes of the student body. It is important that the students elected to fill these positions realize the importance of their task.

Among the operations which have been delayed pending the establishment of the Board and its authority to function, is that of purchasing printing equipment which would publish your student newspaper at less cost, more frequently, and at the same time eventually create student employment. This operation is also alternated at present by indirect effects of the actions of the Associated Industries committee and the Board of Control.

The finances and budgets of all three student publications need to be studied, enlarged, and supported with factual evidence, processes which for too long have been in the hands of many people, few of whom have had little actual knowledge of publication operation and needs.

It is primarily for a solution to these problems that we look to the Board of Student Publications. We do not, as many are inclined to think, look on the Board as a group of censors, deciding what will and will not go into the printed pages of the three publications, though we recognize the possibility of the Board's becoming such a group. We urge all prospective members of the Board to be aware of these points.

We hope the student and administrative members of the board realize also that there are conflicting opinions as to where control of the student press should lie and that these opinions will be among the first to be heard.

The first request the Board will probably hear, may come from the School of Journalism, which, for many years, has wanted the Florida Flambeau to become a laboratory newspaper, edited, printed, and written by students in the School of Journalism under faculty guidance. Control of the press and equipment will also be desired by that department.

While we feel a cooperative arrangement could be worked out with that School as to use of press and equipment for laboratory training in the mechanics of printing, we hope the Board will not allow the power of the student newspaper to pass out of the hands of the student body into those of reporting classes and their professors.

These are but a few of the many problems for which the Board will have to prescribe remedies. The headaches and pressures from varied sources will be numerous and hard to cope with. It is a particularly complicated life into which the Board is being born, and its first year of life will determine, to a large extent, whether it will be a problem child, a dictator, or a messiah.

Water Ballet In Double Time

It is time for a revision of curriculum. We advocate a course titled, "Sprinkler Hopping 105" for all frosh and new students who, up until the current cold spell, have just been initiated into the most necessary art on the FSU campus.

Perhaps it is a method of revenge on the part of FSU's landscaping crew in return for damage to their shrubs by careless elections posters . . . Or maybe the sidewalks and benches really need their daily baths . . . Or maybe some Pavlovian-minded professor has instigated this scheme to condition students to jump when someone accidently says, "Sprinkler!" We are inclined to believe the latter reason the truest for we deem it successful.

Not only has the sprinkler situation conditioned the student body as a whole, but the ROTC should be appreciative of its training value in depth perception—in this case, judging the distance of the revolving water spout and the time needed to cross its path without being caught.

At any rate, won't somebody please take these dancing waters back to the fair?

Thought For Today

We pass along the following bit of information in the hope that someone, at least, benefits by it:

In the November Atlantic, there is a book advertisement that declares, "A distinguished scholar suggests ways in which even the intelligent can be happy."

No further comment from that corner . . .

Guest Editorial

(Editor's Note: Today's guest editorial is from Gene Avery Wheel, student newspaper at Emory University in Atlanta, Ga. It shows that we are not the only student voice in the South to express opinions pro-integration. And because Georgia's problem is even greater than that of Florida, we were especially glad to get it.

So Marvin Griffin, Herman Talmadge, Roy Harris and the rest have organized a so-called "citizens council" designed to fight for the preservation of segregation in Georgia. And the state takes a few more giant steps backward.

The move didn't surprise us. We wondered when it was coming. Georgia was bound to have such an organization when similar councils have been formed throughout the rest of the Deep South.

The founding of the citizens council may well delay the integration of the races in Georgia somewhat. But it cannot halt what is inevitable. It will only temporarily add to the political stature of the demagogues who organized it.

Racial barriers are being broken down all over the nation. Tennessee is now inaugurating an integration program in certain districts, the University of North Carolina has admitted its first three negro undergraduates and the District of Columbia now has mixed schools.

Instead of adding her name in this growing list, the State of Georgia and her people allow the formation of this citizens council. They allow the Board of Regents to ignore the plea of a Negro who wanted to enter the University of Georgia Law school, an act in violation of a Supreme Court decision of 1950.

The negro has every right to enter the law school in Athens. The unanimous decision in the case of Sweatt v. Painter held that a refusal to admit a Texas negro to that state's law school was a violation of the equal protection clause of the Fourteenth Amendment. If he takes his case to the courts, he will undoubtedly be allowed entrance on this point.

The ethnic barriers of Georgia are fast crumbling. The demagogues cannot expect to support them much longer. And Georgia will ultimately be the better for it. —The Emory Wheel

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS by Dick Bibler

Letters To The Editor

THE FLORIDA FLAMBEAU welcomes letters to the editor on any topic, and provides this space for student opinion. The letters do not have to agree with the views of the paper, but must be in good taste. Unsigned letters will not be printed, but names will be withheld upon request. Letters should not exceed 350 words, or 85 typewritten lines. Letters exceeding the limit may be printed, but may be cut at the discretion of the editor.)

"Nauseating" Editorial

TO THE EDITOR:

I would like to protest against the Flambeau for the nauseating editorial which appeared in the Oct. 21 edition.

I have reference to the reaction shown by the editor regarding the State Supreme Court's decision on the University of Florida and the possible admission of Negroes to that institution.

For one thing, I'm positive that this editorial does not echo the sentiments of the FSU student body and another person, I know the way the taxpayers feel about segregation, and it is absolutely wrong for the school's paper to "stab them in the back" and advocate integration. Most of the FSU students from the North came here for Freedom from Integration—To escape mixed schools!

It is very fortunate for all concerned, including the Negroes that the policies and laws regarding Education are in the capable hands of competent men of intelligence, integrity and common sense . . . the Board of Control Board of Education, State Supreme Court, Cabinet, Legislators, etc.

I've been very proud of Florida State in the past. We have many fine citizens here who have made wonderful contributions to the school . . . not only financial but up hard work and loyalty. To offer just one concrete example, we have the "Seminole Boosters." Let's have more fine constructive work for FSU and Tallahassee and no more cracker, idiotic editorials!

SINCERELY,
A STUDENT OF HISTORY

Bailey's Idea Sound

TO THE EDITOR:

Thomas Bailey says he wants to "develop appreciation and understanding of moral and spiritual values" and "[b]more effectively present the contributions of religion to our American way of life" in Florida's public schools.

Sorry, but a religious person according to our concept of religion, was nevertheless concerned with moral and spiritual values, and he and his pupils reasoned out an "appreciation of them."

In times when newspapers, novels and movies profit from truthfully sensationalizing the numerous cases of appalling, juvenile brutality and crime, perhaps subjecting morals to research in the school is not entirely a crude or unsophisticated act of such.

As for studying the contributions of religion to the American way of life (the presentation of actual fact has always been a duty of the school, and it is the teacher's responsibility not to color or distort the facts presented with his or her own emotional attitudes.

Religion as such is taught in our own university and most others, and with good teaching could be taught perhaps as effectively on a lower educational level.

I'm inclined to believe this was Mr. Bailey's intention, but perhaps he used poor words and has misinterpreted him incorrectly.

Once Upon A Time

I MET A MAN ONCE WHO SAID:

I missed out on my college days. You see, I didn't enter into it quite all the way. I never really got involved with the professor. Or even a textbook. Not seriously. I never learned the thrill of dirtying fossils on a mountain side. Or working till dark over a test-tube. Or getting on the trail of something in the library and searching it down feverishly for hours. I told myself that people who did that sort of thing are queer. And I said that professors were dull and complained about the classes. I could learn more out of school, I said. I did through some way without even letting my mind grow curious. And, it's funny, but do you know I kind of regret it now when I want to talk to a scholar. Or go to a library. Or wander through a museum. I wander out on all of that. And I find myself wishing I could go back to college and live those days over again.

I MET A MAN ONCE WHO SAID:

I missed out on my college days. You see, I didn't enter into it quite all the way. Working my way through school took all my time, or I told myself it did. The fellows used to go bumming around at night and sometimes they'd ask me to go along, but I had to study.

"Throw Another Log On The Fire"

The Dissenter

Let's Mind Our Own Busines

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

Column subjects aren't always easy to find—and on state student government only just so much—and so one day I fished for suggestions.

Why don't you write about Princess Margaret and Peter Townsend?", inquired one reader seriously. "You could either recommend they get married or urge that they don't."

To some columnists this would be a golden opportunity—to denounce average religious restrictions, the principle of monarchy, and the combination of church and state in one swift blow.

But wait a minute! Why the dickens should I, the writer, concern myself at all with the romance, or alleged romance, of any other two mere humans?

FOR SOME REASON, newspapers in the United States have seized upon the controversy with almost as much vigor as the peculiarly persons in Britain have.

In Britain there's an explanation. The royalty is the symbol of the Empire, and the figurehead of national loyalty. Nationally or otherwise, Britons feel a deep personal attachment toward their sovereign, an attachment probably the warmer because the royalty have been shorn of all but symbolic and ceremonial duties.

In the United States avid readers have devoured daily accounts produced by peephole journalists. British and American who have never learned the press has no right to anyone's soul.

Can we dismiss this attention as a predilection for sensational reading fed by the sex-laden pages of New York gutter-pulp tabloid morning slicks?

IT IS QUITE possible that many Americans actually long for a royal house to venerate, to whom to place a patriotic love they cannot accord to elected politicians they do not trust. Some remain unable to comprehend the underlying principles of maintaining democracy as an institution of, by and for themselves.

This could explain the fact that in the few months the three most prominent men on our front pages have been the ex-President Eisenhower who, alone among current politicians, has enjoyed an aura bordering on worship; the Big Four conferences, and, of course, you know what.

We cannot escape the fact that the national preoccupation with European manners that is manifested by so much newspaper because of the news about royalty and sex is unworthy of our time.

There are more serious current issues are of vital personal importance to Americans who pay taxes and may have to fight and whom these issues are subordinated to alleged romance of Margaret and Prince Philip abandons its job of informing the people.

Suggests School Spirit Forum

By CLYDE WARD

Looks like FSU is having brickbats tossed at its school spirit again.

That's not too unusual. It's the usual thing, not only at FSU, but at most schools that I've been more or less involved with. And it's criticized not by the general public, but by the students themselves.

Our situation is different from the other schools, though. They have good spirit, on the whole, and only have a reason for criticism on rare occasions. We could justifiably gripe almost anytime.

ONE ASPECT remains the same. Everybody gripes, but no one does anything about it. Is one hundred percent participation the solution, with every man, woman, and child pledging all their lung power to the garnet and gold? Obviously, that would be the ideal situation.

But will it work? We seem to have proved that it won't, simply because we could never get that kind of a one hundred per cent mark.

Then why not try a new angle? The cheerleaders are the group that would be closest to assuming responsibility for the state of our spirit, so why not have forums conducted by the cheerleaders, to try to find out just whassa matta'? By spirit, we mean the audible, hair-raising kind.

THESE FORUMS could be conducted during the cheerleaders' practice sessions, with the cheerleaders and cheerleaders making suggestions and hopefully banishing things out. Who knows? There might be a dormant idea buried

A Better Measure

Cooperation Needed On Traffi

JEROME BERNSTEIN

Last week this column suggested a method by which resident students would be allowed to park their cars on campus streets after 1:30 a.m.

At the same time it was suggested that certain additional parking spaces be reserved for off-campus students, thus removing the reason for the present ban which prohibits parking on campus streets between 1:30 a.m. and 6 a.m.

The suggestion was that the parking spaces in front of North-South Cawthon as you face Call Street on the right side of the street, be reserved for off-campus cars. Along with this it was suggested that the spaces immediately in front of Cawthon, Gilchrist and Magnolia Hall be reserved for that purpose too. Also suggested was that the spaces would be reserved for cars bearing the blue-white sticker.

At the present time approximately 61 cars overflow the dormitory parking lots. These are the cars that have to park off campus at night because of the current regulation.

Discussion with the Traffic Committee, the reason behind this regulation is to allow students who live a good distance from campus to park near their classes in the morning. Many resident students do not use their cars until mid-months or late afternoon, whereas off-resident students use their cars as a basic operation. It is to give non-resident students a break that the ban was passed along with securing of parking space for faculty and commuting employee cars.

By reserving the additional 35 parking spaces this columnist hopes that the 61 overflow will be shaved to a more manageable figure.

To those who argue that resident students cars might not have room to park if moved to class, the answer lies with the campus police service. If this service isn't sufficient to call them on the night side of the street, be reserved for off-campus cars. Along with this it was suggested that the spaces immediately in front of Cawthon, Gilchrist and Magnolia Hall be reserved for that purpose too. Also suggested was that the spaces would be reserved for cars bearing the blue-white sticker.

Sandspur Scripts Progressing, Bu

As far as business is doing, big name bands here this year is concerned, I have found out that we can have Les Brown, either for a concert or a dance, on April 28 or 29 and/or on May 2-3, inclusive. Some personal friends on the Downbeat staff are finding a more complete list of the big names still available this year.

* * * * *

I wonder what is happening to Sandspur this year? So far there has been no sign of life from that quarter. Several students are working on shows to submit but where does one submit them? And to whom? The winner of last year's Sandspur Chairman elections, William Doxey, is supposedly not in school this year. At least we haven't been able to find any trace of him other than a rumor that he is now in the Armed Forces.

There has been, to my knowledge, no attempt to contact me for elect a publicity chairman. Last year, a certain group who had throttled the control of the paper for the past few years, wished to remove the production from students hands and set up a permanent Sandspur Board of students and faculty members. This board would be appointed each year by the previous year's members. There would then be no more student election of Sandspur Chairmen and control of it would virtually pass out of the students hands. Now, whatever work is being done on Sandspur is being done where no light of publicity is able to fall on it. I should like to hear something from that quarter.

Junior Tribe Loses Third, 12-9

From The Sidelines

By Pierce Lehmbeck

VILLANOVA—BOOK II, PART I

There are few who will deny that the first half of Florida State's football schedule was among the toughest in the country.

That's in the past now. It's part of this University's nonstop one leap into major college football. But it was a leap and few of the nation's institutions have made such a move since playing football for so short a time. Being a women's college until 1947, FSU is now in only its eighth year of football competition.

That, in itself, is a thing of which we may be proud.

Those, those of you who put a great emphasis on winning should had too much to yell about. The Tribe has won only 11 of five games. But now comes the second half of that schedule—and maybe you'll be able to yell to your heart's content).

We certainly hope so.

Villanova—FSU's stepping stone into that second half—Book II, Part I, we'll call it.

The Tribe took Villanova apart at the seams last year. They lost a touchdown called back and still won it, 32-13. And doubtless there are many who look for the same thing to happen again this year.

Again, we certainly hope so. But the odds are stacked against such a win. Nugent and his staff point out that the Mainliners have improved ball club, despite the fact that they've won only two of five games, too. Then, too, the Tribe is a battered organization after that rugged early slate.

The best way to look at the situation might be like this: The experts have tabbed FSU as a team to finish with a 6-4 record. The Seminoles have now lost those four games.

And we think we'll stay with the experts.

THE TRIBE HAS A FRIEND—

Seems this little semi-weekly gets around a little more than we might imagine.

Bill Kastele, sports editor of the Florida Times-Union in Jacksonville picked up the editorial which appeared here last week about Lee Corso.

See you will remember, commented freely on the FSU winning and losing situation—saying that he'd rather play a result possible because . . . "it gives you the incentive to get ahead and that's the secret of winning."

Lee also said that ". . . We believe we have one of the finest sports organizations in the country. We respect our coaches above all else."

And of Lee's statements, Kastele said in his editorial "If this typifies the Seminole spirit, it will indeed carry FSU to football heights—and before too many more years. A team that believes in itself is always dangerous."

GRIDIRON TRAGEDY—

It's happened. After winning five successive football games Slippery Rock fell this past weekend to Ozarks College, 20-6.

And the bad thing about it was that it was Slippery Rock's Homecoming Game.

Seriously, it did happen and perhaps we're treating it a little too flip. But through various funny remarks and comments, the people of Slippery Rock has become almost a legend on the gridiron. Few people even realize that there is such an institution as there is. It's a small state teachers' college in Pennsylvania.

Tribe To Face Villanova With Injured Squad

By ALAN WHITMARSH

With several players on the injury list after a particularly rough practice "game" last week, the Florida State Seminoles get down to the business of preparing for the Villanova game in earnest this week.

At least four players were hurt by a game-condition scrimmage called by Coach Tom Nugent last week, but most of them are expected to be in good condition by Saturday afternoon.

Tackler Bob Barber and co-captain Doc Powell have taken a beating in nearly every game Barber is currently nursing a sensitive ankle and Powell's recurring knee injury is causing him trouble again. He has a record of quick recoveries, though, and most likely will be ready.

Guard Leo Baggett and halfback Buck Metts are also hobbled a bit, but both should be ready. Probably the biggest question in the Seminole camp is the ankle of quarterback Len Swazlo. He has been a big figure in every game for the Tribe.

Swazlo's ankle has been just right since the Miami game, and he turned up with another leg injury in Tech game. Len worked out only lightly last week and was held out from contact.

The "game" started out on the practice field, then moved to the stadium. After first establishing two definite teams, Nugent in the end told centers Troy Barnes and Bob Crenshaw to "get in there," and third string became mush livalier.

Halfback Lee Corso ended up quarterbacking one team, and halfback Jim Smith the 1st Pro career at that position, speculation immediately began as to a possible switch.

Nugent commented, however, that "it is unlikely we will move Lee unless we fail to get satisfactory results in the next two games We might do some juggling in that event."

While the Seminoles were battering themselves around in practice, their Dad's Day opponents were in the process of obtaining their first victory of the season, a 16-14 win over a highly-regarded Richmond team.

Now if you start comparing scores, always a dangerous business in college football, you might become rather frightened at first. The same Richmond team that Villanova beat tied VPI, the team that showed so good not so long ago here in Tallahassee.

However, Seminole fans are encouraged by the fact that North Carolina State, the only Tribe victim of the year battered Villanova earlier by a score of 34-13.

The Seminoles have been working on pass defense all week, and they can expect to see plenty of throwing from their opponents Saturday afternoon Sharp passing by a quarterback named Johnny Ferrullo Jr., accounted for 87 of the Wildcat yards Saturday. Ferrullo completed 7 of 10 heaves.

Basketball Playoffs Underway; Tennis Semi-Finals Commence

No upsets were in store in the first round games of the inter-league fraternity basketball playoffs last Thursday night at the West Campus Gym.

Theta Chi, ushered in Div. 7, was matched against Phi Delta Theta the Div. 11 second placers with the result that the seeded TC team won 37-24, going away. It was a matter of being outmatched by reserves, and out-shot from the floor, as TC sunk 11 field goals and 15 free throws against PDT's 8 fielders and 8 free shots. The game was close, hard, and furious for three quarters, then tapered off. It was 8-8 at the quarter, but TC gradually drew away. Statistics of the last half tell the story. Theta Chi taking 19 shots making 6, and making 7 of 13 free throws. PDT took 24 shots, making 4, and sunk only 4 on 16 free throws. Ashley with 17 points was high man.

The story was duplicated in the second game with Kappa Alpha, winner of Div. II beating Lambda Chi Alpha, Div. I runner-up. The score was 46-28, with Bill Wilkins points leading the scorers. At half it was 17-18 for the winners but accuracy in ball handling, rebounding and shooting paid off. KA took 47 shots, made 16 while LCA took 58 making 13. In the last half the record shows KA taking only 17 shots, making 10 for a 60% average showing that were using a ball control strategy. Meanwhile LCA popped 32 shots and made 6, and 4 of those were in the last 2 minutes.

Tonight the semi-finals are on at the west campus gym with the first of 3 games starting at 6 p.m.

Two last period touchdowns gave Mississippi Southern's junior varsity squad a 12 to 9 win over Florida State University's junior Tribe in Panama City Saturday night.

Trailing 8 to 0 going into the final period, the Southern eleven took advantage of a pair of breaks and went on to hand the young Seminoles their third setback in four starts.

The first one came when FSU halfback Pennell Woodard went back to punt and Southern split on his own 30 Southern took over there and passed to the seven with halfback Joe Dugest going over two plays later to place the score at 6-0.

A few minutes later Southern struck again when Southern's Sam Tuccio blocked Ted Rodrique's punt on the FSU 15 and Wasler recovered the ball in the end zone for the winning touchdown.

Tribe Scores

For the Sempoles, guard Vines Gibson might be said to have been the standout both offensively and defensively

Early in the first quarter, he recovered a fumble punt return on Southern's 11 and Pat Versaille tore into the end zone on the next play. Trafton converted and the Tribe led 7-0.

Early in the fourt hquarter, Odom dumped Dugerett in the Southern end zone and FSU led 9-0.

After Southern went ahead on its two last quarter touchdowns FSU started another drive but a 15-yard penalty brought it to a halt.

The loss was the third of the campaign for the junior Tribe They lost a season opener to Georgia Tech, 19-14, and two weeks ago lost to Miami, 19-0. Their sixth win was against Robins AFB, 33-0.

Basketballers Begin Practice

Varsity basketball practice begins today in the new demonstration school gym at 4 p.m.

The team as only one month to be in top shape for its opening game on March 3, which will pit them against the North Carolina wolfpack.

Holdovers from last year include Jim Cler, leading scorer in the state last season, Dick Artmier, Wayne Patten, Bob Wade, Fred Twoomy and Bob Ward, all guards.

The big man up front who are rounded on to control the boards are 6' 8" Bob Williams and 6' 7" Gary Wold. Rounding out the front wall Ke Wood back and Doo Alfred.

Coach Kennedy is hoping that some of the additions from last year's freshman team can take up the slack which will be made by the loss of Ham Wernke, FSU all-time high scorer. The new hoopsters are Tom Garcia, David Mahaney, Bill Perry, Gene Wood, and 6'5" Biu Gregory.

Oler, Wold, Williams and Artmier are expected to hold down 4 of the starting berths leaving only one position for the rest of the team to fight for. Kennedy will have 10 man to choose from in forming his 5 for the remaining spot.

All home games this season will be played in the new demonstration school which has a seating capacity of about 1,200.

Library Hour

The University Library is now busy duplicating its entire master file of reference cards, a prodigious undertaking Two full time operators have been employed for months running special dry-process duplication. HOW TO BE A BMOC

Any mao who wishes to be a BMOC—you show me one who doesn't and I'll show you a misspent youth—will do well to follow the few simple rules listed below.

The first requisite of a BMOC is, of course, a letter in athletics. This presents no great problem to the big, the strong, and the hulking. But what do you do if you are a puny little chap with a concave chest and muscles like tallow?

I'll tell you what you do: You go to the nearest letter store, buy a letter, sew it on your sweater, and wear it.

What does a BMOC smoke?

This, perhaps, is not strictly ethical, but chances are slim that anybody will question you about it. If someone should, you have a perfectly logical explanation. Simply say, "That 'P' on my sweater does not stand for 'Yale,' it stands for 'Infirm.'" . . . Or, "That 'P' does not stand for 'Princeton.' It stands for 'Poorly.'" . . . Or, "That 'W&L' does not stand for 'Washington and Lee.' It stands for 'Withered and Lumpy.'" . . . Or, "That 'BG' does not stand for 'Bowling Green.' It stands for 'Badly Gangrenous.'"

So, you see, getting the letter-sweater is no large task But that is only a part of BMOC-hood. Another, and equally important, part is to join the right fraternity. Let me emphasize—the right fraternity. Joining the wrong fraternity is worse than joining no fraternity at all.

How can you be sure that the fraternity you join is the right one? Very simply. Just ask the rushing chairman. After all, why should he lie to you?

Once the BMOC is established in the right fraternity, the next step is to get the right girl. A BMOC's girl must be beautiful, shapely, and go well with all his suits.

Girls answering this description are admittedly not easy to find. If you should discover that all the suitable girls on your campus are already attached, do not despair. There are several things you can do.

You can, for example, cut your throat.

Or you can pick one of the less attractive ladies on campus, veil her, dress her in bonet pants, and tell everybody she is an exchange student from Istanbul. (A fellow I knew in school — Hardtack Sigafoos by name—did just that. After several semesters he discovered to his surprise that he loved the girl. Today they are happily married and run one of the biggest Turkish baths in Ida Grove, Iowa.)

PHILIP MORRIS, of course!

We arrive now at the question: What does a BMOC smoke? And the answer is—new Philip Morris, of course!

Anybody—big man on campus or little man, big woman or little woman—anybody who is able to discern between harsh and gentle chooses new Philip Morris. Gentle is the word for Philip Morris. (Actually, of course, it isn't. Cigarette is the word for Philip Morris. But gentle describes admirably the felicitous blending, the smooth, mild, pleasureful flavor, the nobly born and delicately nurtured tobaccos, that Philip Morris—and only Philip Morris—brings you.

The makers of Philip Morris, who bring you this column every week during the school year, cordially invite you to try today's new gentle Philip Morris in the bright new red, white and gold package, regular or smart king size.

House Dedicated

By CHARLEY POTHEVIET

Delta Zeta observed the dedication of its new house Thursday.

Sorority members met at the site of the new house, which is being constructed on West Jefferson Street, facing Florida Hall. Miss Martha Moore, Florida State University instructor and president of the Tallahassee Delta Zeta alumni, welcomed the guests and presented the chapter with a brass door knocker, a gift from the alumni.

Dr. Doak S. Campbell, Florida State University president, spoke to the group and Dr. Sam Neel, Dean of Men, gave the benediction, after which the dedication was concluded with songs.

The new house, a $91,000 structure is designed to accommodate 36 girls. The colonial type structure includes a formal parlor, game room, dining room, kitchen, guest room, the housemother's suite, laundry room, bedroom and bath facilities, and has air especially requested by the girls, a balcony for use during serenades.

Mrs. C. W. Dinwitty, housemother, is making plans for occupancy during the second semester of this school year.

Officers Chosen

Other news from the DZ house invites is their new pledge officers and initiates. Janet McMullen was elected president, Martha McLeod, vice-president; Ann Welsh, secretary; Rose Boettner, treasurer; Pat Brasel, female-Pan - Hellenic representative; Judith Linder, song leader; Jean Thompson, social chairman and Mary Howard, chaplain.

New initiates are: Betty Shepard, who received the best-all around-pledge award; June Hamilton, who received the scholarship award; Sue Moseley, who received the most loyal and devoted pledge award; Mary Beykham, Claudette Thackerson, and Joan Strickland.

AOP's Entertain

Alpha Omicron Pi served spaghetti for the Kappa Sigs recently. After supper the AOP's Delta Delta Delta's brunch Satcheered for their guests at an inday intramural basketball game.

Other frequent activities include Open House after home games.

Nancy Hudgins is their new pledge class president, Barbara Toney, secretary; Sue Guilford, treasurer, and Linda Brinkley, song leader; Ella Jo Bilinski, Mary Catherine Casey, Barbara Greene, Joy Parenland Greichen Thompson are new initiates. Awards went to Miss Bilinski for scholarship and to Miss Casey for outstanding pledge.

Parties Feature Halloween

With Halloween in view last week many Greek parties used this as a theme. Delta Tau Delta gave a Halloween social with the Delta Zetas as their guests. Featured at the party were mambo lessons taught by Cavalier and Cotillion members Bob Cuthier and Joan Strickland. Refreshments of apple cider and popcorn were served and the party ended with entertainment by Gus Sardinha and Ray Lefebvre. Alpha Xi Delta and Pi Kappa Alpha also gave a Halloween party.

Phi Delta Go Parisian

Approximately 175 attended the annual Bowery Ball at the Phi Delta Theta house Saturday night. This year's version with a Parisian theme had a French atmosphere. The house was converted into a night-club of Bastil clubs and music was provided by a swing combo. Guests included brother Phi Deltas from other schools, and visitors from other campus fraternities.

The brothers and pledges of Phi Delta Theta thank all of those who so contributed in making the Alpha Gamma Delta-Phi Delta Theta Soap Box Derby such a great success.

DG's Sell Brooms

Today is the date of the Delta Gammas' broom sale. The brooms are made by the blind and this project is part of the sorority's national mutt conservation and aid-to-the-blind project.

A big shiny apple was given specially for the Kappa Sigs to faculty members attending Delta Delta Delta's brunch Saturday.

A trophy went to Soap Box Derby winners Tri-Delt and Pi Kappa Alpha, but the victorious driver, Mary Ann Spencer got a more personal prize—a kiss from little Eddie Spencer, Tallahassee Soap Box Derby champ for '55.

Thirteen souped up soap boxes, built by fraternities and manned by sorority drivers competed in heats, racing down College Avenue from Copeland to Macomb Street Friday afternoon.

At the finish line, the participants, who were going approximately 40 miles an hour, were stopped by bay and "Phi Del" brakes.

Proceeds amounted to about $40 according to the sponsors, who announced that the event will be held annually for their Campus Chest project.

Queen Contest

Yesterday the SAE sponsored "Queen of Campus Chest" contest got under way.

Votes will be accepted by donation of a penny at the Student Center, Kahler's and the Seminole Club at the booths displaying the 16 candidates, until Saturday.

That night a dance will be given at the SAE house from 8 to 12 p.m. for all fraternity and sorority men and women and their dates. Votes will still be accepted until intermission at which time the winner will be announced.

The winner will receive a sterling silver plate which is now on display at the fraternity house.

Pie-Mobile

The Alpha Delta Pi's sold 100 individual pies and 30 creme puffs Saturday afternoon on their "A-D-Pi-e-Mobile" making about $22 for Campus Chest.

A decorated Jeepster served as their bakery truck and carried the ADPi's to the dorms, sorority and fraternity houses where they sold the pies.

Sunday Sundaes

Strawberry, butterscotch, chocolate and fudge! Just name your favorite sundae and it was probably sold at the Kappa Alpha Theta booth Sunday last Sunday afternoon.

The party was a great success, with a lot of support from the dorms," said Caryl James, project chairman.

300 tickets were sold at 35 cents apiece, and the sorority made about $70 for Campus Chest.

BAPTIST STUDENT UNION

The annual Baptist State Convention was held at the First Baptist Church of St Petersburg, October 28.

Four hundred students attended the three-day session which had the theme, "God, World . . . My Life . . . Now." The FSU Baptists sent 70 representatives.

Weekly devotional meetings will be held at Meanola Hall and Senior Hall at 10:30 p.m every Thursday.

WESLEY FOUNDATION

A workshop is planned today and tomorrow for all members who signed up for Deputations. Dr. Everett Tilson, a theology professor at Vanderbilt, spoke at Sunday morning and evening services.

Once Upon . . .

It seemed to me a lot of foolishness, the way they used to hang around on college drug store, or loiter on the library steps, or go to make dates or rallies. I even missed the football games. Froth, I called it. Wasted time. I was in school to study. And, it's funny but you know it turn away now every time I see a group of college men gathered in a drug store or on a corner of the campus. And every time I see two old college chums slap each other on the back and say, 'Remember the time that we . . .' I sigh a little because I missed out on all that and I find myself wishing I could go back to college and live those days over again.

I MET A MAN ONCE WHO SAID:

I missed out on my college days. You see, I didn't enter into it quite all the way. I was afraid I would. I wanted to try for a part in the school play once, but I didn't. I intended to. I went up to the room the night they were reading the parts, but I didn't go in. There were so many there who were better than I, and I turned it way and went down the hill. I wanted to try for the football team, too, but I told myself I was blind and turned away from the practice field. And it's funny, but do you know that I can't go to see a football game now, because I see myself out on the field or on the stage as I might have been if I hadn't been afraid. And I find myself wishing I could go back to college to live those days over again.—Mimia Hurricane.

Election Results Indecisive As Run-Offs Set Tuesday

Three Win Publications Board Posts

Sam Alderman, Dick Victory and Jane Putnam won berths on the newly formed Board of Publications in Tuesday's elections.

1,919 upperclassmen voted in the election revealed Betty Wilson, secretary of elections. She explained that the small number of students voting was probably due to the fact that many students didn't realize that they were supposed to vote with the Freshmen.

Moore To Appoint

Two students have yet to be appointed to the Board. These appointments will be made by Coyle Moore, president of the student body.

"I haven't decided on anyone for these positions yet," commented Moore. "I have to study the qualifications of several people first."

The Board is expected to go into effect as soon as the appointments are made.

The Board of Publication was inaugurated by Student Senate last year and is designed to appoint the editor and business manager of each publication and to take charge of them.

Robertson Comments

Jayleen Robertson, editor of the Flambeau, said the duties of the election: "Only two of the prospective candidates signed the student body public declarations of their platforms. One of these two is unopposed and will feel all six had good intentions and the necessary experience." I feel that the student body should not vote blindly and I hope they didn't."

Jim Brodetick, editor of the Tally Ho, commenting on the election said, "I am pleased with the outcome of the election but I'm sorry that those

Men's Senate Only Group Not Run-Off

Runoffs are scheduled Tuesday in all freshman class races except those for three men's Senate seats, which were won in the primary election this week by Dick Rhodes, Cliff Gayton, and Art Moore.

With less than two-fifths of the freshmen voting, according to latest enrollment figures, Bill Clemmes and Gerry Gordon emerged from the primary as presidential candidates. Running for vice-president are Jim Bullard and Pat Starnes; for secretary, Liz Armes and Ruth Starling; for treasurer, Cynthia Lawrence and Charla Barr; and for social chairman, Claire Green and Pat Rogers.

Women's Senate

Remaining in the race for three women's Senate seats are Pat Finley, Judy Dekle, Winnie-Mae Douglas, Sandra Rosenberg, Nancy Spare, and Barbara Jean Turk.

Criticizing lack of interest in the election, Betty Wilmore, secretary of elections, said only 954 freshmen cast ballots. It was revealed that 2,542 freshmen are registered this semester. Slightly more than half but less than two-fifths voted, according to these figures.

Polling places in Tuesday's runoff elections will be the same as in the primary. In Westcott building, the Seminole Club, Student Center, and across the street from Bryan Hall. They will open at 9 a.m. and close at 7.

Gymkana Opening Set Monday Night

By LARRY BLOCK

The eighth annual Gymkana production, featuring FSU's five-time national gymnastic team champions, opens Monday night in the women's gymnasium.

This year's title for the gymnastic extravaganza is Latino", a departure from the usual Latin theme.

It is slated for a six-day run starting Monday and ending Nov. 12

Show time is 8 p.m.

"Latino" depicts the alluring and appealing attempt by two young travelers, Jim Hanks and Claire Green, in their quest for excitement and adventure in colorful Latin-America.

Masters of ceremony for the performance, which includes acts by the now-famous Tallahassee Tumbling Tots, are Jack Miles and Jim Padgian. Both are members of the national champion gymnastic group coached by Dr. Hartley Price.

The Program

The program includes a Mexican jumping bean act featuring Jim Feagan. Boots Nesbitt, Don Preasser and Bob Eubanks perform on the trampoline, and side-horse exhibitions with Rafael Lecuona and Ronnie Amette. FSU gym team co-captains Also Jack Miles, Bob Murray, Don Hoide, Jim Tanaka, Jamie Ashmore, Joe Curic and Chirk Cato.

An added attraction will be a side-horse circle contest.

A highlight of the activities will be the performances of Jack Mize, National AAU champion, Jim Tanaka, Bob Murray and Tom McDonald on the flying rings.

Singing and dancing make up a large part of the show. Among the dances that will be presented are the Mexican hat dance, the conga, a bullfight, and a ballet by Bob Murray, and an acrobatic dance by Barbara Vickers entitled "Princess del Sol."

The entire company will be dressed in costumes depicting countries south of the border.

New additions to this year's show are adagio dances, a pantomime calisthenics and an act called "the senator's party".

Queen Finalists

Finalists competing for Gymkana queen, now held by Faye Anthony, are Layte Bowden, Barbara Barrows, Ruth Shuman, Barbara Haxan, Joan Zorkauski, Barbara Emmett, and Jackie Steckes.

Linda Jones, Barbara Hendrix, Alice Sullivan, Anita Anderson, Doris DePup, Margaret Ann Ballinger, Pamela Duke, Frances Leylon, Jo Ada Williams, Barbara Johnson, Jean Birchmore, Ann Munroe and Margaret McLeish.

These 20 examples of FSU pulchritude compose a "Court of Honor" for the pageant. They will be pre-sented nightly wearing a costume of their own design, stygifying South American countries.

The new queen will be chosen at either the Wednesday or Thursday night performance.

Music By Valdes

Music for "Latino" will be by Frank Valdes and his Gymkana orchestra.

FSU sororities are providing usherettes for the show. They include Jeanne Cadenhead, Mernelle Marshall, Carlly Bass, Stating the request was Mrs. Ann Anderson, chairman of the Homecoming publicity committee, who is supervising the compilation of an information pressbook for newsmen who will attend the coming.

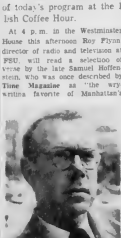
The book will contain the plans to be delivered during the week celebration plans for the Pep Rally, the Garnet and Gold Key Banquet, and the ball-game. Included also will be the score sheet entries.

Well, Practically

'Nothing' Poems Are 'Hour' Topic

"Poems in Praise of Practically Nothing" is the title of today's program at the Florida State University English Coffee Hour.



At 4 p.m. in the Westminster House this afternoon Roy Flynn, director of radio and television at FSU, will read a selection of verse by the late Samuel Hoffenstein, who was once described by Time Magazine as "the wry-versina favorite of Manhattan's wry-minded literary set in the late 20's."

"The current revival of interest in the 20's makes Hoffenstein of double interest," Flynn explains. "He was a master writer of satirical light verse who turned to Hollywood because in his own words, 'poetry writing does not pay off in royalty checks.' His work has been called witty, satirical, humorous, shot through with a bearty cynicism."

Under the heading of background, Flynn received his BA degree from the University of Alabama, his MA from FSU, and has done work toward his Ph D at Northwestern University.

Besides having commercial radio experience which extends back as far as 1936, Flynn is also a graduate of the National Broadcasting Company Television Institute. He has published short fiction in such magazines as Household Family Circle, Ladies' Home Journal, and others. In 1944 Flynn was the recipient of the Stephen Vincent Benet Award from Rinehart and Company.

Open to the public, the Coffee Hour is a weekly informal gathering of faculty, students and townspeople.

The members of the committee urged all campus veterans to contact members of the above committee for any information concerning the proposed club.

He added that a suggestion box has been installed in the Veterans' Office in Westcott where those veterans who are unable to reach a committee member.

FSU Debaters Take Part In Alabama Meet

The Florida State University debate squad is sending four debaters to the first tournament of the year. The Alabama Discussion Tournament is in Tuscaloosa, Alabama.

Beverly Duperroussel, Arnold Greenfield, Bruce Flecher, and Jeanne Bleicher are the four delegates representing FSU. Beverly who has had four years experience on the "JU debate squad, and Bruce who is recommended for discussion chairman for the first round.

The Alabama Tournament has been specifically used for two purposes, competition in the field of discussion and to acquaint the students of the southern colleges and universities with the national topic of college debate question.

The topic for discussion is the debate resolution reworded into discussion question. Should the non-agricultural industries guarantee their workers an annual wage?

Five rounds of discussion will be held with the students ranking within the top five percent receiving certificates of superior, and those in the next ten percent receiving excellent ratings.

FSU's delegation left the campus yesterday and will return tomorrow night. Mr. Ralph Widener, graduate assistant in the speech department accompanied the group.

Blood Drive Put On New System

A new system for donation of blood has been devised for this year, working on a monthly basis instead of one big drive, it was announced.

All faculty members, Landis Rally and Kappa Alpha, Phi Kappa Tau, and Pi Kapps Phi fraternities are responsible for the month of November.

According to the new plan, students and faculty are divided into seven groups each being responsible for one month during the school year. Included are all fraternities, sororities, residence halls, Day Students, and faculty members. An effort was made to divide them evenly not only in number, said co-chairman Margaret Ann Ballinger, but also in the proportion of men to women in each group In the past, most of the blood donors have been men, due to the health requirements involved.

As the beginning of each month, each unit donating should arrange its own transportation to the Blood Bank Miss Ballinger said. Before going blood tests must be taken at the University Hospital, as well as the presentation of parental permission by all minors not in ROTC.

No appointments need be made beforehand, it was announced, though Dr H. G. Hathaway of the University Hospital and Miss Mary Rees of the Blood Bank requested that potential donators notify them a few hours in advance.

Responsible for December are Bryan, Jennie Murphree, Florida, and Magnolia Halls, and the first five floors of West Hall.

January's group is composed entirely of Greek organizations Sororities will be Alpha Chi Omega, Alpha Delta Pi, Alpha Gamma Delta, Alpha Omega Pi, Alpha Xi Delta, Chi Omega, Delta Delta Delta, Delta Gamma, Delta Zeta, and Gamma Phi Beta. Fraternities include Tau Epsilon Phi, Alpha Tau Omega, Phi Delta Theta, Kappa Sigma, Delta Tau Delta, Sigma Phi Epsilon, and Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

February, like December, will include only dormitories, those being Reynolds, Gilchrist, Broward and Senior Halls, and floors 6 through 10 of West Hall. March will be a mixture, including Lambda Chi Alpha, Theta Chi, Kappa Phi, Sigma Chi and Sigma Nu fraternities; Kappa Alpha Theta Kappa Delta, Phi Mu, Pi Beta Phi, Sigma Kappa, and Zeta Tau Alpha sororities; and Cawthon Hall.

April and May are in the hands of the Day Students, those from A through K donating in April, and L through Z in May.

Announcement will be made every month of the amount of blood that group has donated and the final figures will be posted at the end of the year. Although each group has a particular month, students may also donate at other times of the year, Dr. Hathaway stressed, due to the critically low condition of both the student and faculty accounts reported by Miss Rees.

FSU Art Gallery Features Zerbe

An exhibit featuring the work of six Actual Teachers of America, is now on display in the University Art Gallery.

Karl Zerbe, an art professor at FSU is one of the six teachers represented in the showing.

There will be an informal reception open to all from 7:30 to 9:30 tonight in honor of Zerbe.

The work of Monoly-Nagy is also included in the exhibition The other four represented are now teaching in the United States along with Zerbe—Josef Albers, Hans Hofmann, Amedee Ozenfant and William Hayter.

Far-Reaching

"Teachings and works of all six artists have a far-reaching influence in present-day American art," said Dr. Adolph Karl, acting head of the FSU Department of Art.

He said that he is very enthusiastic about this first showing of the exhibition in Florida as "characteristic examples of each of the six are included." There are paintings, drawings and prints with pertinent commentaries by the individual artists.

Dr. Karl said that Hayter a the graphic arts man while the others are mainly painters. "The style differ in methods and approach, but that each launched his teaching on personal experiences and research."

Discard Rules

"They all more or less discard academic rules and formulae in their common objective as teachers to release creativeness of students." the FSU head explained.

Rally Slated At Student Center

The words "Beat Villanova FSU, Beat Villanova" will be heard over the FSU campus tonight.

At 7 p.m. the cheerleaders, Marching Chiefs, football team, coach Warpath Club and student body will participate in a pep rally at the Student Center.

Tommy Watts, head cheerleader said, "We look for a big turnout for the last rally, but we expect an even larger crowd this time. If we expect to beat Villanova, we've got to really get out and support OUR team. The cheerleaders and team have that Seminole Spirit but you, the student body are needed. It is up to you, individually, to have this Seminole spirit that makes FSU such a top university," he concluded.

A huge bon fire will add life to the pep rally and will blaze through the night for the ba game tomorrow.

The rally has been planned early so that all can come before going to their other engagements.

Many dads will be on hand this weekend at the game to see FSU beat Villanova on the football field and in the cheering section.

Symphony Opens 39th Season Friday

Four Concerts Slated In '55

The Florida State University Symphony Orchestra opens its 39th season Friday, November 11, in Westcott Auditorium.

About seventy members of the orchestra will present a program of the world's greatest classical music under the direction of Mr. Robert Sedore of the School of Music.

Three soloists will perform also. They are Wendell Bartlett, violin; Marsha Kay Wills, soprano; and Larry Simmons pianist.

This year the music program has been expanded, and instead of the usual two concerts a year, or one a semester, there will be four presented Sedore. The concert presented on November 11 will be the first of the four scheduled for this year.

Sedore explained that the new program is devised to invite the members of the orchestra to have more experience, and also to afford twice as much entertainment to those who attend

TODAY DEADLINE FOR TALLY-HO

Friday is the last day that Tally-Ho pictures will be taken says Jim Broderick, editor.

Hours are from 3 to 5 and 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. on the fourth floor of Longmire.

Conductors and Soloists—Robert Sedore, left, is symphony conductor. Soloists for the Nov. 11 concert will be, l. to r., Martha Kay Willis, Larry Simmons, and Wendell Bartholf.

And Others Agree . . .

In today's Letters To The Editor, you will find an opinion often voiced on this campus—the student newspaper should reflect the majority opinion of the student body.

While we do not deny we exist because the student body allows us to do so, and provides funds for same, we hold it impossible for any newspaper to state exactly what the majority of its readers are thinking. And if we could know, we aren't sure that people would enjoy reading their own thoughts every day.

A recent Emory Wheel editorial on collegiate newspaper policy has been republished in several collegiate newspapers as well as included in the American Collegiate Press editorial review.

The ACP rated their editorial as having a "clear and logical stand", which would indicate that the Florida Flambeau is not alone in its sentiments. We quote the editorial in part:

". . . Perhaps coverage of news is not the only field in which the Wheel is active. With each issue we take stands through our editorial page, on various problems both or and off campus . . .

"The Wheel has never claimed to reflect the opinion of the student body of the University. That would be an impossibility. It would necessitate a poll of every student before taking any major editorial stand. The Wheel attempts to serve the student body, but it will not be reduced to a tool when it feels the majority is at fault. Neither do we propose to assert the policy of Emory University in our editorials when we feel the University is wrong.

"We invite agreement or disagreement with our editorial stands. We are not trying to force our opinions on anyone. As we see it, we have one editorial mission . . . to cause our readers to think about what we say."

Perhaps this stand is one which only the few who work daily with the press, on any press, will understand. But the Florida Flambeau concurs.

Let's Make It Tradition

While many fraternity dances are open to friends unofficially, we are glad to note that one fraternity is trying to establish a custom already known to many universities—that is, having open-house dances periodically.

Not That It's Needed

All faithful Democrats are touting Dick Nixon as the GOP's presidential candidate.

We wonder, if in addition, they are hoping to substitute the lethal phrase, "Time For A Change," with "Nixon, Dixon And Yates"?

Letters To The Editor

(THE FLORIDA FLAMBEAU welcomes letters to the editor on any topic, and provides this space for student opinion. The letters do not have to coincide with the views of the paper, but must be in good taste. Unsigned letters will not be printed. Names will be withheld upon request. Letters should not exceed 250 words, at 25 typewritten lines. Letters exceeding the limit may be printed, but may be cut at the discretion of the editor.)

He Questions "Student Of History"

Dear "Student of History":

In regard to your letter to the editor, re her "nauseating article" of Oct. 21: While the editor's article may not echo the sentiments of the entire student body, it certainly voices the thoughts of a good-sized portion.

Fortunately, there are some few souls (including some of your "refugee Yankees" who have become enough concerned about this secession problem that they have taken the time to carefully think out all the aspects of the issue—its origin, extent, reasons for existing today, and moral implications. They find its origin in early American times, its extent made known during the Civil War, its reason for present-day existence somewhere tied in with illiterate rates in certain sections of the country, and its moral implications hideous indeed.

I think it is highly significant that here on a college campus, where minds are sometimes for the first time, hesitantly to explore, to learn, to evaluate and accept or reject, that here where there is the highest concentration of mature and maturing minds, we have pleas for integration.

I might ask you also, Student of History, to look at this problem with an open, maturing mind—discarding it with an eye on its moral implications and on the basic tenets set forth in the Great Documents upon which this country was founded—from the viewpoint of your religion, whatever it may be on the subject, and decide how honest you are with yourself and those actions for how hypocritical.

Despite your letters, I credit you with the ability to think along the lines I've suggested. Try it. Seriously evaluate yourself and your beliefs. And if, after a maximum effort, you still feel as you do now, I suggest you turn in your unused Ku Klux Klan ID card and make room for someone with a mind that isn't afraid to question inbred superstitions and prejudices.

SINCERELY

Suggests Poll On Integration

TO THE EDITOR:

In these times of racial controversy, the South needs a population that can be honest with itself. The great majority of both the white and Negro races are not in a rage either for or against integration. Therefore, the racial agitation in the South today is the work of the few, and not the work of the many.

The Florida Flambeau, it seems to me, is the student newspaper of a Southern university and therefore, in speaking forth on integration, should hold to first consideration the majority view of those students whom it represents and on whose activity fees it operates.

What is the majority view of the FSU student body on the question of integration? This question can be easily answered by means of a poll of students.

The published findings of such a poll would certainly be one of the most cogent statements any newspaper could deliver to its readers. If, for one, hope that the Flambeau will consider the worth of such a poll, in clearing up the current disparity of feeling on the part of at least a few students who have expressed their objection to the Flambeau's policy on integration.

Sincerely,
CARL WITHFIELD

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS by Dick Bibler

Dear Mama Seminole

DEAR MAMA:

Me spend many hours in library this week. Me study like mad for many exams. All Georgie's professors gettum bit cy raised high, gettum too many quizzes and make s-am in gievum tests. In heap bad these tests, if'um you not gettum hum mark professor sendum you pink paper that say, "Gettum busy quick or you have one again next semester." This scare me. That why me study so hard. Tepee mate one time got nice pink paper, pretty soon he gettum letter from Great White Father. Now ex-tepee mate peelum potatoes and mop floor. Georgie not wantum this should happen to him.

Many braves, maidens lose'um in elections. Me redrum in paper where lit say colored paper come down heap quick after candidate win or lose out. Still papers not down. Someday this breaking of rule lead'um to new rules, rules that say can put paper up in few places only. Is true, always when people abuse privilege, they lose'um it.

All time much fuss about vacancies in Council, soon me bet we have lot of vacancy in other part of student government. No fuss over this, but you be heap surprised when time comes and me tell'um you who Big student Chief be surprised too.

Soon is season when all ex-critters come back to visit Friendly Village. Much celebration planned. Big feed, big football game, big dance with big band that nobody in whole wide world ever hear of before and big parade from s-am with big maiden all over place. Me guess me have'um bis time if me dia up big money.

Me read where Those-Who-Talk-Much think students need more spirit. Somebody me s-pose'um them suggestion. Everytime meeting held ..... say kind ..... make all there sing GIVE ME THAT OLD SEMINOLE SPIRIT! Sing it everywhere, all time. Soon find spirit increased. One thing too, maybe if'um Those-Who-Talk-Much would sometime talk about good things here, not always pick out bad, that students be heap proud of school.

Lot of good here too. Me see'um many student work hard to come here, see'um many student help other, one group healthy maidens help little Seminole Buaie get education, see many fine people try hard to help'um student. Is good school, Mamma. Has some faults, but a place to be proud of . . . teachers, students, spirit, friendliness . . . all good.

When talk of spirit, Mamma, me think it too bad that so many maidens who full of ole Seminole spirit not get nominated for Queen. Seems that more students be heap proud of school. Queen. Real Queen make life beautiful for others. Me hope someday we pick Queen that way.

LOVE, ALL,
GEORGIE II

The Dissenter

Reviews "Ivy League" Controversy

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

Most people would basically refute the contention that those who attend the eight colleges known as the "Ivy League" are by nature superior. It follows they would enthusiastically denounce the article to that effect in the current Holiday Magazine.

Mr. Henry Morton Robinson, in his article on Ivy superiority, refers to state universities as educational white elephants. This unsavory definition will probably boost Holiday's sales this month. An ad run in state university newspapers by the magazine won't hurt the total.

But do not damn Mr. Robinson's article on the basis of the foregoing isolated excerpt. Wave it not for a moment unmindful of the system which gave him his B.A. and M.A., his article would be entirely lucid but not nearly so spicy.

TO RECITE WITH, the Ivy League are Columbia, Princeton, Cornell, Harvard, Brown, University of Pennsylvania, Dartmouth, and Yale.

These according to Mr. Robinson, produce only scholars and all other colleges and universities in the United States produce mainly dolts.

His exuberant and sometimes facetious piece is too long to review completely in the editorial restriction of 500 words.

He holds that the Ivy League stress learning with no if's, and's, or but's. The students, he notes, are carefully selected for intellectual promise—and, he admits, sometimes on manifestly un-American racial and religious quotas. Scholarships are issued for scholarship. No sports are over-emphasized beyond one hour of frolic after a day's work. No self-styled priest of democracy has ever been able to browbeat the Ivy League schools into burning their books or stifling free speech and opinion. Herr McCarthy's worst enemy is one of America's bravest scholars, President Nathan Pusey of Harvard.)

Music Critic Begins With Russell

(Editor's Note: Dave Ward-Steinman, student in the School of Music and well-known about campus for his weekly student productions, composition and arrangement, is introduced this week as the Florida Flambeau's critic on music and drama.)

By DAVID WARD-STEINMAN

It took Anna Russell about ten seconds after walking onto a cold stage to have the audience eating out of her hand. With no apparent difficulty, she held the pace for the rest of the evening. Ranging from double entendre to slapstick, Miss Russell kept the audience in stitches.

Her material would be appreciated by any audience, because she does not "play down." When satirizing German, French, or Italian opera, the language of the librettos is elementary enough to be understood easily, even with only a superficial knowledge of the tongue. It is carefully selected for intellectual whether you understand the words or not: the rhymes are so audacious and the facial expressions so ludicrous that one can't help laughing uproariously.

SHE OPENED the second half of her program with a monologue, going a typical "president of a women's music club." By mimicking contexts, her lines became more and more innocently suggestive. The audience, of course, enjoyed it immensely. Moving over to the piano, she began to lampoon different type of performers (Oh, yes, she plays the piano, too)—in a Victor Borgian sort of way. She closed the program with a parody of the Wagner Ring, which is undoubtedly one of the funniest bits in

A Lesson In Digressins

By
STEVE KLEID

Why Not Stick To Your Subject, If Of Course, It Is A Subject Worth Writing About, Which Is Hard To Find Nowadays, But, Then, Anything Is Hard To Find Nowadays. So Why Try?

After long and careful research, I have sadly come to the conclusion that it is impossible to find a good, old-fashioned digression these days. Male and hearty fellows that inhabit this hale and hearty institution. I do not think it needs to be an alarmist, because I fully realize that this is an unutterably serious accusation, but the facts are plain. The members of this grand, old, tradition-filled, ivy-climbed, solid, ultrasolid, ultra-solid institution have grown lax and demure lasses all, inexcusably unversed in the art, science, and tradition of digression.

THERE WAS A TIME when the ancient and discontinued classes, Digression 101 and 102X, I have perused, were filled to capacity. In public service, to acquaint the populace with the real meaning of digression, knowing full well of the valuable contribution of digression at pep and sundry who may read and KNOW, though

Ernie, Dreamweavers Top Disc List

By WILJOHN

The top selling records this week in Tallahasee are Tennessee Ernie's, "Sixteen Tons" and the Dreamweavers,' "It's Almost Tomorrow." There doesn't seem to be too much I can say about "Sixteen Tons" because everyone seems to like it and I haven't heard it yet. The local record stores were sold out when last I checked. They were also sold out of the Dreamweavers' record and there is quite a bit that I can say about that.

I had the pleasure of hearing that song the first time it was ever sung. The Dreamweavers, two years ago, were students at the University of Florida and they had a program three times a week over WRUF, the University radio station there. At the time, I was a student at the U. Of F.A. and was working as an announcer on WRUF. (The station has since refused to admit it.) At any rate, three times a week I either worked the board for the Dreamweavers or announced the show.

THEY USED to sing with two baritone ukes tuned a third apart for harmony and no other instrumental background. The coeds would be calling in requests for hours ahead of broadcast time and the boys always had to get there a half hour or so before air-time to sort them out and pick the ones they were going to use. "It's Almost Tomorrow" was their theme for a while but they changed it because they would get so many requests for it during the show anyway.

What a lot of people don't know is that Gene Steinbeck and Ted Grouya, the two members of the group who wrote the song, had been in the show business. Leaving the audience clamoring for more, she returned to sing La Donna e Mobile from Rigoletto, certainly one of the most familiar operatic arias.

Also of interest on campus this week was a joint piano recital of Bob Leslie and Delmo Costo. After a year's self-imposed exile at Wichita, University of, Leslie is back on campus in fine style, attempting the Herculean task of mastering both piano and organ. He will be playing three recitals and giving several seminars, but Leslie is probably equal to the task.

Miss Costo opened the program with Bartok's sonata, allegro and brahms' piano quartet. She followed this with the Beethoven Sonata Eb Major, Op. 27, No. 3. More than equal to problems here, she showed a welcome musicianship and understanding.

LESLIE took over, beginning with an authentic and lucid performance of a Bach Prelude and Fugue. He continued with the Beethoven Sonata, Op. 31, No. 3, Major. Of the excerpts from the Prokoffief Visions Fugitives, are other sketches, the Rachmaninoff Lyric Impressionism, and concluded with Chopin Scherzo - E Major. The Prokoffief Sonata not a work of much intrinsic musical value, was a welcome breath of fresh air, contrast with the rest of the somewhat academic programming.

Miss Costo closed the recital with the second book of Brahms-Paganini Variations, a work of many technical difficulties which she solved admirably, considering her small hands and apparent stretches required in some of the variations.

Estimate Changed

$20,000 Given To Student Government Accounts Here

By MARTIN DUCKMAN

Approximately $20,000 will soon be transferred to the accounts of Student Government. It was learned yesterday.

This money represents the difference in activity fee money between the estimated number of 6,000 students used as a budget basis last year and the present estimate of what this year's average full-time enrollment will be.

Graham Caruthers, student secretary of finance, said the money will go into a fund for additions to the Student Center. Both Dr. A B Martin, Florida State University vice-president, and Dr. R. R. Oglesby, dean of students, have expressed it be spent this way.

Although the money could be used, with faculty approval, for emergency needs of student organizations a separate contingency fund of approximately $5,000 is available for this purpose, Caruthers said.

Pleased In Spring

University budgets must be drawn up in the spring, and only an estimate of the next year's enrollment can be used for allotting the $13.10 per student per year which is called the student activity fee. Although the official full-time enrollment was announced this fall at 6,300, withdrawals and next semester's anticipated enrollment make the estimated average for the year about 6,000 and Comptroller Grady W. Rea Jr. said this 1,600 increase over last spring's basis will provide student government with a surplus sum fee's about $20,000.

The actual year's average is only known at the end of the school semester when officials are preoccupied with the coming year's budget.

Unless Needed

Dr. Martin said the $20,000 should not be used for student organizations unless there is an "absolute need."

It could be held in a student government reserve fund indefinitely, he agreed, but might be caught up in future budgetary changes and be lost to the student body.

"We'll never get the money to build student buildings unless it comes from student government," he said in recommending its use for that purpose.

'Crater' Addition

An addition to the student center, he said, would meet the needs of student government, organizations and publications. Later on, a student recreation center could be built.

Dr Martin replied in the negative when asked if student activity fee money was used to build the present Student Center.

He said it was part of a four million dollar revenue certificate package which also financed the eight small dormitories used as fraternity houses, Florida Hall, and West Hall. Rea said the last of the certificates will be paid off in 1982 with profits from the bookstore and residence hall room fees.

Spring Budgets

Spring budgets are arrived at by the secretary of finance, his under-secretary for the budget, and three committee members who consult with the faculty committee headed by Dean Oglesby. Dr Oglesby said normal procedure is for the students to plan the budget with advice from the faculty. Stu-

Scullions Plan 'World Tour' Series

How would you like to take a tour around the world?

The Scullions, a club of the Restaurant and Hotel Management Department made up of upperclassmen, are inviting one and all on a gourmet's tour of the world, through food.

According to Wayne H. Shroyer, president of the Scullions, beginning a week from today at 6 p.m. in the Suwannee Room, a different foreign country will be featured monthly.

Scullion members Frank Cangelosi, of Havana, Cuba; Patrocinio Espenia, Manila, Philippine Island; Lee Harrington, Canal Zone; Carlos Otero, San Juan, Puerto Rico; Surinder Puri, Calcutta, India; Sigurrson Ragnurrson, Reykjavik, Iceland, Alfredo Ruiz, Mexico City, Eva Sass, Ciudad Trujillo, Dominican Republic, and Daniel Trocme, Paris, France, will each have the opportunity to present one of their favorite dishes. Under their supervision a dinner will be prepared and made available to sixty students or faculty members.

All cooking and serving will be done by the Scullions. The price will be $1.25 on reservation, which can be made by calling 2741 or by going to building 12B, Hotel and Restaurant Management Office.

Students Attend Atlanta Meet

Approximately 30 students and four instructors traveled to Atlanta last weekend for an all-side glimpse of the world of fashion.

The students, members of the Student Fashion Institute, attended one of the three fashion showings held annually in Atlanta, reputedly the "Fashion Center of the South."

This showing, conducted by the Southeastern Travelers Representatives, Inc., and called the Atlanta Market Market, is held in the Municipal Auditorium of Atlanta Here, over 700 manufacturers showed their lines of spring and cruisewear fashions to hundreds of buyers from southern states.

Purpose

The purpose of these showings as explained by Marshall Mansfer of the Southeastern Travelers Exhibitors, Inc., is to give small retailers the opportunity to buy without undergoing the expense of making trips to New York and Chicago. It also gives wholesalers the opportunity to sell without having to visit all the small towns in a certain territory.

After Master's address Sunday afternoon the students toured the market and watched salesmen in action and buyers placing orders

Four Groups

Monday morning the students divided into four small groups, and each group accompanied by their instructor explained places of interest in their particular field.

Dr. Wheale's business students toured the training department of Davidson's, a large exhibition store in Atlanta. Mrs. Carey's clothing retailing class toured the market again, and Miss Kirn's students in fashion illustration visited the advertising and illustration department of Davidson's.

Tour On Monday

Monday afternoon, the group as a whole was taken on a tour of Ritchie's department store Mr. Dwight Horton, Personnel Director of Ritchie's conducted the tour, and served coffee and cokes to the group while leading a discussion of store policy and operation.

The students left Florida State University campus early Sunday morning and returned Tuesday afternoon. While in Atlanta they visited in the Atlantian Hotel. The group was accompanied by their instructors Kirm, Wheale, Smith, and Carey.

Mrs. Carey commented that she thought the trip provided an unusual opportunity for students to observe fashion in action. She remarked that she saw no other student group present, and "felt it a very successful trip."

Student Senate Proposes 'Clean - Up' Drive Here

A bill introduced in Student Senate Wednesday proposes a "clean-up" campaign by reducing the number of posters used in elections.

Senators Atwater and Sims introduced the bill for election amendmeotia that provide for the unrestricted location of all bulletin boards featuring a limited number of election placards.

Even the size of the placards is to be regulated, and according to the bill, will not exceed 12" x 14".

Each candidate shall be limited to one poster to each bulletin board.

48 Hours

Other suggested amendments included in the bill required that candidates remove posters 48 hours after election eliminations and that candidates placing posters anywhere except on the specified bulletin boards would be disqualified.

Senator Sims supported the bill by commenting that the present unlimited use of election materials littered the campus and gave it an unattractive appearance. She believed this limitation of posters would encourage candidates to personally contact more students.

Personal Contact

Senator Bachman agreed that personal contact was a better campaign method and more beneficial to both students and candidates. He remarked that posters advertising a candidate gave no indication of a candidate's qualifications.

Senator Mansfield was in favor of having less posters though not necessarily cutting election expenses. Senator Bachman commented that this ruling would not restrict the passing of hand cards although the size of hand cards might be restricted less they acquire "poster proportions."

Were Interest

Senator Sims felt that the poster regulations might encourage more interest in political rallies. Senator Tews proposed the possibility of having dormitory open houses in order for candidates to better contact students.

The bill received slight opposition from Senators McCain and Swigart. McCann feared this amendment would disturb the present system of election exposes. Swigart's reason for opposition was that the University of Florida placed no limitations on election posters.

To Elections Chiefs

Joanes, presiding officer of the Student Senate, referred the bill to the Election Committee. Senator Soles, election committee chairman, announced Tuesday, at 4 p. m. as the date of the committee meeting. He asked that further comment on the bill be presented at the meeting.

A resolution proposing that the cabinet study the possibilities of inaugurating a "Buddy program" for US and foreign students on campus, was passed. The purpose of the resolution as proposed by Senator Soles is to provide better opportunity for US and foreign students to become more closely acquainted.

Committee of Three

Senator Edwards moved that a committee of three be appointed to study the present honor system in view of finding methods for its improvement.

Senator Chase proposed the motion be amended to provide three Senators to work in cooperation with Honor Court. Senator Edwards proposed a second amendment for the extension of the investigation period to two weeks instead of one as previously suggested. Both amendments and the motion were passed.

Harvest Dance Slated Tonight
Tonight is the night for the Reynolds Hall annual Harvest Moon Dance.
According to Pat Hilton, social chairman, the formal dance, for which the DeMaires combo will play will be held in the freshman dorm's recreation room.
Contrary to first announcement Bud Greene will be the next emcee at the festivities which start at 8:30 and terminate at 11:30.
One of the main events of the evening will be the crowning of the Harvest Moon Queen by last year's queen Bobby Craig from a court already elected by residents of the dorm.

'Explorer' Discovers Model In Building

By NANCY BROWN

Inquisitively I crept in the door of the Photo Lab to the basement of the Music Building.

"I'm looking for Shep," said I to the young man whom I found there with a stack of negatives in hand.

"This is it," he replied. His name is really Sheldon J. Kamfar.)

Shep, a professional photographer and television who is currently in the School of Arts and Science here at FSU, has constructed a miniature TV station, made exactly to scale.

A Foot High

Constructed of balsa wood with a seven-plywood base, the lifelike model is only a foot high and 3½ feet long. Every part is movable —even the four cameras and the tiny door which connects the two rooms, the studio and the control room. There is a system of five lights that actually turn on.

Fourteen miniature people operate the simulated Channel WSJK. In the studio's main set, a news broadcast is taking place with three cameras on the announcer, while one camera is prepared to go with the commercials. An electrician on the platform controls the lighting effects. In the control room are three monitors and an engineer are at work, while the control panels and the TV and radio antennae are seen in the background. Even the station clock is down to the hands of the clock on the wall.

Liberal Religion Appeal Sounded By Reverend

At Talk—Attending Unitarian Youth Group were, l. to r., Goerge Aase, Rev. Gold, Bruce Cole, and Dr. D. E. Christenson.

The case for liberal religion lies in the fact that no two people are their world the same way, according to the Rev. William Gold, executive director of the Liberal Religious Youth organization, who spoke on campus Wednesday night.

People turn to religion to answer their questions about life, he noted, but are satisfied with outdated statements and interpretations. Only through liberal religion can someone find beliefs which are suited to his personal situation, Mr. Gold said.

Sponsored By UFT

His appearance was sponsored by the Unitarian Fellowship of Tallahassee. He expressed hopes a Liberal Religious Youth organization will be founded on campus.

The LRY, run entirely by young people between the ages of 14 and 25, is supported by the Unitarian and Universalist churches, he said.

When people turn to religious principles which are often 3,000 years old, he commented, they find answers which are too old, creating a greater sense of insecurity.

Must Go On

"We must action older old answers but go on to new answers," the minister said.

He referred to the Golden Rule —"Do unto others as you would have them do unto you."" commenting that this principle appears in varying forms in every important religion. The Golden Rule, he said, has been made out of date by society evolving to a point where your neighbor is very likely much different from you. Other people's standards, he said, may be different.

"What we need now is something like 'Do unto others as if you were the others.'" Mr. Gold said.

If we understand the other person's position and viewpoint and be by the young people," he at least respect him for his sincerity we are preparing for a more creative existence, he pointed out.

This rule should especially be applied in the current Israeli-Arab dispute, the speaker said.

Mr. Gold has been in the ministry 18 years, the most recent spent working for the Liberal Religious Youth organization.

When I was interviewed it was by young people," he said. When I was hired they made the decision. If I am ever fired it will be by the young people," he marked.

Nine Selected For Honorary

Nine cadets in the Air Force ROTC have been selected for the Arnold Air Society honorary organization for AFROTC students.

They are Oswald T. Geiser, Thomas F. Woods, Charles E. Mann, William C. Plumb, Upton D. Offner, David A. Medford, James W. Baker, Clifford S. Kidd III, and Emmett Post Haslam.

They will remain pledges until the first of the year and then be considered for induction. Cadets chosen for Arnold Air Society must maintain B average in military subjects and not less than C average in all other scholastic work. They must also be interested in the Society and be considered leaders in their AFROTC work.

'New Moon' Actor Enjoys Her Part

By MARTY REEVES

Roller skating, swimming, and ballet roles in musical comedies may seem like an unusual combination of interests, especially for a "co-ed", but Barbara Schaller says she finds them "a lot of fun".

The musical comedy role she has is that of Julie, a maid servant, in the Light Opera Guild's fall production of Sigmund Romberg's "The New Moon."

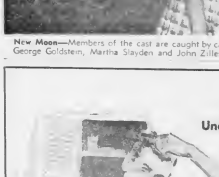
A humorous part, Julie is a very emotional 18-year-old who is out to get a man, says Miss Schaller. Dancing is also a big part of Julie's role in both Act I and Act II, while in Julie his ex-wife decides she wants him too. Before the problem is solved, much action takes place, including several farce and a comedy dance by Julie.

Miss Schaller has taken part in several operettas before, including a similar part to Julie in "Red Cloud," while in Julie school. She also played in "Roberta", had lit parts in the Junior League Follies, soloed with dance bands, and sang in the church choir before coming to college.

Besides singing, this soprano also plays the piano and clarinet, and was not only a member of her high school band but was its student conductor in her senior year. A skit which she wrote and directed won third place in a school Skit Night.

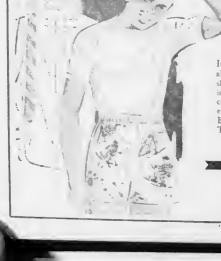
Before High School

Miss Schaller's public appearances began long before high school, however. While still in second grade she sang in school assemblies and appeared on the radio "a few times." She later graduated to television when the Schaller Trio, composed of herself and two cousins, won a regional contest and a chance to sing on Ernest Bergen's Talent Show.



This soprano did not decide to go into music as a career, however, until she attended music camp the summer of '51, she said. While there, she "fell in love with FSU."

Studies Voice



A Junior now, Miss Schaller studies voice under Walter James and also is a member of Women's Glee Club, University Singers, Marching Chiefs, Tau Beta Sigma, and is a Sigma Alpha Iota pledge.

When home, which incidentally is a Lake and cattle ranch, "I really am a country girl," she says and especially enjoys Mark and Brand Time" the big event of the year; and horseback riding. Her mother plays the piano, but her two brothers are more interested in horses than music.

As far as the future is concerned, Miss Schaller's ambition is to be a choral director and "have the best high school chorus in the state." If a chance ever came however, she added she'd like to be in Light Opera.

From The Sidelines

JUST TURN 'EM LOOSE—

The Tribe's up for this one.

From what we've heard, from what we've seen and from what we've been told Nagent and his Crew are primed to step on the right foot as they pace through these remaining five games.

And they're in the condition to take that good step, too. Seminole practice periods early last week featured a pair of rugged scrimmage sessions, but its been all easy-going since and the Tribe should be in top physical form. They're certainly in top mental shape.

Nagent said recently: "We're a little afraid to turn them loose on each other—they're so frisky someone might get hurt.

"The fellows are happy," he said. They want to beat Villanova in the worst way."

And the fellows are quick to back him up.

Sara Lee Corso—"I think this is the one. If we get by Villanova Saturday we should be on our way."

And Emil Abood—"The team has been up for every game but I think this is the one they'll make their best showing in."

The Tribe walked away from Villanova last year 52-13. But no one in the Seminole camp is looking for anything like that to happen this year.

"We want to beat them in the worst way, of course," says Nagent. "But they're an improved team this year. They've been improving all along.

"We'll just play our best ball game Saturday. If that's enough to beat them, then we're okay. I hope so."

And so do we.

The experts have tabbed FSU to win by one touchdown. And once, we'll come out of our shell. We'll chalk up another touchdown for the FSU spirit and say we think they're at least a bit better than the Mainliners.

Regardless, the dads are in for a show.

NICE FELLOW, PETTIJOHN—

Fred Pettijohn, managing editor of the Fort Lauderdale Daily News and former Tallahassee Democrat sports editor, spoke to the Tallahassee quarterback club this week and he made some very good points.

"FSU has come higher in a short time than anybody," he remarked.

"If someone had gotten up in this room eight years ago, when FSU resumed football after a 43-year lapse, and said that in 1955 the Seminoles would be playing Georgia Tech, Georgia and Miami and those others, somebody would have quietly led for some fair service from Chattahoochee."

And that pretty well sums it up.

THE RUSSIANS AND FOOTBALL

One of our readers took the trouble to drop a couple of copies by the office this week about what the touring Russians had to say about the Maryland-South Carolina football game they tended last weekend.

T. Sushnov, a sanitary engineer, gave a humorous version of the same as seen from the Russian viewpoint on the 50-yard line.

Says he: "In American football, apparently you are permitted in take your adversary's hand or leg and throw it away."

Then, commenting on the razzle dazzle formations exhibited by the Maryland unit, he said:

"It is a very masculine game and requires great adroitness. In Moscow we play football too, but we lack the choreographic gymnastics that we saw today."

T. Sushnov, commenting on a South Carolina back who tossed his shirt torn away, said:

"I was afraid he was going to run out of shirts. But due to the highly developed textile industry in the United States he was able to last out the game.

Come to think of it, the game does look a bit rough, doesn't it?

IT'S A WORTHY CAUSE—

Those attending the FSU-Villanova game tomorrow afternoon will be asked to contribute to the U. S. Olympic Team funds. It's a worthy cause and we ask you to support it.

The United States Olympic Team is one of the few in the world that receives no governmental aid. It's strictly on an amateur basis in this country and the sole support of the team rests in contributions of the American public.

At Florida State we have several athletes who have been members of the U. S. Olympic Teams in the past. Don Holder was with the gymnastics team at Helsinki in 1952; he was at the Pan American games last year as was Rafael Arocena and Jack Miles, both outstanding gymnasts.

We can do our little part tomorrow.

Tribe, Villanova Meet For Dads

Court Playoffs Begin Monday

The championship games for the frat basketball title and the all-campus playoff between the dorm winners and frat winners will be played next week on Monday, Tuesday and Thursday.

The Tuesday finals of the frat division and the frat-dorm finals will be shifted from the west campus "barn" to the Florida High court to accomodate the student crowd. The schedule follows:

Basketball Finals

Mon. Nav. 7, West Campus 7:30 P.M. Frat Semi-finals.

Tues. Nav. 8, Florida High Gym 7:30 P.M. Frat Finals.

Wed. Nav. 9, West Campus 7:30 P.M. Extra - finals, if needed (Double elimination).

This Week's Results

The game tasted at the "best" game of the series, was all that and more as Kappa Alpha's dropped their first game of the year, to PTA in the semi-finals of the winners bracket. The score was 21-31. Wilson, Donovan and Copps hitting from outside the KA's led all scorers with 9-6 at the half 19-14, at the third quarter 27-23. Then in the closing minutes, Bridges' clutch curtain, putting them into the winners final against Theta Chi.

The scorers in the game: KA, Donovan 9, Copps 11, Long 3, Wilkes 2, Fell 6, Clarke 1. For ATO: Wilson 6, Bridges 2, Atwood 7, Coro 6, Kelley 7.

Theta Chi jumped out to a 2-0 advantage and they never headed, winning 45-28. Williams led the squad with 13, and "Woods the loser's with 10. The scorers were: PKT: Mauer 7, Woods 10, Sebree 8, Stevenson 2. For TC: Ashley 6, Williams 13, Hall 4, Cadelago 8, Jacone 9, O'Leary 2, Hibbard 1, Segner 2.

In the third game on Tuesday PDT put the LCA out of the running handily, taking them a 47-28 loss. Hemple with 16 and Wilson with 12 were high scorers for LCA. Kirby 14, Mansfield 8, Fickle 4, Richardson, 2.

At press time the scores of the TC-ATO game in the winners bracket final, and the PKT-KA game were not available.

Scores and final times of games will be posted on the Students Center and Longmire Dorm boards.

The Dorms

Last night came the second game of the West Hall Pirates-Senior Hall series for the dorm championship was on. Senior Hall took the lead in the series Monday night by beating the Pirates 43-30. The Pirates seemingly had Senior Hall on the ropes and pushed (ball) until the last five minutes. They were behind 13-12 at the half but led at three quarters 28-25 only to tire fast and have the Seniors score 18 points in the last 5 minutes to their 2.

The scorers: Pirates: Clendenin 10, McCall 7, Clifford 7, Parramore 4, Cameron 7. For Senior Hall, Chandler 11, Rief 8, Breitart 5, Lamb 2, Hogan 12.

NOTICE

There will be a meeting of the Men's Intramural Board today at 4 p.m. in the Trophy Room at the Student Center. Plans for sports will be plans and rules for touch football, finals for all-star game, point system review, and additional sports activities.

Vince Gibson, highly respected Seminole guard, will be called on heavily here Saturday afternoon when Florida State plays Villanova. Gibson was named "lineman of the week" for his defensive performance against Miami this year.

Twenty Returning Lettermen Bolster Basketball Chances

Coach Bud Kennedy welcomed some 20 returning veterans this week as Florida State University began basketball practice for the 1955-56 hardwood campaign.

Included in the squad are eight lettermen on the fine squad that last year won the Florida Intercollegiate Basketball Conference title while earning a record of 22 wins and four losses.

These are: forwards Dickie Arrington, Gerry Judd, Ed Waldbach, Bob Waita; guards Jimmy Oler, Fred Twomey, and center Bobby Williams.

Several fine performers are up from last year's junior varsity. These include Tommy Garcia, Bob Ward, Bruce Jacobs, Billy Payne and Darrell Mahoney.

The Seminoles also have obtained the services of three former junior college stars. From Jacksonville Junior College are Stu Gregory and A. J. Corry, while the Seminoles obtained Bob Woodyard from Shenandoah Va. Junior College.

"Although it may be a tough thing to do," commented Coach Kennedy, "we hope to improve on last year's 22-4 record, but we have a tougher schedule this year that includes two holiday tournaments.

"Replacing our high scorers of last season, Rick Benson and Ham Wernke, is going to be a hard task. Those are big shoes to fill, especially Benson — he were a 15'2."

The 6' 7" Benson led the Tribe in rebounds while Wernke established several records in being twice named a Helms Foundation All America.

The Seminoles have possible greater overall depth than the 1954-55 squad. Kennedy said he plans to play a running game if at all possible, with the Seminoles sticking to a man to man defense for the most part.

In addition to a regular 18-game schedule, FSU will participate in the Cornwell Classic at Charlotte, N. C., Dec. 19-21, and the Orange Bowl Tournament Dec. 27-30.

The Seminoles open the season Dec. 1 against N. C. State in Raleigh.

Renn To Boost Football Hopes

No one hears about him much this season, as he is ineligible, but there is a terrific football player on the Florida State University campus who is serving his year of ineligibility because he is a transfer student.

Bobby Renn, who can do anything with a football except eat it, was a sensational gridiron performer at Davidson College as a freshman in 1952. After serving two years in the army, Renn decided to cast his lot with Florida State's rapidly rising Seminoles, and the 1956 season will undoubtedly find the capable youngster in a starting position.

To date this season Renn has been working out with the varsity and the 'B' squad as a quarterback. He can run, kick, throw, and handle the team with a dexterity of an Otto Graham.

Not only is Renn a spectacular offensive player, but his defensive play is equally as good. As a freshman at Davidson, Renn intercepted nine passes and was one of the Southern Conference's leading kickers.

In recent kicking sessions at FSU the Henderson, North Carolina youngster was blasting the punkin practically out of the park, getting off some kicks as fas as 75 yards.

What a difference a year will make . . . and what a difference this lad will mean to FSU's football fortunes.

Seminoles Ready For 'Cats' After Two Weeks Of Rest

By ALAN WHITMARSH

Bolstered by a two week layoff and the incentive of entering a game on nearly even terms, the Florida State Seminoles tackle Villanova in the first annual Dad's Day contest tomorrow afternoon in Campbell Stadium.

Both teams have had their troubles this season, Villanova hitting the victory trail for the first time last week and the Seminoles dropping four of five contests to date.

The two teams opened relations last year with a 52-13 FSU triumph here in Tallahassee, but FSU coaches warn that this is not the same Villanova team.

Assistant Coach Vince Racanelli, who has scouted the Wildcats all year, believes that the Seminoles should respect the "winning fever" which Villanova developed by the impetus of their first triumph last week.

"They are not anything like the ball club they were last year when we beat them 52-13," says Ragunas. "At that time their new coach Frank Reagan was starting a lot of plays, a lot of pro stuff."

"But this year Villanova's cut down on the number of plays, running just a few and running them well." He also pointed out that the Wildcats used a lot of players at the beginning of the season, but have been sticking to a small number of top players lately.

The visitors came through their victory over Richmond without any serious injuries, and though some of the Tribe were pretty well shaken up in a particularly rough game against most of the FSU squad should be in top condition.

Tom Nugent, head coach, has had the Seminoles working on pass defense quite a bit this week, and they can expect to see plenty of aerials from the Villanova team.

Chief passing threat for the Wildcats is quarterback Johnny Ferruolo, who completed 7 of 10 for 87 yards in the Richmond game. He is particularly good at the short ones, which have plagued the Tribe all year.

Chief target for Ferruolo's heaves is Don McComb, co-captain and who covers 6-5 and scales 215. The other big end is Van Inhan, who stands 6-4 and scales 200.

The Seminoles will be going up against one of the biggest lines they have faced this year, with tackles at 225 pounds who scale more than 190 and two alternating 210 pound centers, in addition to the big ends.

The Wildcats are basically a split-T team, much like the Tribe, but they like to weave in their formations according to Ragunas. They turned up with an "A" formation against North Carolina State which he described as a kind of single wing.

Their most potent runner is Davey Parr, a 175-pound halfback who rattled off much of the key yardage in the Richmond win. Fullback Frank D'Aleno will also have to be watched.

Nugent will probably go with much the same lineup as in previous contests, with the major change depending upon whether or not Len Swatnic's ankle responds enough to permit him to full-time duty.

Halfback Bill Weaver broke loose for two long runs last year against Georgia Tech, and he will probably see more and more action as the season progresses. Weaver was out most of the early part of the year with a leg injury.

Both teams have taken their lumps against some of the nation's best in their first half of the season, Villanova bowing to such teams as Baylor, Kentucky, Indiana and Boston College.

The Tribe losses are to such teams as Miami, Georgia Tech and Georgia, all of whom are making a name for themselves in big-time college football.

Latino Features Top Gymnasts

Several outstanding performers will be participating in the annual gymkana show which begin on campus this week.

Among the outstanding women gymnasts is Barbara "Boots" Nesselrod, the women's all-around champion competitor.

Florida State can thank her high school coach, Joe Giallombardo, for producing such a gymnast for Coach Price at the University of Illinois. "This was the only school in the country that offered the gymnastic training I wanted and was both an scholastic rating as well," explained Barbara.

Barbara entered the Midwest AAU in 1953 and 1955 winning the women's championship the former year and placing the second latter. In 1954 and 55 Boots participated in the Midwest Gymnastic Association events finishing second both times.

Besides her outstanding work on the trampoline, Boots is working out on the balance beam and free calisthenics.

The dark haired freshman star used from New Trier High School in Winnetka, Ill., although she was born in Minnesota and has lived at various cities throughout the United States.

Boots plans on a major in Botany, but "I haven't made any plans concerning the future."

Jim Tanaka

Another performer to be seen this season is Jim Tanaka, one of the few graduate students of the squad.

The 21-year-old native of California hopes to receive his master's degree by the end of summer, and then enter the Air Force. Jim plans to become a jet pilot.

In gymnastics competition Jim won the Southern Intercollegiate meet held in Atlanta this year. He took first place in high bar, flying rings and the all-around championship. At the 1955 AAU events in Georgia, Jim finished first in high bar and again was named all-around champion.

He has competed in the nationals at California, again at Atlanta and in the last meet was against the Swedish team here at FSU.

In high school Jimmy walked off with 16 varsity letters and was offered scholarships to Michigan, Penn St., Temple, and UCLA. He became interested in gymnastics in his junior year at Central High.

After his military service Jim plans to go to UCLA for his doctor's degree and teach at the University of Hawaii. During his undergraduate years he made the dean's list five consecutive times.

Jim will be seen in all the gymnastic acts of Latino.

Hi there Co-Eds

Canoe trip ahoy! We are planning our over-night canoe trip for November 12 and 13 down the Suwannee River and we will be glad to have you along. We plan to leave Saturday, 8:30 a.m. and will put in at Dell, Florida about noon so bring your lunch.

The bus will take our overnight gear to Shalki. Dr. Monk's camp is a camp on the river near Lurraville, and we should get there by canoe late in the afternoon. We will eat dinner enroute to Tallahassee.

There is a 50c registration fee, and we will assess each person less than $2.00 for meals (Saturday supper, Sunday breakfast, and Sunday lunch). We will ask volunteers to work with us on menus, and food buying so we can have the trip as inexpensive as possible.

Make your reservation for this trip as soon as possible deadline is today. The week of November 7-11 the trip instructions will be placed on the reservation bulletin board outside office 202, physical education for women. You will need to bring your own bed roll.

We should have a wonderful time and look forward to having you come along with us.

This trip is under the direction of Mary V. Alexander, director of the reservation and sponsor with the University Recreation Association.

Now for our volleyball results. Monday found Broward beating Cawthon by a score of 21-20. Florida Hall defeated Bryan Hall there, 36-27. Also Alpha Gamma Delta were the winners over Delta Delta Delta, 31-19. Alpha Delta Pi was victorious over Chi Omega, the score being 43 and 30. Sigma Kappa beat Alpha Omicron Pi, 48-16.

On Tuesday's games, Reynolds beat Gilchrist, 48-20, and East Landis won over Cawthon by a score of 8-6. Kappa Alpha Theta Defeated Delta Gamma, 27-17. Pi Beta Phi beat the Nurses over Kappa Delta, beating them by a close score of 34-29. And Zeta Tau Alpha won over Alpha Omicron Pi by a score of 51-33.

Basketballers Hit Tournament Trail

When the Florida State University Seminoles travel to Charlotte, N. C., for the annual Cromwell Basketball Tournament this December 19 they will have a touch of meeting five opponents for the first time.

The Seminole cagers, who posted a 22-4 mark last year, will open with the Clemson Tigers, who they have met once previously. Clemson won this encounter in the 1952 Gator Bowl Festival, 66-60.

However, with the exception of Mississippi State who the Tribe beated twice last year, the other teams in the tournament are new faces to Coach Bud Kennedy's charges.

Other opening games in the meet, which lasts three days, will pit Tennessee against Boston College at the Senior Bowl, Clemson and Wake Forest against Mississippi State.

The Tribe follows into up with another post-season tourney, the first annual Orange Bowl tournament in Miami, Dec. 28-30. This is planned as a prelude to the Orange Bowl football classic, similar to those presented by the Sugar Bowl and the Gator Bowl.

In this one, Kennedy's cagers may come up against one of the top cagers in the land should they face West Virginia.

Smoke Signals Queen Contest Gets Underway

Five feet two? Eyes of blue? Women on the campus do not have to fit this description for the annual Smoke Signals Queen Contest.

This was announced by editor Don Heidel yesterday.

"All undergraduate co-eds are asked to enter the contest," commented Heidel. "We are always on the look for fresh new beauty on the campus."

An 8 x 10 glossy photo of the contestant in shorts, blouse or sweater, and heels is the only requirement for the contest.

Photos should be turned into Miss Adams, directors office in the Language Building by November 21. Name and box number should accompany the photo.

For the first time a circulating trophy will be given to the winner. One large trophy will remain in school with the names of the winning queens and a replica of the trophy will go to the winner to keep.

Twenty-four finalists will compete for the honor in connection with the band concert in Westcott or Opperman.

Performer Arrives—Miss Anna Russell, second from right, is interviewed at airport by Wilhelm Schiffermuller, Kent Schroeder and Neil Labar, after her arrival for second Artist Series performance.

Thomasville Sets Concert Series

The "Ballet Russe" and "The Medium" will be presented in a concert series by the Thomasville Entertainment Foundation, in Thomasville, Georgia.

The opening program will be Menotti's "The Medium" and "The Telephone" Monday, Nov. 28, at 8:15 p.m. Marie Powers, the star of the original production, will appear in "The Medium".

Quentin Petz, Lewis Fletcher Harvey Kelby, Frank Graddy, Howard Loque, Jay Perkins, Robert Cullivet, Rafael Lecuona, and Franklin Kessler.

Delta Sigma Pi Frat Pledges 26 This Term

Delta Sigma Pi, international fraternity of business students, pledged the following men this semester: G Chester Nevins, Herman Barwick, David Davis, James Reese, and Harvey Loos.

Paul Petry, Edward Kercher, Virgil McGuire, William Iler, Frank Flynn, James Thomas, Edward Donovan, Charles Brannon, John McDonald, James Bunch, Frank De Sanno, and Bernie Lombardy.

Additional initiations include Joseph Battista, a 36-year old Spanish who has won every musical fellowship offered by his native Philadelphia, who will appear in Jan. 9, and The Boys' Chorus of Tucson, scheduled for Friday, February 3.

Epsilon Iota Chapter of Phi Mu Alpha will sell tickets to the concert series today from 2 to 3 p.m. in the main ball of the Music Building.

Additional tickets may be purchased from Mrs. Pemberton in the Music Office during the next two weeks. Season tickets for students are $5.00, and range from $7 to $10 for others.

Karl Mohr, president of the Epsilon Iota Chapter, stated that the fraternity is sponsoring the non-profit sale in order to further the cause of music in America by giving Florida State University students a chance to become acquainted with a really wonderful concert series, which, although few people are aware of it, will be presented only a half an hour's drive away from Tallahassee " perfect."

Fashion Institute Meeting Planned

The Student Fashion Institute will meet Tuesday at 5 p.m in 222 Music Building.

Miss Ann Cain of the art department faculty advisor for the group, will speak on fashion designing.

Plans will be made for a fashion show to be given in February.

Free 'Boo-Boo' Dance Planned

West Hall will hold a free "Boo-Boo" dance tonight beginning at 2 p.m. to replace its planned $10 a couple dinner-dance affair, Dormitory Governor Wilhelm Schiffermuller announced.

"West Hall has goofed" he declared "In their glorious last ditch effort to sell 100 tickets at $10 per, they reckoned without the fact that the student body would not be in college if they could afford to spend ten dollars for an evening's entertainment."

A hefty contribution to Campus Chest will still be the object of the evening, he said. Contributions will be voluntary "unless you make a 'Boo-Boo' during the evening."

Schiffermuller said a squad of "good-men" will retract fines for mistakes in courtesy and dancing, no fine exceeding ten or fifteen cents.

The fountain in the Main Lounge will be decorated as a Chinese pagoda with a little bridge. The privilege of crossing the bridge with one's girl friend, kissing her en route will cost 25 cents, Schiffermuller said.

"Refreshments will be served and flowers for the dates will be at hand," he said. "And remember, it's all free—if you're

Campus Chest Queen Contest Among Projects

Summa Alpha Epsilon's Queen of Campus Chest contest, West Hall's Boo-boo dance, and Phi Kappa Tau's balloon sale are the Campus Chest activities slated for this weekend.

The SAEs plan to crown the Queen of Campus Chest at an open house dance tomorrow night from 6 to 12 p.m. at the SAE house.

The Kappa Sigs have a picnic will be accepted up until intermission at 10:30, according to Norm Shipley, fraternity president. Sororities must turn in money collected during the week, before tomorrow morning.

By holding an open house dance, the SAEs hope to initiate a new intrafraternity policy, to bring the members of different fraternities together on social occasions.

There will be a combo and free refreshments at the dance. Chuck Elwin's progressive jazz will be featured at intermission.

Mary Fenn Cawthon, Campus Chest chairman, reports that the total amount turned in by sororities, fraternities and dorms is $1,666.98.

Leading the dorms with the most money turned in is Florida Hall with $133.58. The Sigma Kappa Varsity Show made $200, highest amount for sororities, and the Kappa Alpha's 500 project reaped $264, highest amoog the fraternities.

"As soon as the entire contributions are turned in, the Campus Chest committee and faculty advisors will determine what organizations will receive money from our fund", said Miss Cawthon.

Publication Started On 'Smoke Signals'

Smoke Signals has started publication.

The magazine will be out around November 22, revealed Don Heidel, Smoke Signals editor.

"We hope to get it out as soon as possible," he commented, "but we can't promise anything."

Heidel explained that the first issue will feature only students' work rather than "stealing other college material." There is no overall theme but will be a "conglomeration" of articles, jokes and features

Kappa Sigmas Move Into New House This Weekend

By CHARLET POTFEVINT

The long awaited day has finally come for the Kappa Sigmas. This weekend they will move into their new house at 112 S. Woodward, which has been under construction since last May.

The $100,000 house accommodates 42 men and has a downstairs apartment for the housemother.

As the Kappa Sigs knowledge, theirs is the only house in existence with such features as complete air-conditioning, a sound proofing, terrazo flooring throughout, a downstairs area which is 50 percent glass enclosed, and a newly designed floating foundation.

Plans are being made for a formal opening about the middle of December.

SAEs To Crown Sweetheart

Sigma Alpha Epsilon will name its new sweetheart tonight at their annual formal Sweetheart Dance from 9 to 12.

"This is a full weekend for the SAEs with their Queen of Campus Chest open house dance slated for tomorrow night. For more details about that, read Campus Chest story on Page 1

TEPs Adopt Kitty

The Tau Epsilon Phis have a new mascot! Last week about 9 p.m a poor little tan kitten wandered up to their house and the TEPs fed it some milk. For three nights the waif showed up for supper and when the TEPs decided it wasn't going to leave, they decided to keep it. Now they are busy trying to think of an appropriate name for it.

Lambda Chi Alpha held initiation services last weekend, taking in 13 new members.

They are Gibson Bates, Wm. Barrett, Ed David, Tommy Jones, Don Hatchfarder, Jerry Garret, Herb Reinhardt, Steve Rocevin, William Sullivan, Bruce White, Royce Phillips, Davis Thomson, and Honorary member Robert Godfrey.

The Kappa Alpha Theta's are anticipating the arrival of fathers from various parts of the state, who are coming to take part in the first annual Dad's festivities. Following the Theta's all-sponsored picnic, and mixer game, the Thetas will entertain their dads at a buffet dinner at the house.

Alpha Gamma Delta's are congratulate Doris Roberts, who is tapped Tarpon mistress. Barbara Emmett and Barbara Johnson, members of Gamma Court.

65 Pledged By Sororities

Fifty-five girls were pledged Tuesday, November 1, following Panhellenic Rush-formal Rush on Sunday, October 30. These are the new pledges:

Alpha Chi Omega: Katharine Ellen Davies, Gertrude Evelyn Greene, Frances Barbara Kovas, Katharine Ann McDonald, Wels Ann Melton, Dona Evelyn Pitman, and Maria Faith Sappington.

Alpha Delta Pi: Sally Ethel Lines, Sis Pendarvis, and Linda Slaton

Alpha Gamma Delta: Doris Elizabeth Gregory, Stephanie Gunderson and Sarah Frances Mann

Alpha Omicron Pi: May Lee Baldwin, Annette Fountain, Hope Rachels, Nancy White, and Dixie Weeks

Alpha Xi Delta: Barbara Ann Bishop, Sally Ann Deiss, Anne Hearne, Janice Jacques, Joanne Keis, Lynette Linton, Lenore Martha Lott, Marilyn Phare, Peasy Scarborough, Joyce Sims, Elizabeth Voorhees, and Joy Wilkins Chi Omega: Mary Virginia Pepper, Bonnie Tapley, and Lorraine Wynn Wheeler.

Delta Delta Delta: Barbara Burkett, Elizabeth Lee Cleary, and Jun' Lassiter

Delta Gamma: Patricia Ann Milford, Barbara Potter, and Ann Florence Stanley

Kappa Delta: Joy Brower, Betty Jo Bush, Jamie Lucretia Cuthner, Susan Helms, Susan Kellum, Georgeann Ann Lois Cynthia Sapp, Rosemary Steinback, and Alice Terry.

Gamma Phi Beta: Janice Cobb

Phi Mu: Ann Charlotte Curry, Nancy Carol Honeywell, Sandra Lynette Ingram, Penny Alice Pennington, Ann Christan Preston, Barbara Ann Robeson, and Linda Carolyn Tracy.

Pi Beta Phi: Janet Phelps, and Carol Taylor

Sigma Kappa: Marela Guthrie, Barbara Hauch, Nancy Singleton, Diane Stokes, and Shurley Wood.

Frosh Elections Final Balloting Slated Today

Final balloting in the Freshman Class elections will be held from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. today.

Ballot boxes will be located in Conner Building, the Seminole Inn, the Student Center, and on the street from Bryan Hall.

Run-off candidates are Bill Hollaren and Gerry Gordon for president; Jim Billard and Pat Jones for secretary; Lib Ames and Ruth Barling for treasurer; Donna Lawrence and Claire Cox for treasurer; and Claire Lee and Pat Rogers for social chairman.

Seeking the three seats in Women's Senate are Pat Finley, Judy Cox, Wookie-Mac Douglas, Sandra Abernethy, Nancy Speer and Jean Jean Turk.

"I want to urge all the freshmen to go out and vote today," Provost last Tuesday was the low, with only 606 voting." Jared Betty Willmon, secretary of elections. "All freshmen should vote in one of the four polls sometime during the day."

All elected candidates must file a final expense statement before receiving certificates of election, Provost said. Installation will be on Tuesday night but plans are not yet complete.

He added that the elections committee will take "definite action against candidates, winners or losers, who do not remove their posters within 48 hours after the election.

NO PAPER FRIDAY

THE FLORIDA FLAMBEAU will not publish Friday, due to the Veterans' Day Holiday, Editor-in-chief Jayleen Robinson announced yesterday. The paper will resume its regular Tuesday-Friday schedule next Tuesday.

The Red Inn Scheduled By FSU Film Club

The happenings at an early 19th century inn is the subject of the French comedy, "The Red Inn," this week's Film Club picture.

Two showings of the film are slated for Thursday night, 7:30 and 8:30 p.m., in the Demonstration School auditorium. The profession of innkeeping, as it was then civilized, is the basis of questionable activity, led script writer Jean Anouilh to delve into the subject with the assistance of Pierre Bost and Jacques Companeez, the same team that produced "Lafayette" in the Flesh."

The proprietor of the Red Inn, Carrette, his wife Francine Lemaire and his daughter Odile Marie Olivia have a couple of murdering their guests and burying the bodies in the cellar. These lowlife are having difficult time making ends meet, when, without warning, property thunders at their door in the form of an enormous load of travelers.

Among these new arrivals are a monk (Fernandel), and a soldier (Lois Germain). While the innkeeper's wife looks at this point, been able to murder all the travelers with ease. Each new arrival causes her to remember she has neglected her previous obligations. So after she knows her alias to the monk, since the monk learns that and the other passengers are in danger, he confines his efforts to saving his companions and at the same time trying to maintain the sanctity of his professional.

In addition, he has to save his daughter from the wiles of the lowlife, who make the worldly trapper attractive.

URA Slates Trip Saturday

The University Recreation Association is sponsoring an overnight canoe trip on the Suwannee River, Saturday and Sunday. This trip is being conducted in connection with the University Camp.

Requirements for attending this trip are to have gone on a previous canoe trip at Florida State University and must pay a $6 registration fee by Friday. The trip may be taken to room 202 at the Women's Gym.

Students who plan to go should report more than $2.00 for meals. All students will leave from the Women's Gym at 8:30 a.m. Saturday and will return Sunday evening.

Other information concerning this trip will be posted on the Recreation Bulletin Board outside room 202 Women's Gym.

REHEARSING for CONCERT
The University Symphony

FSU Symphony To Launch Its Concert Season Friday

The Florida State University Symphony will launch its 28th season with an 8:15 p.m. concert Friday in Westcott Auditorium.

Featured soloists at this concert of classical music are Martha Lee Willis, soprano, Wendell Barthold, tenor; and Larry Simmons, pianist.

Barthold will echo Richard Wagner's "Siegmund's Love Song," Die Walkure. Barthold represents the studio of Betty Jane Grimm.

Miss Willis, from the studio of Edith Kaup, will render "Ocean, Thou Mighty Monster," from Oberon, by Carl Maria Weber.

Simmons will play Beethoven's Concerto No. 3 in C Minor, Opus 37. Simmons is from the studio of Edward Kilenyi.

The 70 - member orchestra, which is directed by Robert Sedore, FSU School of Music, will open the program with Beethoven's "Overture to Coriolanus," Opus 62. The group will conclude the performance with Cesar Frank's "Symphony in D Minor."

Sedore said the concert is free and open to be public, but he added that for the first time reserved seats are available for the season to persons wishing to contribute to the University Symphony Scholarship Fund.

One hundred twenty-five of the best seats in Westcott Auditorium will be reserved for subscribers to the fund, Sedore said. "This fund will supplement the one established by the Tallahassee Service League to aid worthy and needy instrumental students enrolled in the FSU School of Music who are members of the University," he explained.

Season tickets call for fund contributions of at least four dollars. Subscribers may make arrangements for reserved seats at the School of Music office. Subscribers should indicate seat preferences and make checks payable to the University Symphony Scholarship Fund.

Board Posts To Be Filled Soon

The two appointive student positions on the Board of Publications will be filled by Pride Coyle Moore Jr., student body president, said yesterday.

An amendment passed last year which established the Board requires the two appointed members be of junior or senior standing and have a 1.3 average. Their appointments must be confirmed by a two-thirds vote of Student Senate.

Moore did not say who he has in mind to fill the seats. Student members elected recently are Dick Victory, Sam Alderman, and Jane Putnam.

The amendment also stipulates the Dean of Students, presently Dr. R. B. Gallemore will be one of three faculty members. The other two members are to be appointed by University President Doak S. Campbell.

The Board of five students and three faculty members will choose one student to preside.

The Board's duties will include appointing the editors and business managers of the Florida Flambeau, Tally-Ho, and Smoke Signals, and supervising their policies of those organizations.

SOCIOLOGY LECTURE SLATED TOMORROW

A lecture entitled "How Does Your Field Explain Human Behavior?" will be given at 8:00 p.m. tomorrow in the Student Center at Longmire Building.

Guest lecturers will be Dr. W. H. Kelley, Psychology; Dr. Lewis Killian, Sociology, and Dr. Anna Forbes Liddy, Philosophy. An invitation has been extended from the Sociology Club to all Philosophy and Psychology students and everyone else who might be interested in the lecture.

Landis Resident Suffers Wound

By JAY ROBERTSON

The West Landis Hall senior who was wounded with a sharp instrument around 1 am yesterday is reported in "very good condition" by Dr. R. O. Hathaway, University physician.

Dean of Students R. B. Oaley by told the Florida Flambeau yesterday that the young man says she was attacked by another young woman, taller than she is, garbed in a white sheet or robe. Oglesby said she was unable to identify the assailant, and thinking it was a practical joke refused to obey when a voice awakened her and told her to "Get up." The senior student says the assailant then said, "You heard me, get up," which she did.

Scuffle

She reports that a scuffle ensued, culminating in the stab before the room of Miss Ruth Pyche, residence counselor for West Landis.

Oglesby said the senior woman suffered a cut on her right arm from a "sharp instrument" which officials have been unable to recover. Dr. Hathaway said the wound "was not serious" and was "only 5 or 6 inches long."

Found bleeding by another Landis resident, the counselors and officers of the dorm were notified and the injured student taken to the University Hospital.

Residence officials then be-alleged attacker and called in members of the Tallahassee police force for aid.

Residents of the dormitory were interviewed by floors by the main parlor of the dormitory, where police officials and residence counselors, Miss Pyche and Mrs. Myra Bailey checked arms and necks for scratches or cuts. Rooms were checked and searched for bloodstained clothing or the sheet which was described by the victim as being worn by her assailant.

Students Cautioned

Students were cautioned to return to their rooms and lock their doors for the night if they wished, several residents report. They said they were not told to sleep except for being told that an "accident" had occurred.

University officials and residence counselors reported no evidence has been found to further investigation of the alleged assault. Unofficial reports of bloodstains were found in the dorm elevator and in the halls, where the victim says she chased her assailant.

The name of the victim, a senior transfer student, is being withheld pending notification of her parents, whom University officials had not been able to contact at presstime.

Classes Off 8-2 Friday

Classes will be dismissed Friday from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. in recognition of Veteran's Day, Since Veterans Day is not an official holiday, Monday classes will not lead to a reduction of credits, according to Registrar Charles H. Wicker.

Flash Card Idea Works At Game

The Warpath Club's first attempt at a flash card section was a big success at the Villanova game, according to Melanie Schmale, club representative.

Another flash card section is being planned for the Homecoming game. These groups interested in participating are asked to gather their activity books now and the tickets for the same are being distributed by the Warpath Club.

At the Homecoming game the card section will function only at half-time and will be better organized, Miss Schmale said.

For those who did not see the card section perform, the letters spelled out were M. C. for the Marching Chiefs, Hi. Ded for Dod's Day, V for Villanova, and FSU.

FTA Slates Banquet On November 16

The fourth Annual Future Teachers of America Banquet, celebrating American Education and Future Teachers of America Week, will be held on Wednesday evening, November 16, at 6:00 p.m in the Suwannee Room.

All students and faculty members are cordially invited Price per plate $1.00. Reservations are available in Room 215 Education Building, and must be made on or before noon, November 14. Several outstanding Florida leaders will be present including Governor Collins, Mrs. Collins, and their daughter Jane, who is a Future Teacher at Leon High School.

Second 'Latino' Showing Slated Tonight At 8

"Latino," this year's Gymkana production, has its second performance tonight in the women's gymnasium at 8 p.m.

Tickets for the show may be purchased at the athletic ticket office in the student center. "There is a big demand for tickets but good seats are still available," revealed Eddie Cubbin, Athletic Ticket Manager.

"This show should be a must for every student on campus," he added.

Providing the backbone of the show is the Florida State University Gymnastics Team composed of such stars as Don Hodge, National AAU Club Swinging champion, and U. S. Olympic team member Jack Mills, flying rings champion. Jim Fadigan, Georgia AAU Trampoline champ, and Jim Tanaka 1955 Georgia AAU all-around champion.

Elliott, Lecuona

Bob Elliott, champion trampoline performer, and Rafael Lecuona, Intercollegiate champion of the Cuban Olympic Team, will also perform.

In addition Joe Gusic Ronnie Amster, Boots Nesselrod, Beverly Cude, Chuck Cole, Don Preisser, Laird Anderson, Tom MacDonald, Bob Murray, and Jamie Ashmore are also featured in the gymnastic exhibition.

The dancing co-eds are featured in "La Raspa," and the Conga. They include Barbara Vickers, women's general chairman, Carol McCoy, Beverly Cude, Janice Eberly, Lucille Turnage, Lynne Pavell, June Knight, Dora Dorsey, Sid Smith, and Kay Peeper.

The Men

The men are Eduardo Hilgert, Jim Cailo, Alfredo Ruiz Cortiner, Jorge Otero, Domingo Clinton, Rafael Vega, Charlie Christians, Felix Blanco, Juan Lopez, and Jim Fadigan.

The new pantomime act is handled by Gerry Lehner, Barbara Murray and Dora Dorsey. Other featured dance routines are the Matador's ballet by Bob Murray and the Pyrenee del Sol an acrobatic dance performed by Barbara Vickers.

The Latin-American atmosphere is enhanced by the colorful costumes designed by Jan Clarke.

Crowning Set

Miss Gymkana will be crowned during intermission on Friday. The queen will be chosen for originality of her costume, beauty, poise, speaking voice, charm, and co-operation.

"Three women have done a marvelous job in helping prepare the show. They've had to do all types of work including a world of credit," commented Pat Price, "and this is very difficult, to pick out one outstanding woman from this court of honors," he added.

"Gymkana is entirely a student production. We want to forget the people backstage that do not receive any of the applause, but that it was the combined effort as much credit as the actual performers," continued Price.

"I feel that the troupe is something that the university students and faculty can be proud of. Our main objective is to produce a good show for your enjoyment and we feel we have done just that. It was the combined effort of Margaret Donaldson, Gymkana Publicity Chairman,

Honor Code Change Made By Committee

Parts Revised To 'Clarify' Student Code

Certain parts of the Florida State University Honor Code have been revised for 'clarification' toward the student body, according to Honor Court Chairman Barbara Graham.

The changes were made Wednesday at a joint meeting of the Honor Court, Honor Committee, Faculty Review Committee and a special faculty Committee on Honor.

1 Before giving a penalty for an offense, the Honor Court should take into consideration the welfare of the individual and the welfare of the student body.

Faculty to Handle

2 The Faculty Review Committee is to handle all the cases that are presented from a city court or all cases in which the guilty party pleaded not-guilty-insisting evidence and the situation calls for emergency action.

3. If there is a case which should be ruled in two courts, the Chairmen of the two courts should get together, discuss the possible solutions, and decide in which court the case should be tried.

Set Penalties

4. The courts and committees concerned with the Honor System should set up a range of minimum and maximum penalties for different types of cases. In regard to dismissal, the minimum penalty should be for a two course while the maximum penalty should be suspension. The length of time covered by the suspension is to be determined by the facts involved in the individual case.

5. Regarding readmission, the minimum and maximum penalties should be suspension with the length of suspension set by the suspension to be determined by the facts involved in the individual case. If the student is caught lying, reprimand will be the minimum penalty and the maximum verdict being suspension.

Exceptions

6 It is necessary to remember that there are exceptions to every rule and the penalty shall be modified in such cases. Any verdicts of Review Committee or Court carrying with it automatic probation—meaning that if another offense is committed, this case will be reconsidered in the light of the second case.

7. All cases brought before the Honor Court should be thoroughly investigated by the Dean of Students through conferences with the individual reporting the case and the student involved to find out if dishonesty in cases of cheating the Chief Justice should also confer with the teacher of the course in which the cheating occurred.

If it has been proved that cheating has been reached by the court, the Chief Justice is to report the individual's record for discussion, the individual reporting the case, and in the event of dismissal, the teacher of the course, of the decision of the court.

Discuss With Classes

9. The faculty will be asked to discuss with their classes the ethical beliefs concerning the Honor System and what they consider to be changes in the present system.

According to our present system, a student may be reported in, or leave the room during an examination. The presence of the Faculty Member in the classroom does not relieve the student of responsibilities and observations of the Honor Code, nor is it to be interpreted as proctoring.

A Faculty member may talk in their rooms because it is more convenient for him than talking to their offices, and as a frequently the case, for answering questions concerning the test. For these reasons, no student should feel offended when a teacher remains in the room during a test.

SPEAKS AT 'HOUR'
Frederick Holschuh

Sculptor-Architect Is 'Hour' Speaker

Fred Holschuh of the Florida State University art faculty will compare traditional and modern sculpture at the English Coffee Hour Friday afternoon.

The Coffee Hour will begin at 4 p.m. in Westminster House.

Holschuh, who was born in Darmstadt Germany, received his formal education in both his native country and the United States. He studied in Erbach and Frankfurt am Main, received his MA from the University of Konigsberg and an MFA degree from the Academy of Fine Arts in Philadelphia.

He is a practicing sculptor and architect for 20 years, having worked in such media as stone, wood, bronze and plastic. Some of his works are displayed in Convention Hall, Philadelphia, and in churches, schools, courthouses and office buildings throughout the East.

In addition, Holschuh's work included in such collections as the Fotsnder Art Collection of Philadelphia, the Cresmut Hill Steel Collection, and Brookgreen Gardens of North Carolina.

His competitive awards include bronze in the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Building and Medal of the Alumni of the Pra de Rome for a collaborative problem in sculpture and architecture.

Now in his tenth year of teaching at FSU Holschuh has also taught in Frankfurt am Main, a Cedarcrest College in Allentown, Pennsylvania and at the Philadelphia Academy of Fine Arts. For several years he conducted his own school of sculpture and architecture in Philadelphia.

Latin Night To Be Sponsored By Scullions

Latin Night the first in a series of Iberian dinners to be sponsored by the Scullions will be presented Friday evening at eight in the Suwannee Room.

The dinner, which will be Latin in content, will be prepared by Frank Cangilos, Havana, Eva Sass, Dominican Republic, Carlos Otero, Puerto Rico.

The menu includes Chicken Chi-Chi-rron, a specialty of the Dominican Republic, with fried Plantoons. This Latin-American favorite is similar to the banana, but it tastes different and can not be eaten raw.

Chicken Frigole with rice and beans will also be served. This dish is typical of Puerto Rico and Cuba. A mixed salad with asparagus, tomatoes and lettuce will also be served.

For dessert the egg custard will be served. With the meal coffee or milk will be served.

Reservations for the dinner are $1.25. There are only a few tickets left and those willing to purchase these may do so by calling 2741.

SENIORS SPONSOR PARTY FOR CAMPBELL

Members of the Senior Class are hosting President Campbell with an annual Birthday Party Sunday afternoon at 4:00 p.m. at his home.

Buses will leave from the front of Bryan Hall at 3:30 p.m. Sunday afternoon. Transportation will be provided.

CORRECTION

TV-Radio Lab To Tell About Picture Topic

"How to Shoot Television Motion Pictures will be the topic of the Florida State University TV-Radio workshop meeting at 7 p.m. Wednesday.

The meeting will be held in the TV-Radio workshop studios in the Journalism building.

Bob Kamiker, a professional motion picture photographer for the United States Air Force will be the principal speaker at Florida State University, will speak.

The FSU TV-Radio workshop produces Tallahassee Tonite, a daily radio program heard on WFSU-FM every weekday at 6 p.m.

The TV-Radio workshop is designed to provide professional experience for students interested in Television and Radio.

The workshop is supervised by Professor Daniel P. Womack of the School of Journalism.

A Word Of Explanation

We hope that the explanation of the Landis Hall incident, which appears on page one of this issue, has dispelled the 400 rumors which covered the campus yesterday.

And we think, if they were all totaled, the number might reach beyond the 400 mark, presupposing that each of the women students in Landis Hall had their own version. Unfortunately, the rumors of "murder", "rape", "abortion", and several other unpleasant stories of like nature, arose from the fact that a simple, calm answer was not given to their pleas in the pre-dawn and post-midnight room searches, personal inspections, and roll-calls.

To be awakened from a sound sleep between 2 and 4 a.m., to have your rooms searched, attendance counted, your arms and neck surveyed by a team of well-meaning but grimly silent residence counselors, attended by three members of the Tallahassee police force, and to be told only that an accident has occurred would naturally arouse curiosity. There is to be cautioned to return to your rooms and that you may (contrary to all rules or present regulations) lock you doors from the inside, is, in the opinion of more than a few of the women residents of that dorm, slightly unnerving. We doubt that anyone slept well under the circumstances.

But the problem was one of consequence which the residence officers and counselors had to face, and they had a good reason behind withholding the fact that a woman resident had been wounded by someone. We can appreciate their apprehension in the face of possible pandemonium which could have resulted from the announcement that a resident had been "attacked" or "slashed." However, we also feel that a brief but serious explanation would have calmed to a greater extent, the fears and imaginations which resulted from the obvious silence and mystery which accompanied the nightmare.

The residence counselors themselves have revealed misgivings about the way in which the investigation was carried out, but felt at the time they were doing the best possible thing. It follows also that we are only second-guessing the solution to the problem. But we do hold that fear of the unknown is greater than that of the known or possible, and ask that in the future, our students be accorded the mental stability to cope with the realities of danger rather than its unlimited possibilities.

Educators' Dilemma

It is unpleasant to think that, in a country so thoroughly dedicated to universal education, the teachers are one of our most underpaid minority groups.

This appalling fact, one of the reasons that thousands of scholarships still fail to tempt enough qualified young people into the profession, is brought out in a report by the Fund for the Advancement of Education, established four years ago by the Ford Foundation.

As reported in the New York Times, the report compares teaching salaries in 1904 with those of 1953, and, more significantly compares today's purchasing power with the standard of 1904.

Thus, while average big city elementary teachers used to earn $873 but now make $4,817, their purchasing power has gone up only to $1,394—on the standard of 1904.

Others do not fare so well. A big city high school teacher made $1,497 in 1904; $3,526 in 1953, but in comparison to 1904 his earning power is almost less—$1,577.

A big city high school principal made $3,552 in 1904, $9,156 in 1953, but his economic position too is under that of 1904; his $9,156 will only buy what $2,497 brought him in 1904.

University professors have declined in status also. In 1904 they made an average of $2,000; in 1953 they made $7,000, but this buys only what $1,956 did in 1904.

University presidents have a purchasing power of several hundred dollars under that of 1904. Educational executives — school superintendents, for instance—have suffered the most.

The Times refers to the problem as "relative deterioration." For instance, a big city high school teacher needs an additional $9,400 over this 1953 salary to have the economic status he had in 1904.

We certainly can't be proud of this neglect. It seems to reflect a lack of political power among the teachers. Other professional groups are left free to lobby and campaign for fat, old-fashioned, laborers can strike, and businessmen raise their prices. The teacher, caught with no defense sanctioned by society, has suffered. This is not fair, as society depends upon the teacher.

One of Dick Bibler's most famous "Little Man on Campus Cartoons" is set in the faculty club, where one professor is saying, "What do you say we circulate a rumor that the best way to keep you fat farism from being taught in schools is to pay teachers capitalist wages?"

The authors of the Fund for the Advancement of Education report do not consider it a comic situation. Beardsley Ruml wrote:

"Pervading pessimism, extending in extreme cases to subversion, fellow-travel, and other educational sabotage, springs basically from a sense of unfair treatment by a non-conscious social drift, not from a blaring passion to reform. The pessimism and disaffection expresses itself in lecture, classroom, and community activity. And the teacher, being literate and articulate, attracts both the other disaffected and the uninformed who earnestly wish for a better world.

"Adequate compensation is not a bribe nor is it a cure; it is simply an assurance that intellectual leadership maintains a balanced economic status with its contemporaries. On that foundation we can still expect deviation and criticism, but it can be sincere and rational, not poisoned by the facts of injustice, neglect and humiliation."

A Better Measure

What's To Be Done About Parking

JEROME BERNSTEIN

Freshmen went to the polls last Tuesday to elect officers, but the turnout was disappointing to most observers. Of the 2,542 students currently enrolled in the Freshman class, only slightly more than two-fifths bothered to vote. It is hoped that today's run-off election will see a better turnout of Frosh voters.

* * * *

Florida State has a parking problem which at times taxes to the limit the patience of those students and faculty members who try to park near school after 8 in the morning. Most of the persons involved agree the problem is annoying. The next question is what is to be done about it?

In many colleges and universities campus parking has caused such a furor that strict regulations have been set up regarding whose cars should be allowed on campus. Frequent and occasionally superclassen, are often prohibited from keeping automobiles on campus or are designated spaces in restricted zones.

Thus far FSU has no such regulations. The present blue zone parking plan is an attempt by students and faculty members to remedy the situation. However, much more can be done by individuals who, if they would, could help alleviate the situation.

Those of us who arrive on campus early in the morning often find it fairly easy to find a parking space. As a result, we pay little attention to space usage, with the result that cars overlap spaces, adding to the general confusion.

Such is often the situation in parking areas located in front of the Music Building on Copeland Street. It also exists in those parking lots on campus which are as yet unpaved.

FSU's problem is one which may in large measure be solved by cooperation among drivers. A little showing courtesy in parking and by helping the Traffic Committee in every way possible, we will be taking great strides toward an eventual solution.

Eating Habits

MANHATTAN, Kan. (ACP)—The Kansas State Collegian observes that psychologists have discovered a new and fertile field . . . one centering around the knife and fork.

An assistant professor of home economics at Wayne University claims she can tell what kind of person you are by what and how you eat.

"Breakfast eaters" who like pie for breakfast, and dessert before the main course, show they have grown up feeling insecure and unloved, she claims. They let food have the place of affection. So does the anxious eater, who has a long list of foods that upset him.

Then there's the "ritualistic eater" who must always eat on time and in the manner she was protected from drafts and made to wear big collegiate sweaters. The "spoiled darling," often considered frail and pampered, gets a kick out of food fads.

The "undifferent eaters" parents made the real issue what he was served. Now he pays no attention to food, preferring drink.

While a child, the "irrational eater" rebelled against authority. Now he refuses to fully disobey his doctor and suffer from ulcers than go on a diet.

What's In A Name?

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (ACP)—This isn't a "name the phrases" item or anything like that, but we pass it along for the thrill it's worth. West Virginia University's Daily Athenaeum gleaned the following information from a Social Security administration report.

According to the latest figures, the administration has issued social security cards to 149 people named Davy Crockett and 231 people named Daniel Boone. This apparently means the Boones have it all over the Crocketts when it comes to replenishing the earth.

At last report, no figures were available on Napoleon Bonaparte or Donald Duck.

You Can't Win

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (ACP)—The Wittenberg Torch lists this one as its favorite story section:

A successful businessman on his way to his alma mater dropped in on his economics professor. Recalling that he used to have trouble with economics exams, he asked to see some of the current papers. Noting them carefully, he observed:

"These are the same old questions."

"Sure," agreed the professor. "We never change the questions."

"But," said the visitor, "Don't you know the students will pass the questions from class to class?"

"Certainly," was the bland reply. "But in economics, we always change the answers.

Punctual Profs

ST. PETER, Minn. (ACP)—Charles Hendrickson makes this valid observation in the Old Mane column in the Gustavian Weekly.

You'll probably all agree that a professor who comes to class three minutes early is extremely unusual . . . in fact, he's in a class by himself.

Random Notes

(ACP) — Freshmen won't be allowed to bring their cars to Colorado University this year, but the ban is strictly from an academic viewpoint and not to solve parking problems.

A study of first-year students who have been making the grade scholastically showed that 75 percent with cars are on or on academic probation than those who rely on their feet for transportation.

From the Colorado School of Mines comes this thought: to a woman the perfect husband is one who thinks he has the perfect wife.

Column Clips

* * * *

Another Leslie quip: "Some of the freshmen boys are embarrassed about the 'no shaving' rule in the initiation orders. Seems they don't have anyway. Maybe it would make them feel better to know that there is a senior who has been shaving for three years and cut himself both times."

Fowl Play

NORMAN, Okla. (ACP)—A chuckle from the Oklahoma Daily's "Meeskite" Sparling column:

A farmer invited the pastor of his church to his home for Sunday dinner. The farmer's wife had fried two mature chickens for the meal so she set them on the table and they all sat down to eat. Before the farmer and his wife had finished helping themselves to the vegetables on the table, the pastor had completely devoured both chickens. Just as the minister pushed his plate aside a rooster crowed loudly in the barnyard.

"That rooster sure sounds like he's a proud of himself," observed the farmer.

Well, he darn sure should be," quipped the farmer. "After all, he has two sons in the military!"

Do Games Indicate School Spirit?

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

Gene are the days when startled stares and violent arguments could be evoked with the words, "School spirit stinks." People do not debate obvious facts.

There are two main views of the situation:

1. School spirit is nonexistent because people do not cheer at football games.

2. Football games are only one aspect of spirit and the lack of interest in elections, concerts, and current affairs which affect us indicate a far more basic problem in student life.

More people adhere to the first viewpoint; their attitudes are conditioned by high school life in which athletics, engaged in by teams which really represent the student body, were the best cement for student solidarity.

The better opinion is that voiced by the Miami Hurricane in answering a tourtevenger's charge the UM students are deserting their team:

"All but drowned in the cheers of the old grads and the downtown quarterbacks are a few voices pleading that the first function of a University is education. They deplore the practices that, present fierce competition has led to, such as double academic standards, alumni subsidies and other special deals.

"COULD IT BE that the students feel this remoteness to the point where the game becomes not a fighting school issue but a spectacle of more or less entertainment? If so, they are victims because they have lost part of the fun of University life. Also victims to a greater extent are the coaches and players, because the football Frankenstein's edict is win or else."

New Major Found By Journalist

By CLYDE WARD

We have people majoring in all sorts of fields at this institution. Library Science, Education, Music, Journalism — We've got 'em all, and there's some that weren't named.

Take me, for instance. I'm a Kobre major.

Dr. Kobre's classes are the only courses on campus that I know of where the weekly assignment takes more time than a thesis for graduate school.

Two years ago, I had Dr. Kobre for an elementary journalism course. The strain proved too much, so I dropped out of school for a couple of years to recover.

Now I'm back too sad for words. I have him for two courses. Each one's a two-hour course, and each one requires from four to ten hours per week for outside assignments.

The local newspapers will never have to hire reporters as long as Dr. Kobre's Basic Reporting class holds out. Just a couple of good rewrite men, and they've got it knocked.

Tuesday and Thursday mornings, the whip cracks and three-score of more of the unfortunates assemble to play newsman. They swarm into the FSU news bureau, the Democrat, the Capitol Labor News and the Capitol Post. The gentle cry is "Assignments, go GO."

If some hapless individual doesn't forsake dates, other assignments, sleep, meals, and all the other things that accessary for existence, the editors of these venerable institutions are likely to get peeved. They're likely to write Dr. Kobre a letter pretty much like the one he received from a member of the Democrat staff: He's all about the students' lack of interest, their lack of spirit, participation, etc., and ends with, "Now you know what I know, Dr. Kobre—that they will never make newsmen."

But the journalist is supposed to be a lively, artful dodger. He who is able to fast-talk up the barricades and roadblocks tossed in his way by unwilling people who underestimate the power and utility of the press. And on today's classrooms may come tomorrow's Editor & Publisher Awards and the majority will give their all for their connections.

Speaking of awards, I can see Dr. Kobre reaching for the gradebook.

SHORT CUTS . . .

I can't understand this "Hate Florida" thing. When we beat Florida, "That's when, not the makes us look too bitter if Florida's been conquering us all year. Besides, if ECONOMICS the booze-boys were pretty well represented Saturday's game. That's the policy change. Get down the sans at the stadium entrance and concentrate on the bell-ringers instead of people who like a casual nip now and then.

Zachara Meets Musical Challenge

By DAVID WARD-STEINMAN

LUDWIG VAN Beethoven was one of the most controversial figures the world has ever known. It is not without reason that he holds this undisputed position of eminence. He raised the standards of the symphony, expanded the string quartet, and created some of the most imaginative, diverse, and deeply gratifying music the world has ever known. To play Beethoven well is a challenge to any musician, to devote an entire program to his music is a task which demands mature artistry, ample technique, and the courage to take chances. Last Friday night, Franciszek Zachara showed that he had all three in abundance.

Zachara, who, before coming to FSU, had concertized and performed with leading orchestras in this country and in Europe, opened the program with the seldom-heard Andante Favori in F Major, played with warmth and feeling. This is a work Beethoven originally planned as the slow movement of his Waldstein Sonata but he rejected it on the advice of friends because of its length. Continuing with the more difficult Thirty-two Variations in C Minor, Zachara displayed a mastery of technical facility and brilliance. Preceding the intermission with the Appassionata Sonata, Op. 57, a staple in the piano literature. The slow movement, a theme and variations, provided a fine lyric contrast to the fire of the first movement. The concluding Allegro, with its abrupt abandon and precision, was a showcase for Zachara's technique.

AFTER THE intermission, Zachara played the Sonata In A Flat Major, Op 26, a work that was prophetic of Beethoven's eventual Middle Period. This sonata was unique in that it began with a theme and variations instead of the usual Sonata-Allegro. Another deviation was the use of a funeral march for the slow movement an earlier sonata. Op 26, subsutituted a march for a slow movement, but it was not labeled as such, was slow, and was not in the nature of a "processional" march.

Being somewhat of a non-Romanticist, I was surprised to find that the most exciting thing on the program for me was Zachara's closing work, the tired old "Moonlight." Sonata. Many pianists take the first movement at a ridiculously slow tempo, determined to squeeze out every possible drop of lush sentiment and the work consequently falls apart at the seams. Not so with Zachara. Under Zachara's hands the sonata was displayed in perspective, with each movement a logical outgrowth of its predecessor, completely convincing from first movement to last. The Presto Agitatto was played with a fitting close to the sonata and the recital.

Hit Song Written To Local Coed

By WILJOHN

WOW. YOU NO sooner than move sideways these days and you're goofed in some manner, way, shape or form. Last column carried some wind about Jay Gish, conductor of the Flame Weavers. Two nights later, I run kerplunk into a girl who used to be pinned to one of them and am informed that their name is not Flame but Wade. Wade Buffin, to be exact, and the other fellow is Gene Alexander. Well, as you'll get his name right. This young beauty whose name is Sharon and wouldn't you like to know more? was pinned to Wade a few years ago and it seems that "It's Almost Tomorrow" was written for her by one of the lads at school here now (a freshman) and can produce the old record, the first one made of Wade and Gene singing "It's Almost Tomorrow" just for her. And can you picture this? Now she complains that it's the best in her room and you stare at the walls. What's that song—Memories . . . ?

I DON'T SUPPOSE it will interess anyone but the Gish fan but in the Jan fan I see a "Welcome, brother." There is a new Capitol LP out featuring Marion McPartland and her Trio at the Hickory House. That isn't a description of it; that's the name of it. Marion plays a very soft and smooth piano of the Errol Garner type rather than the more excited (not exciting) noisy jazz piano. She uses a great range of dynamics in her playing, something which the ordinary player does not do in his jazz. Assisted by Bill Crow on the drums, a pair of loose wrists that speak in a swinging style and invent more than the average drummers share of novel rhythms and Bill Crow on bass, a great technique man who has the rare ability to play fast and get down the scale without boosting low notes enough to drown out the melody. Jazz at its best. Is a slight master-piece of tasteful, quiet music which everyone should enjoy. Including those who hate jazz.

I'VE BEEN LOOKING around to see how many scripts are under preparation since the news has come out that Shakespeare will be hearing itself out to sea. So far, I have only turned up one and I'm writing that one myself. Now look, little students, everyone knows that Sandspur is a great thing and we about definately have it. Then why not do a couple in about it and give them something to work with? I know there are a lot of budding young playwrites roaming about the campus, but there's two act opus in nothing flat! It doesn't cost you anything, you know. Last year Doc Teal let David Ward-Steinman put together a show called "Jazz Me Blues" and it is a little over a month and Dave wrote the music for it in two weeks. See how easy? There have been literally four different scripts in the process of origination but nothing definite can be found out. At any rate, thanks should go to Dean Oglesby for taking the initiative once again and coming to the aid of a rather floundering organization.

Well, West Hall really goofed this time. The Dinner-Dance didn't come off and the substitute "Boo-Boo Dance" flopped. They made $28.10 for Campus Chest. Not really their fault. When you leave it up to the student body—etc.

Homecoming To Feature Federal Relations Conference

Rules For Floats Are Announced

Rules for the construction of Homecoming floats have been set by the Homecoming Committee reported this week.

No organization may spend more than $45.96 in the preparation of a float entry. This amount will include any gifts, materials, or money, but will not include money paid for the rental of a truck or other type of vehicle used which the float is constructed, or the payment of a hired driver of such vehicle.

By November 11

Each organization entering a float must submit an official entry form along with a detailed sketch of their float on or before 5:00 p.m. Friday, November 11. These may be handed in at the Information Desk of the Alumni Building.

The position of the floats in the parade will be determined by the date order in which sketches are received. In case of duplication of ideas, the sketch received first is given priority. All sketches must be approved by the Float Decorations Committee before construction may begin. No alterations in the approved design may be made at a later date, unless approved by the chairman of the Float Committee, Jim Boles, 161 Magnolia. Phone 7401.

Deadline List

As mentioned last of all expenditures must be given by the officials inspection team that will examine all floats before permitting them in the parade lineup. This inspection will take place at 1:30 p.m. Friday, November 18, 1955.

All floats should be designed in good taste, with special emphasis on beauty and originality in the theme as to this situation involving the use of anything that relates to alcohol, drunkenness, or drinking on the float, empty liquor or beer bottles, mint julip cups, cocktail glasses, and empty containers. The committee recommends careful observance of judging good taste. The use of excessive exposure of the body such as wearing of Bikini bathing suits and low cut latex abortions is also No prizes, commodore, blue and white.

toilet paper, or allusion pertaining to same.

Begins at 1:30

All floats must meet at the point of parade assembly, Dook Campbell Stadium, at 1:30 p.m. on Friday, November 18. The inspection at this time will be mainly for the purpose of checking the safety of the floats. No float which has not been inspected may enter the parade. Numbers will be provided at this time for each float and placed on the left front corner.

Judging of floats will be during the Homecoming Parade, Friday, November 18, 1955. Only two trophies will be awarded one for the most beautiful float, and the other for the most original design. The Queen's float will be excluded from the competition.

Sophomore Council meets tonight at 10 p.m. in Longmire Lounge. As yet, no pictures will be taken, members are asked to wear blue and white.

Panel Slated; Campbell, Kent, Collins, Bailey Will Speak

One of the main features of this year's Homecoming celebration will be the First Florida Conference on Federal-State Relations, scheduled for Friday, November 18, in Westcott Auditorium.

The conference, which convenes at 10 a.m., will hear greetings by Florida State University President Doak S. Campbell and LeRoy Collins, Governor of Florida.

The Commission on Inter-Governmental Relations, headed by Rep. Bob Sikes, Third Congressional District, is slated to report on its activities at 10:15.

Panel Talk

A panel discussion of the "Government's Role in Education" is scheduled for 10:35. Panel members are as follows: John R. Rackley, Deputy Commissioner of Education, who is a representative of Marion B. Folsom, Secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in Washington;

Thomas D. Bailey, State Superintendent of Public Instruction and Fred Kent, chairman of the Florida state Board of Control.

Other panelists are Sam M. Gibbons, chairman of the House Committee on Education, Florida House of Representatives; and Merriam Hartwick Trytten, chairman of the Committee on Human Resources, Silver Spring, Maryland.

Cotton Maid 1955 Contest In Progress

A contest to choose the 1956 Maid of Cotton is now in progress, according to Ed Lipscomb, National Cotton Council sales promotion and public relations director.

The Maid of Cotton serves the cotton industry as its fashion and good will representative. This year's winner will be the 18th since the competition began.

Deadline for entries is midnight, December 1. Each entry must be accompanied by two recent photographs, one a head and shoulders portrait-type picture and the other a full-length photograph.

Any girl born in a cotton-growing state, who has never been married, between the ages of 19 and 25, and at least 5 feet 5 inches tall is eligible to enter. Girls will be judged on the basis of personality, poise, and intelligence, as well as appearance.

The 1956 Cotton Maid, to be chosen December 28, will go to New York for a month's training period before beginning her official duties January 31 at Nassau, Bahamas. Her tour will cover more than 40 cities in the United States, Canada and Europe, the Cotton Council has said.

Contest entry forms and complete information are available from the National Cotton Council, Box 9905, Memphis 12, Tenn.

Mademoiselle Contest Starts

Mademoiselle Magazine announces that its second annual Art Contest is now under way.

Students interested are to interpret the two short stories cited in the 1956 August College Fiction Contest.

A $500 prize is offered for the two winners. Winners and Honorable mentions will be announced in the 1956 August College issue.

Eligibility is as follows: Contestants must be in college and under twenty-six years of age. Five samples are requested to show your ability. One of line drawings, all water colors, collages, or any specialty.

The contest closes March 15, 1956. For complete details write Art Contest, Mademoiselle, 575 Madison Avenue, New York 22, New York.

There will be an informal dance at the Student Center Saturday from 8:30 to 11:30 p.m., according to Mrs. D W Bateman, Student Center hostess.

Music will be furnished by an orchestra, the name of which has not been announced.

Expense Estimates From Frosh Due

Successful Freshman candidates for office should file final expense estimates by 5 p.m. Thursday, according to Betty Willmon, secretary of elections.

Expense estimate forms are available at the Director's Desk, Lonsmire.

Miss Willmon warned all candidates to remove all campaign literature after the election or their names will be submitted to Honor Court.

TALLY-HO STAFF MEETS WEDNESDAY

The Tally-Ho staff meets Wednesday at 5 p.m. in the Tally-Ho office.

This meeting is especially important for all section editors, according to Jim Broderick, editor, and he asked that any staff member unable to attend personally contact him.

EAST BERLIN STUDENTS EXPELLED

ACP—Two students from the Science college of the East Berlin University and four students from the college of Economics at the University of Halle were expelled from their universities recently because of "undesirable relations with the west." One of the first-named was caught during a visit to a West Berlin library, while the Halle students were accused of having correspondence with a friend who fled to West Germany.

Initiates 16 Initiate 16

Los Picaros initiated 16 new members into their organization last week in ceremonies held in the Lonsmire Lounge.

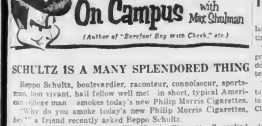
The following people are new members: William Tenney Brown, Jeri Gail Bradfield, Gilberto Gerardo Fernandez, Wayne Huddleston, Alfredo Tondo, Tom Loeb, Caroline Emery, Martha Cuervo, Sid Smith, Ellen Rowe, Eduardo Bilbert, John G. Brown, Felix Blanco Rodriguez, Joyce Perry, Jane MacIntyre, and Glenda Dumas.

Several officers were elected at the meeting also. The newly elected officers: Maria Cuervo, Corresponding Secretary, Jane MacIntyre, Historian; Sid Smith, Social Chairman, and Kathy Panos, Publicity Chairman.

Plans were made for a Christmas party, to be held on December 7, as the next meeting of the organization. A skit will be presented along with various demonstrations of Latin American dances by several of the Latin American members.

ART FILMS SLATED TONIGHT

Art films will help reoriented tonight at 7:30 p.m. in 222 Music Building. The films, "Colagrafy in Kyoto", "Pin Mold" and "Jazz of Lights", are shown free of charge to both Tallahasee and university residents.



West Hall Chooses New Officers

Acting dormitory government officers for West Hall for the remainder of the present term have taken office and are in operation.

Wiljohn Schiffermuller assumed the office of Governor in the absence of last year's elected Governor, Nick Harrington. Appointed to fill offices were William O'Steen, Lauderdale-Governor; Jack Taylor, Treasurer; John Howard, Secretary and Robert Page, Parliamentarian.

These officers will hold office till the February elections.

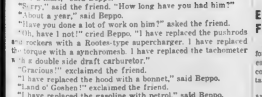
Projects undertaken by this group so far this year have been the "Boo-Boo Dance" various pending inter-dorm socials and several social and athletic projects.

SCHULTZ IS A MANY SPLENDORED THING

Beppo Schultz, boulevardier, raconteur, connoisseur, sportsman, bon vivant, half fellow well met—in short, typical American college man—smokes today's new Philip Morris Cigarettes.

"Why do you smoke today's new Philip Morris Cigarettes, Beppo?" a friend recently asked Beppo Schultz.

"I smoke today's new Philip Morris Cigarettes," replied Beppo, looking up from his 2.9 litre L-head Hotchkiss drive double overhead camshaft British sports car, "because they are new."



"New?" said the friend. "What do you mean—new?"

"I mean modern—up-to-date—designed for today's easier, smoother living," said Beppo.

"Is it as fine as the 2.9 litre L-head Hotchkiss drive double overhead camshaft British sports car?" asked the friend.

"Exactly," said Beppo.

"Is it as beauty," said the friend, looking admiringly at the new "How long have you had her?"

"It's a smile," said Beppo.

"Sorry," said the friend. "How long have you had him?"

"About a year," said Beppo.

"Have you done a lot of work on him?" asked the friend.

"Oh, have I not!" cried Beppo. "I have replaced the pushrods and rockers with a Rootes-type supercharger. I have replaced the distributor with a synchromesh. I have replaced the tachometer with a double side draft carburetor."

"Gracious!" exclaimed the friend.

"I have replaced the hood with a bonnet," said Beppo.

"Land o' Goshen!" exclaimed the friend.

"I have replaced the gasoline with petrol," said Beppo.

"C'mon-a-mentines!" said the friend.

"And I have put gloves in the glove compartment," said Beppo.

"Well, you have been the busy one!" said the friend. "You must be exhausted."

"Maybe a trifle," said Beppo with a brave little smile.

"Do you know what I do when I'm tired?" asked the friend. "Light a Philip Morris!" Beppo ventured.

"Oh, pshaw, you guessed!" said the friend, pouting.

"But it was easy!" cried Beppo, laughing silverly. "When the eyelids droop and the musculature sags and the psyche is depleted, what is more natural than to perk up with today's Philip Morris in the red, white and gold package?"

"A bright new smoke in a bright new package," proclaimed the friend, his young eyes glistening with tears.

"Changed to keep pace with today's changing world!" declared Beppo, whirling his arms in concentric circles. "A gentler, more relaxing cigarette for a sunnier age, an age of greater charm and broader vistas and more beckoning horizons!"

Now, tired but happy, Beppo and his friend lit Philip Morrises and smoked for a time in deep, silent contentment. At length the friend spoke. "Yes, sir," he said, "he certainly is a beauty."

"You mean my 2.9 litre L-head Hotchkiss drive double overhead camshaft British sports car?" asked Beppo.

"Yeh," said the friend. "How fast will he go?"

"Well, I don't rightly know," said Beppo. "I can't find the starter."

Veterans Asked To Support Bill

All veterans enrolled under Public Law 550 at Florida State University have been asked to write their congressmen in regard to a congressional bill designated S-533 and urge its passage during the current session of Congress.

Percy Steele, Chairman of a committee of twelve chosen last Tuesday at a general meeting of FSU veterans to look into the ways and means of forming a Veteran's Club on campus, explained that under the proposed bill Korean Veterans would receive a forty dollar, "across the board" increase in educational benefits.

He added that under the present law a single veteran now receive $110.00 per month, while veterans with one dependent receive $133.00 and those with more than one dependent $160.

Would Get $150

Under the new bill, single veterans would get $150.00, while those with one or more dependents would receive $175.00 to $200.00 respectively.

Steele went on to say that a form letter had been written and a copy of it can be picked up at the Veteran - Office in Westcott Building. The letter reads as follows:

Senator George Smathers
Senate Office Building
Washington 25 D.C.
Dear Sir:

I am at present enrolled in Florida State University under Public Law 550 (Korean G.I. Bill of Rights).

Bill S-533

There is a congressional bill designated S-533 which was introduced by Senator Milton R. Young of North Dakota and will probably be acted upon in the fall session. It is hoped that when this bill is acted upon you will do all that is in your power to assure its approval.

Thanking you in advance for your consideration of this matter.

Very Sincerely Yours,

Steele stressed that it was very important that veterans contact not only one congressman but all congressmen from their home states.

Dr. Karl Zerbe Honored At Art Gallery Reception

Dr. Karl Zerbe was honored Friday night at an informal reception which officially opened the new University Art Gallery exhibit which includes Dr. Zerbe's work.

About 200 students, faculty members and townspeople attended the informal gathering at the Art Gallery to view the works of the Artist-Teachers.

According to Russ West, curator of the gallery, the Six Artist-Teachers exhibit is "one of the better exhibits that have been shown here for a while."

From Collections

Circulated by the Museum of Modern Art, some of the paintings are from their own collection while others are from private collections or those of other galleries.

The exhibit is most representative of the approaches being taught in universities today, said Mr. West.

There is a wide range of Zerbe paintings as the show which vary in style and technique, from still life painted in a la abstract paintings in encaustic and polymer tempera.

Etchings Too

William Hayter, who owns an art studio in New York, has etchings and engravings entered in the exhibit to illustrate his work.

Another Artist-Teacher who owns his own school, is Hans Hofmann. His paintings now being shown are bold abstracts done in oils and tempera.

Nagy Designs

The designs of Moholy Nagy, who before his death was President of the Institute of Design in Chicago, are also being displayed. Some designs for which he was famous are done in watercolors. Others include two outstandingly different pictures, a plexiglass space modulator and a plastic photo of 3-D construction.

A Yale teacher whose works are included in the exhibit is Josef Albers. His works include oil paintings, engraving in plastic, and opaque glass painting.

Amedee Ozenfant, who teaches at his own school in New York, has two modern drawings entered in the Artist-Teacher exhibit which will be displayed in the Art Gallery until Nov. 23.

Goal Of $5,000 For Charities Not Yet Realized By Students

The Campus Chest Drive has netted over $1,785 so far, according to Mary Fern Cawthon, general chairman.

The purpose of this drive, which aimed for a goal of $5,000, is to support all the most worthy charities instead of continually having smaller drives throughout the year for the various organizations.

Last year, for instance, 40 per cent of the proceeds went to the World University Service, 15 per cent to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, 10 per cent to the American Cancer Society, 10 per cent to the National Tuberculosis and Health Association, 10 per cent to the American Red Cross, 10 per cent to the National Association for Mental Health, and 5 percent to Local Service Funds.

Which Charities

A student committee decides on what charities will benefit from this year's contributions.

A prize will go to the largest single contribution, which so far this year is the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity. Other contributions to date are women's dorms $401; sororities, $641; and fraternities, $264.

The Drive was opened October 7 with the Campus Chest dance, held in the Suwannee Room. According to dance chairman, Eddie Wycall, a total of 313 people danced to the music of the Commodores and watched a freshman talent show to bring in $166 for the drive.

The following Tuesday Sigma Kappa held its annual Variety Show which netted over $200 for the Chest. First prizes for the best acts went to Delta Tau Delta for a Charlie Chaplan dance and Kappa Delta for a singing hula band.

Wednesday Zeta Tau Alpha held their annual cake walk where $100 was contributed.

Spaghetti Supper

The next events Kappa Delta held their spaghetti supper at a cost of 75c per plate, while on Tuesday the "F" Club held a bra supper.

For the two weeks of the drive the residents of Bryan, East Landon, Florida, and Reynolds sold doughnuts, milk, and hot dogs to bring in a total of $401 for the Chest.

Carnival

On October 15 the Phi Mus gave a carnival which included bowling, dancing, bingo, and a spook house.

Kappa Alpha contributed $268 for the charity by stopping cars at the Toll Gate, while Pi Beta Phi netted $42 with their "World Series" contest.

Coed Contest

The Betty Co-ed Contest beat last year's contribution by $20 with a final total of $245. Anita Anderson of Alpha Delta Pi was the winner in the Pi Kappa Phi and Delta Gamma co-sponsored contest.

On October 28 Alpha Gamma Delta and Phi Delta Theta orginated Soap Box Derby Day to contribute $40 to the Campus Chest drive. The trophy went to Tri Delt, and Pi Kappa Alpha, who out of fifteen sorority-fraternity teams crossed the finish line first.

Fashion Show

Saturday Gamma Alpha Chi held its fall fashion show with all donations going to the drive. Some two dozen girls modeled outfits around a Homecoming theme.

On the same day the Alpha Delta Pi's sold 10¢ goes and 10¢ creme puffs with their "A Di-Pie While" and netted $22 for the drive.

Sunday Party

Kappa Alpha Theta donated $76 which were the proceeds from their Sunday party held October 2.

Caryl James was crowned Queen of Campus Chest Saturday night at an open house dance held by Sigma Alpha Epsilon, who sponsored the contest, who's main

Bowl Queen DeadlineNears

Florida State University coeds also report to make bids for the 1956 Orange Bowl Queen title at Miami must submit photographs and personal data by this Saturday.

Entries should be sent to the Orange Bowl Queen Contest, 615 SW Second Ave. Miami 36, Fla.

Dale Jordan News Bureau Director of the Orange Bowl Committee, announced recently that the minimum age limit for contestants was raised this year from 16 to 18. Candidates must be single, and no professional entertainers are eligible. Jordan said.

The contest winner will receive a $500 scholarship to a Florida school of her choice and a wardrobe. If the winner is sponsored, her sponsor will receive a plaque.

Briggs Requests New Moon Scenery Help

Students willing to help with the scenery for "The New Moon" production have been asked by Florida director Dr. Robert Briggs to meet tomorrow at 7 p.m. in 2, Music Building.

Tap dancing, intended for plantation work schedule will be brief. Construction work begins this weekend, and Dr. Briggs urges all interested students to come and bring others with them.

Leo Tells Why; Tribe Wins, 16-13

From The Sidelines

By Pierce Lehmbeck
Sports Editor

THAT 'SO-AND-SO'

The Tribe won a ball game Saturday afternoon.

And they won it on as neat a twist as football has ever witnessed. While the flashing backs were stymied somewhat, a guard named Leo Baggett by name—came out of his never-too-glorious workhorse slot to score the winning touchdown.

How he did it, Leo tells you in the game story. And Leo, in modest way, gives equal credit to one of his fellow linemen in other guard, Vince Gibson.

Our point here is to clear up any hanging talk about the linemen being a 'cheap' one. No touchdown comes cheap.

It was a break. And Leo admits that.

It was a rather humorous thing, too.

Here's how we saw that winning TD from our vintage point on the goalposts.

When the Tribe bogged down on Villanova's two-yard stripe, Wildcats came happily back for the huddle. One of them jauntily said something like this:

"C'mon now. Let's move that son of a so-and-so out of here!"

After which one of the photogs just behind the end zone lifted his head into the forming huddle and declared:

"That son of a so-and-so is staying right here!"

Needless to say, he retreated quickly but he left the Villanova backfield laughing about the whole matter.

They laughed—and the 'son of a so-and-so' stayed right where it was with Baggett on top of it.

ANOTHER STORY, SOME MORE MERIT

Two weeks ago we told you the story of Scotty Stanton, of the gymnastics award named in his honor.

Today, we tell you the story of another Florida State University athlete—another gymnast. His, too, is one of success and study.

Robert Owen Sharpe.

He wasn't at FSU long enough to make his mark in the record books. But, he did leave behind a much deeper mark—the memories of those who knew him.

To tell you the story of Robert Owen Sharpe—we knew him as Bob—we use the words of Dr. Odis D. Hinnant, general secretary of the Jacksonville YMCA, as he wrote them in a letter to Annie Mr. Hinnant.

Robert Owen Sharpe came to the YMCA in the seventh grade in a Jr. Hi-Y Club He was regular in attendance and from then continued straight through in his YMCA experience in both HI-Y and Sr. Hi-Y.

While he became a student at Andrew Jackson High School he still took his place in active leadership in school activities and his high school years he successfully held the positions of Co-President and President of the Jackson Delta Hi-Y Club. He was one of the outstanding clubs in the state of Florida at that time. Meana hile he worked as an office boy at the YMCA.

He began going to our YMCA Camp Immokalee when he was 12 years of age and was highly thought of by the boys. He played basketball, volleyball, football, and entered into all sports in the physical education program of the YMCA.

While he became 14 years old he developed a sustaining interest in gymnastics and became a member of the Jr. Leaders' Club which had as its objective that of developing gymnastics in the YMCA.

When he was 18 he was a volunteer leader for clubs for younger boys. He made a great success of his club work and the next year was gymnastic instructor for the YMCA He went to the annual gymnastic meet when a high school lad at the Florida State University and took many medels He was especially good on the high bar, trampoline, free exercise, long horse and in acrobatics.

He was a good gymnast As president of the Jr. Leaders he successfully conducted a gymnastic exhibition using gymnasts from the Florida State University and did a terrible job in presenting gymnastics to several hundred boys and most of our local gymnasts.

His interest in the YMCA camp continued to grow. He was after later an instructor and then a counselor. At the time of his death he was the head instructor in gymnastics and other activities at our YMCA camp. He was instrumental in building a new dining hall camp and developing a pioneer village.

During the time Robert was working at the YMCA he saved money until he had enough invested to see him through college. He was planning to be a YMCA Secretary and when he heard about the 100th anniversary of the forming of the World-Wide movement of the YMCA he wanted to attend the conference which was to be held in Paris

His last concern was about getting to the conference at which nations were represented. He came home from Camp Immokalee to secure last minute essentials for the trip and was on his way back when he met the fatal accident. His motorcycle collided with an automobile and he was killed instantly.

A memorial service was held in his honor at the convention in Paris. As I sat there I thought it was one of the most beautiful memorials I had ever witnessed. Representatives from 87 countries of the world stood in silence as they paid respect to the memory of Robert Owen Sharpe

Our local YMCA is securing money to have a room as a memorial to him in our new building in Jacksonville. Camp Immokalee is offering a medal in gymnastics to the outstanding boy in this field of activity, called the Robert Owen Sharpe Medal in his honor.

Robert was a member of a family with three boys, two sisters which were twins, and a sister His father died when he was small and his mother died a few months before his own death.

And that, in part, is the story of Bob Sharpe, as related by Dr. Odis D. Hinnant.

Bob's fatal accident occured this past summer—before he had a chance to accomplish the athletic feats his coach and teammates expected of him. As a freshman, he was potentially one of FSU's finest gymnasts.

However, in the 17 years he lived, Bob Sharpe accomplished more than many could ever hope to do. He gained the lasting respect and honor of everyone who knew him—a fundamental of basic thing, in reality

But there is no greater honor.

Frat Finals On Deck Tonight; Tennis Semi-Finals Scheduled

With interest at high pitch in the intramural basketball the games for this week have been switched to the Florida High School gym. Tonight the frat finals are on deck at 7:30 p.m. with ATO putted against the winner of last night's PDT-TC game.

If the PDT-TC winner should beat ATO, then an extra-final playoff will be necessary, in the double elimination tournament. The game will be at 7:30 at the west gym.

The Senior Hall team, dorm champs, will meet the frat champs at 7:30 p.m. Thursday and this game will be at Florida High School gym.

The West Hall Pirates, short on man-power, were no match for Senior Hall and went down 54-12, making Senior Hall the new dorm champs. Jim Hogan with 7 buckets, and 14 points, led the Senior Hall attack. Others: Rife 2, Lamb 2, Motes 2, Barber 6, Breitart 7, Byrd 2, Woodward 2, Pope and Pirates Mc-Call had 14. Parker 4, Cameron 11, Parramore 2, Gifford 2.

ATO barely nosed out Theta Chi 33-30 to remain unbeaten in the tournament. It was tight all the way with the winners leading 15-13 at the half. Both teams played a close defensive game and field goals were hard to come by. ATO managed to cage 9 free throws to 3 for TC, and that was the margin of victory. For ATO Kelley at 6, Atwood, 10; Corso 2, Matia 6, Register 5, Fielding 3, Willis 8, Bonetti 6. The TC lineup: Ashley 6, Williams 0, Schafer 3, Cadella 6, Jacone 2, O'Leary 2, Fraser 2, Logan 2, Hibbard 0, Powell 2, Segner 0.

KA eliminated PKT, but good, with a 16-29 walloping. Donovan went wild with 15 points. KA had a 27-11 margin at the half.

It was a different story on Tuesday night when it was Kappa Sig took the latter defeat and elimination. The PDT team proved to be KA stepmothers all the way, and never did allow them to get set for their accurate shots. Coppe was the hero, with no field goals while Donovan netted his usual share of previous nights' 15, getting just 4 field goals.

Art Semmle was the key to the PDT win, not only being high man with 11 points but directing the floor play as well. The final score was 38-34 but until the last minute KA had come within one point 33-32. Wilks had sunk a basket to bring the two to within "win" distance, but Webb countered with one for PDT and a few yards later stem in the cleer. The lineups. KA, Donovan 15, Coppe 2, Long 10, Wilks 4, Fell 9, Clarke 1, Jordan 0 For PDT: Miller 6, Noatson 5, Schiaus 4, Webb 7, Hemple 11, Robinson 3, Hall 0.

Tennis

Intramural tennis continues this week on the varsity courts at 4 p.m.

To quote varsity coach Pilchford: "I have been over to the new courts all afternoons and there is some excellent tennis being played. This is the best grade of intramural tennis I have ever seen."

In the frat doubles Cutler and Schwartz won their way into the semi-finals for TEP by beating Hamner and Ehrhardt of PDT, 8-7, 8-3. Meanwhile Woods and McElroy of PKT got to the semi-finals by beating Day and Jacobs of Sigma Chi, 6-3, 8-1. TEP and PKT meet tomorrow on court 4

In the losers' bracket SN's Thomas and Cryer were eliminated by Davis and Harrison of LCA by 6-1, 6-2. Langston and Alexander of ATO eliminated Durham and Herring of KA's 8-4, 8-3.

The frat schedule:
Wed. Nov. 9, 4 p.m. varsity courts

PKT vs. TEP doubles
SC-LCA winner vs. ATO-PDT winner doubles.

Singles: Maddock of PDT vs. Sellers of SN winners bracket final.

LCA vs. TC-SC winner plays DTD vs. SAE-ATO winner in losers bracket semi-final.

All frat finals Wed. Nov. 16th.

Maddock arrived for PDT by beating Ley of DTD 6-0, 6-0. Sellers became his opponent by beating LCA's Bee 8-1, 8-1.

In the dorm division the Pirates beat the Methodists 8-4, 6-4 to gain the doubles finals Semi-finals in both singles and doubles are scheduled for today and Thursday.

Cagers Tackle Powerful State In Dec. 1 Opener

Coach J. K. "Bud" Kennedy hopes his Florida State basketball team will be as successful as the Seminole football squad was in its opening game of the season.

The Seminole cagers open with the same opponents the football's did—the Georgia State Only difference here is . . . N. C. State's basketball squad is annually one of the finest hardwood aggregations in the nation.

The Wolfpack quintet is perennial Atlantic Coast Conference champs, and usually ranks among the top five teams in the country.

The Seminole cagers will open the season the Pack in Raleigh on December 1.

Guard Scores Winning 'TD' Over Villanova

"All I did was charge," explains guard Leo Baggett.

"I broke through the line and heard something hit the ground to the right of me. When I looked I saw the ball rolling loose with a Villanova back crawling for it. It just rolled into my hands."

Such was the way Baggett described the play which brought the Florida State Seminoles their second triumph of the year, a 16-13 victory over Villanova, before a crowd of 9,700 Saturday afternoon.

"Actually," said Baggett, "Vince Gibson is the man that should get the credit. He clipped the Villanova fullback hard as he came up the middle and caused the fumble. I just crawled on it."

The first Dale Dey crowd watched the Seminoles take advantage of several unusual breaks thrown their way to come from behind twice to win.

Just before Baggett's thievery,

HE DID IT!

the Tribe had driven to a first down at their opponents' four-yard stripe to be halted by a fired-up Villanova line.

The Wildcats gained an early 7-0 advantage by driving 65 yards to score in the early moments of the second period, but two missed field goals in a short and a few inopportune penalties kept the visitors frustrated most of the afternoon.

Fired-up by the Villanova score the Seminoles marched down field to the 'Cats' seven, but there the drive bogged down.

Then the breaks went against Coach Frank Keagan's boys. After a penalty checked them back into the shadows of their own goal post, Baggett went back to punt but got a low snap and was nailed in the end zone by Hans Bisbee for the safety.

Halfback Lee Corso brought back the ensuing kickoff 28 yards to the Villanova 47, and the Tribe drove to the 21 in three plays

At this point the Wildcats tried to send in a man who had already seen the action allowed him in the form of a 15-yard penalty put the Seminoles in scoring position.

It took quarterback Vic Prinzi only one play to do the damage, when he dropped back and hit end Bob Prosser for a 9-7. A moment later, it looked like the Tribe would score again when Buck Metts grabbed a Wildcat fumble at the 14.

They drove to the one, but a delay of the game penalty coat them 15 yards and half ended before they could push across

The Seminoles made two quick thrusts in the second half, but a clipping penalty halted one of them, and an interception by

Cage Practice In Full Swing For Rugged Season Opener

Basketball practice is now in full swing at the new demonstration school in preparation for the season's opener less than a month away.

Coach Bud Kennedy is stressing his five man weave, which does not use a pivot man to work around. In using this pattern of play coach Kennedy is using a continuous succession of screens, utilizing the outside scoring abilities of Jim Oler, Tom Garcia, Wayne Patton, and Deck Artzner.

The big men, Bob Williams, 6 3", and Garry Wold, 6 7", are used primarily for rebounds. It will be up to them to control the backboards during the forthcoming games.

The first day of practice resulted in Oler, all-conference guard being sidelined with a jammed thumb. The injury is not serious as Jim is back on the court after one day's absence.

"It may slow me up for a week or so, but I'll be ready when we tangle with N. C. State", Jim commented.

Speaking of the Wolfpack, which finished last season as the number 4 team in the nation, they again have the services of 6'9" all-American center Ron Shavlik. Backing him up are Vic Molodet, an all-conference choice and one of the slickest guards in the South, and forward Phil DiBacco. In reserve are a couple of big men 6'11 Bob Speir and 6' 7" Moe Miles.

Tribe Faces Tough Game At Southern

Looking at what Seminole football opponents — past and present—did in games around the nation this past week-end makes even the most rabid Tribe rooter sit up and take note.

Mississippi Southern, the ambitious outfit FSU will meet in Hattiesburg in three weeks, smothered highly rated Abilene Christian College 40-0.

Abilene walked away from the Tribe last year, 13-0, while FSU managed to ease out a 19-18 win over the rugged Southerners.

Tampa, coming up for the Seminoles soon, too, walked off from East Carolina, 33-14, while The Citadel, FSU's Homecoming opponent, scored a 13-7 win over Newberry College.

Meanwhile, Virginia Tech lost to Clemson by a 21-16 margin. Tech edged the Tribe here four weeks ago, 24-20.

And mighty Georgia, the crew that dumped FSU 47-14 here three weeks ago, lost in the traditional Georgia-Florida game 19-13.

Georgia Tech was tied by a fired up Tennessee team, 7-7. Tech walloped the Tribe in Atlanta, 34-0.

Miami beat Boston College, 14-7, Friday night. The Hurricanes were the first to dump FSU this season, by a 34-0 margin also.

North Carolina State, the only other club to fall to FSU besides Villanova, beat Boston University in an impressive way, 40-13.

Comparative scores don't usually mean much, say the oddsmakers — but its always nice to note them.

Needless to say, of the four games remaining on the FSU slate — Furman, The Citadel, Mississippi Southern and Yankee—the Southern clash will be the big one.

Furman, FSU's next opponent, was idle this past week-end.

All organizations wanting to take part in intramural bowling should file applications this wee. The deadline for team rosters is Nov. 15th. Footballs have filled the air in the open spaces of the campus lately as the intramural touch football season opens Dec. 5th.

'Practice Session' Inspires Seminoles

As Democrat Sports Editor McGruder put it, it's now one of the now-can-be-told yarns.

Florida State's football squad had a secret practice session early last week—not just a session the likes of which few other teams have experienced.

FS were something like this:

The Tribe came out for the first practice session of the week last Monday in none too happy mood They'd lost four games in a row.

Nurent had three buses standing by as they came out of the dressing room. Destination time to get aboard.

"It's a secret session today," he said.

The buses drove to a secluded spot, near a field the players were marched into a building.

Once inside the building Nurent announced there would be a change in the normal warm-up procedure. Coach Vince Racanus would not conduct it.

And then, a drape was pulled. On the stage was Larry Smith and his Knights of Swing playing the craziest music one could imagine — "Shake Rattle and Roll," yet.

And so, instead of practice that Monday night, it was a party

And what a party, say they For two hours or more, the Seminoles were all it. They listened to the "crazy" music, they laughed and Nugent even got up and danced and sang for them.

Results?—One happy ball club. The following day, the world came out of the Seminole practice session that they would be no more scrimmage sessions before the Villanova game

New Moon Star Majors In Art

By MARTY REEVES

You don't have to be a music major to be a lead in an operetta. Peter Canfield Peck, starring in "The New Moon" December 7, 8 and 10, is a graduate art student.

A lyric baritone, he plays the part of Alexander in the Sigmund Romberg musical to be presented by the Light Opera Guild in the Woman Auditorium Calling Alexander "the Bohemian concept of a sailor", Peck describes the character as "rather weak and primitive, yet colorful, carefree and experienced."

Some of this might well describe the actor himself, who has traveled not only in Canada but to Europe, where he spent a month on the "left bank" in Paris, "making bad sketches".

Born in Illinois

Born at Highland Park, Illinois, and soon moving to nearby Libertyville Peck says he has been interested in the arts as far back as he can remember.

He began sketching animals at an early age, and at 14, entered Milton Academy in Massachusetts, where he studied voice and painting, was on the wrestling team, played football, and was president of the Glee Club. He was also a member of the Festival Chorus under Wilfred Pelletier. His first role in an operetta came then, too, when he played the lead in Kurt Weill's "Down in the Valley." Then "the gods were kind I graduated," said Peck.

Next Stop

The next stop was Davidson College, where he studied painting with Philip Mosse and voice under Donald Pfohl. Here he also took part in a Spanish Club performance with South American and Mexican setting, because of his five years of Spanish.

His varied interests also included the wrestling team and writing. "The world of letters was happily thrown when I transferred from Davidson," said Peck.

After his junior year, he went to Europe, travelling in France, Italy and Spain. In Paris he studied vocal technique under Charles Panzera and then studied the Bruyeres. He traveled through Italy and Spain sketching everything from Gildeo's candelabra to Bernonda's nose. "I believed a few Verdi arias for the amusement of various Florentine cabaret owners" he added.

On the trip home under the influence of an afternoon full of Martini's he "treated the seasilla to a soliloquy, only made animalistic when I was deterred from visiting Neptune by one of the ship's officers."

At FSU, he has appeared in "Carousel", "Il Trovatore", and "Aida". Beginning graduate work this fall, he has been studying pantomime, sculpture and etching. His extra-curricular activities include zoology, constructing puppets, studying weapons and "driving red jaguars at excessive speeds".

Puppets Featured At Graduate Hour

"The Puppeteers" will be the feature attraction at the Graduate Class Coffee Hour Thursday at 4:30 in the Longmire Lounge.

All graduate students and their children are invited to the show, according to Marvin Rosenblatt, graduate class president.

Making the puppets "come to life" will be Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Vordenberg who originated their show about a year ago, and present it to different Tallahassee civic and school groups.

Performing puppets will include Liberace complete with grand and candelabra, Salome and her veil, a Variety show, and several acts.

The puppets are manipulated by the Vordenbergs out of saw dust, glue, wood, and terry cloth. Salome boasts of tennis ball hips and a glue and sawdust head.

The costuming is done by Mrs. Vordenberg while her husband does the carpentry work. The couple use some records in the act and fill in the rest with their own voices.

What amazes them the most is the reaction the children have towards the puppets. Says Mr. Vordenberg, "The children look upon the puppets as real people, and come up after the show to talk to them and shake their hands."

Neal on the "Puppeteer" schedule is a show for the University Wives.

Leo Tells Why

Wildcat halfback Davey Parr bogged down the other.

Then quarterback Magee snatched one of Leo Seranio's aerials out of the blue and galloped 64 yards to put the visitors in a 13-8 lead, and Seminole hopes took a nosedive.

However, a few minutes later the Wildcats fumbled again and the Tribe was seemingly headed for their first score. Villahoda refused to give in the shadows of their own posts, however, and it looked as if they would get out of it.

Quarterback Magee attempted to hand off to his fullback, though, and what happened then was not exactly clear to most of the fans present.

Baggett came out of the base pileup on the bottom with the football, however, and the Seminoles had themselves a touchdown.

The visitors were not complete by dead, though, as quarterback Johnny Perriullo fired four touchdown completions to move them to the FSU 47. There the Tribe halted the march and a field goal attempt skimmed wide of the uprights.

Corso was undoubtedly the spur in the Wildcats' side, for the speedy Miami back raced to 107 yards in 21 carries, his top performance of the year.

Except for this, however, the visitors held the Tribe ground attack well and the Seminoles were forced to take advantage of key breaks to gain their second tri umph.

However, the backs who ground out the yardage will not be remembered in this one for a 19 year-old sophomore guard from Panama City state the show, and Leo Baggett's first touchdown will long be remembered by the 9,000 fans present.

Alice Sullivan Is 'Miss Gymkana'

The new queen of Gymkana is Alice Sullivan, chosen at Thursday night's performance of "Latino."

She was crowned by Faye Anthony, last year's queen and was presented a 16" trophy by Coyle Moore Jr., student body president, which bears the inscription, "Miss Gymkana, 1955."

Second and third place went to Linda Jones and Joan Zorbaugh. They were awarded medals, while all the members of the court of honor received certificates.

Announces Winners

Jack Miles, master of ceremonies, announced the winners of this year's contest before a capacity crowd at the Women's Gymnasium. The judges, Elsie White, director of publicity, Bob Leigh, director of publications, Mildred Parrish, executive secretary of the Alumni, Ed Whitlesey, director of public relations, and coach Hartley Price, chose the winners on their costume, poise, beauty, charm and over-all co-operation with Gymkana.

Miss Sullivan is 5'6", weighs 120 pounds and is from Bartow, Florida. She has blond hair, green eyes, and is 20 years old. The new queen is a junior here at FSU.

Venezuela Orchids

The new queen represented Venezuela as "Orchids in the Moonlight." Her costume, made of orchid satin, with a flowing skirt was completed with an orchid in her hair.

She becomes the official hostess of Gymkana, and presides at road shows, athletic meets and all gymnastic receptions.

The new Miss Gymkana is a member of ADPi, and was sponsored by her sorority.

Second place went to brown-haired Linda Jones of Daytona Beach. She is the alternate Miss Gymkana, and will reign in the absence of the queen.

Serpent Worshiper

Linda represented a Nicaraguan "Serpent Worshiper," dressed in a costume of red satin, with a gold imitation snake encircling her. Atop her head was a coiled miniature gold snake. The 17-year-old brunette, who is 5'4" tall, weighs 128 pounds and was sponsored by the Kappa Sigma fraternity.

The other alternate is Joan Zorbaugh, a 20-year-old junior from Miami, Florida.

The tall brunette's costume depicting the "Sun Goddess" of Bolivia was made of gold corduroy bedecked with sequins with a gold band around her forehead. Joan is a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority and was sponsored by the Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity.

Seventh Seminar On Job Getting Begins In Week

Florida State University will hold its Seventh Annual Job Getting Seminar beginning Tuesday, November 29.

This year's Seminar, which is sponsored by the Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement, will have an additional feature which has not been attempted before. This new addition to the Seminar will consist of a series of group meetings throughout the day of November 30.

The group meetings are primarily for undergraduate students who wish to know more about certain organizations as well as to investigate the possibilities of summer employment with these organizations.

Out of the thirty-five representatives of business, industry, and government that will be on campus for the Job Getting Seminar, 17 of them have expressed a desire to talk to undergraduate students in a group meeting situation. A schedule for the group meetings will be announced prior to the Seminar although plans have been made to have them conducted from 8 until 5 with one-half hour devoted to each meeting.

'Spread Out'

An attempt will be made to "spread out" the meetings so that the ones that will attract the largest number of students will occur at such time when the interested students will most likely be out of or in a class which will be related to the group being held, thereby making it easier for them to receive a class excuse.

The Seminar will begin Tuesday with a panel discussion followed by a social hour. Panel members include Malcolm B. Johnson, executive editor of the Tallahassee Democrat; Sam E. Myrick, Jr., manager for the The Home and Home Indemnity Insurance Company; Polly Weaver, College and Career Director of Mademoiselle; Marvin S. Thomas, manager of the Jacksonville Beach branch of J. C. Penney Company, Inc.; William Rens, Industrial Relations Officer, and James F. Wilson, branch manager of IBM Corporation.

SIGMA XI MEETS THURSDAY AT 8

Sigma Xi, science honorary, will meet Thursday at 8 p.m. in the science Building.

Dr. Hale Bradt, guest lecturer, will speak on "Circum-Caribbean Anthropology," announces Dr. Seymore Neil, president of Sigma Xi.

SANDSPUR MEETING FLOOR TONIGHT

All interested people who wish to work on Sandspur have been asked to meet in 016 Longmire tonight at 7 p.m.

There will be a veterans meeting in Longmire Auditorium tonight at 8:15 p.m. Main order of business will be the approving of a constitution for the proposed veteran's club.

Eight Chosen To Carry Out 'Center Events

A group of eight students has been formed to plan and carry out Student Center social functions.

Members of the group are Ray Hermann and Bill Pinkett, Interfraternity Council; Mary Frances Hort and Fleeta West, Panhellenic; Lewis McMillan, men's dormitories; Joan Dameron and Pat Van Hynna, womens' dormitories; and Louis Schlitt, bill-canius students.

Called the Soundina Board, the organization was formed in accordance with a suggestion made by Dr. R. R. Oglesby, dean of students.

In previous years, spokesmen said, only sororities and fraternities have been asked to sponsor dances at the Student Center. All groups wishing to present social functions are invited, they said. Music and decorations are paid for by the university and the sponsoring groups have merely to furnish hosts or hostesses, they added. Interested organizations should contact Mrs. D. W. Bateman, Student Center hostess.

TREASURERS' MEETING SCHEDULED TONIGHT

There will be a meeting tonight of all Treasurers of FSU Student Organizations at 5 p.m. in the Longmire Auditorium.

Purpose of the meeting is to acquaint the treasurers with the rules and regulations on fund-raising projects.

Clendinen Named Prexy; 830 Vote

Bill Clendinen edged Gerry Gordon for the office of Freshman Class President Tuesday by a margin of 83 votes.

Other officers elected were: Pat Starnes, vice president; Liz Armes, secretary; Cynthia Lassence, treasurer; Claire Green, social chairman; Pat Finlay, Winnie Mae Douglas and Nancy Space, women's senate.

Altogether there were 830 ballots cast with the votes distributed as follows: President: Bill McClendinen, 450; Gerry Gordon, 367; vice president: Pat Starnes, 490; Jim Billard, 337; secretary: Liz Armes, 465; Ruth Starling, 341; treasurer: Cynthia Lawrence, 423; Charlie Storer, 378; social chairman Claire Green, 539; Pat Rogers, 270; women's senate: Pat Finlay, 449; Winnie Mae Douglas, 424; Nancy Space, 375; Judy Dekle, 369, Barbara Jean Turk, 369.

Installation

Installation of the new officers will be held tonight in the Senate Room, said Betty Wilson, secretary of elections. She added that all candidates elected to office must turn in a final expense statement by 5 o'clock tonight. If they do not they will not receive a Certificate of Election at the installation ceremony.

Miss Wilson pointed out that the expense statement to be turned in tonight is not the same Statement of Expenses the candidates filed when declaring. This one is to be filled out only by those candidates elected to office." The forms, which can be picked up at the director's desk in the Alumni Building, are to be turned in there also.

PHILOSOPHY LECTURE SCHEDULED TONIGHT

Dr. Ben Berkowitz will speak on the "Philosophy of the Social Sciences" when the Philosophy Club meets tonight at 8 p.m. in the Old Demonstration School.

Badge Canvass Planned Tonight

The Junior Class is planning a selling drive tonight in order to raise money for the Junior-Senior Prom.

Class Secretary Pat Hilton said that each dormitory, fraternity and sorority will be canvassed by Juniors selling garnet and gold football badges. Each badge will read "FSU Homecoming 1955" and will bear garnet and gold ribbons with a small golden football at the apex.

The badges will cost 25 cents each, said Miss Hilton, and will be "just the thing" to wear to the Homecoming game Saturday. The fund for this year's Prom is short due to "drastically cut appropriations," she explained, and the Juniors have to raise two or three hundred dollars or there will be no Junior-Senior Prom.

"The Juniors have always given the Seniors a Prom," stated Miss Hilton," and this year will be no exception—we will have a Prom."

Tonight's drive is the beginning of a Junior project to raise enough money to give the Seniors a Prom, she continued. "Help us in your spirit for FSU's Homecoming and help a worthy project by buying one of these colorful souvenirs."

She said that any organization wishing to purchase a quantity of these badges can contact Shirley Morgan, Vice-President of the Kappa Delta house or any other Junior Class officer.

SCULLON MEETING

Tomorrow night, Student lounge, Longmire Building. Initition of new members.

Les Brown Will Appear November 29

Les Brown and his Band of Renown will be presented on campus as a Special Event on Tuesday evening, November 29.

The nationwide Number One band will play two concerts in Westcott Auditorium at 7 o'clock and at 8:45.

Tickets went on sale at the Wes cott Ticket Booth yesterday. They are priced at $1. The hall will be no reserved seats.

Les Brown and his band have come up to No. 1 band in the country on the latest polls taken by Down Beat Magazine, World Billboard and the National Ballroom Operators Association. No other band has won all five polls during the same year.

Band Members

The 18 piece band features Butch Stone on the baritone sax and comedy vocals, Jo Ann Greer on the vocals, Jimmy Brown, younger brother of the leader, on the bass trombone and vocals, and Ray Sims on the trombone.

The band became a part of the Bob Hope radio program in 1946, and it continues to play the Hope program weekly radio show and the weekly television show.

Les Brown recordings are currently one in eight on the jukebox in the country. Under contract now to Capitol, the band has recorded for Decca, Columbia and Coral-ite, along with bond members Frank Comstock and Wes Hensel and Skippy Martin do all the arranging.

Two Are Tapped By ODK Here

Thomas F. Woods and David D. Bachman were tapped by Cinceron Delta Kappa yesterday in a 5:00 ceremony in front of Westcott.

In attendance at the tapping were Jim Woods, ODK president, Bob Cornelius, vice president; Jack Platt, secretary; Graham Carothers, treasurer and Dr. Lewis Killian, faculty adviser. Other undergraduate members present were Coyle Moore and Gordon Gantt.

Thomas Woods was tapped by the society for his leadership in University functions, for his outstanding ability in producing a school yearbook, for his active participation in Student Government, for his displayed leadership in the Air Force ROTC Officers Training Program, and for his scholastic attainment.

David Bachman was tapped for his leadership in student government, for his active service as a member and as a chairman in various student committees, for his active participation in a social fraternal organization, for his participation in debating, and for his scholastic attainment.

Cincerin Gregory Shreefold Flint to recognize men who have attained a high standard of efficiency in collegiate activities and to inspire others to strive for creditable achievement in similar lines.

Secondly, to bring together the most representative men in all phases of collegiate life and thirdly to an organization which will help to mould the sentiment of the institution on questions of local and intercollegiate interest.

And thirdly, to bring together members of the faculty and student body of the institution on a basis of mutual interest and understanding.

Sandspur May Drown

Sandspur, the subject of much student rebellion and little student support for a number of years just may go down for the third time this week and not come up again.

We would like to add some moral and active support to the work of Nancy Cubbon, Jack Rogero, George Goldstein, and Dean of Students R. R. Oglesby who have been working earnestly to rescue Sandspur from the morass of student apathy. This committee has been seeking to design recommendations status for Sandspur and to remove the student production from politics by having the organization elect its own President-Producer.

Another group is also seeking to remove Sandspur from existence this week. A pep rally — in lieu of concert in Westcott auditorium on the weekend for which Sandspur is presently scheduled. Much as we like Mozart, we like the idea of a student-written and student-produced musical comedy or musical drama as the case may be, much more.

Funds have already been appropriated in the student budget for a Sandspur production; last year's cast and the committee named above want to prove that this money was not budgeted for non-existent or dying student interest in the production. These two facts, plus a chance of Sandspur's being produced only on weeknights indicate that the tradition won't completely drown when the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs considers the problem Thursday. But it can be saved by choose.

'Law' Breeds Own Disrespect

Organized crime flourishes in the cities only when the authorities permit. The cause is the same for the unorganized, but more insidious, subversion of moral and legal principles that has occurred in Lake County.

The home of Allen Platt, whose children were thrown from school by a mob last year and by a sheriff who said they looked Negro, was attacked by persons unknown and set afire in the past week.

This is not the first time the Platts have been intimidated. Nor will it probably be the last. They were foolish enough to take their case to courts of law. Law — as determined by due process — is not welcome in Lake County.

And what about the children who signed petitions in behalf of the Platts last year. Some of them were ostracized for their courage. Stoned by fellow students whose environment was suffused with the law of the jungle.

The course recently ruled the Platt children eligible to attend white schools in Lake County. The attitude of violence engendered by Sheriff Willis McCall and bullied the schools into expelling them; at first manifested itself in this latest attack.

Law, as we see it, is equal protection and equal responsibility for all citizens. Any public official who ignores his duty in preserving this function is guilty of nonfeasance of office and should be removed by whatever authority can do so. The Governor of the State of Florida has that power.

Not Outdone

Writer Praises 'Ambitious' Season

By DAVID WARD-STEINMAN

The University Symphony launched an ambitious season Friday night in Westcott Auditorium, under the direction of Robert Sedore. For the first time, outstanding student soloists are being given an opportunity to perform with the orchestra. This very commendable plan will result in at least two extra concerts during the season.

Featured soloist on the concert Friday night were Martha Kay Willis, soprano, Wendell Barthold, tenor, and Larry Simmons, pianist. The orchestra opened the program with the Beethoven 'Coriolan' Overture. Miss Willis was spirited, but the phrases and woodwinds were not always precise in their attacks.

The orchestra more than redeemed itself, however, in its superb backing of the two vocalists. Barthold and Willis' 'Gethsemane Love Song" by Wagner, proved again that Barthold is one of the outstanding talents in the school. He never dropped a phrase, and kept the line wing continuously. Miss Willis, singing the difficult Weber aria 'Ocean, Thou Mighty Monster' gave an impressive performance, singing in, around, and over the orchestra, as the music demanded.

THE FIRST movement of Beethoven's Third Piano Concerto was brilliantly and thoroughly played by Larry Simmons. The audience responded warmly, giving Simmons an ovation, at it did Barthold.

After the intermission, the orchestra returned to play the Franck 'Symphony in D minor," showing careful rehearsal and preparation. Sedore is to be commended for his hand work. The balance between orchestra and soloists was almost perfect.

James Staples one of the finest pianists in this school or any school gave a program Saturday night that would have challenged a Horowitz. He opened the program with 'Alla Marcia' from the Partita in D Major. Always difficult to play and continued with the Mozart 'Rondo in C Major," K386. The Mozart demands an absolutely precise and 'clean' technique, in short. It is impossible to fudge anything, and that is why Mozart is played so infrequently.

THE FINAL challenge, however, came in two of the most difficult pieces in the piano literature. Ravel's 'Gaspard de la Nuit' a three-movement suite based impressionistically on Mallarme poems and Liszt's one-movement 'Sonata in B Minor' in the 'Gaspard' Ravel determined to write a virtuoso work, and stopped at nothing in his technical demands. Each movement. "Ondine," "Le Gibet" and "Scarbo," has its own problems, the "Scarbo" being fantastically difficult to play accurately and convincingly. Nothing seemed to bother Staples, though, and he played with power and conviction, equally at home in pianissimo as he was in fortissimo. His Liszt was superb. he played with such vigor that he broke a string, yet continued imperturbably in the best Romantic tradition. Needless to say, his recital was one of the most exciting to be heard in a long time.

Letters To The Editor

(THE FLORIDA FLAMBEAU welcomes letters to the editor on any topic, and provides this space for student opinion. The letters do not have to coincide with the views of the paper, but must be in good taste. Unsigned letters will not be printed, but names will be withheld upon request. Letters should not exceed 250 words, or 75 typewritten lines. Letters exceeding the limit may be printed, but may be cut at the discretion of the editor.)

'Off-Key' Gripe

TO THE EDITOR:

I have never written a letter to the Flambeau, but I honestly feel that most of the students agree with your "Letters" to the Editor" column can be effectively resolved by the administration. But two events this past weekend have given impetus to a gripe I have long had, and I feel something must be said.

The two events to which I refer are the Friday evening symphony concert, and the Saturday night Summitt pianist concert. Both of these events have featured a level of artistry rarely to be seen in university auditoria. This is largely due to the fact that this town and the fine music school in the south—one of the finest in the nation. That the music school should subject them to play one on we of the worst pianos in recent use is highly unfortunate.

The instrument in Westcott on which Larry played, has a tinny, wiry, acoustic quality and feels under the fingers like so much clay. The Steinway in Opperman is about to fall apart, and took another step toward that inevitable end during the last number on Jim's program when a string broke with a clang and fell out of the piano.

I understand from talking with certain faculty members that the situation arose quite unintentionally, and I believe them. No university of our standing would not furnish its students with a piano fair-ly decent piano. I beg the administration to look into this something will be done. When Jim and Larry are two of the most outstanding pianists in the world as they undoubtedly will be they will do far more credit to the school than the football team, the band, the circus, or any other organizations which receive an out-sized proportion of university funds. It is unforgivable that they leave not one decent concert grand on which to play.

Consideration Should Replace Rules

By CLYDE WARD

Did the University goof ?

With all the laws, codes and by-laws encircling around the student body, it seems like something was inadequate. Another FSU student got some pretty unfavorable publicity for himself—See page four for details.

Should we suggest another rule to cover the incident? No! Let's get out of the clutter of details for a couple of minutes and take a broad look at this situation.

PRECEDENT SEEMS to indicate that when something goes trouble, or is expected to give trouble around the campus a rule against it is the answer? Or is it the seat of our trouble?

Most of the rules are made, we would presume, to protect the student, thereby protecting the good name of the school. Or vice versa. The administration says that the responsibility of personal conduct from the person and place of the responsibility rests with the student.

No doubt the University is happy to take the responsibility of the conduct of 6,000 students, but there's a problem involved. The administration is considerably outnumbered by students—because it's impossible for 6,000 students to be under supervision all the time.

SCHOOL is already a big job for the student is likely to develop the attitude "If there's no rule against it, then it's O. K." This can be somewhat unhealthy. The University couldn't foresee that a rule would be necessary about buzzing the town in a "borrowed" police car, or practicing the manly art of self-defense on

Tallahassee's police force.

Everything else seems to be covered pretty thoroughly. When the new student checks at the University he receives a booklet that, a sheet of typewriter paper, filled with fine print is almost enough to require a few minutes reading time.

So the new student reads enough to make conditions worse. He's the kid who will starts making his own rules. His rule's are based on experience for the other people in the dorm, rather than words printed on a sheet of paper.

WHAT ABOUT just one rule "Be considerate of your fellow man and the University property in which you are entrusted"? Any sentence would cover pretty thoroughly all things that you like to cover. Provision for the individual dorms could be worked out between the residence counselor and the students.

For instance, at present South Cawthon uses a new lightbulb every time one is broken or uncrated until the University decides whether it should go in the parlor or the rec room. How the University's better than its people living there where it will be most efficient is hard to figure.

No the University's not to blame when somebody sees guns—ho on a party. More about the personal damage—and how much it costs—to rules would be a good-sized step in the right direction.

Time for a policy change. Let the students be men and women instead of 6000 puppets dangled around by one master string.

TROUBLESOME MASCOT

WHEATON, ILL. — AC) — Wheaton newspaper office is supposed to have a mascot. But a staff of the Wheaton College Record is saddled with one that's proving to be a headache.

The mascot is a white mouse named Minnie who took up residence in the Record office some time ago. At first, Minnie was considered a pet, but Minnie chose another of the staff's desks to be her home. Rosa Lee Spezialetti, Minnie's mistress, said Minnie thinks the Record was cut out for her personal use. It's her office, she says.

They call the machine back where Minnie composes, "Minnie's Mouse Organ." Minnie prefers paper scraps to the finer workings of an office typewriter. As the mouse's life is also the staff's, they've decided to let her live. That was agreed on, however, only after the staff couldn't use the radio for fear of electrocuting Minnie.

That was solved when Minnie discovered the record player. But the mouse went right back to the typewriter and, so far, hasn't revealed all of her secrets. Nor has she revealed her sex. In fact, she was mean enough to the staff to scatter wood trim to feed her. As a result, the Record is still out a typewriter and the management says it's looking for some boy mouse who might be able to lure Minnie from her mechanical abode.

THE SPEEDER'S SONG

CINCINNATI, OHIO — ACP) —The Xavier University News recently printed the advice especially for people with a heavy foot on the gas pedal. It's entitled "Slow While You Drive."

At 45 miles per hour, sing:
"Highways are happy days."
At 55 miles per hour, sing:
"I'm but a stranger here"
A 65 miles per hour, sing:
"Near my God, to Thee."
At 75 miles per hour, sing:
"When the roll is called up yonder, I'll be there."
At 85 miles per hour, sing:
"Lord, I'm coming home."

ONE VIEW OF A COLLEGE

MORGANTOWN, W. VA — "College life's the greatest years of your life," sighed the old grad, "rah, rah, rah!"

"Yeah," sighed the young woman, "I learn a little something on the campus, but this is odd: according to my college life drives this thought home to me."

What do most people go to college in the first place for? Four years of "college life" of course, and the old "rah, rah, rah!" Scott Fitzgerald wrote a "Freshman" or "collegiate" novel on how fun quote the "Alma Mater" and "We're a Touchdown" to enthusiastic alumni.

It is time for the old fogies to realize that this is not an age of books and learning. This is the age of mass production spirits and enforced freshman rules.

There Is No Justice In Missisippi

By JEROME BERNSTEIN

". . . The Emmett Till kidnap-slaying case is closed, a prosecutor said Thursday, but the rest over Mississippi justice" stirred up by the Negro boy's fate rages on."

It is unfortunate that the Till kidnap-slaying had to occur in the south, where racial discrimination is turned on and off like a water faucet. Regardless of the geography involved, however, a gross insult to United States justice has been committed.

A GRAND JURY of 20 white men refused to indict Roy Bryant 24 and J. W. Milam 36, on charges of kidnapping 14 year old Emmett Till whom they had already been acquitted of murdering. The fact that the body of the boy had been identified by his mother was ignored by the first jury but how the second jury could acquit in the face of all kidnapper is beyond logical comprehension. Particularly since both men admitted kidnaping the boy at gunpoint.

As much as the prosecution tried to admit it, it appears that some of the local newspapers do service in their reporting of the case. The Greenwood Morning Star defended the grand jurors as "men who know justice and can balance it against the facts decently."

"Till attempted to molest Mrs. Bryant, grabbed her and made indecent proposals" Reid Viral Adams wrote. "Where is there a husband worthy of the name who would not protect his wife?"

"Had Bryant been present and slain Till on the spot there would not be a grand jury in the South who would have indicted him, and not many in the nation."

It is unfortunate that Editor Adams is not voicing his belief in their guilt but condoning their crime. This is the type of reporting and writing which in many cases is often used as a last means of defense

Soviets Forcing Middle East Crisis

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

It is wrong to view the latest Middle East crisis as just another outbreak of Arab-Israeli conflict. The Soviet Union is casually in and exploiting it as a master strategic coup.

We are only hazy on Kremlin diplomacy, or tactic, tools the tempters. It seems that the Kremlin wants a war in the Near East.

Most competent analysts think the staggering magnitude of atomic science has made the kind of warfare unthinkable for any nation as aggressor or defender, who would hope to salvage the fruits of victory. We cannot, however, include ourselves into thinking our Soviet rivals will be satisfied with what they have.

If a war in the Middle East, fought with relatively obsolete weapons are as high on the human life, can be brought about, it would be the Kremlin's golden opportunity to interfere We can best conclude the Soviet true want to come out of such a battle with Israel, Jordan, Egypt, Iran, Saudi Arabia, Iraq and all the others as protectorates, or even weaker satellites.

THEY WOULD thus be situated in the center of the world—between the East and the West in possession of one third of the world's crude oil reserves, in sole ownership of the principal water routes, entrenched in still more formidable land.

We do not welcome prospects of Korea on a grander scale. But it will be no Indo-China of doubtful choice; it will be no Quemoy of minor importance. It will be our future in the next century at stake.

Much Ado . . .

Nothing still stop the arms race. The western powers are not going to idly watch while the communists arm any nation, particularly when the intended victim is one which has previously enjoyed the sponsorship of the west.

We can only hope that diplomacy, or tactic, cools the tempers. It seems that since Kremlin wants a war in the Near East.

Plans Series On Musical Oddities

By WILJOHN

It is often quite humorous to find the weird and totally unexpected things that happen in the world of music. You can wander among the archives of music history and be continually amazed and amused at the things you can find there. Although many efforts have ever been done to affect the world in some way or other has had an effect on music.

All the emotions and feelings of people from the beginning of time can be traced there. Some are grim and dramatic, others are humorous. And the truly amazing thing is this: No matter what kind of a person you are or how you feel, you can always find yourself somewhere in music. There is a piece of music that fits your every mood at any time.

IN THE not-to-distant future, I shall be doing a column or series of columns on the odd and unusual in the world of music. I would like to hear of some of the things you would like to have me write about. Let me know either via campus mail 'Box 152' or leave a message at the Flambeau office please with your name and address in case there is anything I'd like to question you about in regard to your question.

. . . . .

ONE OF THE most amusing things I've run run across lately is the origin of two very well-known songs. Did you know that 'The Battle Hymn of the Republic' was written by a Southerner and the one-and-only "DIXIE" was the product of a man from Vermont? I'm not going to let it be the least surprised if someone comes up to me and proves that Cole Porter wrote "America."

I THINK THE world must be coming to an end. I still haven't heard "Sixteen Tons." All the record stores are sold out, and the juke-box I've found with the feel thing on it is tuned too low to hear it. Won't someone please bring me their record so I can hear the thing that everyone has been raving about?

It has been rather a disappointment to me that, in the midst of the countries current hits some crap, Bill Hayes' recording of the song "Blue Suede Hair" has gone virtually ignored while the flip side, a trite and trivial bit of insinuation titled "Ten Gallon Derry" has attracted quite a bit of notice.

"BLUE SUEDE HAIR" is done in the walking-ballard style with guitar accompaniment at the beginning, swelling to full orchestra toward the end. The whole thing manages to keep the soft, almost plaintive sustenuto in ballards, which, in the musical parlance usually been associated with Harry Belafonte It is decorated with a few well meant chuckles and forth from music to major modes these add to, rather than detract from, the song. You will surely read me giving a wide sob such a build, but why not give it a listen and see if you don't agree. Don't be like the people and never listen to a thing once you have heard and liked the one sold of a waffle.

From The Sidelines

By Pierce Lehmbeck
Sports Editor

IT'S NICE

As Alan Whitmarsh says in his story of the FSU-Furman game this past Friday night, "Victory is a great thing."

The Tribe has won two in a row now. The Citadel is next. The Charleston, S. C. school lost this past weekend to a VMI squad, 14-7.

The only way to draw any comparative scores between FSU and The Citadel is to look at Furman. The Tribe routed the Purple Hurricane, 19-6.

The Citadel eased by, 25-19.

It'll be Homecoming at FSU when The Citadel moves in this weekend. And we can't be anything but optimistic for a third successive Tribe victory.

Two more to win.

LINEUP CHANGES

Fans who have been following the Tribe fairly closely this season have noticed a few changes in the lineup recently.

Against Furman, for example, Troy Barnes was at a tackle position due to injuries to starters Don Powell and Bill Proctor. Big Hobo Ackerman, usually a reserve center, was working from a guard slot.

Then, too—and this was a surprise to many—fullback Joe Holt was calling offensive signals while quarterback Vic Primm sat on the bench.

Here's the way coach Tom Nugent explained these changes at a request that they be held from publication early last week:

Said Nugent: "We've been contemplating the move of Barnes from his reserve center post for a long time. He's a good boy and he has plenty of ambition. I wouldn't be too surprised if he becomes a permanent fixture at a tackle."

It was a sincere remark Nugent made about Barnes starting at tackle, but the regular center Bob Crenshaw suffered an injured hand during the Furman contest which might necessitate the moving of Barnes back to the pivot post.

And of Ackerman, Nugent said: "We needed a little more size at the guard spots, and Hobo is too good a boy not to be getting plenty of action."

Of Holt calling signals when Primm is in the lineup, "Vic is a good quarterback. He's a mechanical man—a fast mover, a good passer and he's plenty deceptive. But he sometimes moves too fast. Joe Holt is exactly the opposite. He's quite easy going on the field.

We figured we'd just experiment against Furman with Holt calling the signals. That way, Vic could just go back in the backfield, take it easy, scratch his ear and just be his mechanical self in handling the club after things got moving."

And against Furman, the idea certainly worked.

Primm turned in his best single performance of the year—gaining 83 yards in ten carries for an 8.3 average per run. On pass or his sports, he tore loose for 32 yards. And on top of his best running performance, the 19-year-old sophomore completed six of ten tosses.

We think it was a fine idea.

Senior Hall Wins Cage Title; Tennis Finals Set This Week

Senior Hall became the 1955 campus basketball champions by beating A.T.O. 46-40 at Florida High gym last Thursday night before a slim crowd.

The dorm team used the ironman act to gain the title, with the five starters playing the whole game.

Senior Hall took a lead of 2-0 in the first minute and never looked behind from there on. The work of Jim Atwood in the rebounds and under the basket kept ATO in the contest. He gained 16 points for the night to be high man.

The outside pot-shots of little George Register also kept ATO in the running as he shipped in five long shots during the contest.

Senior Hall was out front 10-7 at the quarter, 21-12 at the half, and 33-24 at the third quarter. This 9 point lead melted to 33-28 with 8 minutes left as Bud Williamson tore in for two baskets.

With only 2:24 left to play Atwood and Beaurle had brought it to 38-34, and at that point ATO blew two easy layup shots that would have put them even.

The final game of the campus season is scheduled for tomorrow night at 7:30 p.m. at the West Campus Gym when a selected all-star dorm team and all-star frat team will clash. Bob Jones of ATO will direct the frat all-stars and Wilson Revell of Senior Hall the dorm stars.

Frat Champs

Alpha Tau Omega is the new fraternity basketball champion of the FSU campus by virtue of their 33-34 victory over Phi Delta Theta last Tuesday night at the Florida High School gym.

This afternoon at 4 p.m. the dorm tennis championships in both singles and doubles is up for grabs.

It looks like Ben Torpey of the West Hall Powerhouse Club has the inside track for the singles title as he has breezed through the preliminary rounds while losing only one game in 3 matches.

Adams and Fisher gained their way into the finals by beating the Meinodist team 8-4, 8-6, after having swept through Senior Hall and the Penthouse teams easily.

The fraternity finals are set for tomorrow at 3:45 p.m. on the varsity courts with Sonny Sellers the favorite in the singles as the Sigma Nu's have a chance at it title they have not won for some years.

In fact PDT holds the trophy but Sellers upset the done last Wednesday when he wal-

Second-Half Scores Produce Victory In 'Topcoat Weather'

By ALAN WHITMARSH

The Florida State Seminoles are rapidly finding out that victory can be a very satisfying thing.

After a temporary 30-minute detour, the Seminole program to finish the current season with five straight victories swung into high gear last Friday night.

Held to a 6-6 standoff at halftime, the Tribe gridders struck for two scores in the second half to down winless Furman, 18-6 at Greenville, S.C., in topcoat weather.

The triumph was the second straight for the Seminoles and increased their hopes of a winning season, giving them currently a 3-4 mark.

The Furman team which fared FSU was anything but the one which had been battered from goal to goal for seven straight losses previously.

The Purple Hurricanes struck for an 83-yard pass play early in the contest to set up a score, when Jim Christy blasted over to give them a 6-0 margin.

In the second period the Tribe, fighting 34-degree cold as well as the fired up Furmans, fought back 63 yards to knot the count, with Joe Holt hitting pay dirt from a yard out.

Early in the third period, Furman began to make mistakes and the Seminoles rushed in. Ronnie Schomburger grabbed a fumble at the Canes 34 and the Tribe was in scoring position.

An aerial from Vic Primm to Schomburger set things up at the 11 and halfback Bill Weaver took a gridiron around end for the necessary yardage to put the Tribe in front.

The Furman team was far from dead, however, as quarterback Jim Boyle began to puncture the Seminoe passing defense and aerials carried them to the FSU 38.

A 15-yard penalty and a locals in hot water.

Boyle's aerials kept the fighting Purple Hurricanes in contention most of the way, but they were destined to leave the field a loser for the eighth straight time.

The Seminoles have apparently a finish for their victorious string as a tough Citadel team prepares to move in for the annual Homecoming celebration.

Midway in the final quarter the Tribe drove for the last time, with Lee Corso capping a 59-yard drive with a scoring picture from five yards out.

The Purple Hurricanes determinedly fought back but it was all over but the shouting as another penalty cut off their drive at the FSU 45.

The Seminoles ground out 251 yards on the ground, while the Tribe forwards hailed their opponents to a mere 66 but once again pass defense kept the

What young people are doing at General Electric

Young engineer decides what colors are best for G-E reflector lamps

Which color of light makes people look natural? should a blue light be used more often than a red? What kind of effect does a violet light have on merchandise?

In recent years, color lighting has become so important in stores, restaurants, theaters, and displays that General Electric developed a line of new easy-to-use color-reflector lamps for this market.

The man responsible for deciding which colors are most effective for users of these lamps is 29-year-old Charles N. Clark, Application Engineering Color Specialist for General Electric's large lamp department.

Clark's Work Is Interesting, Important

In a recent series of tests, Clark made a critical appraisal of literally hundreds of color-filter materials to find the ones that produced maximum results but were still suitable to high-production techniques, practical stocking and simplified selling. This experimental work also had to take into account all the information on human perception of color.

25,000 College Graduates at General Electric

When Clark came to General Electric in 1949, he already knew the work he wanted to do. Like each of the 25,000 college-graduate employees, he was given his chance to grow and realize his full potential. For General Electric has long believed this: When heads, young minds are given freedom to make progress, everybody benefits—the individual, the company, and the country.

CHARLES N. CLARK joined G-E in 1949 after receiving his B.S. and M.S. (at U.E.) from the University of Wisconsin. He served two years with the Navy during World War II.

HERE'S A HIT — LUCKY DROODLES!

WHAT'S THIS? For solution see paragraph below.

YOU ALWAYS COME OUT ON TOP when you light up a Lucky, because Luckies are tops for taste. Luckies taste better because Lucky Strike means fine tobacco . . . mild, mellow tobacco that's toasted to taste even better. The men in the Droodle above have come out on top, too —in more ways than one. The Droodle is titled: Convention of baldheaded men smoking Luckies. Follow their shining example: light up a Lucky yourself. You'll say it's the best-tasting cigarette you ever smoked!

THE TRUE AND TRAGICAL TALE OF HAPPY JACK SIGAFOOS

Who would have thought that Happy Jack Sigafoos, the boy the sky never rained on, would ever teeter on the edge of a life of crime?

Certainly there was no sign of it in his boyhood. His home life was most tranquil and uplifting. His mother was a nice plump lady who hummed a lot and gave baskets to the poor. His father was a highly respected citizen who could implant more than four hundred bird calls and once saved an elderly widow from drowning in his good suit. (That is, Mr. Sigafoos was in his good suit; the elderly widow was in swimming trunks.)

Happy Jack's life was nothing short of idyllic—until he went off to college.

In college Happy Jack quickly became a typical freshman—tweedy, seedy, and needy. He learned the joys of rounding out his personality, and he learned the cost. His allowance vanished like dew before the morning sun. There were times, it grieves me to report, when he didn't even have enough for a pack of Philip Morris—and you know how miserable that can be! To be deprived of Philip Morris's gentle flavor, its subtly blended tastiness, its trauma-repairing mildness, its ineffable excellence—why, it is a prospect to break the heart in twain!

Happy Jack tried to get more money from home. He wrote piteous and impassioned letters pointing out that the modern large-capacity gut simply could not be maintained on his meagre allowance. But all Jack got from home were tiresome homilies about thrift and prudence.

Then one day a sinister sophomore came up to Jack and said, "I know how you can get more money from home," Jack said, "How?" and the sinister sophomore handed him a sheet of paper. "For one dollar," said the sinister sophomore, "I will sell you that list of fiendishly clever lies to tell your father when you need extra money."

Jack read the list of fiendishly clever lies:

1. A bunch of us fellows are getting together to buy a new house for the Dean of Men.

2. A bunch of us fellows are getting together to buy a headstone for Rover, our late, beloved dormitory watchdog.

3. A bunch of us fellows are getting together to buy the college a new fullback.

4. A bunch of us fellows are getting together to endow a chair of the arts.

5. A bunch of us fellows are getting together to build our own spare satellite.

For a moment, poor Jack was tempted; surely his father could not but support all these worthy causes. Then Jack's good upbringing came to the fore. He turned to the sinister sophomore and said, "No, thank you. I could not deceive my aged parent so. And as for you, sir, I can only say—Fie!"

Upon hearing this, the sinister sophomore broke into a huge grin. He whipped off his black hat and pasty face—and who do you think it was? None other than Mr. Sigafoos, Happy Jack's father, that's who!

"Good lad," cried Mr. Sigafoos. "You have passed your test brilliantly." With that he gave Happy Jack a check for a half million dollars and a red convertible containing four nubile maidens.

Crime does not pay!

The makers of Philip Morris, sponsors of this column, would not agree more. But we'll tell you what does pay—smoking America's gentle cigarette . . . new Philip Morris, of course!

Delta Tau Delta Planning Coup Of H'coming Prizes

Hush, hush is the word around the Delta Tau Delta house while they are working on their homecoming decorations.

The Delts say that their house and floor decorations are going to be the best in originality and will include ideas not seen on most college campuses before.

This year's skit is entitled "Super-sonic Nugents In Perils of the Cadet Invaders." Last year the Delts took first place for their skit, "Gene Autobry."

Letters have been sent to Delt Alumni and friends inviting them to attend Homecoming festivities which include a buffet supper and dance Saturday night at the shelter.

THETA CHI

Hot dogs, marshmellows and other goodies were served last Saturday night at a woods party given by the Theta Chi pledges.

The same night, Brother Tom Woods lost his pin to Jayleen Robertson. Tom received his pin in the mail Saturday morning in time to give it to Jay on her birthday. Jack Verble recently pinned Nancy Ford, and the chapter wishes to congratulate the two couples.

CHI O

Dressed as "Bohemians" the Sigma Chis and the Chi Omegas joined together for a Greenwich Village party last week Thursday night. The Chi O's gave a Monte Carlo party for the Theta Chis.

FSU Student Is Charged With Theft

A Florida State University student was charged with auto theft at Tallahassee police station Saturday night when he was found driving a stolen police car.

The stolen police car, which was recovered about five minutes after it was reported stolen, had been called to 410 Calhoun street to check on a disturbance. While the patrolmen were checking on the disturbance, the car was taken. Another police car, which arrived at the scene later, broadcast the theft on his car radio.

Three minutes later, the car came by police headquarters. Patrolman James Pinch, on foot outside the building, reported this to the desk sergeant. Two minutes later, two officers in another squad car stopped the car at Jefferson and Copeland streets, near the University campus.

The student "came out fighting", according to patrolmen Henry Crawford and John Miller, who made the arrest. They had to "manhandle" him to subdue him, one of the officers said.

According to the student, the event happened after a fraternity beer party at "blue sink" south of the city. Later, some of the students came back to a rooming house in town, where one of the brothers lived.

Later, three of the boys got in the police car, thinking that it was another brother's auto. Realizing their mistake, two of the students jumped out. The remaining student couldn't decide what to do, so he started towards the FSU campus.

After his apprehension, the desk sergeant called Dean Carr, telling him of the incident.

In a cooperative meeting between Police Chief Frank Sousa meyer and Dr. Carr an arrangement was worked out yesterday allowing the case to be handled by collegiate authorities.

Dean Carr revealed that the student will probably be put on full academic probation.

In Pi Kappa Phi

Peggy Ann Fernald, a Phi Mu who transferred this year from Wesleyan is the recently elected Pi Kappa Phi Queen. She was named Pi Kappa Queen at a dance held for the pledge class at the home of Dr. Clemenza, alumnus.

SIGMA NU

'Movie Scene' To Be Shown At Halftime

An American movie scene is the central theme of the halftime show of the 1955 Homecoming Game.

The contest between the Florida State Seminoles and the Citadel Bulldogs begins at 2:30 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 19.

As the show opens, the News of the day is just beginning, with the band forming a newsreel camera. As the news begins to take shape a house damaged in a severe hurricane is portrayed as the roof is blown off by the force of the wind.

Final Heat

The final news item of the evening is the formation of a giant alligator, which ends the first section of the show.

According to Stanley Whitcomb, director of the Marching Chiefs, the cartoon of the evening is demonstrated by the portrayal of Sylvester, the Cat, and Tweety Pie, his little bird friend.

The highlight of the Homecoming Halftime Show is the formation of a giant pumpkin to represent the movie "Cinderella." "From the center of this magic pumpkin the 1955 Homecoming Queen and her royal court will emerge in all their crowning glory," revealed Whitcomb.

The grand finale of the show is the formation of a giant battleship as the Marching Chiefs of Florida State University end the 1955 Homecoming Half time Production with the famous number from "Hit the Deck," "Hallelujah."

The General Culture Test required of all juniors and seniors is scheduled for Monday, Dec. 12 in Westcott Auditorium. The time will be 7 p.m.

SPEAKS AT CONFERENCE
Howard Pyle

Pyle Keynotes Relations Meet

Howard Pyle, member of President Eisenhower's White House Staff and former governor of Arizona, will be the keynote speaker for the opening program of Florida State University's Homecoming Celebration, Nov. 18-19.

Dr. Doak S. Campbell, president of the university, made the announcement today. He said on this program, a first Florida Conference on Federal-State Relations, was suggested by Gov. LeRoy Collins. Members of the cabinet, the supreme court and legislature have been especially invited to attend.

Pyle will discuss the report made to the President in June by the Commission on Inter-Governmental Relations, established by Act of Congress two years earlier.

Congressman Bob Sikes of the third district will preside at the conference. Gov. Collins and Dr. Campbell will speak briefly. Following Pyle's address, he will participate in a panel discussion on "The Government's Role in Education."

National and state speakers on the panel will be John B. Rackley, deputy commissioner of education, representing the State Department of Health, Education and Welfare in Washington; Thomas D. Bailey, state superintendent of public instruction, Tallahassee.

Fred Kent of Jacksonville, chairman of the Board of Control, Sam M. Gibbons of Tampa, member of the Florida House of Representatives and chairman of the committee on education; Merriam Hartwick Tryston of Silver Spring, Md., chairman of the Commission on Human Resources.

After the panel discussion, there will be a question and answer and further discussion period, open to all present.

Forty-One Floats Highlight Parade

Forty-one organizations will be represented in the annual Homecoming Parade this afternoon, which starts at 3 p.m.

Florida State University President Doak S. Campbell and guests will lead this year's parade, followed by a color guard of the Air Force ROTC. Next in line come the FSU band, FSU cheerleaders, and the Queen's Float following.

According to Robert Brannsael, Homecoming Parade Chairman, the route of the parade, which includes floats, cars, and bands, begins at the corner of Copeland and Jefferson streets down College to Adams, where it will turn south to Pensacola. From there it will maintain its course east to Monroe, north down Monroe to Jefferson where the parade will disband.

Announced Tonight

Awards for the Most Beautiful and the Most Original floats will be announced at the Pow Wow tonight. The winning floats and the Queen's float will be shown as a part of the festivities. These floats will also be a part of tomorrow's pregame activities.

The Float Decorations Judging Committee this year consists of Dr. James McDonough, chairman; Mrs. O. C. Collins, Mrs. H. H. Bluestein, Mrs. W. T. Moore Jr., Mrs. John Madigan, Mrs. J. C. Hall, Miss Florence Keys, Mrs. Ed Glass, Patsy Pascal, and Bunn Gray.

Participants

In the order of their position other organizations participating in this FSU tradition include Alpha Chi Omega, Kappa Delta, Pi Kappa Phi, Delta Gamma Pi Kappa Alpha Lambda Chi Alpha, Delta Delta Delta, Alpha Omicron Pi, Delta Zeta, Sigma Kappa, Phi Mu, Florida High Band Alpha Gamma Delta, Gamma Phi Beta, Sigma Alpha Iota, car Industrial Arts Club, Dames Club car, Alpha Delta Pi, Zeta Tau Alpha, Phi Delta Theta, Delta Tau Delta, International Club car, Chi Omega, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Kappa Alpha, Alpha Xi Delta, Pi Beta Phi, Seminole Boosters, Kappa Alpha Theta, Sigma Chi, Phi Mu Alpha, Sigma Nu, Phi Kappa Tau, Alpha Tau Omega, Sigma Phi Epsilon, Sigma Nu with Gymkana ending with a float and three cars.

All floats will assemble at 1:30 p.m. at the East side of Doak S. Campbell, which they will leave at 2:30 p.m.

Judges Inspect Homecoming 'Decor' Today

House decorations will be inspected early this afternoon and again tonight, with the judges decisions announced during the football game tomorrow. Campus Decorations Judging Committee Chairman Ivan Johnson said yesterday.

Johnson said that between 35 and 40 entries will compete for prizes in five categories. Some of them are the cleverest we've ever had," he said.

The committee will make its first tour from 12:30 to 3 this afternoon and observe the decorations at night from 8:30 to 11:30.

Johnson said entries will be judged on four points "clarity of idea, originality, effectiveness of execution, and appropriateness for occasion."

Good Taste

Decorations must be in good taste to stand a chance at winning, he warned. He added the committee will expect more from the contestants if a large amount of money has been spent.

First, second, and third prizes will be awarded in each of the following categories: men's residence halls, women's residence halls, sororities, fraternities, and non-resident student groups such as religious houses.

Lack of Faith

Referring to past occasions on which disappointed organizations have loudly voiced lack of faith in the judges, Johnson requested, "I hope we have good sportsmanship."

Others on the judging committee are Mrs. Rainey Cawthon, Louis Shores, Mrs. Colin English, Mrs. Arthur Rushing, Mrs. Ben Bridges, Mrs. James Graham, Mrs. Ben Willis, Mrs. Sam Mooney, Mrs. Agnes Harrison Frisbee, and Tommy Sands. Student body president Colyn Moore is expected to appoint another student to the committee.

It's Not Enough

The "towering pines" do not tower as greatly as they once did. Geometry and mathematics have lessened their physical height in comparison with the newest construction of steel and concrete.

The fictional "Gothic spires" no longer exist, not even in imagination—the Alma Mater seems to have outgrown the early twentieth and late nineteenth century jejunicals. It has put on the sleek lines of economy and mass education.

But these changes should not come as a surprise to alumni. The physical plant of the University has of necessity heeded the insistent voice of numerical growth. But these new structures will in turn be the nostalgic memories of the youth who walks the campus today.

There is but one facet of a University to which permanence should lay claim—the spirit of freedom in the educational process, and while Alumni cannot stay the upcoming of the ivy, they have an obligation to stunt the growth of diploma-mill processes which, if continued at their present rate, will bring Florida's universities down another notch in national standing.

By 1970, the Council for the Study of Higher Education in Florida announced last year, Florida's universities must be equipped to house the 106,000 students who will seek admission. But adequate housing and classroom space alone is not the answer—such physical plants alone cannot guarantee the individual student an adequate education.

Between the years 1930 and 1950 there was an increase of 561 per cent in Florida college enrollment, a percentage increase which far outdistances that in any of the other states. As the Council pointed out, "In times of expanding enrollments, there may be a tendency to place emphasis on quantitative development in neglect of qualitative improvements. This requires a deliberate effort to strive for quality, or mediocrity will become a standard."

The problems of mass education appear easily solved to some when viewed with Orwellian 1984 concepts. And much as we hate to admit it, Orwell's preview may not be as far from possibility as others may consider it. The danger is eminent, yet too many incidents threatening the freedom of class discussion have gone unchanged.

We hold ourselves responsible to the ideals set forth at the beginning of this year in which we defined the University as an institution for the preservation and dissemination of knowledge that encourages its students to explore the new brick as well as the ivy-covered. It endeavors to let its students think themselves into maturity and does not meet their challenges for them; it promotes as well as defends civil rights, and its outlook is not limited to the narrow confines of its physical plant, but is as broad as the unexplored.

We hope that FSU's alumni hold themselves responsible to these ideals as well, and that the desire for a bigger football team, more classrooms, and a "name" in the collegiate circles will not outgrow these more vital principles.

Alumni are constantly beseiged for monetary contributions to the growth of a university, but we are asking only for remuneration of the spirit which we hope they carried away from here not many years ago.

The contribution of a word to preserve the dignity of education is little in comparison with the knowledge gained in four years at the alma mater.

The memories are fond and individual, but mutually the each partaking class. It is not enough to take a diploma and let its intrinsic value be the sole tribute to the university from which it was obtained. It is not enough to hoard the memories and forget that the spirit of education needs to be replenished and reenforced, that it must be passed on to the next generation and the next.

Unchanged Melody

There is a certain strangeness about Homecoming, when the leaves on the trees turn from Summer green to Autumn gold, and rustle sharply to the crisp breeze that provides the music for their dance.

The Old Grads return, for some the first time in many years to walk once again in the freshness of spirit that once was so new, but now so old. The contrast between the past and the present is never so evident as at this time. And yet, they seem to blend, in a curious mixture of the young and the old, the smooth and the lined, the bald and their knowing.

The soft, seasoned memories of years long past, half fiction and half fact, are violently torn by the geometry of the new dorms, the sleek, bright cars, and the raucous voice of the modern world—but still beneath it is the same, and there is a bond between yesterday and today that will never disappear.—SK

Hot Letters And Cool Music

By WILJOHN

MAILMAN WAS busy today. Got two letters. Nice to know someone else reads my column besides my roomy and me. My first answer goes to Miss Bettie Jane Cook, a freshman, who wishes to once again correct me on my Dreamweavers bit. All I can say is, those boys certainly got around in the old days. Here is another girl who has "dated Gene and Buddied with Wade." Which is it, Gene? It is not the girl I mentioned in my first Dreamweavers column (the one I'm beginning to regret).

At any rate, Gene's name is Adkinson, not Atkinson, and Wade's name is Buff, not Buffin. The first was a printers mistake but the second was my slip. You see, Wade and Gene and I were never formally introduced. And now that we are good friends, I don't think they know, to this day, that I have any other name but Willjohn. That's all anyone called me in college. (Well, there were a few other names. They call me those here too. "Sticks and Stones . . . .)

Second letter was from a person who supports my views on the Artist Series. Only one thing wrong here. I hate to address myself in print to a person called "A Music Lover" without knowing that person's name. You have my word that I will never misuse your name. I will never put a name in print if I am asked not to. But, anyhow, Music Lover, I thank you for your response. I shall do a column in the near future stating your proposal for the answer to our problem. I wish I knew who you were so I could ask you a few questions and get some more information on it.

I DUG THE Devilaires the most when they played the scene at the Tallahassee Country Club the other night. There was a formal dance sponsored for a lot of the kids from Leon. I'd like to bring special attention to a new addition to the usual blowing on the horn. I have thought for a long time that the group would sound a lot better if they would use a muted trumpet more often instead of the open horn that is the customary thing. My reason for this is that there is no small combo operating here that is as small and more intimate sound. The "big sound" of the Commodores picks you up and lifts you several feet to the left when the whole group blows and nowhere is a quiet corner to be found. Now the Devilaire Trumpet has put on a hat in the form of some sort of a metal mute with the insides removed. (Gory.) Gives a real cold sound which blends well with the sound style of the group. I hope they use much more of it. The group plays real happy, anyway. Witness their playing of the FSU fight song when asked to dig up a melody for a square dance.

Dear Mama Seminole . . .

DEAR MAMA SEMINOLE.

Always me never findum place to park razzle-dazz. Today me not even findum place to park'um self. Ex-libreri all come back for big celebration and big swim. Me be heap careful at swim, me not want to get scalped by flyin' fire water bottle.

Planners have'um heap big blow over Pow Wow, everybody not think um Irish Bionarchy best theme for rait production. Some of them take paint and go on war path with'um it. Paint'um up campus to resemble angry brave.

Mamma, me at comfort zone today. Last Friday was heap big parades, big speeches where Chiefs everywhere talk of liberty, freedom, and sometimes they call'um pursuits of happiness. Later on festival eve and ba words just scrorn like in Big express. Queesium not even echoes understand by some braves for in middle of night they creep up on family and try to burn'um house down. Family do no wrong, break no taboos 'cept those of self, styled God of Lake County, who take it on himself to judge man's value.

Mamma, it make Georgie ashamed of our state, our people to see cruelty to family go on and no even Statee Big Chief be willing to help them. Were big words empty of truth??? Me wonder how dead brave honored last week would feel, wonder if they think they are too much.

Me see four braves study much hard. Them braves that want to be with them. They study so them be able to occupy in great battle now many moons away to see who be next student body Chief.

Student chief call for "maturity" in council. Me guess him get what him ask for. Now three council members married, this show him more of maturity me think.

Me see sign me think read Ha' Ha' list week. Across from statue place there build um place that not even Statee Big Chief, that say, "Sign of Progress under COYLE I. MOORE — Student Body President". Me not know what they build um, but we bet it not no statue.

Debate team now have two jobs. They debate and serve'um as assistant to attorney general. Everybody that debate assistant attorney general; everybody that assistant attorney general, they debate. Me not too sure how this happen, me not too sure anybody know how this happen, or why.

Brave or Maiden who not willing to forfeit own self to be member of Greek Nation feel left out sometime. Dances, parades, even new buddy system all center about Greek Nation. Sometime we get Student Chief who not much a nationality. Maybe then Big Chief change or maybe Greek Nation just admit him. Anyway until that happen many braves, maidens lose out, time people who plan big things remember Greek Nation just little part of FSU Nation.

IT SURE HAS CHANGED—

Is this the place?
This building over here,
And that one way down there
That's where I live before.
It sure has changed.

Are those students?
They're not much more than kids—
They seemed so much older
When we were here before.
It sure has changed.

Can you tell us—
It's been so many years
Since we were students here,
Think we look just the way.
It sure has changed.

Look over there—
That couple hand in hand,
Gazing at the night sky
With confidence and faith—
It hasn't changed a bit.

These Autumn Mornings:
I think my bedroom has a subtle connection
With certain northern glacial mountains,
Or else gnomes and sprites have a chilling predisposition
To banish warmth and turn the taps into icy fountains.

O infamous Hole that lets the frosting North wind sneak Straight from Hell I blame you.
But if 'tis from "that place"
you pour
You certainly haven't warmed me!

WHERE'S THE FIRE?

MOUNT VERNON, Iowa (ACP)—There was no smoke coming out of the girls' dormitory at Cornell College, but two firemen were seen climbing in a third story window just the same.

However, it turned out the smoke-eaters were innocent of any nefarious deed. It seems a couple of the female residents had locked themselves out of their quarters and a little quick lekky when they found there was no house mother on duty to let them in with a master key. They were due at a President's reception in formals and the dresses were locked securely behind the door. It remained for the firemen to enter the room through the window and help the girls out of their quandary.

Which just goes to show where the taxpayers' money goes. And the firemen stood up when there isn't a fire.

Life on the campus gets pretty routine after a while.

As a first-month freshman, you live each day as something new. For the rest of the year one is likely to display a distinguishing enthusiasm.

A sophomore is a trifle older and more inclined to flaunt the fact with a cutting classes.

A junior is likely to be a cynic.

Seniors, they tell me don't particularly want to be to their own graduation.

If this description is not more than a trifle overdone, does it not satisfy the lack of vigor which we would do well to replace?

STUDENT APATHY manifests itself at many schools in political lethargy. Is there much chance when no one thought of burning Mc-Carthy in effigy?

Students also missed the opportunity to demonstrate this day for more than classes (please do not debate this side point) and the late last spring when a protest march on the Capitol was called off when only 30 showed up, passed in only a slightly amended version, given the Board of Control the right to turn traffic affairs on campus over to the city police.

Those who showed up for the demonstration, which was certainly widely publicized, Sociology majors. Reporters. Photographers. A few interested deans. No demonstrators.

A riot is one thing. It is to be deplored as harmful to the stability of orderly administration for a logical political purpose is rather to be expected.

A Better Measure

Time Needed To Repair Revolt

When a country such as Argentina has been under a dictatorship for 10 years, it takes more than a few weeks to undo the damage.

It was only seven weeks ago that the Argentine Armed Forces under the leadership of Maj. Gen. Eduardo Lonardi made a successful attempt to oust from power Juan D Peron.

The new government under Lonardi promised new and fair elections, restoration of the constitution and democracy, plus a complete abolition of censorship and other controls of the press.

Yet after seven short weeks Lonardi has been deposed and another general of the anti-Peron revolution has taken office as provisional president. There is no doubt in the minds that Gen. Lonardi was moving too slowly and was getting into trouble with right-wing elements that his bent toward another dictatorship. Whether this is the truth or otherwise will never be known to us.

What does matter to us, however, is whether the new provisional president, Gen. Pedro Aramburu, and his military junta will live up to the purposes of the revolution.

The biggest road block to the new government of Aramburu is the CGT (General Confederation of Labor) which was the mainstay of Peron's power.

In 1951 ex-Dictator Peron seized the famed newspaper La Prensa and put it under control of the CGT.

Aramburu's government has now taken control of La Prensa as well as the labor newspaper El Labor. The General Confederation of Labor, as a result, has openly defied the government and called for a strike. Aramburu has retorted that all strike activity will be arrested.

Observers of the union have declared that basically the unions do not oppose the government, but a fight between two factions for control of the confederation.

Moore Denies Student Government Is Powerless

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

Some of those who ignore the ballot boxes on election day say they do so because student government has no power of its own. Coyle Moore, Jr., Student Body President, does not accept this gloomy view of the system which he heads.

"I feel student government has a great deal of responsibility—more so than in most other universities throughout the country," he declared recently. "There are some schools where student government has more responsibility than we have but these are few."

What responsibility falls to Florida State University's student leaders?

Primary Burden

There is, according to Moore, the primary burden of the budget. Out of the $150 paid by each student annually in registration fees, $17.10 is his student activity fee. According to the Constitution of student government, a joint faculty-student committee is supposed to recommend disbursement of this fee to Student Senate.

In practice the effect is about the same but the procedure seems to differ.

Five students—the under-secretary of finance for the budget, the secretary of finance, and the budget committee—meet with the faculty committee headed by Dean of Students R. R. Ogles-by. The students discuss proposed expenditures while, according to Dr. Oglesby, the faculty members offer advice but have no definite action. So far the procedure has produced no major disagreement.

The budget then goes to Student Senate where there is quite likely to be very much disagreement.

Activity Fee

Another part of the $150 is called the University Activity fee. It is voted among the faculty and students from Leon High and the Demonstration school. A unit will be given and with dances of Spanish origin.

Also at Christmas, Los Picaros will serenade students with Christmas carols of Spanish origin which are unfamiliar in the United States.

In January Los Picaros will hold a series of lectures by Latin American students who will speak in Spanish about their home countries. The first lecture will include a talk on Cuba by Felix Nanco Rodriguez and a talk on Peru by Eduardo Hilgert.

Spanish Honorary Open To Students

By LOIS FRIEDMAN

If you are a Latin American student at FSU, or if you are studying Spanish here, a national Spanish honorary fraternity is interested in you.

Sigma Delta Pi, with three chapters in the state of Florida, has only forty members on campus but membership requirements do not have at least a C average, a active interest in the language, and if you are a US candidate for membership you must be a citizen and oral exam.

Ace Lenz, the president, says, "Don't let the exam scare you. Last year 201 Spanish students took the test and only 20 passed it easily."

The exam is offered at the beginning of each semester and is conducted in the Spanish classes. The luncheon is open to men and women and is composed of approximately half Latin American students and half Spanish born students.

"Los Picaros' contribution to the campus is a movie which they present twice each year and to which all are invited free of charge. The first movie this year will be "Don Quixote" made in Mexico with English subtitles.

Other officers include Geraldine Pias who is recording secretary, Shirley Morgan, vice-president, and Loida Velazquez, treasurer. The club is sponsored by Dr. Huberto Lacaze, associate professor in the modern language department.

Plans for the future include a Christmas party open to members, Spanish teaching faculty, and students from Leon High and the Demonstration school. A unit will be given and with dances of Spanish origin.

Also at Christmas, Los Picaros will serenade students with Christmas carols of Spanish origin which are unfamiliar in the United States.

In January Los Picaros will hold a series of lectures by Latin American students who will speak in Spanish about their home countries. The first lecture will include a talk on Cuba by Felix Nanco Rodriguez and a talk on Peru by Eduardo Hilgert.

The FSU Senate In Action

FSU Has Problem In Reapportionment

The Florida Legislature is not alone in facing a reapportionment dilemma.

Florida State University's Student Senate has had to confront a similar issue in open debate, but have outdone their elders who meet in the Capitol Building less than a mile away.

FSU's Student Senators are nowhere nearer agreement than they were a year ago.

Few realize, and even fewer care to admit the basic problem. As seen by some, it is a disproportionate fraternity and sorority membership in Student Senate under a system whereby three men and three women are elected to represent each of the four undergraduate classes. All but two of 20 upperclass Senators (including the men's and women's vice-presidents) are Greeks.

Talk of this kind usually evokes warnings against "Greek —Independent War", and the proponents of several alternatives to the class system of representation prefer to confine their arguments to another topic.

Discouraging

Interest in the student government elections is usually discouragingly weak. An "average" turnout at election day is about 25 per cent of the eligible student body.

It was advanced from several quarters in the spring of 1954 that a system of "precinct" representation, allowing students to vote in their own living units for people to represent those units, might bring a directness, a sense of actual representation and participation, to student affairs.

Any are implicitly regulated by the law which established the Board of Control, he said.

The charter, ignored by Senate, drifted into limbo. It probably still exists but nobody does anything about it.

Service Functions

Among the charter's supporters were those who feel student government should undertake service functions. Under an existing charter student government could move right into such responsibilities, they maintained.

Moore agrees student government could own a bookstore, own cafeterias, laundries and other services, and "do very well at them." Some student governments, he learned at a conference last summer, have such enterprises.

Money Necessary

"You've got to have money," he warned. It would take a boon from the administration.

Regardless of who wields the actual authority over the campus, Student Senate carries a voice through its resolutions. In merely the past year they have concerned widely varying subjects and sometimes attracted a great deal of attention.

Famous Resolution

In perhaps the most famous resolution, Senate asked the Motor Vehicle Commission to issue garnet and gold license tags alternately with orange and blue. The Senate realized it could be coincidental that the tags had borne the University of Florida's colors—but for five years?

The resolution was answered by Commissioner Ina Thompson, who said it would be impractical to rotate the tag colors among all the universities in the state. But, apparently to soothe feelings, the orange and blue would be replaced with blue and white.

Provokes Ire

The episode provoked a lengthy dissertation on alleged "immaturity, inferiority," and other failings of FSU on the University of Florida's student newspaper, The Florida Alligator.

Other resolutions have asked for car-washing facilities, changes in the grading system, among others. A recent request was that academic requirements for upperclassmen be stiffened.

There will quite likely be opposition, some observers think, on the grounds that any system which guarantees more representation to one group whits not actually guaranteeing it to another is unfair. Another bill has been introduced by Senators Jim and Barbara Moore who were married recently along this line of opposition.

Spring Election

It would provide for spring election of class senators, four from each class. In the early fall balloting would be held on freshman class senators, dormitory senators, two at large from the Day Students, two at large from Panever have observed," Dr. Nygreen said.

Poly Science Active Here New Sandspur

Faculty members of the Political Science Department have been very active in many political projects recently.

Dr. Elmo Roody of the Political Science Department is making a year's study of the influence and impact of the FCUN on the government and politics of Florida. Roody will attend all regional and state meeting of the FCUN.

Vincent Thursby, professor of political science, is co-authoring a college textbook in social science for McGraw-Hill. The book is scheduled for spring publication and will probably be used on campus next fall in the newly required course in social science for general education.

Dr. Andre Van Assendelp, a big name as advisor for the department of political science in international relations has worked out an interdepartmental major in international relations. Announcement of the new major will appear in the forthcoming catalogue.

Sponsored by the Economics, Geography, History, Political Science, and Sociology departments, it is expected to fill the need for a carefully planned program of studies for students preparing for the foreign service, work with the United Nations, or private employment with overseas operations.

DEAN SAYS STUDENTS FINER, MORE RESPONSIBLE

KENT, O. i.F.P.—Students no longer enter college with the "cram" attitude of their prewar predecessors, rather, they are becoming more of a serious student. That is the opinion of Dr. Glen T. Nygreen, Kent State University's dean of men. "The young students in colleges today are the finest and most responsible college generation I

Departments At Florida State Are Active;

Doctoral Degrees In Chemistry—June 1954, were awarded to Jacob Shapira, William C. Coburn, Jr. and Lin Tsai shown here with their research directors. L. to r. Drs. Karl Dittmer, Jacob Shapira, William Coburn, Ernest Grunwald, Werner Herz and Lin Tsai. Dr. Shapira is now at University of Illinois Medical College in Chicago, Illinois. Dr. Coburn is research chemist at Southern Research Institute in Birmingham, Alabama, and Dr. Tsai is Research Associate in Department of Chemistry, at Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio.

FSU Welcomes Different Type Chemistry Alumni

A new and different type of President of the FSU Foreign alumnus will be welcomed back Students' Club. Is a Research to the Florida State University on Associate in the Department of the 13th and future homecoming Illinois College of Medicine in days.

These alumni comprise a rapidly growing group of leaders in the chemical profession who obtained their bachelor's, master's and doctor's degree in the expanded Department of Chemistry at Florida State University.

Their alumni are the first of a growing group of professional scientists who will add to the luster and tradition of FSU. The first Ph.D. in Chemistry was given in 1948, and since then several additional advanced degrees have been granted.

During the academic year ending August, 1955, 11 Ph.D's were awarded.

Some recent graduates and their present positions are:

Dr. Ralph Bevers, Ph.D. in Chemistry in February, 1953, is now an Assistant Professor of Chemistry at the University of Houston in Texas.

Dr. W. Bradford Bond, Ph.D. in Chemistry in June, 1952, research chemist for the Dupont Co. in Martinsville, Delaware.

Bruce Cleave, M.S. in Chemistry, 1954 is head of the control laboratory of the Florida Co. in Tallahassee.

Dr. Basil M. Lee Ph.D. in Chemistry in 1953 is a project leader of the Allied Chemical and Dye Corporation, Hopewell, Virginia.

Dr. Walter Marshall, Ph.D. in Chemistry in 1955, is Associate Professor of Chemistry at George Pepperdine College in Los Angeles, California.

Dr. Ernst Yountchan, Ph.D. in Chemistry in 1955, formerly Miss Hazel Bryant, B.A. in Chemistry in 1954 is now a Research Assistant in the Cancer Research Laboratory of the University of Florida.

Health Education Has New Home

By RON KOSEMUND

Instead of being distributed throughout the campus and teaching in available classrooms, the Health Education department now has a home in the Demonstration School.

Before this transfer the entire staff had to use the same office, which was in the women's gym, but now they have private offices and four additional departmental classrooms. This shift came about with the moving of the demonstration classes to the New Demonstration School building.

The faculty and staff, which numbers seven at present, are located in the upstairs portion of the south wing of the old Dem School. The fact that they can each have an office of their own has increased efficiency, according to members of the department.

Below Offices

Below the office section are located the two classrooms. It is a convenience for faculty members to be able to teach in the same building with their offices and not have to carry equipment and teaching materials across the campus.

With the aid and cooperation of the art department, maintenance departments, space was redesigned, floors refinished, rooms repainted, bookcases and storage space built and a new section of PSU established. The renovation was an interesting project to the department. Each member chose the colors for his office, coming up with some pleasing combinations of green, yellow and gray.

Dr. Sara Louise Smith, head of Health Education, explains, "The improvement of our physical facilities has increased the morale of the staff and the efficiency of the department."

New Department

Health Education is a comparatively new department coming into its own about 1947 at Florida State. It is not combined in this school with the Physical Education department as a convenience for faculty members to be able to teach in the same building with their offices and not have to carry equipment and teaching materials across the campus.

It is an applied science and teaches the practical application of science to the lives of people in their decision helps people form desirable patterns of health and behavior in line with scientifically proven facts.

Economic Potential Stimulates Geology

By BOB DOLLISON

Geology at FSU, as well as in most parts of the nation, is fast becoming one of the main studies of the sciences.

There are several reasons for this increasing interest in geology on campus, the most immediate of course, being the new, air-conditioned geology building. The new discoveries of the economic potential of Florida's natural resources have also acted as a geological stimulus.

Florida Uranium

Dr. James J. Doesin, chief of the Florida field office of the Atomic Energy Commission, in a recent talk to the Florida Geological Society discussed the importance of Florida's uranium deposits.

He explained that, at present, Florida's production was approximately 150 tons of uranium a year, the ore being obtained as a by-product of the triple phosphate fertilizer plants in Florida. He then stated that, "a great deal of research is now going on to find better and cheaper methods of extraction of uranium from Florida's available reserves of 15,000 tons."

The possibility of oil reserves in Florida has also created a stir in local society. In fact five wells have been drilled on Mr. Kent Lance, in an area 40 miles west of Tampa, to the well known Collier county "Sunniland Field" and another one in Orange county near Orlando. Although no major producing areas have as yet been found, exploration is still being continued.

There are, indeed, many opportunities offered to the student of geology. The demand for geologists in Florida's exploration alone is far greater than the supply. In fact, requests for qualified men are frequently being received by the geology department.

Jobs Plentiful

In foreign fields, jobs are equally plentiful. Many of the major Oil Companies have standing requests for graduate students in geology to work in South American areas. Salaries for these positions will approximate $1,000 a month, the expenses assumed in these positions often giving a more valuable than the fattiness amount.

Dr. Ernest H. Lund is the acting head of the geology department, being assisted by Dr. W. Stuart Tanner. Dr. Lund, a leaf form classes, by Dr. Carl D. Touimin, Jr. teaching paleontology and by Dr. Robert O. Withers instructing sedimentation courses.

It has been announced that also new geology buildings are planned for the future campus. Early in 1955 work will begin on an office and classroom building, directly north of the present geology building. This site will also be the new headquarters for the Florida Geological Survey.

Additions

For 1957 a museum and research building is planned northeast of the present geology building. Sea shell and fossil displays and rock and mineral collections will be exhibited here.

Dr. Herman Gunter, head geologist of the Florida Geological Survey, expressed his opinion, last week of the present geological program offered at this university.

"With the quality of the courses improving as rapidly as they are," he said, "and with the new geology buildings to be erected, I expect that, in the very near future, FSU will be recognized as the top geological school in the Southeast."

Art Graduates: Do They Just Starve In A Garret?

By SUE SHIELDS

What ever becomes of art majors?

The average person, college student or otherwise, is inclined to think of art training as a luxury, but graduates of this College of Visual and Performing Art are quickly disproving that notion.

Contrary to popular belief, the Art Department doesn't train primarily just creative painters who go off to starve in a garret, limiting their painting to an important part of the curriculum. Graduates find a ready market for their talents in the areas of teaching, television, commercial art, interior design, business and commercial world.

Many FSU art graduates are now employed in the teaching profession. One of these is Jack Wise, M.A. '55, who was for two years a graduate assistant here. Jack is teaching figure drawing at the Layton School of Art in Milwaukee Edmund Amateis, former FSU art head is director of the school.

Sold Two

Wise sold two pieces of sculpture at the Forum Gallery exhibit just closed in New York City. The pieces, which are "Christ and "Head" While in residence at FSU during 1954 and 1955 Jack taught a hi-weekly Extension Division course in sculpture.

Guy D. Johnson Jr., M.A. '52, is another FSU art alumnus whose work is in the FSU Art Department. His one-man show which concluded his artistic work was were all receiving, and several of his paintings from this show were sold to Tallahasseans.

Johnson is now at the University of Connecticut as teacher of painting. Recently he traveled in Europe investigating later art developments there.

Two recent grads are locally employed at WCTV television station. Conrad Milton, B.A. '54, staff artist there, is responsible for many of the more recent paintings in the lobby of the Lewis State Bank while an FSU student, Milton, a native of Marianna, exhibited extensively in local and regional art exhibitions.

New Studying

Yvonne Biersteman, B.S. in art, '54, currently studying painting with Professor Geiger of the Art Department, is staff photographer at WCTV. Yvonne was another of the students from the FSU Art Department, who recently had exhibitions in the Forum Gallery in New York City. One of these her painting "Organ," was singled out for favorable attention in a critical review in the November issue of Art Magazine.

Jack Artzt in the display department of Rich's, well known Atlanta department store, is employed at WCTV television. A native of Valdosta, who studied advertising design while in school here. She was recently visited in Atlanta by members of the Fashion Institute on a study trip to that city.

Design Specialist

Another student associated who specialized in advertising design in his college days is Frank Reber, B.A '52. After graduation Frank first worked in Chattanooga as an artist for the Tennessee Valley Authority, then returned to his home state of Florida as artist-illustrator for the Navy at Panama City.

Mrs. Walter B.S. '55 and Barbara Meadows B.S. '55, were until recently also employed by the Tennessee Valley Authority as are a number of former FSU students. They are also apparently working as department store artists at Miller's in Chattanooga.

believe, two at large from Inter-Fraternity Council, and one from the West campus.

Senate immediately referred both Soles' and Moore's proposals to a special committee composed of Soles, Senators Karl Edwards and Polly Alvarez.

Of the two, Soles has said, "I feel sure that for any to pass the Senate a compromise will have to result."

Opposition Polls

On the heels of last year's Senate debate, there are likely to be the following points of opposition to any compromise:

That it is all probably be unequal in some way.

That it will be complicated, calling for two or more different election periods and has the election committee with an impossible amount of paper work.

That student government cannot act several weeks in the fall until officers are elected.

Could Be 'Swung'

That Freshmen in Wee Hall, who usually outnumber older residents, could be "swung" by ex-

That individual factions among the fraternities and among the independent campus could be chosen their groups senators year after year.

That the present class system is satisfactory.

And in rebuttal:

That each personality has to be expected under any system;

That the elections committee should be expanded.

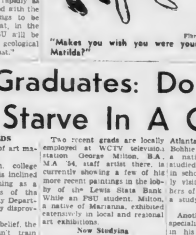
That Student Government can effect at least several times in the fall if more effective representation will be the reward;

That factions and bloc votes being aswung are nevertheless the basis of democratic process.

That the present class system is no system at all.

Third Amendment

Before the special committees is third amendment not directly relating to representation. It introduced by the Moore Senators, which would make elections held to fill vacancies in elected student government posts, which are at present filled by executive appointment with Senate agreement.



Psychologists Doing Vision Sensory Research

By SUE SHIELDS

When you walk out of a movie matinee into the bright afternoon sunlight you are usually aware of the adjustment your vision makes, although it all happens in a matter of seconds.

For the first several seconds details are mared together, stairs across the street are merely blobs of color, the glare on the street is blinding. The same thing is true of your hearing when a jet pilot comes out of a brightly lighted room to room off into the darkness. Between the time he pushes off his map light and the time his eyes readjust to the darkness his plane has traveled many miles.

And too, how long does gunfire temporarily blind? It may mean the difference between a dead soldier and a live one.

On the other hand, how do we discriminate the shapes of objects through our sense of feeling? What about the shape of an instrument handle—does it make any difference to the pilot who may have to fly his plane by them?

Sound Interesting

Interested? The U. S. Navy, the Surgeon General's Office, and the National Sciences Foundation are enough so that they are supporting two projects in sensory research by FSU scientists.

Research in visual sensitivity, an attempt to determine the how and why of adjustment in a person's vision when the amount of illumination is suddenly changed, is headed by Dr. H. D. Baker of the psychology department. This project is closely associated with one by the physiology department on sensory processes also. The contract for the project is with the U. S. Navy, and is the first contract awarded for research in any of the social sciences at FSU.

Practical, Scientific

Although the Navy is interested from a practical standpoint, Dr. Baker emphasizes that the psychology department is interested only from a purely scientific angle, that is, as a basic problem in the way people see as affecting their behavior. Their interests and that of the Navy just happen to coincide.

Out on West Campus at the physiological psychology laboratory, better known as the "rat lab," Dr. D. R. Kenshalo and Dr. J. P. Nafe of the psychology department, are seeking answers to such questions as "How do we obtain information from our environment through the skin?", "How does the sense of touch work?", "How do organisms, including man, feel?"

Research Grant

This research is being supported by a grant from the National Science Foundation. And again, two branches of the government, the Surgeon General's Office and the Office of Naval Research, are concerned with the problem from a practical angle, that of designing instrument landing.

Though these two projects, one in vision and one in touch sensitivity, may at first seem unrelated, both are aimed at a better understanding of man's position in the animal kingdom.

Contrary

The researchers are also discovering things which are contrary to what has been thought about human emotions. Out of the rat lab Drs. Kenshalo and Nafe have found more evidence in support of Wundt that movement is the only stimulus to which skin receptors respond. Weirths are lowered on to various bundles of rats, cats, and frogs. Movement of the weirths is controlled by sensitive instruments. An oscilloscope is attached by electrodes to nerve fibers of the test animal.

Responses to stimuli are interpreted as wavy lines on the oscil-

FSU Counseling Program Study Is Continuous

That Florida State University provides counseling for its students is well know.

The annual University Bulletin, brochures, letters, and Orientation Week activities are used to make this service known to students, parents, and friends.

Not so well known is the constant study, planning and evaluation of counseling that is carried on to make it more effective.

One department vitally concerned in the improvement and effectiveness of counseling services is the Office of the Coordinator of Counseling and Guidance, directed by Dr. Sarah Irene Hardee and including Dr. Hilda Tinney, assistant coordinator, and Bert Powell, counselor.

Class of 1951

At the present time one of the projects of this office is a study of the class entering in 1951, most of whose members are now graduating. In the course of this project it has been possible to obtain from many students statements concerning counseling services helped them if they were enrolled in Florida State University, explains Miss Hardee.

The staff of Dr. Hardee's office one of the most exciting the results of that study has been an overwhelming majority of the students contacted indicating that they were aware of the interest of their counselors and instructors.

Someone Interested

In practically every case a student stated that he knew that someone was interested in him as a student and as a person.

Dr. Hardee said that the study has also revealed examples of help received with personal problems in many areas from counselors, and that the student's own words to show how the counselors were able to help through their use of the counseling program.

Dr. Hardee and Economics student said, "Counseling really has been going very successfully. I approve of the FSU counseling program heartily."

Greatest Value

"The greatest value of counseling to me was encouragement", explained an education major.

A one-year student—"I especially enjoyed counseling in my only planning to attend college for one year and she helped me to choose courses that would be most helpful to me in my chosen field."

A student in Modern Languages commented—"It was very valuable to me since I did not understand the General Education requirements or the point system."

It "counseling" was valuable in that it definitely helped to satisfy the type of training I desired, revealed a balanced major.

More Testimony

A Secretarial science student after working a year—"As I had only planned to go to college for one year, he counselor helped me pick courses that were most helpful in my field. These courses, I have found were most helpful."

A student in Commercial Art —"he made me feel secure"

A Social Welfare student and —"He helped me with courses and with a personal problem that caused me great concern."

No More Stimulation

Though these carefully regulated experiments it has been found that after the initial stimulation there is no more stimulation when pressure is again put on the area in the form of movement. If your hand could be held perfectly steady, you could get the same results pushing a pencil point into your skin.

Then Dr. Old Kenshalo and Nafe ever get started on such a project? Back in 1940 at Washington University in St. Louis Dr. Nafe was doing somewhat the same thing, only he used human subjects and relied on their verbal responses. The subjects were also instructed to push buttons when sensation of the stimulus began or ceased.

Led To Hypothesis

Nafe couldn't rely on these findings, but they led him to propose the hypothesis that movement is the only stimulus to which skin receptors respond. There have been a number of other hypotheses of the matter, and FSU scientists are trying to see if any of them "fit." Research on this subject has been going on here for two years.

The research animals, mostly rats, are always anesthetized before being used, and are used only once, then killed. Anesthesia chemically affects the brain, and has no permanent effect on the peripheral nervous system, with which

Almost All Fields Of Study Covered Here

Physiology Work Is 'Independent'

By ANN DYE

Florida State University's Department of Physiology, is one of the few centers for general and comparative physiological work in the United States independent of medical schools.

One important line of investigation being followed by FSU physiologists deals with the mechanism of taste and smell. The method of study of these senses was first developed by FSU physiologists, and is described by Dr. Lloyd M. Beidler, department head as of foremost importance because it offers the only specific information, other than general observation, by the use of electronic equipment, which intercepts sensory impulses from the nerves before the impulses reach the brain. Quantitative data is gathered by the investigator.

Employment of this method frees the researcher from dependence upon the sensations of the animal, and enables him to accurately record changes in response which occur in the subject as the amount of stimulation is varied.

Most of the work now being carried on is being done with rodents or animals. Working on the mechanism of taste are Dr. Beidler and Dr. R. L. Burnham, research associate.

Dr. Beidler, who will remain at FSU for two years engaged in physiological research supported by the National Science Foundation, received his Ph D and M Sc from Harvard. Because of the research technique employed by the Physiology Department, the FSU for advanced study in sensory physiology.

Taste Mechanism

To illustrate the mechanism of taste, Dr. Beidler explains that a stitch an electrode to an exposed taste nerve bundle of a rat or mammal's tongue, and the tiny impulses are recorded upon an electronic apparatus. The bundle of cells is known as a "single" in principle to telephone.

Experiments dealing with the stimulation of the taste buds, and sensations to the brain, are carried out in a similar manner by Dr. Beidler, a research associate.

Besides research dealing with taste and smell mechanisms, other fields are being investigated in the study of the physiology department.

Dr. Dexter M. Easton, a comparative physiologist who received his Ph D from Harvard, and came to FSU this year, from the University of Washington Medical School after a year of study in New Zealand on a Fulbright Fellowship, is conducting research on the electrical activity of single nerve and muscle cells.

Inside Cells

Dr. Easton is using a special technique of recording from the interior of individual cells by inserting a sharp glass tube into the cell wall.

The glass tube is less than one-thousandth of an inch thick at the tip and is too small to cause injury to the cell. The tube is filled with salt solution that makes electrical contact with the interior of the cell and special electronic instruments are used to record the electrical impulses, which last only about one-thousandth of a second.

By working with individual cells, more specific information is gained as to the part played by single cells in the transmission of impulses, he explained.

Dr. Harry Lipner is seeking to isolate and study a white blood cell which increases in number in the blood stream of an animal recovering from an infection or suffering an allergic reaction.

Little Known

Very little is known about this particular cell, which can be recognized approximately once in every 40 or 50 common white blood cells.

Dr. Lipner's technique is to inject a dog with a parasite extract, which causes an increase in the number of these white blood cells. He can then isolate the cells for further study. The injury is done the experimental animal by the injection.

Dr. Lipner joined the FSU physiological staff this year. He has previously been associated with the Chicago Medical School, the National Cancer Institute in Bethesda, and the State University of Iowa.

Dr. H. A. Denyes is conducting research on the changes occurring in the blood circulation of lods of mammals. She is investigating why the blood of hibernating animals does not coagulate when their metabolic rate is markedly decreased.

Hamster Study

Her research is with two groups of hamsters an experimental group and a control group. The experimental group is placed in a refrigerator kept at approximately 5 degrees C, where they are allowed to go into hibernation. Periodically, they are removed from the cold and killed for study.

From the study of the blood system of their animals Dr. Denyes was led into an investigation of the effects of these blood products.

Dr. Denyes and Joan Hassett, a graduate student, are studying the metabolism of the epithelial cells which form the walls of the kidney. These cells are of particular importance as the body tissue for they act as filter cells, which discharge products no longer needed by the body, and return to the blood necessary elements.

Brisko-Mata

The metabolic rate of these cells is measured in a Warburg, an apparatus designed for this purpose after a kidney removed from a mammal has been pressed through a fine screen, and the living epithelial cells isolated.

The investigations of the Physiology Department are in this field of basic research, perhaps leading to further developments in the prevention or cure of the functioning of the systems of the human body related to the areas under study in the lower animals.

The Department of Physiology is temporarily located in the History Building, but will be permanently quartered in the new classroom building now under construction at FSU.

How Much?

Research Office Seeks Cost Of Attending FSU

How much does it cost students to attend Florida State University? How do FSU faculty salaries compare with those paid in other comparable institutions?

These are but two of the many questions which the FSU Office of Educational Research and Service center is now through the institutional research program.

The purpose of ERS, according to its director, W. Hugh Stickler, is to conduct institutional research aimed at improving the internal operation, the program, and the services of FSU.

"For many years," Stickler said, "the office has made studies on a wide variety of areas, academic space, faculty salaries, enrollment analyses and projections, population trends, student progress, teaching loads, institutional organization, faculty and administrative policies and practices, and many others."

ERS has conducted studies for the Council for the Study of Higher Education at Florida and has completed questionnaires for state and federal agencies, other institutions of higher learning, and educational organizations, Stickler revealed.

At present, he said, ERS is trying to find reliable answers to such questions as these: What are the admissions requirements in other major state institutions of higher learning? Is FSU using its academic space effectively? What happens to students who are accepted for admission in the University but who never enroll?

Stickler said the backlog of studies yet to be made is "large and still growing." All of the ERS projects are designed "to help the University know itself better to order that it may offer better educational services to the people of Florida," he concluded.

FSU Child Clinic Is Interdivisional

By R. L. BURNHAM

Helping a child to develop normally is just one of the many problems of the Child Development Clinic here on campus.

The clinic is composed of seven staff members headed by Dr. Walter D. Smith. Co-operation from schools and departments here on the Florida State University campus makes the clinic interdivisional in function.

This clinic stresses only the events and problems of normal child growth and development, and is threefold in its purpose:

It serves as a supervised training unit for graduate students. It provides services to the people of the community and the state.

The clinic also acts as a source for research in the child developing institution.

The children who are observed in the clinic usually are referred by teachers, mothers who sometimes may just be curious as to the clinic's functions, and graduate students who desire that the children differ generally — all the way from birth through high school, explained Smith.

Children's reactions during examinations and at play are observed through one-way vision panels. This enables the observer to further understand the therapy technique without interfering with the child's play.

When the children leave the clinic, there may be a follow-up procedure carried out by the school he attends and also by the parents. Thus, the child's guidance is not stopped abruptly, but is gradually reduced. The parents remain in contact with the child's parents to further help him, said Dr. Smith.

The clinic's facilities and the records it has accumulated are available for the research of students and faculty interested in the child, he concluded.

Scholarships Open For Foreign Study

American college students and graduates have an opportunity to study at famous Scandinavian schools in Norway, Sweden or Denmark.

A special fee of $1,200, which includes transportation and all expenses, is the total cost for nine months.

While attending these schools, Americans will have the advantage of being directly associated with the Scandinavian people and their social customs.

These folk schools have a wide variety of specialized programs, and students will be able to carry on research in their particular fields of interest.

Television-Radio Workshop Provides Experience Here

By PAT WISENER

Students interested in careers in broadcasting can get a test of their future profession right here on the FSU campus.

The Florida State University Television-Radio Workshop provides practical, professional experience. The Workshop is supervised by Professor Emil F. Wormick of the School of Journalism, and has been established a year.

Courses of the 1954 Homecoming was the first Workshop activity. Portions were broadcast over WFSU-FM. A special presentation of Shakespeare's student-produced material was heard over WFSU-FM and stations throughout the state.

Since that first activity, just a year ago, workshop students have prepared programs heard not only in Florida but throughout the southeast.

Workshop students broadcast the 1954 FSU basketball games to a network including WFSU-FM and WTNT in Tallahassee, and two out-of-state stations. Basketball broadcasts will be directed by Charles Allen again this year.

Workshop reporters have interviewed such personalities as fashion designer Anne Fogarty, President Eisenhower's press secretary James Hagerty, top professional golfers, writers Frank Slaughter and Phillip Wylie and comedy star Anna Russell.

Feature Programs

This year Workshop students are producing "Tallahassee Tonight," a daily quarter-hour

Social Practices Studied, Applied

By NEIL LaBAR

Social practices—those we use in everyday life—are being studied and applied in the sociology department's laboratory located in the Geology building.

The laboratory, established in 1953, has been used by every department at Florida State University.

According to Charles Grigg, director of the lab, its primary purpose is to "encourage general sociological interest and research."

Grigg said the lab is open to all students and personnel of the University and its facilities are "those that aspirants might study everyday social practices and problems."

At present, the lab facilities are being used by Dr. L Killian and Hara of the sociology department in conducting a survey to determine the general attitude of the people in the Tallahassee area toward desegregation."

At the same time, the meteorology and education departments are also engaged in work pertaining to their respective fields.

Grigg said at present the lab is one of the "finest equipped in the south."

And," he commented, "with certain additions, we have planned for the future. It will be beyond reproach."

Grigg said that he would like to see the lab put on a full-time basis with a consulting program to handle general research problems.

"We'd like to organize student groups, too," he said, "and teach them how to use the lab facilities so they might have a freehand in doing research."

"The lab facilities are here," he said. "We'd like to see them used by all."

Inconspicuous

Public Administration Turns Out Responsible Citizens

By TED RYBICKI

Situated on Jefferson Street is an inconspicuous white house sporting an inconspicuous sign labeled Parkside. This is where the insignificance ends however, for within this building dwells the nucleus of the School of Public Administration.

"This group has the responsibility of training students who seek a career in the administrative branch of government, provide training for pre-law students who plan to enter public service and to offer instruction that will provide better understanding of the technical processes of government for those who want to be more effective citizens.

Technical Aid

The school also furnishes technical assistance by research, and consultation to officials of the governments of Florida.

In 1940 when the department of public administration originally created in 1947, became the School of Public Administration, seven students graduated with a degree in Public Administration.

Last year there were 24 graduates. More than 100 alumni of the school are scattered all the world, some in business, but a majority serving the needs of local government. Thus the program seeks to combine theory, principle, and practices in the proportion required by government today.

New Courses

Since 1949, many new courses and programs have been added —many of them serving to pioneer the way for other universities. The state lecturer program and the program of federal lectures are now being followed by a number of universities.

In the federal lecturer program, the department has had prominent officials including Charles Sawyer, United States Secretary of Commerce and Roy V. Peel, Director of the Bureau of Census. The research and technical assistance program to state and local officials of Florida is another pioneer project. It is considered vital in the school's program as a service to the state and as a means of keeping their teaching program of current problems. Everyday, many of their findings and recommendations are playing their part in better government for a better Florida.

New Arrangement

The internship program, another first for the school, has been furthered by a cooperative arrangement undertaken last year with the Tallahassee City-Municipalities under which cities will now provide our students not only an opportunity for internship, but for an opportunity for summer employment following it." internship

Some of these internships are the Secretary of State, State Treasurer's Office, Attorney-General's Office, Florida Industrial Commission, and the Leon County Sheriff's Office.

A question frequently asked is how well qualified is the staff of the school? The record should speak for itself. Every member of the faculty holds a Ph. D degree or the equivalent, and has completed his requirements for this degree

Leading Schools

Many of the leading universities of the country are represented in the degrees held by the faculty and staff of the school including Harvard University, University of Illinois, John Hopkins University, the University of Michigan, and the University of Wisconsin.

Because of its competent faculty and the unique program of the school, it has become increasingly known in the circles of higher education. The students represent all sections of the country and this year, there are students from the Philippines and Thailand.

Since the Bureau of Media Research and Service was founded at the FSU school of journalism in 1953, the Bureau has studied cases in the fields of crime, politics, economics and journalism.

Dr. Sidney Kobre, professor of the School of Journalism and director of the Bureau, says that basic news events will probably determine what course the research will take in the future.

The Bureau had a healthy start in 1952 before it was officially established. That year, Dr. Kobre received a group of journalism editorial in research on the presidential election, using methods similar to the present methods used by the Bureau.

Compared Coverage

Dr. Kobre measured the number of issues of straight news stories during the year on which they expressed, the number of stories, and which candidate each story was principally about. The group also checked the number of stories devoted to election officials, telling which candidate the editorial was favoring.

One of the first projects of the Bureau after its founding was the study of the state legislature in 1953 explained Dr. Kobre. She measured the quantity of legislative news, and judged its timing. The Bureau checked editorials, determining what political stands the different papers were taking, or noting whether or not they were taking a stand.

Pamphlet Published

The results of that study were published in a pamphlet, which was used in the "Reporting State Affairs" course in the School of Journalism. This was the first report of its kind ever published.

The Bureau also did a study of the Pearce murder case, in which a mentally ill veteran murdered a secretary at Columbia University. This was done in an effort to find out what the handling of psychological cases were in communications media, and to determine whether or not any background news is usually given.

Perpetual Project

One of the continuing projects at the Bureau is related to such cases. Effort is being made to determine how psychology is used in journalism and social science. Most stories with psychological overtones are studied by the Bureau.

In a study of the salaries received by women journalists in Florida, the Bureau discovered that salaries range from $5 to $35 dollars per week, while the average is $60 per week. It is estimated that men in similar positions would receive around 25 dollars per week more than women.

Maybe Men

"We may do a survey on men journalists next," Dr. Kobre revealed, "to better determine how the different scales run." Most studies by the Bureau are made from Florida communications media.

"I believe that our research," Dr. Kobre continued, "will benefit newspapers, the public, and it should be of great help to student communications."

Results of the research and surveys are available from the Journalism department.

Seventh Annual Job Seminar Begins On 29th

To Appear On The Panel

Malcolm Johnson

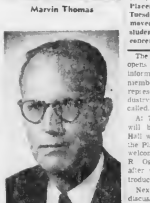
Malcolm B. Johnson, executive editor of the TALLAHASSEE DEMOCRAT, will act as the panel moderator. Born in Idaho, he graduated from the University of Florida, after which he worked on various newspapers in the state. In 1939 he joined the Associated Press as a correspondent. He has worked at the Democrat for a little over a year now.

Sam E. Myrick

Sam E. Myrick, who represents insurance, is the Florida manager for the Home and Home Indemnity Insurance Company of New York. He has received various degrees from the University of Tennessee, worked for an underwriters association for 3½ years, and been a member of the Home Company for 25 years.

William Renz

William Renz, representing government, is industrial relations officer for the U. S. Naval Air Development Center at Johnsonville, Pennsylvania. It is his responsibility to recruit ambassador a program for the employment of engineers, physicists, scientists, and mathematicians for work in different Naval stations.



Marvin Thomas

Marvin S. Thomas, as the representative for management, is currently employed as the manager at J. C. Penney Company, Inc., in Daytona Beach, with collateral assignment of employment representative at FSU. A graduate at Furman College, he has had much experience working in Middle New England.

Polly Weaver

Polly Weaver, College and Career Director of Mademoiselle magazine, represents the field of journalism. A Smith College graduate, she taught school for several years before joining the staff of Harper's Bazaar, from which she started Mademoiselle, where her editorial operation has corresponded with education and guidance people.

James F. Wilson

James F. Wilson, representing sales, is the Jacksonville Branch Manager for the International Business Machines Corporation. A graduate of Iowa State College, he joined the I. B. M. in 1939.

Two-Day Schedule Includes Meeting, Discussion, Social

Tuesday, November 29, marks the beginning of the Florida State University Seventh Annual Job Getting Seminar.

The two-day schedule for this University-wide function includes an informal meeting of the business representatives with faculty members, and an evening panel discussion followed by a social hour for the final day. Group and personal interviews make up the following day's procedure.

Industry, business, and government are to be represented at the Seminar, where students will have the opportunity to meet their future employers in an informal setting and talk to them.

Mr. William Baker of the Placement Office comments that "The purpose of the Seminar is to mutually acquaint future representatives with the students of FSU particularly graduating Seniors."

This year, though, consideration is also to be given to the undergraduates. A series of 18 group meetings have been scheduled from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. purposely for undergraduates.

Two-Fold Purpose

According to Baker the purpose of these group meetings is two-fold. First, it will provide information for the students to elaborate on the programs they represent. Second, it will provide an opportunity for undergraduate students to learn more about organizations which are of interest to them and, in many cases, inquire about summer work programs which are open to the undergraduate student.

HOUR CHANGED

Latest word from the Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement says that the Seminar Tuesday night program has been moved up to 7 p.m. in order that students may attend the second concert of the evening.

The Seminar program officially opens at 4 p.m. Tuesday with an informal meeting between faculty members and recruiters as the representatives from business, industry, and government are called.

At 7 p.m. the opening session will begin in Opperman Music Hall with Mr. Margaret Blair of the Placement Office presiding. A welcome will be made by Dr. R. R. Oglesby, Dean of Students, after which W. F. Baker will introduce the guests.

Next on the agenda as a panel discussion entitled "Asking the Experts," with Malcolm Johnson, Executive Editor, Tallahassee Democrat, as moderator. Panel members include Sam Myrick, representing insurance, William Renz, for government; Marvin Thomas, management; Polly Weaver, journalism; and J. F. Wilson, sales.

To Be General

After the discussion, which will be more general than specific in answering employment questions, there will be a social hour, where students will have the opportunity to sign up for individual interviews for the morrow.

On Wednesday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. individual interviews will be in progress in the Suwannee Room. Also at this time Lonamore Auditorium will be the site of the group interviews, with the exception of Miss Weaver of Mademoiselle.

Name tags will be issued to students and faculty as well as to recruiters. Seniors are requested by the Placement Office to wear these tags to their individual interviews on Wednesday.

35 Groups

The Seminar, on which some 35 organizations are to be represented, is presented by the Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement with the assistance of the following student groups: Alpha Kappa Psi, Delta Sigma Pi, Future Business Leaders, Gamma Alpha Chi, Sophomore Group, Student Fashion Institute, University Government Association, and with the cooperation of the members of the Faculty Planning Committee, who are appointed by the deans of each school and college.

To Attend

The following companies have signified their attendance at the Seminar: American Red Cross, Bibb Manufacturing Company, Boy Scouts of America, Chesterfield Corporation, Commercial Credit Corporation, Crawford and Company, Foster Airlines, Florida State Employment Service, Florida Parole Commission and Florida State Department of Public Welfare.

Also General Foods, Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, W. T. Grant and Company, Haskins and Sells, Home Insurance Company of New York, Humble Oil and Refining Company, International Business Machines Corporation, Bobb Manufacturing Company, New York Life Insurance Company, J. C. Penney Company, Inc. and Price Waterhouse and Company.

Also Procter and Gamble, Prudential Insurance Company of America, Riegel Textile Corporation, Sears, Roebuck and Company, Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company, Talin Welfare.

To The Students

You are cordially invited to attend the Seventh Annual Job-Getting Seminar to meet November 29 through the 30th.

The Seminar will begin with a panel discussion in Opperman Music Hall at 7.30 p.m.

Undergraduates, particularly juniors, are also included in this invitation. You now have the opportunity to come into contact with potential employers as well as explore the possibilities of obtaining a profitable summer job.

Elsewhere on this page you will find specific information concerning the two-day program, the social hour, and the various representative from business, industry, and government who will be present. Please shape your plans to attend accordingly.

A large number of former Florida State University graduates who now have responsible positions, obtained their first jobs through attending one of the Job-Getting Seminars. It is possible that you, also, may have occasion to meet your future employer at this conference.

news program broadcast over WFSU-FM. The Workshop has its own air-conditioned and equipped studio, control room, and news room in the Journalism Building.

In addition to the daily program on WFSU-FM, the workshop has supplied news, sports, and special event stories to WTAL and WMEN in Tallahassee.

The Television-Radio Workshop is part of an inter-school television-radio training plan at Florida State University.

The unified program is provided by the School of Journalism, the Department of Speech and the Audio-Visual Department of the Library School. No degree is offered in Television-Radio, but the School of Journalism and Department of Speech offer majors in TV-Radio.

Experience

The purpose of the Workshop is to provide students with varied professional television and radio experience. The Workshop is open to both majors and non-majors.

Dean Laurence R. Campbell of the School of Journalism says the aim of the Work-shop is "to provide non-professional, practical experience outside of class that parallels and supplements the courses in the new inter-school television-radio curriculum."

Students serve in the Workshop as producers, directors, editors, writers and reporters. At present, Workshop students are learning how to shoot motion pictures for television.

Art Gallery, Museum Have Voodoo Exhibit

EXHIBITS PAINTINGS
Karl Zerbe

By DOLORES LAFFERTY

If those noises emanating from the Florida State University Art Gallery and Museum remind you of voodoo drums, don't run to the nearest psychiatrist—you're hearing the atmosphere aright.

Seems the current attraction at the museum is a set of Haitian voodoo drums, and some visitors can't refrain from trying them out.

The drums are but one of the displays on hand at the gallery - museum. Art lovers will have a chance this weekend to see a group of paintings by Dr. Karl Zerbe of the FSU Art Department. His paintings, part of an exhibit entitled the "Six Artist Teachers in America," represent contemporary art as it is being taught in colleges and universities throughout the country.

Somewhat Bizarre

A somewhat bizarre attraction, featured in a recent issue of the Florida Flambeau, is Susie Q, a shrunken head manufactured by the Jivaros of Equador. The 83-year-old head was donated to the museum by Dr. Raymond Bellamy, FSU sociologist.

Another current museum feature is a display of "Genetics and Man." The exhibit consists of a series of wire figures depicting the development of races from the time of the cave man.

Both the art gallery and the museum will be open in regular use since February of 1952. The gallery is under the supervision of the FSU Art Department, which is headed by Dr. Adolph Karl.

Run By Department

The museum is maintained by the Anthropology Department, which is directed by Dr Hale Smith. William West is curator of both gallery and museum.

The policy of the art gallery is to alternate locally gathered art and traveling art exhibits at one month intervals. The traveling exhibits come from the Museum of Modern Art and the American Federation of Art in New York City.

A Dec. Christmas display, slated to run from December 3 through December 16, will feature a group of paintings by members of the FSU art faculty.

Nursing School Open This Week

The School of Nursing, during the week of Homecoming, is planning open house in the Nursing Activities Laboratory, located at 207 Classroom Building A, formerly Demonstration School.

The lab will be open all day Tuesday, November 18. Vivian M. Duxbury, Dean of the School of Nursing, will answer questions at a food conference with all students interested, about 4 p.m.

The faculty includes Rachel Hall, Mildred Beamo, Mary Mooney Sellassie and Alice Joseph. Miss Rudasics and Miss Beams are working with interns in Miami.

Of the 147 students enrolled in the school, 2 are men, revealed Jean Durbura. A recent bill passed in Congress enables male nurse to receive a commission as 2nd Lieutenant, a title which was given only to women. Today, male nurses receive the position they deserve and are given authority over ward technicians. This advancement will prove encouraging to men interested in nursing.

Student-practice is held in the lab, a nine-bed unit furnished and equipped with every need a hospital affords. Students nurses intern at Jacksonville Memorial Hospital during their Junior year, and practice at W. T. Edwards Tuberculosis Hospital during their Senior year.

A period of 3 months is spent at the Florida State Hospital in Chattahoochee where they receive psychiatric training, and one month in diet therapy at Mount Sinai, and one year in public health experience in county health units near Jacksonville. To date, thirty-seven degrees have been granted by the School of Nursing.

Things To Do And See This Weekend

Religious Groups Schedule Activities

Wesley Foundation will be open all of Homecoming weekend to Methodist students, friends and alumni. Open house will be held after the football game tomorrow.

Services in the Wesley Chapel will be held at the regular time, 9:30 a. m. Sunday morning. The Fellowship Supper will be at 5:15 p.m. to be followed by the Fellowship Hour.

Miss Alpharetta Leeper, Past Director of Wesley Fellowship and now working with the Board of Mission of the Women's Society of Christian Service, will speak at the Fellowship Hour.

Miss Leeper's topic is Christian missions and the need for missionaries.

Canterbury Club

Breakfast will be served after the 8:00 a.m. Holy Communion service. Family Service and Holy Communion will be held at 9:30 a.m. Morning prayer and sermon will be at 11:00 a.m.

Canterbury Hour is from 6:00 to 8:00 p.m. with supper, fellowship, and program to be followed by Compline.

Westminster

Westminster House will be open all of Homecoming weekend with Coffee hour after the game tomorrow. All students, friends and Alumni are invited to attend.

Newman Club

Mass will be said Sunday at 9:30 a.m. and 10:30 a.m. at the Newman House.

Newman House will be open all of Homecoming weekend for all who wish to attend.

BSU

A hayride for members of Baptist Student Union and their friends will be held tomorrow night. Admission is 25c per person.

Breakfast will be served Sunday morning from 8:30 a.m. until 9:15 a.m. for the Baptist Men on Campus.

The Student House will be open to all students and Alumni Sunday from 2:00 til 5:00 p.m. The house will also be opened all day today and tomorrow.

Worship Service will be held tonight at 8:00 p.m.

A meeting of Hillel Foundation for members and friends will be held at 8:00 p.m. Sunday.

Baptist Student Union is sponsoring "International Nights", featuring a program, "Travels around the World", Tuesday.

Foreign students, from various countries, who will be honored guests at supper beforehand, will present a variety of songs, dances, and talks on their particular country. Students from Siam, Germany, Japan, India, Burma, and other countries will participate.

The evening's activities have been planned as an annual event of BSU to foster an appreciation and understanding of foreign customs and peoples, and to form a closer relationship between exchange students and native students.

Supper will begin at 5:15 p.m., and the program will follow at 6:30. Tickets for the supper may be purchased for 75 cents from any Baptist student or from the BSU house before November 18.

Second Sandspur Meet Called

A second meeting for any students interested in Sandspur, the original student musical production given each Spring, has been called for Tuesday in 405 Longmire beginning at 7 p.m.

Spokesmen of the three-member committee which is attempting to consolute Sandspur as a regular campus organization said a turnout at a meeting earlier this week was "good", but practice for Pow Wow skits kept many away.

Nostalgic, Amazing

'Yesterday' Now On Exhibit

"Yesterday," an exhibit which may bring nostalgic memories to old graduates, and amazement to the younger generation, is being displayed this weekend in the small lounge of Longmire.

An old stove and a pneumatic clock dating back to the days of East Hall, will be featured in the exhibit along with Rowena Longmire's desk, pictures, medals, scrapbooks, old diplomas, and Civil War relics found during construction.

The iron stove was used by women students in the laundry room of East Hall which was situated where the Science Building now stands, until it burned down in 1921.

Heated Irons

Back before electric irons were used, the co-eds heated flat irons on the stove for ironing their clothes. Hot water could also be heated on this small stove.

After the fire in East Hall the stove must have been discarded, according to Mr. Charles LaJoie, assistant residence engineer. It turned up in a trash pile about ten years ago, when a gardener salvaged it, thinking it was of some importance. He gave it to a friend who in turn gave it to Mr. Henry Boldrin Bolden called Mr R K Shaw, Florida State University Business Manager, about the stove and LaJoie picked it up and stored in the basement of Jennie Murphree.

The pneumatic clock, which ran on a central air system, dates back about the same time as the stove. There were only a few buildings then—in addition to East Hall, there was West Hall, which burned down in 1907, the old administration building, Bryan Hall, one academic classroom, and the Dining Room.

PART OF EXHIBIT
The Old Stove

The same dinner bell that used to ring at meals about that time will also be shown in the "Yesterday" display. When the campus began expanding, a new bell was used.

Three items that have definitely been established as being from the Civil War era will be on view. These relics, a waffle iron, a sinner berry bottle, and a musket barrel, were discovered when the foundations for Magnolia Hall were being dug. It is assumed that they were used by Cadets who trained here during the Civil War. Waffle irons are still made and used in Europe.

When additions were made to Wescott, several cannon balls were discovered. Due to the location in which they were found, it is assumed that they are Federal rather than Confederate, since this area was formerly occupied by Federal troops.

Homecoming Dance Set Tomorrow Night

"Celebrate at Florida State" is the theme of the ninth annual Homecoming Dance slated for the Suwannee Room tomorrow night from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. Nick Stuart and his orchestra from Hollywood, California, will provide the music.

The dance theme will be carried out entirely in gold. There will be gold murals on the walls, gold canopies at each door, and the bandstand decorated in gold, according to Sara Jane Griffin, publicity chairman.

Tickets are on sale at the Student Center and the Westcott Ticket Booth for $1 stag and dinner, however tickets at the door will cost $1.50. Prices for the tickets were changed, and students should discount previous reports, said Miss Griffin.

Graham Carothers is general chairman of the dance. Other chairmen include Louise Yarborough, decoration; Patty Marley, corresponding secretary; Hana Tews, tickets; and Sara Jane Griffin, publicity.

Big Name

In the past many big name bands have played at the Homecoming Dance, but because of the crowded conditions of the Suwannee Room and the lack of student reaction to a poll conducted by Carothers, a less known band was hired.

Ray Eberle appeared here last year, and in other years such bands as Sammy Kaye, Tex Beneke, Charlie Spivak and Freddie Martin, and Vaughn Monroe were featured.

In addition to fraternity dances tomorrow night, West and their guests from 8 p.m. to Hall is sponsoring its own for- 1 a.m. Tickets will cost $1.40 a- mal dance. The Commodores, led by Mr. John L. Bricklemal dance. The Commodores, will play for West Hall residents burn, West Hall counselor.

Homecoming Queen Will Be Revealed Tonight

One of the five finalists in the Homecoming court will be named Florida State University Homecoming Queen for 1955-56 tonight at the Pow-Wow.

Betty Wilmon, selected last year to reign over FSU Homecoming, will crown her successor with the traditional Indian Headdress.

Selected by the student body from a large group of preliminary candidates, the five finalists include: Faye Anthony, sponsored by Phi Delta Theta fraternity; Margaret Ann Ballinger, sponsored by Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity; Caryl James, sponsored by Kappa Alpha Theta sorority; Anita Wall, sponsored by West Hall; and Mary Margaret Williams, sponsored by Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity.

Probably the highest honor to be bestowed on an FSU co-ed, all other beauty titles will be pushed into the background tonight, as the new queen is presented.

She will reign over all other Homecoming activities, and act as a representative of Florida State during the rest of the year, throughout the nation. Next year, she will ride on the Queen's float in the Homecoming parade, and crown her successor.

Tonight at the Pow-Wow, after a ceremonial dance for the queen by the Flying Seminoles, she will be crowned by Coyle Moore, student body president and Miss Wilmon, who was sponsored in last year's contest by West Hall. Besides the beautiful Indian headdress, used traditionally for the FSU Homecoming Queen, the new queen will receive a trophy.

This year's homecoming celebration is the most elaborate ever held at FSU. A record number of Florida State University alumni are expected to return to Tallahassee for the Saturday game between the FSU Seminoles and the Citadel Bulldogs, and the accompanying festivities.

Besides the Homecoming parade, planned for this afternoon, and various activities scheduled for the alumni, a homecoming dance featuring Nick Stuart's orchestra will be held Saturday night. Winners of the float contest will be announced at the Pow-Wow.

All sorority, fraternity, student houses and resident halls will be open to returning guests of the university.

PROGRESS—A BYWORD

Progress—the Florida State University kind. That's story you'll find written throughout the homecoming section.

Doubtless, all Seminole followers know and are proud of the football squad's rapid climb into major ege football—a climb which took only seven years.

But relatively few realize that Florida State Uni- ersity ranks among the leaders of the nation in those ays commonly referred to as "small."

To cite a few examples:

Few, if any, southern institutions have laid claim national title during the past few years. Florida ey brought home two last year—the AAU's National ssaults title and the NCAA's National Volleyball tle.

The Seminola basketball outfit was one of the finest the south last year, fielding a 22-4 record, winning the st Florida Intercollegiate Basketball title, and fourneying to Kansas City and the NAIA tourney in postseason play.

Florida State's swimming team hasn't been beaten by competition in three years—and they've met the ps of the Southeastern and Southwest conferences had to offer.

The golf team carded an 11-1 mark, losing only to tlefield Georgia Tech, and the tennis team finished it against some of the south's finest schools.

The baseball squad, in its first season under former ague leaguer Danny Litwhiler, fiialled a 17-6 record gainst some of the best teams to ever come into Florida. And this season—a new idea—the Florida State Invitational Baseball Tourney will bring the nation's best ollegiate nines to the FSU campus.

And a track team that never was much of a track am came to life and won the state title last year.

Progress—that's a byword at Florida State.

"BONES" TAYLOR, TALENT SCOUT?

When the state's Board of Control met in Tallahassee last night, there was supposed to be a lot having to with football on the agenda.

And the thing most important to FSU football fans was whether or not the former Washington Redskins' great, Hugh "Bones" Taylor, would be hired as talent scout for the Seminoles.

Taylor told WTAL newsman George Thurston from Washington, D.C., Wednesday afternoon that "I am seriously considering the proposition."

I was in Tallahassee earlier this week and talked with coach Nugant and athletic director Danford. I liked the idea, but the final word will have to come from the University."

The fact that Taylor was "being considered" for the job was reported by Florida Times-Union sports editor Red Sarkeiz, who wrote in his column:

"We have our facts straight in the man about to be considered for the job . . . he is Hugh "Bones" Taylor, star back with the Washington Redskins from 1947 through 1952.

Taylor, a participant in the coaching clinic at FSU last summer, made a fine impression on athletic official Ithata thara, wa ara told.

Mr. Athletic Contacts, both in the U.S. and Canada, are many and his personality is a winning one.

It is no secret that head coach Tom Nugent has missed a full-time "bird dog" ever since he came to Tallahassee, and Taylor appears to be the answer.

Should this come to pass, you can take it for granted that Florida State is serious about going big-time on football.

Kazsak pointed out that the University Florida has football talent recruitar.

Regardless, the Board of Control has all the power in the hiring of such personnel.

We'll know today.

WOODRUFF, UFLA AND A LESSON—

Now while we're on the subjects of football and the Board of Control, the state organization will have a fairly important question tossed its way soon—whether Bob Woodruff remains head football coach of the University of Florida and, if not, what then?

It's customary each year before a coach's contract expires in this state for the Board of Control to review the situation and decide whether the coach in question merits a new contract. Woodruff's contract expires at the end of next season.

There have been recent rumblings in some sets to have Mr. Gator mentor uprooted and moved out—and after Fla's 20-0 Homecoming loss to Tennessee last week, talk's at a new peak.

Several persons have asked why we haven't taken a stand on the issue. To answer quite frankly, we've never considered it too much of our business.

But to keep those questioners happy, this we will say:

We have in our files a prediction saying that Bob Woodruff would not be head football coach at Ufla in 1957—that's about the earliest date FSU stands a chance of getting on the Gator schedule. We lucked that prediction away back before the present season got underway, waiting for the proper time to break it.

It seems that the people of Gatorland moved a bit faster than we might have anticipated—and maybe the reason for that is that they place a little more emphasis on winning than we might have anticipated.

And that's a shame.

Football is a game—and it has to be played as one. But the personnel of the University of Florida have made more than that.

Bob Woodruff, in his dual capacity as Athletic Director and head football coach, receives $17,000 a year. When you exclude his athletic director position, that means he's getting somewhere near $1,700 for every football game he squad plays each year.

Illogical reasoning, perhaps, but he's paid more than any other official in the state—and that includes the governor.

And we think $17,000 is a lot of amphasis.

Politicians, too, are making life miserable down Gainesville way.

Former Gov. Fuller Warren said in Tampa recently that there is no substitute for success."

FSU, Citadel Meet Here

FSU Boasts 6-1 H'coming Mark

As The Citadel Bulldogs move in for the eighth annual homecoming grid tilt interlude to note that the Seminoles have lost but one of the previous homecoming contests.

The alumni reunions in the past have provided the incentive the Tribe needed to bak all but two times in 1952 among their homecoming opponents.

If past games are any indication, tomorrow's contest should be a thriller for only a 40-0 rout of Mulhaps in 1949 has marred the theme of close games played on grad's day.

Beginning with last year's victory over Furman he's turn back the clock briefly to take a look at the records of past homecoming performances.

1954, FSU 32, Furman 14. The Seminoles were fighting for revenge from the only team to beat them in a homecoming contest, but Furman was determined to make a contest of it.

The Tribe grabbed an early margin, though and after the first half it wasn't really much of a contest.

1953 FSU 13, Stetson 6. The score is one of the few exceptions here, for the game was considerably more one-sided than it indicated.

Stetson didn't know that the way to do Florida State's pageant contest in the oldest erudition series for the Seminoles, but the Tribe was far ahead and it didn't matter much.

1952, Fsu 8, Furman 9. This is the only defeat in the homecoming and history of the Seminoles' grid fortunes.

Actually, the Tribe did cross the goal in the second period, but a fumbled snap and the ex other didn't stopped short at the 5 and 9 paid them.

1951, FSU 31, Stetson 10. The largest crowd in history, 13,701, watched the Hatters aim a 3-0 halftime lead go by the wayside of Bill Johnson field goal, but the Tribe had no trouble the second time around.

Mike Sellers and Roy Thomason led the way as the winners rolled up a total of 20 first downs to 12 for their fourth straight homecoming triumph.

1950 FSU 34, Swanee 8. Trailing 7-0 going into the final stanza, the Seminoles were forced to go all out to capture this one from a determined opponent.

They did it in the last-period pay interception and Nelson Italiano scored a touchdown and the scores as a stubborn Swanee team threatened to ruin the Florida triumph then?

1949 FSU, 40, Millsaps 0. After a 13-6 upset by Livingston State Teachers College, the Seminoles went into an agreeable mood against the Majors, scoring in every period.

Bill Wyatt, a 145-yard pass interceptor, and Nelson Italiano were the scores as a stubborn Swanee team threatened to ruin the Florida triumph then?

1948 FSU, 33, Tampa 12. A shortened game of 6,500 sat in sub-freezing weather as the Seminoles got their first homecoming victory after dropping off to a big start with a victory which was threatened by a determined Spartan team.

After a scoreless first period, the Semminoles rumbled to two scores in the second period and after they held on to halt Tampa's threatening opening of a big gridiron rivalry.

Tracksters Boosted By Eight Lettermen

Bolstered by some eight returning letterman, the Florida State track team is scheduled to open their season with a trip to Raleigh, North Carolina for the annual Atlantic Coast Indoor Championships in February.

Leading Ten returning thinclads are Ronald Wagner, captain and record holder in the javelin and discus; man Jack Tevis, who finished second in total points last year.

Other lettermen include: halfmiler Ken Segner, dash man Bumper Watson, Joe Dan Cain, shot putter Jerry Jacobs, pole vaulter Warren Strickland and Tenner Brown, who is also a jumper and high hurdles man.

Bergler returnees who will participate in the meets are Woody Parker, Wes Minton, who holds the school records for both hurdles events and Pete Praschetti

Williams Returns

Frowns and worries about the FSU hoop squad have disappeared with the return of starting center Bob Williams.

Big Bob sprained his ankle in the scrimmage with the frosh and had been expected to engage in light practice only for a week.

However, after reel on the ankle early in the week, Bob is again taking his regular turn on the court.

Eighth short years ago, Florida State University resumed active competition in intercollegiate football after a 42-year hiatus during which the school was a non-competitor.

In that year, 1947, the Seminoles played and lost to in succession Stetson, Mississippi, Tennessee Polytechnic, Wofford, Tulane and Jacksonville St. Teachers (Ala.).

Growth

In that eight years, the Tribe has risen from the ranks of a small-time football to a major-college schedule that included in 1954 and 1955 such powers as Georgia Tech, Miami, Auburn, Virginia Tech and Georgia.

The first coach was Ed Williamson, then Don Veller took over and with the arrival of Tom Nugent in 1952, the Seminoles began to make their bid for major-power recognition.

Most Seminole fans are famiiliar with the scene which spawned the way for FSU's entrance into major-college football, and therefore of more concern is what will transpose in the immediate future.

The 1954 and 1957 schedules, not yet completed, will include some of the top schools in the South and be undoubtedly the toughest in Florida State's history.

After a one-year absence the powerful Tigers of Auburn return to the Seminole state for the first time since 1953 when the Tribe handed the Plainsmen their highest of the 1953 scores, will be a trip to Philadelphia to meet Villanova, the Tarheels of North that a Seminole grid team has ever traveled.

1956 Schedule

Next comes to the 1956 schedule include Ohio University and Wake Forest, while some of Miami and's opponents such as Virginia Tech and North Carolina State will also be met.

The 1957 schedule promises to be the finest in the school's short gridiron history. Auburn, Miami, Mississippi, Georgia State and Villanova will be played in Tallahassee that year.

To accomodate the late crowds expected, the stadium construction is expected following the 1955 season on a 10,000 seat addition to Campbell Stadium.

With this kind of a schedule staring them in the face, it is probably most encouraging to learn that his academic fortunes of the most fortunate used 1955 starters are Sophomores

Sophomores

Of the 11 men set to start against Florida last week ends Ham Bisbee and Ronnie Schombert at tackle, guard Leroy Barnes, guard Leo Bassett, quarterback Vic Prinzi and halfback Bill Weaver are second-

In addition, returning from service duty is Stan Bodow, a big boy who showed quite a bit of promise a couple of years back. Bodow, a 6-foot-2 set that Dobos has been keeping in shape by playing service football these past two years.

In the line, the loss of co-captain Bob Crenshaw will hurt the Tribe deeply, but the say could be filled by George Boyer, a 235-pound sizzling freshman from the service.

Boyer could be used at either center or tackle, and since Barnes can play either position, the Tribe should appear well stocked with Bob Barber returning for another year.

Dependable Leo Bassett, who improves each game, returns at guard and additional help may be obtained from the B squad of returning service stars.

Two other linemen who will be back from armed forces are Bob Penn, a tackle who's Manning and George Fuller, a guard and tackle respectively.

The backfield will probably rest-one to be a battle for starting positions, though as the moment the combo of Prinzi, Lee Corso, Joe Holt and Weaver or Billy Odom appear to have the edge.

In addition to Bob Crenshaw, backs who could figure prominently include Pat Trimble, who promises to get some punishing records before he leaves and Jerry Patterson and Bill Leonard

Bobby Renn

Possibly one of the outstanding prospects among the backs is Bobby Renn, a transfer student ineligible this year who may be used either at quarterback or halfback

Renn amazed the Seminole coaches on several occasions this year by burning up the gridiron in practice sessions, and he will be available for competition for two more years.

Returning next year after sitting out this season with a bad knee which necessitated an operation is Buddy Kendrick, a West Palm Beach boy who showed great spots of brilliance as a Freshman last year.

Some of the prospects from the current B team include halfbacks Bill Atkins and Carlton Battaglia, quarterback-halfback Frinnell Woodward, center Stuart Keith and end Jerry Hope.

Hope assures eternal of course, for the long-awaited clash with the Gators of Ufla, but that's no such game is anticipated in the near future.

Hoo ever, as the Seminoles continue to play more and more of the big boys, it remains only a matter of time until the Gators will be forced to recognize that their hustle brothers have grown up, for the Seminoles have done just that.

Three Lead Gridders

Three players are tied for the scoring lead for the Seminole football team after seven games, according to the latest statistics released.

Two of these three are quarterbacks Vic Prinzi and Lee Swanzi, and the other is star halfback Lee Corso. All three boys have scored two touchdowns apiece thus far this year to lead the team.

Eighth Annual Homecoming Contest Scheduled Tomorrow

By ALAN WHITMARSH

With two victory skeens on the line, the Florida State Seminoles and The Citadel Bulldogs tie the eighth annual homecoming football game here tomorrow afternoon.

With two down and three to go in their program to finish the season with five straight triumphs, the Tribe faces a rugged block to a third straight win the invaders from South Carolina.

If past homecoming contests may be consured a good omen, a Seminole victory is in sight, for the Tribe has won six of seven grad's day contests to date

However, in The Citadel they face an inspired opponent which has pointed to a victory over Fl. State as the six season's goal?

Part of this inspiration is due to the fact that the coach of the invading Bulldogs is John Sauer, a former backfield coach at the University of Florida

Sauer would undoubtedly like nothing better than to return to Florida with a victory, and the Bulls has need little more inspiration.

In addition, the head of the Seaboard General Mark Clark will be in the stands and that crack dic. ens, of the Seminole Guard, will be here

There is also a possibility that the entire cadet corps may be in the stands to cheer on their team.

Head coach Tom Nugent point's out that the Seminoles have their moves for a win, with the big homecoming celebration and their decorated program to finish the season victorious

Nugent sound that one of the reasons that the Bulldogs lost to VMI last week was because they were looking forward all year to this trip to Florida, and a victory over them to be victorious.

"In summary," commented Nugent, "we think that the fans will be seeing the two most spirited football teams in the South tomorrow afternoon.

The Carolina Bulldogs have flashed a 2-3 record thus far this year and included is a 14-7 victory over the undefeated Furman, 19-6 in fluid South Carolina rainout and Friday night, when the Bullpups stomped the Purple Hurricanes, 25-19 earlier in the season.

The Seminoles came out of the Furman fray with no new serious injuries and most of the boys who were unavailable before last week will be back in action.

It is likely that tackle Bob Barber will be ready only for limited duty and Troy Barnes will probably be the starting right tackle

Barber moved into this position with the injury of Bill Proctor and Barber lost a toe. Proctor will be back at left tackle to go Lineups

The only two major changes in the starting array for the Freshman center Stuart Keith, on the B team this year, is considered one of the promising linemen on the Seminole football team in the future.

VOLLEYBALL PRACTICE

The call is out for volleyball letters beam practice for their first get-season meet Wednesday

The team, last year's national champions, will practice for about two weeks for the St. Petersburg AAU meet December 3, then begin hard work in January.

Tribe will return Tom Feamster to the starting right end slot and Buck Barber to the left tackle back

At the other end is Ronnie Schomburger, who last week became the fourth Seminole lineman to be honored as Florida lineman of the week this year

For his outstanding performance in the Furman game, Schombarger joined teammates

Baseball Squad Has Hard Slate

By NEIL LABAR

Florida State University baseball moved into a new era last season when former major league outfielder Danny Litwhiler became head coach. And when the 1956 season rolls around progress will be the keynote.

Under Litwhiler, the Tribe won 17 and and 6 for one of their finest pnicurmances aasinst top-flight competition. This year's schedule promises competition all be even tougher, and we hope, the record even better.

The entire 1955 squad has returned with the exception of Jack Swanzi, second baseman Billy Campbell and left-fielder Ham Wemlier.

The 1956 lineup will look somethine like this:

Left-field Bud Thomey, centerfield Bob Roselle; rightfield Bud Williamson; Ribs Bierley or Gene Tuscio third base; Cecley Hendrix, shortstop Phil Pond, second base; Odell Carlton, or Dick Hoover, first base. Jack Hamilton, Ham Bisbee, and catching, Gary Ashley, or Bob Vaughn

The Seminole staff will remain the same with John Ash and Tom Garcia leading the list. Round out the pitching staff will be 5-1 record last year

Freshman Team

The Seminole baseball team looks even better than last year's first team which compiled a fine 2-1 record.

Coach Danny Litwhiler has obtained the two best shortstops in the state. They are Dale Koch from Clearwater and Mike Copp of Jacksonville.

Koch was recommended by a Kansas City scout and Copp has received approval from Gabe Paul of Cincinnati. Also an shortstop is Wally Smith.

There are three pre thing boomers—Bobinson Dyer, says Coach—Robinson bats right handed while Dyer and Caldwell bat left handed and Jim Bass, ex will hold down the second base spot. First base will be handled by Buster Cox Lona, former brother Wayne and coach Litwhiler says "he looks good."

Catching will be Pete Cuddell and Bill Snyder who were recommended by a Carolina scout.

In the outfield will be John Lenano. John Jones Bill Mackowicz and Bill Kolb. Kolb was approved by a Brooklyn scout.

Co-Ed Corner

by
Juanita Jacob

Hi there co-eds

This being the homecoming edition, we would like to bring you some special news concerning the intramural program of the entire year a questionnaire on the question will women ever participate in intercollegiate sports here at Florida State University. Both sides of this question will be discussed.

The intramural program is designed so that there will be some form of activity for everyone to enjoy. If possible, each and every one of us should take an interest in one or more of these events. As Katherine W. Montgomery, faculty advisor of Women's Recreation Association, has stated "It is what we do when we do not have to do anything that reveals what are really are. Your leisure activities a rule in the university will do much to develop you into a mature, successful citizen."

The first activities to begin this year were volleyball, basketball and archery. Many women came out and had a good time participating. These started a till around November 22nd.

Next in line is hockey, which began on November 28th and ends December 15th. Much planning is being put into activities for a hockey clinic which teaches you the fundamentals of the game. More information about this will be revealed at a later date.

From January 9th to March 16th, we have the ever-popular game of basketball. At this time, badminton and table tennis will be in full swing.

And then from March 19th to May 11 we have four big events taking place. These include softball, tennis, swimming and golf.

This isn't all. There is more—

Besides these outdoor intramural activities, there are also organizations that you may belong to if you are interested.

One of these groups is Theatre Dance. The purpose of the group has been initiated is similar interest and develop appreciation of dance as an art and to provide experience in dance production. Membership is open to all students who have an interest in dancing and who satisfy at a skill test given by the group. You may try out in the fall or in the spring.

Another organization here on the campus is the Canon Club. This club is known throughout the state for its outstanding accomplishments in synchronized swimming. The primary purpose is to promote a greater interest in swimming through the presentation of demonstrations it puts on during the year. This club is open to all girls and for those who are interested. Of special mention is the fact that this club is the only one of the tarpon club during the 1953-54 season

SIDELIGHT — Will Women Ever Participate In Intercollegiate Sports Here at Florida State?

This question and many others concerning intercollegiate sports is in the news a-roll today. Many women people have stated their views on this subject. The question — is WILL IT ever participate?

At a first glance, many of us would say "no" to this.

Well let us see The American Association of Health, Physical Education and Recreation — Section for Girls and Women has set up a number of standards concerning intercollegiate sports. There is a limit on what can be done

It is true that we have sports days at which time Florida State engages in intercollegiate sports where twice a year against other universities but, however, it is not based on tournament play. The women play for enjoyment and to make new acquaintances, as well as to win. As the principles were set up, women are playing for their benefits and not spectator attention The aim of the individual women come first. Here are some statements made by some of the members of the faculty here on the campus.

Dr Katherine Montgomery, head of the Physical Education department has stated her views as follows:

Here at Florida State we are striving to have a well-rounded program for women participating in physical education, intramurals, and intercollegiate sports days. We are interested in developing the interests, and their ability to win or lose with good sportsmanship. Our program will continue to exist for the benefit of the players — first, last and always.

Miss Ann E Lankford, assistant professor of physical education, believes this

"I see no reason why in the future there should not be intercollegiate competition in the individual sports such as tennis, golf, archery, badminton or bowling. Highly skilled, or potentially skilled girls could develop under the trained leadership the physical education department for women offers and a controlled type competition could will serve as a maturing experience I feel that college students can be expected to behave as young adults and will demonstrate the emotional maturity for such competition with-

Seminole Vs. Gator? Well - - - Maybe So

The time—a late November the best in the Southeast, Jo-afternoon in 1960. The place—Doak S. Campbell Stadium in Tallahassee, Florida. The announcer—an announcer for the Seminole football network.

Good afternoon ladies and gentlemen, this is ..... speaking to you from Campbell Stadium in Tallahassee where in a very few moments the third annual football clash between the University of Florida and Florida State Seminoles will begin.

After a flurry, hotly-debated birth this promises to become one of the top football rivalries in the South, as its early promoters predicted it would be.

Though they have only been playing major-college football for five years, the Seminoles of Florida State have already established themselves as one of the roughest competitors in the South.

This series began two years ago in Gainesville, when a three-touchdown favorite Florida team was forced to come from behind in the last half to stop the fired-up Florida State squad, 20-14. Last year the clash again went to Gainesville, and this time the Seminoles led much of the game only to fall 6-7 on a last-minute field goal.

The coaches of the Tallahassee fans plus the showing of FSU in the ranks of major colleges and the fact that Campbell Stadium now seats over 40,000, forced the Gators to give in to demands that a home and home arrangement begin this year.

After official recognition as a big-time football school in 1955, the Seminoles of head coach Tom Nugent have come a long way fast. Upsets of Auburn in 1956, Miami in 1957, and Georgia in 1958 stamped the Seminoles as a comer and made the rest of the South stand up and take notice.

Then last year, the Tribe made a list of the football selectors see red when they soared to an 8-2 mark assign

Better In Every Way'—Bud Kennedy's Hoop Schedule Termed 'Tough'

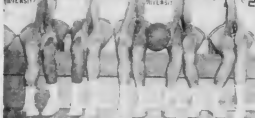
Coach Bud Kennedy's court-men will play the toughest schedule in FSU's basketball history.

Taking a look at some of the Seminole opponents this year, Kennedy will have a tough time equaling his 22-4 record of last year.

North Carolina looks like the best team in the Atlantic Coast Conference this season. Coach Ev Case, voted coach of the year last season, has 6-6 Ronnie Shuba back for his senior year. Backing him up are Vic Molodet who has all-conference choice for guard, and forward Phil Di Nardo. Last year's team averaged 84.7 points per game and scored over 100 seven times.

At the Charlotte tournament the Tribe will be out to avenge a 86-80 defeat at the hands of Clemson in the Cotton Bowl in 1952. The Tigers feel that new personnel in Tom Cremins, 6-8 Gene Bray, 6-4 Vince Yarbrough and 6-6 Ed Brinkley will get them on winning ways after last season's poor 3-21 record.

Tennessee's team is led by Carl White 6-3 who averaged almost 20 points per game last season. Also returning are two 6-3 forwards in Lew Neyland and Dick Keller. Lack of height has been Tennessee's problem for some time but a surprised coach could help in this department. They are 6-8 Bob Hatcher and 6-4 James Hamilton last year who was the sleeper of the tournament.



West Virginia is the team to beat in the Orange Bowl at Miami. Coach Fred Schaus has a 6-4 All-American, Rod Hundley who pooured 711 points through the hoop last year for a season average of 23.7 Returning at forward is 6-6 Willie Bergines and 6-1 Clayle Kirkbauer at guard. Two sophs who could help are 6-9 Lloyd Sharrar at center and guard Jordy Gardner. The Mountaineers are a dangerous scoring threat and should retain the Southern Conference title.

Tribe Golfers Look Forward To Defeat Of Florida Gators

Coach Don Veller's golfers have a lot of progress in mind—they'd like to whip the University of Florida Gators a couple of times this year.

Though it's not an easy task by any means, the FSU linksters will have a few chances to satisfy that ambition.

There's nothing definite yet, but the defending Southeastern Conference golf champions may appear on the Florida State schedule for dual competition. And if that doesn't come through, then Veller's pitchers and putters will run across the Gatorsville crew in a couple of tournaments around the state.

The first will be the annual George Washington Open to be held here in Tallahassee the last week in February. The other is the Florida Intercollegiate Tournament which will be played at Ocala early next spring.

Good Year

Veller told the Flambeau recently that "this should be a good year for the golf team.

"We have almost the entire squad coming back and will be reinforced with plenty of newcomers in the freshmen and transfer student areas."

The FSU golf team carded one of the south's finest records last year, losing only to Georgia Tech in 12 dual matches.

Returnees

Pacing the linksters this time around will be returnees Bunk Berry, Jack Veghte, Bob Schuman, Bobby Dunn, David Morris, Dick Hull, Dick Wise and Billy Shelton.

Veller said if he had to rank any of his golfers in order he'd say "Berry, Veghte and Dunn rate about one-two-three in that order."

Among the newcomers to the south, Veller named transfer students Chris Bannister, Harry Schumaker and Frank Gasquino.

Some of the outstanding freshmen include Norm Collins, Rem Noble, Bob Shave, Rose Cirino, Ed Fricke, Sorrell Johnson, Ron McCallom and Edwin Jenkins.

"Juniors says Veller, should be among our top golfers this year. He's the former Jacksonville city champion."

The Schedule

Veller said that although it is still unofficial, the FSU golf schedule should include such names once again as Georgia Tech, Auburn, Georgia, Rollins and numerous other Southeastern Conference powers.

"It should be a great year," he commented. We hope we can equal that '54 record."

Tribe Hoopsters Hope For NIT Garden Invite

By LARRY BLOCK

The Tribes' hoopsters are hoping that this will be the year they will be asked to compete in the National Invitation Tournament at Madison Square Garden.

It is the dream of college basketball players to perform in this mecca of the sports field. In previous years many of the greatest teams in the country have been pitted against each other in this, basketballs leading boner.

Past years have seen the Kentucky Wildcats led by Groza and Beard, the Iron Dukes of Duquesne and their all-America trio of Ricketts, Tucker, and Green, Western Kentucky's Hilltoppers, the Dayton Flyers with such stars as Don Meineke and Johnny Horan, and mighty LaSalle of Philadelphia led by their all-America center Tom Gola.

How many students here at FSU know how close the Tribe came to being invited for last year's tourney?

New York newspapers carried the name of Florida State in its sports columns as one of the teams under consideration to receive a bid. At the last minute the Tribe was passed over, and went instead to NAIA at Kansas City.

Top Guard

In coach Kennedy's opinion FSU has the best guard in the South in Jim Oler, the leading scorer last year and all-star Florida Intercollegiate Conference guard.

Along with Oler are Bob Artmier, center Bob Williams and forward Gary Wold will form the nucleus of this years' starting team.

Most of the scoring will come from the outside as coach Kennedy employs a five man attack without the use of a big man. The big men, Williams and Wold are counted on for rebound play. This is important in the basketball game that ever controls the boards usually wins the games.

Not all the responsibility will rest with coach Bud Kennedy and the team.

Each student has an obligation in giving support to the team by his or her presence at the game. Coach Kennedy explains that the crowd is important to the morale of the team and provides inspiration in performance of players. This is because a crowd's cheers and applause in response it makes winning situations easier.

Members of the present team that are being counted on for the future are Bill Payne, Garcia, and Darrell Mahoney.

Not eligible this year are a group of transfer students from other colleges. They include Bob Ward, transfer from Iowa, Joe Westhafer from the U. of Cincinnati, Bill Gardner from the U. of Miami, college in Pa. Pete Peddicord Penn, Dick Dyal and "Ed" George Davis. All will be eligible to play next year. Should Kennedy's strategy be as he said Kennedy.

Stars

The brightest stars on the basketball horizon, according to Kennedy are Bob Williams of New York who are now in service Hal Estes, 6'8" guard from Wichita Falls, Texas and Jim Clinton, 6'6" forward from the Bronx, has a reputation around the country as the best little guy they have ever seen.

Frosh a 6'7" forward played 3 years with the Jacksonville Naval Air Station and is being counted on as a scorer. Both here are expected to help out during the year.

The NAIA tournament will be big step in basketball for the Basketball at FSU has been great influence in attracting national standings and winning a bid to take the hopes of playing at Madison Square Garden.

FSU Basketballers Defend FIBC Title In Coming Year

Florida State University will be out to defend its title of Florida Intercollegiate Basketball Conference championship this season.

Rollins, Miami, Tampa Stetson and Florida Southern are the other teams that make up the FIBC.

In last season's play the Tribe swept its way to a 10-0 record to become conference champions.

"We're hoping of course to do the same thing again this year," said coach Bud Kennedy, "but judging from pre-season reports every team is going to improved over last year. Our biggest competition will probably come from the University of Miami. Last season they had the best freshman team in the conference, which included a 7' center."

"We're not afraid of any team on this year's schedule. I do have respect for all the teams we play, but they'll have to beat us on the court and by their reputations. My boys and I are not afraid of the Wolfpack, the tremendous field house their fans are held in, or their All-American center Ron Shavlik," Kennedy said.

"There isn't one man on my squad that does not believe we are going to win that opening game in Tallahassee Saturday.

The varsity has been scrimmaging against the Wernke's freshman and transfer teams on week-ends.

Led by Jim Oler and Stu Gregory the Tribe downed the Frosh 69 to 54 Wednesday night. In his squad into three teams which are Oler, Dick Artmeyr, Bob Williams, Gary Wold, and Fred Twomey start the game. Gregory and Bob Ward are the next which was marked by rough body contact.

The scores came out on the short end of it as Bob Williams and Gary Wold had to retire early in the game. The injuries, however, are not serious and should be back at practice

Bob Waits, Stu Gregory, Bob Ward, Wayne Patton and John Wood saw action in the second period, while John Corry, Ed Wurzbach, Darrell Mahoney, Don Alford and Bruce Jacobs were used in the third quarter. Tom Garcia alternated with Twomey on the starting five.

Frosh Hoopsters Have Potential

This year's freshman team has great potential reports coach Hans Wernke. FSU's all-time high scorer and two time Helm's all-America selection.

The squad includes Tom Donovan, Mike DePalmer, Joe Williams, Fred Woodward, Cecil Dunn and Mike Lamson

Hugh Durham, Bill Clendinen, Kizar Heiney, Dave Horin, Buddy Clark, John Taylor, Larry Beale, Bob Meyers, Allen Kiss, Sherael Johnson, Ken Brown, and Steve Hilton.

The team has very good speed and possesses some jumping-handers. Our big problem right now is the lack of a big man," said Wernke. The tallest man on the team is Dave Horin at 6-4.

Donovan, DePalmer, Williams, Woodward, Dunn, Lamson, Durham and Horin alternate as the starting five in practice game.

The opening game will be against Chipola Junior College on Dec. 5 at the new demonstration school.

So far, 10 games have been scheduled with more in the mail.

Other opponents include Jacksonville U., College, Albany Air Force Base, South Georgia and Pensacola Jr. Colleges.

The frosh basketball season runs until the end of February.

Tribe To Host Diamond Meet

The first annual Florida State Invitational Baseball Tournament will be held in Tallahassee on Friday and April 13.

As announced recently by Athletic Director Howard G. Danford.

The week-long baseball classic has been given the position's best college baseball teams. Easter holiday period and will feature such outstanding college baseball names as Brown University, Illinois Notre Dame, Florida State, North Carolina, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

Florida State's Seminole baseball nine is the host team.

The tournament will be under the direction of FSU baseball coach Danny Litschke, former major league outfielder. He is assisted with the headers as well as similar jobs throughout the entire year.

Games will be played at Florida State's new baseball field.

Tribe Gymnasts Look Forward To 6th National Championship

Florida State's Gymnastics team is known throughout the country as enough his inception became a relatively short time ago. The only coach the team has since had is Dr. Hartley Price. The gymnasts have won five national championships and 26 state championships. Their individual championships are 20, in eight years.

FSU's gymnastic personnel looks like a who's who of gymnastics. The names of Bill Roetzheim, Dick Gunning, Don Holderbaum, Jack Mitles, Gene Rabbit, Jerry Jimmie and Joe Regna, Dick Thrust, and Rafael Lecuona will be born not only in FSU's history but in gymnastics history as well.

The natural question arises as to what is FSU the top gymnastics school in the country? Why does the school continue to get the cream of the gymnastic crop?

Most of the credit must go to Dr. Price. Dr. Price has been coaching over 25 years and many of his former pupils are now gymnastic and high school coaches throughout the country and all over the world. These coaches encourage their top gymnastic performers to continue in this sport at FSU.

Dr. Price has written more than 40 gymnastics and physical fitness than any man in his field. During World War II, he was the coordinator of gymnastics with Aviation for physical fitness.

Last year Dr. Price was named "Outstanding Gymnastic Coach in the United States. This is not the second time that Dr. Price has received an award has been made in the entire country that has ever defeated the Swedish team.

Members of the team that will be back next year include Rafael Lecuona, Don Preisser, Bob Murray, Laird Anderson, Joe Gusic, Tom MacDonald, Don Smith, Jim Hanlon, Ronnie Amaster and Jamile Ashmore, the tumbling Texan.

New FSU gymnasts are Bob Elliott, NAAU trampoline champion 1954 and 55, Chick Cicio National Turn Best all-around, 1954, Beverly Cude, Canadian Women's Sokol, 1955.

Freshman prospects are Roger Webb, Fred Grilasky, Bruno Klaus, Tony Morino, Bob Tomlinson, Charlie Ceska, Fred Ladwig, and Don Rosansky.

"We have a fine freshman squad, and until they prove themselves to FSU I will be non-committal in naming them," said Dr. Price.

Coach Price is counting on Paul Signorelli and Dick Gutting, two of his former gymnastic champions, to develop gymnasts in Miami. They are now coaching and teaching gymnastics in Miami elementary schools.

Another important reason are the road shows Dr. Price's gymnasts travel from coast to coast putting on exhibitions or performing in actual competition. Many of these shows are watched by top-flight high school gymnasts.

At these meets the high school students have a chance to speak personally to the FSU gymnasts themselves. This personal contact does much in convincing these young gymnasts that this is the college to attend.

Everyone wants to be on a winning team, and a team that has won so many titles and has the best gymnastic athletes, as FSU does, must be considered a determining factor.

In 1951 NCAA at Ann Arbor, Mich., and NAAU in Detroit first place, 1952, NCAA at Bloomington, Colo., first, 1953 NAAU at Chicago first, and 1954 at Rochester NAAU first place.

Another important distinction that started FSU on the way to the top was the transferring of Bill Roetzheim from the U of Illinois to FSU At that time by the way the national all-around champion. At the end of his college days Bill compiled 19 individual championships.

An event that attracted national recognition to FSU in gymnastics was the defeating of the Swedish Olympic team here in 1954. This is the only college

Varsity Netmen Lack Reserves

It's quite awhile before Florida State's tennis team will be using any real talent, but ambitious net mentor Keith Pitchford is already chasing his charges through the paces.

Pitchford told the Flambeau yesterday that "with no more than four returnees lettermen and the schedule we have to face on this year, we have a tough start early."

The only letterman returning to bolster FSU's tennis hopes are former team captain Hal Schaus, Sherlo Threash, Tom Morgan and Dick Walker. With the exception of the sophomore Walker, all are seniors.

Schaus, a native of Mansville, Ohio, has been the chief threat for a while now. Last season in singles competition he won 13 while losing only five—and those to some of the nation's leading players.

The Frosh

Though they won't be of too much help in much of the matches this season, Pitchford says he has one of his finest crops of freshmen.

"Southeastern conference rules forbid us to play freshmen," he explains, "and though we aren't a member, we have to recognize the rules when we're playing SEC members."

But, adds Pitchford, "these freshmen will be around next season and they should become the base for a fine future organization."

Pitchford ranks his freshmen this way:

Freddy Serrett of Little Rock, Ark. former Arkansas High School champ and runner-one on Arkansas' Junior Davis Cup team, Les Hester, Jacksonville beach, a new player but he's coming fast", Frank Breen, Sumter, S. C. South Carolina State High School champion, and Charles Nordlinger, Little Rock. "Serrett's partner in the combination that won the state doubles title."

Pitchford said that Tom Wood of Panama City is a sophomore who is coming back after failing to make the team last year and "is doing a wonderful job."

Transfers

In addition the FSU squad will be bolstered by several transfer students.

Pitchford said Sammy Sellers, from the University of Florida and George Williams of Fort Hollins, Miami, Emory and Mercer.

Tankers Boast Dual Meet Record

Four High School All-Americas To Strengthen Tribe Swimmers

By DAVE EVANS

It has been three years since the Florida State University swimming team under Coach Bim Stults lost a dual meet. This record is outstanding, but how does the team stack up this season and in the next few years to come?

A good portion of last years' them "life savers".

Success can be attributed to the fact that not a single man was lost to the team due to graduation, however, the factor that enabled the team to go through the year undefeated was the not-so-lowly freshmen.

Florida State was able to down such lofty opponents as Southern Methodist University, Texas A & M, the defending Southwestern Conference Champions, and the University of Georgia by a score of 62-32. Georgia later went on to win the Southeastern Conference Championship. The freshmen played a vital part in these victories, Coach Stults termed

The record breaking 440 yard medley relay team at the Florida Amateur Athletic Union was back intact, veterans Ernie Stock and Jim Julian were ably assisted by rookies Joel Jacobs and John Rose. Another freak year man Graham Teschar, set a Florida AAU record in the 440 yd freestyle.

Among this years batch of freshmen four men were chosen high-school All-Americas.

Charles Gentry swam freestyle for Georgia Military Academy. Buddy Prestup a Florida boy swam for South Broward High School in Hollywood; Ralph Wetbel, swimming for Lakeland High, in Ohio, came in second in the high-school meet and Glen Fisher a back-stroke artist from Canton Ohio rounds out this outstanding quartet.

Other freshmen who were not All-American but should be watched for, Coach Stults thinks, are shaping up to be first rate swimmers are:

Charles Filmore of Dearborn, Mich. who swims the individual medley, Dennis McKeown of Highland Park Michigan, a freestyler, Joe Radence from Cleveland, a diver Rube Waddell a St. Louis boy who swims the backstroke and Dick Wentworth of Jacksonville, Florida whose specialty is the freestyle.

Of the veterans, Caswell Pondder and B B Rhodes should continue to rack-up points in the diving events, while Ken Abbott, Jim Baird, Roy Harris, Paul Kilbane, John Risher, Dirk Rhoton, Norm Bruiger, Mike Tschirret, and Phil Weiss should keep up their winning ways in the tank.

This year for the first time the team will be swimming against the University of Florida in dual competition. It will also be the first time teams representing any varsity sport from these two institutions have met in dual encouragement.

Asked whether he thought his team was good enough to knock-off Florida, Coach Stults said, "We'll only know the answer to that question after the meet is over, however, I would like to say that if the meet could be won by how hard a team works and the cooperation they give, I would have no worries, they are a hard working and cooperative bunch of boys."

Volleyball Champs Prepare For St. Pete

Most Florida State students are well aware that the Seminole gymnastic team has long been accorded national recognition, but few realize that there is another team on campus that is a national champion.

Last May, the FSU volley-

Vimee O bson, Pramster and Leo Bazzett as those honored.

In addition, the Seminoles have had the back of the wreckers, Les Swann securing the award after the North Carolina State game.

The lasting left guard will most likely be Jerry Jacobs, but the right guard position open for a tossup between Vince Gibson and Bazzett with the starter probably withheld until game time.

In addition to Metts, the backfield will have Vic Primi at quarterback, Lee Corso at left halfback and Joe Holt at the fullback slot.

The Bulldogs were hampered by the loss of four regular linemen in the VMI game, and there is a question as to whether all will be available for this game.

It has been pointed out that the Bulldogs do a lot of passing, as have most of the Seminole opponents this year, and Tribe coaches point out that the visitors like to throw from anywhere on the field.

The quarterback, Schwarze, is a southpaw, as was Wes Fesler, a star of gridiron experience under Red Blaik and his chief target is end Jim Tyrer from Panama City.

The big threat in the backfield is left halfback Buddy Broome but the Seminoles will do well to respect the rest of the starters also.

Woodworth at right halfback and Evans at fullback complete the starting array, but there is another halfback talent. Tribe coaches are worried about.

Nugent commented that a left halfback named Lasher, who has been out most of the season with an injury, could be a formidable yardage in a few tries against VMI.

ballers, coached by Bill Odenesl, achieved the national championship in their sport, winning the annual NCAA tournament at the University of Oklahoma.

The victory climaxed a long string of titles for the Seminole volleyball team, which has won the state championship seven out of the last eight years.

This year the national tourney will be held in Seattle, Wash., and despite the distance and traveling expenses involved, it appears likely that the Seminoles will be on hand to defend their crown.

Possibly more important than their various intercollegiate triumphs may be their contribution to community sports. The team annually sponsors the state high school tournament held here each year.

In addition, they present many clinics at various high schools in the area, one of which will come up early in December on a joint trip with the gymnastics team.

First Tourney

The team opens activities this year with a trip to the annual St. Pete-sburg AAU tournament Dec. 3 They have won this many times in the past, finishing second last year.

In addition, the Seminoles will compete in the Pensacola AAU, the New Orleans AAU and af course the State AAU. Three or four home matches are being planned for January or February to give the home fans a chance of seeing the team in action.

This year's squad will practice about two weeks for the pre-season tourney in St. Petersburg, then begin the real hard work for the brunt of the season's schedule beginning in January

With the exception of Wally Cox, the entire first team which was declared the nation's best will be back this year

All American

These include two first team all-Americans, Phil Slaten and Bernie McCann. Slaton was accorded the additional honor of being named captain of the mythical honor squad.

The other three veterans, Lyle Lazear (who stands 6-5), Ray Johnson and Eugene Lewis were named to the second team all-America Lewis is a Sophomore, but the rest of the boys are Seniors this year

There are two other returnees, Jack Stevens and Matthew Sullivan, and five newcomers who will probably figure highly in the title defense.

The newcomers are John Miller, Rory Clinneman, Pehme Zeko (he hails from Albania), Joe Rogers and Bill Cook.

First Gym Meet Opens Nov 30

The first gymnastic meet will be held on Nov. 30 at 7:30 in the Woman's Gymnasium.

Competition will be between the freshman gymnasts and the FSU National Collegiate Team.

Judges for the contest are Bob Holder, Jack Mitles and Jim Tanaka.

Rafael Lecuona and Ronnie Amaster co-captains of the varsity will enter 11 men, seven specialists and four all-around gymnasts.

Lecuona, Amaster, Bob Murray and Jamile Ashmore will vie for all-around honors. They will compete on the side horse, parallel bars, long horse, still rings, high bar, and calisthenics.

The remainder of the squad will are Joe Gusic, parallel bars, Laird Anderson, flying rings, Larry Bestman, side horse, Don Preisser, tumbling, and Tom MacDonald, Don Smith, and Jim Hanlin on rope climbing.

Co-captains of the freshman squad are Chick Cicio and Bob Elliott.

Chick Cicio, Fred Orlafsky Tony Morino and Bruno Klaus will be the all-around men for the frosh.

Specialists include Bob Tomlinson, Fred Ladwig, Roger Webb, Don Rosansky, Jim Jackson, Norman Harshburne, and trampoline champion Bob Elliott and the strain, if any, does not seem to me that friendly competition between colleges would be lessened but a display of good sportsmanship, but would also serve as an incentive for players to become skilled, courteous representatives of their college.

Dr. Florence Cole, associate professor of physical education, defines her ideas in this manner.

"The Executive Council of the Conference has ruled that women at Florida State shall not participate in intercollegiate activities. The department of physical education for women at FSU meets the standards established by the National Section on Girls and womens' sports for local rulings of the Executive Council and the national standards followed by the physical education department are based upon the principle that an athletic program exists for the welfare of the individual participant. Participation in Intercollegiate athletics in itself is not undesirable, but the attendant problems and unwholesome factors which arise in such competition tend to defeat certain educational objectives. Sports days and intramural competition avoid most of the undesirable features found in intercollegiate athletics Will the conferences at Florida State University ever be permitted to engage in intercollegiate athletics? Permission will not be granted as long as the basic principle upon which this philosophy is based remains unchanged."

To sum up the discussion on this question, we have here a comment from the Dean of Women.

Dean Mary Katherine Warren says, "Our present program of physical education for women is based on the philosophy of the development of the individual. I'm afraid that intercollegiate competition would result in shifting the emphasis from the development of the individual to the building of a winning team."

Seminoles Are 'Whooping It Up' For Citadel

Sororities have busily been preparing for Homecoming week-end and the arrival of many visitors.

As Florida State celebrates its 56th year as a leader among colleges and universities, Alpha Delta Pi celebrates its 66th year on this campus.

Alumnae from various parts of the state and nation as well as interns are planning to join in the Homecoming celebration.

The ADPi's will be especially honored by the presence of Mrs. LeRoy Collins, other outstanding alumnae include Mrs. Frank Moor, Mrs. Fred McMullen, and Mrs. Les Foster.

Festivities

Festivities at the ADPi house will include an open house Friday after the Pow Wow, and a buffet dinner Saturday noon. The house will be informally open during the entire weekend for friends and visitors. All alumnae, patrons, and friends are asked to attend.

Theme of the ADPi house decorations is "Let's Bottle the Cadets" and will be characterized by a fourteen foot Indian hammering a cork into a bottle cadet in which a doll beaten cadet.

Beauty and the beast will top their float. The beast, Citadel's bull dog will be tamed by a group of beautiful girls.

Alpha Gamma Delta

Among those returning to the Alpha Gamma Delta house this weekend are Joan Carr, Tampa Tribune Social Editor, Dee Rhyne and Penny Bobbitt, Virginia Phillips, Joanne Sasser, teachers, and Sue Gardner, student at Florida Southern.

Tonight after the Pow Wow the Alpha Gam pledges will present the original skit, a tradition of the Gamma Beta chapter, at an open house. There will also be an open house after the game to welcome alumnae.

"Rose The Out, by Jimmins" is the theme for the float in the Homecoming Parade. A giant Pinnochio is nearing the Ballahoo, and the Fairy Godmother, Christine Rancher, looks on. As the float passes Jimmins Cricket, Anne Bullock, is seen on the back corner.

Will Be "Cool"

The house itself will be quite "cool" for the weekend, with a Persian Blue Reed effect constructing a block of ice in which the Bulldog is trapped. The theme is "It's On Ice."

The Gamma Beta chapter of Alpha Gamma Delta was established at May of 1935. The house was built in 1937 and in 1951 an addition including a dining room, TV room, porch, and students' condo was built.

Ann Gilliland has been the Alpha Gam's pledge mother for the last house was rented, and has a total of 22 years. In 1952, the house honored her with a Silver Tea.

Alpha Xi Delta

"Citadel Will Be Chattin'" assures the Alpha X. Delta's their Homecoming theme.

The chapter is building the house decorations on the custom "Bell, Book, and Candle" theme. Also "more on that a little later on the chapter's float.

The chapter's social and active members began with a breakfast the morning of Homecoming and will be with us "rest of the week-end."

Alpha Xi House Corporation.

The new building accommodating twenty-eight women will be dedicated during the Homecoming week-end.

12 The Florida Flambeau Friday, Nov. 16, 1955 decorated in the sorority colors, blue and gold.

Annual Party

Before Thanksgiving the pledges will give their annual party for the actives with refreshments, skits, and song presentations by each.

The annual Christmas Party with the Delta Tau Deltas for underprivileged children will be held the week before Christmas vacation also.

Chi Omega

Chi Omega alumnae who are expected this weekend include Mrs. W. S. Hovall and her mother, Susan Bayly, Jan Croomlen, Sue Schock, Eugenia Cobb, ed Joan Mikesell.

The Chi O's will have an Open House after the Pow Wow and after the football game this weekend.

Ground breaking for the new Chi Omega house was in September and the sorority women expect to move into it by next fall. However, alumnae are invited in the Chi O's temporary home on Colbert Avenue to see the house plans and meet Mother Bray, new housemother.

Delta Gamma

Since the Delta Gammas have no house, they are concentrating on their Homecoming float and theme.

The float will have a musical theme, "The dance is over Chicdel." Two grand pianos with a ballerina house and all are all a orchid, pink, and lavender color scheme.

Visiting alumnae are in for a special welcome. Among the alums returning will be Pat Pyron, Sissy Smith, and Jeanne Thomson, Phillips.

Pat Newsel

Although nationally speaking Delta Gamma is one of the oldest sororities, it is the newest on the FSU campus. Barbara Lea Payne was the charter president, and the last charter members graduated in '54.

Margaret Ann Sullivan, DG cheerleader, is reigning in the Homecoming Court for the second successive year.

Gamma Phi Beta

The Gamma Phi Beta's are keeping the theme of their float secret until the day of the parade, but can be revealed that it is centered around Western Pool.

Gamma Phi's who will be riding on the Homecoming float are Joan Grantham, Faye Sloan, Carol Thatcher, and Betty Jo Orr.

The committee building it are Faye Moses, Barbara Brooks, Ann White, Joan Scurlock, Irene Rodriguez, Bette Cunvell, Pevonne Rogers, Nancy Hancock, and JoeNell Demlly.

Bunny Cox Sandra Cleveland Lee McIntosh, Pat Wilson, Judy Coulter, Joan Thomas, Marge Elliott, Carol Thatcher, and Betty Jo Hall.

We Can-Can'

Captain Sally Moore decorations is "We Can-Can, Citadel." The decorations committee was Joan Thomas and Anne Bullock, treasurer; Betty Sue Wrenn, Bobbie Dobson, Ann Bullock, Sarah Dell Gibson, Chris Wesley Marlene Wadsworth, Sue Brothers, Sylvia Smith, Kathryn Sanders, Barbara Smith and Dottie Dodd.

A modern bop theme to an old favorite children's story is the plot of the Gamma Phi skit. Mary Frances Horn, and Betsy Green are co-chairmen, with Peggy Wesner, Alta Tomlinson, Jo Thomas, Ernestine Parker, Barbara Benton, and Carol Thatcher helping on the committee.

Fifteenth

The Beta Mu chapter of Gamma Phi Beta installed at Florida State in 1938, was the fifteenth national sorority to come to this campus.

Chapter traditions which have been established are the yearly party for alumnae and faculty patrons and patronesses, the Armistice Day sale of poppies for the American Legion Auxiliary, Christmas Carol serenade of alumnae in Tallahassee, the Founder's Day donation to a charitable cause, and the "Steak Race" for which members are paired according to their grades. At the end of each semester, the girl with the highest scholastic average is treated to a steak dinner by her partner.

Another thing that has come to be a favorite of the Gamma Phi's is the weekly Thursday night Culture Hour at which they are entertained by a guest speaker or a program is planned by some of the members.

Zeta Tau Alpha

The Zeta Tau Alphas have had an extremely busy and exciting week. Preparing for Homecoming and the arrival of some favorite alumni. The beginning of the week found the Zetas conscientiously putting on the finishing touches to their Homecoming float, a humorous take on our Teen Nuzzes, this first impressions of Florida, and how he happened to come to FSU.

The Zetas' float, chiefly the work of the pledges, will be the theme "Our Bet's FSU." House decorations are centered around a "Roaring Twenties" theme—"Watch Our Jazz Daze Citadel."

There will be a buffet supper Friday evening for all Zetas and their guests and dates. Everyone is invited to open house after the Pow Wow and after the game. Some of Zeta's famous alumni will be guests for the weekend. Among those expected are Beechie Bunting of Fort Lauderdale, Ikie Arnold of Daytona Beach, Bubbie Alligood of Madison, and Frances Heinz, presently of Atlanta.

Kappa Alpha Theta

Kappa Alpha Theta members, Cheri Jeanne and Anita Wall, are in the Homecoming Court and will be presented tonight at the Pow Wow with three other court members.

Festivities at the Theta house this week-end begin with a dinner tonight before the Pow Wow. Afterwards there will be an informal dance and Open House. A buffet luncheon will be served preceding the game tomorrow and another Open House will be held afterwards.

In the parade this afternoon an enormous sailfine King Sun whose tail reads over the capitol Florida scene with palms and Florida girls featured. The theme is "The Best Under the Sun . . . FSU."

The house decorations portray a victorious Seminole receiving treasures from the defeated Citadel team with the caption "To the Victors, The Bounty."

UNDER CONSTRUCTION
New Delta Zeta and Kappa Sigma houses.

Kappa Delta

In front of the Kappa Delta house a huge stork will stand, holding a Seminole Indian waving a victory pennant in his hand, thus signifying the house decorations theme, "Seminoles Expecting Victory."

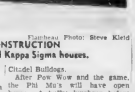
Near the unusual stork will be an artistic clothesline with diapers flying in the breeze with the words "Seminoles Expecting" written on large white diapers. The KD's float will be a 35-foot brilliantly colored worm. The worm's mouth will open to show a long red tongue. Underneath the worm will be KD's, wearing red sneakers and white knee socks, making the worm squirm during the parade to carry out the theme, "Make 'em Squirm."

Opera Houses

Shirlee Hall, social chairman, is an engage of two opera houses and Miss Fifi will hold for all KDs, they dates, alumnae, and friends after the Pow Wow and after the football game.

Betty Jo Miller, Fae Miller, and Joan Mynihan, 54 graduates, will be on hand to celebrate Homecoming with their sorority sisters. Betty Jo Miller was a member of the Homecoming Court in '53 and Miss Fifi in '54, while Joan Mynihan was the chapter president in '54. Amy Baldwin, a KD is the class of '57 will also be here.

On the University Homecoming Decorations Committee is the KD president Ruth Williams, while Sally Fisher will be on the University Hospitality Committee.



Last year the Kappa Alpha chapter celebrated their 50th anniversary on this campus. They are the oldest sorority in the state.

Phi Mu

Phi Mu sorority promises to live up to its previous record by having outstanding homecoming decorations, which will be open to the public tonight.

The theme of the house decorations is "FSU's Armed Forces." The main attraction will be an octopus. Each of the octopus' tentacles is representative a Seminole football player, with one of them clutching a Citadel Bulldog. In the background there will be a giant arm about to engulf the octopus lying in the Armed Forces idea.

Phi Mu's float will represent a fox hop which will be spoiling the Citadel Bulldogs.

After Pow Wow and the game, the Phi Mu's will have open house. A buffet luncheon before the big game will be served.

When the Homecoming festivities are over, the Phi Mu's will be busy with their project of helping at the Marsh School for Exceptional Children.

Pi Beta Phi

This year the Pi Phis are presenting "Shoofer at Camped Si-dohm" at the 515 West College Drive-In Theater.

There is already a crowd in front of the house, but you will find room to see the Pi Phi decorations featuring the FSU Seminoles' mascot, Chief Osceola, in crime when they beat the Bulldogs of Citadel.

While the actives are busily building movie screens and concession stands, the pledges have been working like beavers setting the scene for the float decoration.

The Pi Phis are sure the Seminoles don't feel tough, and they have the South Carolina eleven all ready down with Satan to "Sweat It," the float theme created by Pi Phi pledges.

Parent On Boat

Their skit will be a parody on "Mr. Roberts" with Rome Hinta as the Wind. Their version, Went With the Wind, contains all the Southern hospitality and charm of a magnolia blossom to May, says Rome Crosland, publicity chairman.

Last year the Pi Phis captured first place in house decorations, and they are working toward the same goal, according to Miss Crosland.

Alumnae local and out of town are expected, and there will be an Open House the entire week-end.

Having won the Homecoming skit in the sorority division for the past two years, the Tri-Delts have their fingers crossed that they will be among the top ten scored in the Pow Wow season.

"Secret At School"

The theme of their skit this year is "Secret at the Training School" and will be presented in one Act one. In the yard of the Training School; Act two In the Football Players' Dressing Room; and Act three, Nugent's pep talk to the team before the game.

Tri-Delt pledges are the creators and producers of the Homecoming float and have been busy every week-end since Homecoming last year.

The pledges, in contrast with the Tri-Delt actives, which have placed for the last two years, have a color scheme of yellow, silver, gold and blue, and are concentrating on beauty.

Also having placed in house decorations for the past two years, the Tri-Delts are setting a new Seminole being bitten by a small Citadel dog. Our cut reads "Don't Mich Is Bigger Than Their Bite."

The backdrops will consist of a real pool and a cheering section in the football stands.

Members of the student body, friends, faculty and alumnae are cordially invited to attend the Tri-Delta Open House after the Pow Wow Friday night and also after the football game tomorrow. Tri-Delt alumnae are expected to arrive Thursday afternoon.

Attempting to repeat their performances of last year in winning the homecoming skit, the Delta present tonight, "Supersonic Nugent, in Perils of the Citadel Invaders."

A large black and white skunk, complete with flowers, with the theme, "We've got it all over them," completes the float.

For a house decoration the Delta have constructed a large mythical with a bowling ball. The inscription, "To Bring With Homecoming, We're Partying," is displayed on the mailbox.

Buffet Dinner

Outstanding social of the weekend for the Delts will be a buffet dinner followed by a formal dance Saturday night. Chaperoned by the Delta' house mother, Mrs. Dorothy Hillerbrant, the dance will last from 9:00 p.m. till 1:00 a.m. Music will be provided by James King and his combo.

Invitations have been sent to alumni.

Sigma Chi

Sigma Chi has planned a homecoming weekend that should keep the undergraduate members and alumni on the go.

To start things off, after the Pow-Wow Friday night there will be a Homecoming dance at the house. Saturday morning from 10:00-12:00 a "Sigma Chi Brunch" is being held for all Brothers, their dates, and alumni. After the game that afternoon there will be an Open house for all Sig Alumni. The highlight of the week-end is the formal dance to be held at the Walls Lodge Saturday night.

The theme of the homecoming parade is now entering its second week of construction and promises to be one of the best if not more so than its two predecessors.

"Of Growing Out of Freshmanhood" is the theme for this year's skit. It portrays the life of a typical student during his four years of college.

Freshmanhood

Briefly described, the house decoration will be as follows: Sam Sigma Chi will be seen in a cocaine red hot footballs into a basket of corn (corny as ever) raising Mark Clark and his cow. Citadel Kaydets

Expect from alumni who are planning on attending have been coming in by the mail. Mrs. Comp bine this with the safety and enjoyment of the festivities and it is apparent that the Homecoming newspapers throughout the house will be turned into the college jalopy of yesteryear, a Model T, or a Model A. Fraternity insignia, although battered are still evident.

Every year many friends and alumni return to Beta Eta Last year over 40 Betas from the Schirmer, came all the way from Alaska.

Phi Delta Theta

"Giving the Butterflies to the Citadel" is the theme that the Delta have chosen for their float for the parade. Phi Delt ornamented. It is all probably be in a much more attractive manner than the homecoming float in the tomorrow afternoon".

The skit, entitled "Based on the life of Tom Nugent is, "This Is Your Life".

The favors and pledges of Phi Delta Theta wish to extend their congratulations to the Queen and her court, and especially to Fave Anthony, of Pi Kappa Phi, the Delt sweetheart and Homecoming candidate.

Two Cartoons

The house decorations consist of two cartoons depicting the two famous mule characters, "Dennis the Menace," and "Willyum" both written by prominent Delts.

Prominent alumni visiting the house will be Harry Magenty, '54 Senior Class President; Jack Hosner, '54 ODK President; Bill Graham, '54 football Co-Captain; Rick Benson, '54 basketball Captain and Co-Captain; George Carnes and Bob Berto, '54 Senior Cenator. All visiting Phi Delts are invited to the house during the weekend, where activities will be complemented with a formal dance after the game.

Pi Kappa Alpha

"The Pi Kappa Alpha house will be open this weekend for all friends and alumni," stated Alan Nelson, publicity chairman.

The Pikes' dream girl and annual Sweetheart, an outstanding pledge, will be announced at the dance complete with refreshments following the Pow Wow tonight. There will also be a dance at the house following the game tomorrow night.

For a house decoration the Pikes have a replica of a real bail stadium, which includes a revolving exit section.

Constituting the Pike's float will be a large replica of a Greek letters Pi Kappa Alpha. The Pike's dream girl and other young lady will ride the float.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon

In case some of you have been Pogo Possum and his friends at home this weekend, by the way. There in the form of the SAEs house decorations. Instead of the usual swampy backwater, however, Pogo has as his setting a replica of the Western Swamp and pool. Pogo is sitting on the side of the pool wearing his friends missile about the top as the SAE's are doing everything to enter a skit, they are putting forth efforts to building their float and decorations.

The float has at its base a pool on the several is a well. "The Hymn to the Garnet and Gold."

Informal Dance

On the social side the SAEs are planning an informal dance after the Pow Wow tonight. There will be a buffet dinner after the game tomorrow, followed by a formal dance which will take place at the American Legion Hall.

Invitations have been sent to alumni.

Sigma Nu

A hare snake emerging from the mouth of the Sigma Nu house constitutes the theme of the house decoration this year.

Sigma Nu alumni are entitled dignitaries and their attorneys will be through the Pretty Gaters provide the outline for the Sigma Nu's skit.

A contest will provide the motif for a dance after Pow Wow. Highlighted by a Mardi Gras Club will follow the game tomorrow. A semi-formal dance is also planned for Saturday night to be held at the woman's club. It will probably be culminated by a roast party Sunday afternoon.

Sigma Phi Epsilon

To start the weekend off Sig Phi Epsilon will hold open house tonight after Pow Wow. The SPEs will have open house after the game tomorrow afternoon. Both houses will be open to alumni.

For the house decorations the SPEs have a real pool decorated in our colors. On the edge around the pool and all be seated the traditional drawing of Seminole.

An outstanding alumni, Lindsey Nelson, will be present at the FSU football player beginning number of Citadel Bulldog mascots.

Following the ballame there will be an open house and a booze of the TEPs returning alumni. Among the more prominent expected attending will be Dallas Lehlang.

Theta Chi

The Theta Chi's are enhancing all their efforts this semester into their house decorations. The theme is centered around the Citadel bulldog. A seminole chasse him in a dog catcher's truck. The truck is labeled with Harry Magenty, '54 Senior Class President; Jack Hosner, '54 ODK President; Bill Graham, '54 football Co-Captain; Rick Benson, '54 basketball Captain and Co-Captain; George Carnes and Bob Berto, '54 Senior Cenator. All visiting Phi Delts are invited to the house during the weekend, where activities will be complemented with a formal dance after the game.

Tau Epsilon Phi

Tau Epsilon Phi has chosen its house decoration theme, "Ride 'em Cowboy" as the motif for an FSU football player beginning number of Citadel Bulldog mascots.

Following the ballame there will be an open house and a booze of the TEPs returning alumni. Among the more prominent expected attending will be Dallas Lehlang.

FSU Physical Plant Expanding

Buildings Worth $4,700,000 Will Be Completed This Year

By BOB MOREN

As Florida State University becomes one of the nation's larger universities, the campus is expanding to serve the rapidly increasing enrollment.

Within the present school year, four new buildings constructed at a total cost of $4,700,000 will be ready for student use.

The buildings, which include the General Classroom building, Library, Home Economics building, and Gymnasium, are part of the school's master campus plan. Under this 50-year project the present Student Center will be the geographical center of the campus.

Three of the structures under construction are within a city block of each other, with three facing Call Street, which runs past the Student Center. The fourth, the Men's Gymnasium, is situated between Campbell Stadium and West Hall, with access from Call Street.

Located next to the Nursery School, the General Classroom building will be the first finished of the four; completion date is sometime before the start of the second semester. The building with its 24 classrooms, laboratories, and 29 offices will house the biological sciences. At $750,000, the four story building is the less expensive of the group.

Nearest Westcott is the Home Economics Building which will house the FSU School of Home Economics and the State Home Demonstration offices. This $850,000 five-story building will furnish 18 classrooms, 50 offices, and 23 laboratories. The completion date for this structure is set shortly after the anticipated finish of the General Classroom building.

Library

By late spring, possibly Easter, the new FSU Library should be ready for use. The building is planned to include adequately all the adjuncts of a thorough university library. On the ground floor will be new headquarters for the Library School, a lecture hall seating 150, and rooms for binding, shipping, and other manual and mechanical processes. With a capacity of 500,000 volumes, the library will also have individual study booths for graduate students and typing and seminar rooms on the third and fourth floors. This is the only one of the new buildings to have elevators. Estimated cost is $2,100,000.

Delayed by a hold-up in delivery of steel, construction of the Gymnasium is now well under way. Officials hope the building will be ready for next summer.

Near Stadium

The gym is strategically located for access to practice fields, baseball diamonds, the circus practice lot, and the stadium. This structure will provide for the recreation and physical training needs of 9,000 men. Its three stories will include a gym with floor area for three basketball courts, or for games, seating space for 4,000. As an auxiliary, there will be seating for 3,000.

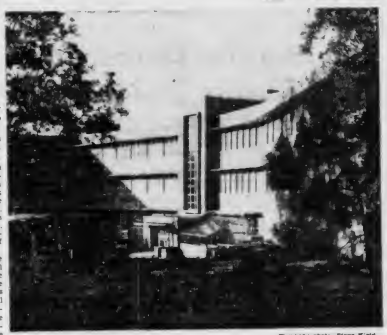
The basement floor plan is given over to locker and shower rooms, with the two upper floors divided into office areas, regular classrooms, and rooms adapted to specialized physical education class training.

This million-dollar building will fill many needs for students in improved sports training facilities, for spectators in improved facilities for enjoying sports, and for alumni, parents, and the public through its large auditorium, which will seat more people than any indoor area on campus.

All four new buildings are constructed of reinforced concrete and will be completely air-conditioned.

Future Plans

Million-dollar buildings for the schools of Business and of Education, both included in the 1955 Legislative appropriations, are reported in the planning stages.



State Geological Survey Headquarters, also approved by the Legislature, will form a second wing to the year-old FSU Geology Building. Designed as a Geological Center, it houses University, State, and United States Geological Departments, an auditorium, and museum.

With this year's enrollment approaching seven thousand students, and estimates for coming years even higher, the campus is expected to expand steadily for many years to come to adequately handle the demands.

New Library—Will hold about 500,000 volumes. Built at a cost of approximately $2,100,000.00, the structure will also house the Library School.

Classroom Building—Rising near the Student Center, it scheduled for use in the Spring Semester. It will house all biological sciences as well as the Oceanographic Institute.

Men's Gym—Construction was delayed by hold-up in steel delivery. It is slated for completion by next summer.

Evidence Indicates Student Growth At University May Soon Be Restricted

By OSCAR JOHNSON

Florida State University has gained a statewide reputation for its rapid growth, but indications that restrictions will soon be clamped upon a student enrollment that has jumped by 4,000 in the last ten years.

One most noticeable move toward restricting the size of FSU's ever-body was an authorization from the state Board of Control allowing Florida's universities to establish stricter entrance requirements. This action was put into effect October 14.

Reasons behind the Board of Control move can be traced to the alarming university growth in the state. Briefly, FSU's enrollment of college-level students on the campus for the last ten years is as follows (Fall Semester):

1945-46	2147
1946-47	2593
1947-48	4044
1948-49	5143
1949-50	5509
1950-51	5126
1951-52	4648
1952-53	4819
1953-54	5041
1954-55	5493
1955-56	6415

Increases

The biggest increase came in 1947 after the institution became co-educational, and student population showed steady growth until the time of the Korean War. Following that there has been each year a larger increase than the preceding year.

Immediately after the Board of Control's permission to create stricter entrance regulations, FSU Vice-President A. B. Martin predicted that restrictions will be put into effect here within two years. Up through the present year, all graduates of accredited white high schools have been accepted for entrance, although an effort has been made to discourage those who compiled below a "C" average.

Dr. Martin said he did not anticipate an entrance examination set up to be put into effect, but that the system of stricter admittance will probably be based on the student's overall record and the opinions of his high school teachers and advisors.

Not Over 10,000

Adding to the Board's move toward curtailing enrollment increases to be within the limits of available funds FSU President Doak S. Campbell has repeatedly stated that it would not be to the best interests of the University for its student enrollment to climb above the 10,000 mark.

Studies of the probable number of college students in Florida in the near future have added to the pressure toward stricter requirements. Ronald P. Thompson, president of the American Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admission Officers made a report to the Association at Austin, 1953, summing up the situation.

"It is estimated," declared Thompson, "that the number of college-age young people in Florida in 1970 will be 230% of the number in 1952 and 344% of the number in 1939.

Immediate Planning

"Immediate and watchful planning should be undertaken by Florida," he stated.

Current moves toward restrictions seemed to be aimed at a compromise between the tremendous predicted expansion and President Campbell's desire to stabilize the student population at the 10,000 mark.

President Campbell recognized the necessity of increasing enrollments this year, by way back at the traditional alumni breakfast during the Florida Education Association meeting in Tampa on March 18.

New Era in Education

"One of the phenomena of our times," President Campbell said then, "is the great increase in the demand for people with college education. In the professions, in business and industry, in government, in public service, as a national defense—everywhere there is increasing competition for young people who are really educated."

Gave Flowers

What Has Happened To FSU's 'Little' Gardner

By MARGARET MILLER

What happened to the little man?

You remember—he was the little stooped gardner who used to stand over by the Sweet Shop and give away flowers. Sometimes he gave his flowers to boys too, but mostly he preferred to give them to girls.

You could see him any sunny morning, trudging alone somewhere between the Sweet Shop and the library. If encouraged by a friendly face, he would stop and say, "Hey there! Wouldn't you like a flower?"

He looked so hurt if one said, "Thank you, but I'm in a hurry," so one seldom did. For the presentation of his flowers took a little time, and it was best to have plenty of time to stop and talk to him.

About The Flower

First he would tell you about the flower, usually a dahlia or a rose, then explain its cultivation and how to care for it after it was cut. "Keep it in a vase of fresh water," he would tell the girls, "and it will make even a dormitory room look bright and cheerful."

To the boys he gave advice on how to make corsages, which they could give their girl-friends, then he encouraged them to take their girls to a dance. "Boys these days don't know how to treat girls," he complained. "They've eliminated all the little formalities, like bringing flowers to a girl, that used

Everybody Can

Learning To Dance Easy, Says Theatre Dance Group

"Everybody can learn to dance and enjoy it," says Mae Belle Bond Dickinson, faculty director of the Theatre Dance Group.

"But not everyone has that extra something which is the difference between a good dancer and an ordinary one," she continued. "It is that extra something which we look for and expect in the members of our Theatre Dance Group."

Mae Dickinson may speak with authority on dance as she has both studied and taught it constantly for over twenty years. She has probably been the most influential person in the development of the Theatre Dance Group here.

She began her teaching experiences in 1935 when she came to Florida State University just after receiving her Master's degree at New York's Columbia University. She had earlier received a BA degree at Women's College of the University of North Carolina, her home state.

Creative Dancers

When she came to FSU, she found a group of creative dancers already formed. Actually, these girls were students enrolled in a dance class entitled "Advance Dance 371." This class, as all the red tape necessary for such an undertaking, but in 1951 the Theatre Dance Group was officially organized. Now that their creative urges were no longer blocked by lack of funds their dances were better expressed through the use of movie artistic costumes, staging and setting.

At that time, Nancy Smith, now an assistant faculty director for the dance group, was a student and the first president of the Theatre Dance Group. Velda Mock, now a graduate assistant in the dance department, was a Senior and Miss Mae Smith was a freshman.

"Ironical

Miss Dickinson says it strikes her as ironical that now students tend to associate Miss Mock with Miss Smith, yet it was just the other way around when the two were in school together.

Both girls were outstanding dancers, but it took Miss Smith a long time to disassociate her own characteristics from those of Miss Mock and win a reputation in her own right. Now students often make the remark to Miss Mock that, "You remind me so much of Miss Smith."

Barbara Grebel is this year's president of the Theatre Dance Group, which now consists of 35 members. Including 6 men, Miss Dickinson expressed the hope that more men would join the group, as contemporary dance is a vigorous activity, requiring a great deal of strength, agility and energy. She believes men dancers raise the level of performance and add interest to the dance.

Miss Dickinson, Miss Smith, and Miss Mock are all students and exponents of the techniques of Martha Graham, a famous contemporary dancer.

THEME AND VARIATIONS
One of Theatre Dance Numbers.

Velda Mock while a student here won the AAUW award for the most creative student work. It was considered unusual for a dancer to win this award, as usually students of such arts as writing and painting won the award.

With the money she won, Miss Mock studied for a year and a summer with Martha Graham. She has recently studied in Colorado with another famous dancer, Hanya Holm.

Nancy Smith has also studied under Martha Graham at the Connecticut College School of the Dance. "Before I started studying with Martha Graham,"

Light Opera Guild Imparts The 'Touch Of Broadway'

By MARTY REEVES

Music lovers have been getting a taste of Broadway every fall at FSU, ever since the Light Opera Guild was organized seven years ago.

Sometimes it is in the form of an operetta, such as Gilbert and Sullivan or Victor Herbert; sometimes a modern musical comedy, maybe Rogers and Hammerstein or Irving Berlin. It might be an older musical comedy like Cole Porter, Gershwin, or Kern; or it might be a light opera, in which there is no dialogue. One thing is true of every year, however, that the cast consist completely of students.

One Show

Under the direction of Dr. Reber L. Boggs and Miss Betty Jane Grimm of the Music faculty the Light Opera Guild puts on one show a year, because of the large regular membership, the cast of each production makes up the membership for that particular year. Tryouts are held beforehand.

In charge of the production side of the show, as well as lending the group moral support, is Sigma Alpha Iota, women's music honorary. Besides the SAI jobs as selling tickets, ushering, properties, scenery and costumes, Miss Boggs is production and musical director while Miss Grimm is stage, chorus, and makeup director.

Three-Fold

The purpose of the Guild is three-fold, explains Dr. Boggs First, it gives students who are interested in music the opportunity of participating in a production of this quality. Second, it gives music majors professional experience in the fields working with people and directing a musical production. Also, it provides the university with entertainment of this type.

Choice for this year is Sigmund Romberg's "The New Moon," to be presented in Westcott Auditorium Dec. 9 and 10. Past productions so far have been "Carousel," "Die Fledermaus," "Sweethearts," "Roberta," "The Pirates," and "Miracle." Nothing definite decided for next year, said Boggs, except that it will probably be a musical.

Landscape Harm Is Slight Here

"For a student group of this size," says Henry Martin, University Horticulturist and Grounds Superintendent, "very little shrubbery or landscaping damage is done by students."

Because of a troublesome parking situation, he adds, there have been few instances of damage by drivers of cars destroying small shrubbery. "On the whole, however, the students have been very cooperative" he said.

The Florida State University campus, noted for its beautiful lawns, trees, and shrubs is maintained by about 30 to 35 men. These men do all landscape maintenance, such as mowing, planting, and pruning. They also grow all the cut flowers used on campus as well as most of the shrubs.

10 Varieties

On 2 acres located in a 5,000 square foot greenhouse, approximately 10 varieties of flowers are grown by the horticulture department. These flowers are mainly used in vases/arrows to decorate the university and other university buildings where they are used for decorations. The greenhouse also furnishes palms and other plants for decorative use.

Students, waging a humorous battle with water sprinklers during periods of weather, disclaim as impossible to each of them. This may not be fair enough as Martin says that usually the are 50-75 sprinklers in use at a time.

Martin, who became interested in horticulture while attending the landscape designing for the Florida Federation of Women's Clubs, designs jobs to his crew.

CUTTING OUT FUNCTIONS NOT SEEN ADVISABLE

SYRACUSE, N Y. (I.P. - Syracuse program of restriction of extracurricular activities is one of the best means of raising academic standards, the Student Welfare Panel of Women's Student Government at Syracuse University concluded in a report sent to Dean Edwin Smith, chairman of the faculty activities committee in the University Senate.

WISCONSIN FACULTY HIT LOYALTY OATHS

MADISON, Wis. (I.P. - Characteristic of the current Red-scare is Officers Training Corps "loyalty oath," has been voted by the University of Wisconsin faculty. The action was taken on recommendation of the joint faculty-student Student Life and Interests Committee.

Bowling 'Unknown' Here

One of the least-heard of sports here at Florida State University is bowling. Strangely enough, many students do not even know that public bowling facilities are available on campus.

The Physical Education Department operates eight well-equipped alleys, the only public alleys in Tallahassee. Managed by Earl Bokely and George Pecock, both students, they are located in the women's gym, on the basement level.

Hours of operation are from 4:30 to 7 p.m. Monday through Saturday. The alleys are closed in accordance with the school schedule on holidays. During the day, no time classes occupy the alleys.

League bowling starts up four of the eight alleys Monday through Thursday from seven to ten p.m. but the four remaining alleys are kept for public use.

"Bowling is a healthful and recreational sport which one can enjoy," said Bokely. "Our three alleys are free every Friday and Saturday, and we would like to see as many students as possible take advantage of this opportunity. There is a charge of twenty cents per game. The alleys do not have to be expert at all to enjoy bowling, so anyone can participate."

Believe it or not, 9 pins went down!

AF ROTC Band May Be Mardi-Gras Bound

"Mardi Gras 1906 rings ajoyful not this year for six ty members of the Air Force ROTC marching band.

These sixty fortunate men are, at present, looking forward to their scheduled performance at Daytona in the Mardi Gras parade in the place of losers in front of the Gridirons and the Kiss.

The band will be flown to New Orleans by the Air Force and will be guests of that city for the entire weekend. Lt Isaac M. Hamilton, assistant professor of Air Science and Tactics, will accompany the group.

From the Air Force ROTC today come many of our Air Force leaders of tomorrow. On the Florida State University campus more than six cadets are now enrolled in the program. Under the command of newly assigned Professor of Air Science Colonel Howard J. Withersteen, the cadet corps is the largest in the six year history of the detachment.

Better Citizen

The training which the cadets receive in the classroom and the leadership laboratory is designed to make each cadet a better airman-citizen and to equip him with leadership potential which will prove invaluable in later life, explained Colonel Withersteen. Eben Fenwick a cadet does not choose the Air Force as a career the program helps to mould boys into better citizens in any career and to add independence.

The junior cadets, freshmen and sophomores, are pursuing a comprehensive course designed to give them a professional understanding and appreciation of Air Power and its importance in the Air Age. The advanced course for juniors and seniors is set up to acquaint the cadet with his duties and responsibilities as a Reserve grade Air Force officer.

After completion of the junior year the cadet attends a summer training unit for four weeks of extensive training and orientation on an Air Force base which provides an opportunity to live in several of the lower types of aircraft. Colonel Col. Withersteen. A successful completion of a summer training unit period is a prerequisite to commissioning.

Is Invited

Upon successful completion of his senior year in ROTC the cadet is invited for commissioned service: current information on Air Force procedures is provided to ready him for active duty which is required of all grad cadets. Cadets not selected as defense will receive second diversity.

Leader hip laboratory and training on the drill field, takes place each week, an hour for each session which includes basic drill movements, parades and ceremonies. This training is supplemented by participation of the cadet corps in the Veterans Day parade and the Armed Forces Day parade each year. Junior cadets hold non-commissioned officer positions while the cadet officer position, ranging from second lieutenant to colonel, are filled by seniors.

Annual Inspection

The annual inspection conducted by a team of inspectors from Headquarters Air Force ROTC, Montgomery, Alabama, climaxes training each year.

Extracurricular activities with in the cadet corps also offer an opportunity for the disclosing of leadership qualities. This year the newly formed drill team consists of 24 members. This team was organized at the request of Professor of Air Science to perform at military and other social functions. The team is scheduled to perform at the Pow Wow in fall.

The rifle team with 12 members, also offers an opportunity to display individual and group talents in the FSU AFROTC Drill Festival, under the direction of Headquarters Air Force ROTC Montgomery, Alabama, was established July 1, 1949. The first professor of Air Science and Tactics was Col. S. Barr. He was succeeded in July, 1951 by Lt. Colonel Powell W. Campbell who was promoted to Major in summer.

Colonel Withersteen's staff includes six qualified USAF officers and enlisted men with the title of Assistant Professor of Air Science and five airmen qualified in administrative and supply fields.

The normal tour of ROTC duty for these personnel is three years after which they return to tactical units of the Air Force.

Drill Team To March Tonight

By MARGARET MILLER

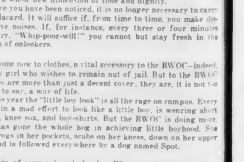
With white gloves and shakes turns, the Air Force ROTC Drill Team will exhibit precision marching tonight in the Pow Wow.

Marching rhythmically to cadence the team's performance, in accordance with the general Pow Wow theme will depict Tom Nutemi's life in the Air Force-from enlistment to discharge-being ordinarian this will be the second performance of the drill team, who made their first appearance in the Veterans' Day parade in May. The team was reorganized this year after having disbanded four years ago.

In spite of this very recent revival the team hopes to appear in the Mardi Gras parade in February and possibly in the Gasparilla and Orange Bowl parades.

Team members put in at least four hours of practice each week besides their required drill practice. Members of the drill team are exempt from regular ROTC drill and receive extra merit, but also put an extra burden on them. Cadet Dirk Walker, a Navy veteran and veteran of the non-commissioned officer in charge. Daily Reams also has charge of the girls' marching as Navy helps instruct the group.

Hold Try-Outs



To win a position on the drill team, Reams explains, cadets try out and are then selected on the basis of marching appearance and ability. There are 24 men on the team with the non-commissioned officers in charge.

Drill team members are usually covered in blue uniforms accented with white helmets, gloves, trousers, spats and belts. Team member Joe Martinez explains, "Sloves have to be spit-shined and if we aren't unquestionably neat we get demerits."

Team members display considerable team spirit and interest in improvement. Jim Carlo, who was a drill leader in military high school, says the team has vastly improved since the first of the year. Martin Andrews, another member says "Being on the drill team is a great deal like you like to think it is."

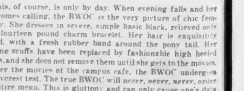
The rivalry between different branches of the service makes for a well-known national joke, and the situation is no different at FSU. The Air Force Drill Team is in strong competition with the FSU Army Drill Team. Mike Guerra says, "Anything the Army does, we try to do four times better!"

One member of the team, Harold Noble, is married and takes a

HOW TO BE A BWOC

A few weeks ago in this space I passed on some hints to college men who wished to become BMOC's. I would be remiss not to do the same for college women who wish to become BWOC's.

The first and most basic step on the road to being a BWOC is to attract attention. Get yourself noticed. But be very, very careful not to do it the wrong way. I mean, any old girl is bound to be noticed if she goes around with a placard that says, "HEH! LOOKIT ME!" Don't you make such a horrid gaffe. On your placard put: "ZIP! Entertainment ALWAYS!" This, as you can see, lends a whole new dimension of tone and dignity.



Once you have been noticed, it is no longer necessary to carry the placard. You will retain, for a long time, you make very distinctive noises. If, for instance, every three or four minutes you cry, "Whup-poor-will!" you cannot but stay fresh in the minds of onlookers.

We come now to clothes, a vital accessory to the BWOC—indeed, to any girl who wishes to remain out of jail. But to the BWOC clothes are more than just a decent cover; they are, it is not too much to say, a way of life.

This year the "little bee book" is all the rage on campus. Every coed, in a mad effort to look like a little bee, is wearing short pants, knee socks, and wings. But the BWOC is doing more. She has gone the whole hog in achieving little bee-hood. She has frogs in her pockets, scabs on her knees, down on her upper lip, and is followed every where by a dog named Spot.

All this, of course, is only by day. When evening falls and her date comes calling the BWOC is the very picture of chic femininity. She dresses in severe, simple basic black, relieved only by a fourteen pound charm bracelet. Her hair is exquisitely coiffed, with a fresh rubber band around the pony tail. Her daytime muffs have replaced by fashionable high heeled pumps and she does not remove them until she gets to the motel.

After the movies and the cha-cha-cha, the BWOC undergoes her severest test. The true BWOC will never, never, never, order the entree menu. This is glutton; and can only cause one's date to blench. The true BWOC will pick six or seven good entrees and then have nothing more till dessert. This is class and is the hallmark of the true BWOC.

Finally, the BWOC, upon being asked by the cigarette vendor which is the brand of her choice, will always reply, "Philip Morris, of corra'" For any girl knows that a Philip Morris in one's hand stamps one instantly as a person of taste and discernment, as the possessor of an educated palate, as a connoisseur of the finer, gentler, higher pleasures. This Philip Morris, this badge of sonoir faire, now comes to you in a smart new pack of red, white and gold, in king-size or regular, at popular prices, wherever cigarettes are sold.

To all on campus, big or small, men or women, the makers of Philip Morris, who bring you this column, extend a cordial invitation to try today's gentle Philip Morris, made gentle to smoke gentle.

Gym 'Extravaganza' Began Here In 1948

By LARRY BLOCK

Gymkana, the annual gymnastic extravaganza, began here at FSU in 1948.

The credit for its inception goes to Dr Hartley Price when he left the University of Illinois to become gymnastics coach at FSU.

The present production entitled "Gymkana" is the eighth annual Gymkana show. The first was called "Prince of the Trampoline" which featured Larry Griffith as personal friend of Dr. Price's. Following were "Gymkanarama" "Moonlight Bay," "Portland USA" "Out of This World" "Seein' Is Believin'," and "Ground Capers."

It is Dr. Price's intention to make FSU the greatest gymnastic college in the country. On his arrival here equipment was so scarce that all-around champion Bill Roethelm, who came here with Dr Price, brought his own rope and high bar with him.

Tumbling Tots

The same year Dr. Price started the Tallahassee Tumbling Tots who make their appearance each of the Gymkana shows here and on the road.

As the years passed since its inception, interest in gymnastics has grown not only in the student body but throughout the surrounding area. Requests have been for the Gymkana show to go to various cities across the state.

Over 100,000

In 1953 over 100,000 people attended performances of Gymkana. Attendance figures continue to mount with each passing year.

The varsity gymnastic team remains the backbone of the Gymkana show. Some of the stars who have performed in it include NCAA side-horse champion; Don Rabbit, All American NAAU and NAAU all-around champion, mem ber of the Pan-American team; Jack Mize, NAAU Pe champ and two time U S Olympic Team member, Dick Gutting, NCAA cuons, captain of the Cuban and champion Olympic Team and many others Bill Roethelm, former National Holder, NAAU Indian Clubs Olympic Team ing rings champion; Rafael Le-

HANDSTAND ACT
Performed by Gymkana members

By no means should Gymkana be thought of as strictly a gymnastics exhibition. Throughout its performance singing and many different types of dancing by the co-eds are seen.

Each year new and unusual acts and dances are added to the program.

To add more beauty to Gymkana the Court of Honor was started in 1950, and has come to be one of the highlights of each years production. The title of Miss Gymkana is one of the most sought after beauty crown of the campus.

Incentive

The main purpose of Gymkana are to provide an incentive and an opportunity to participate in vigorous activities resulting in the development of stamina and skill, and to develop a high record for excellence, as excellence is a contagious action, explained Price.

"We are continually trying to put gymnastics on a nation-wide scale as it is in Europe," he continued.

The students sum it up:

"As long as there is gymnastics there will always be Gymkana."

DAMES CLUB

The Dames Club mixer, scheduled for tonight has been called off because of the confliction with the Pow Wow. No other time has been set for the event.

Student Activities

Students Enjoy Singing In Groups

By DAVID WARD-SEINMAN

There are few among us who haven't tried group singing at one time or another in our lives. Those of us that have, know that it can be a lot of fun, and in an organized group, a rewarding experience.

There are four different choral groups in the university, geared to different levels of ability and performance. Consequently, there is a place for almost anyone who likes to sing and is willing to work.

There is a men's chorus, The Collegians, a women's chorus, known as the Women's Glee Club and two mixed choruses, the Choral Union and the University Singers.

Collegians are directed by Jim Harris, and membership is open to the entire male student body. A love of singing is the sole requirement for membership, with no auditions held.

The group gives at least one formal concert a year, and takes an extended tour in the spring. The Collegians also appear on one or more halftime shows at the football games. The music is usually of a light nature such as spirituals and show tunes.

Selected Voices

The Women's Glee Club, directed by Miss Betty Jane Grimm, is composed of a group of selected voices who must be able to read moderately difficult music at sight.

The Christmas Vespers by the Glee Club are traditional on campus, and are looked forward to by the student body.

Music from all periods is performed in concerts on the campus as well as on the spring tour. Concerts are usually performed from memory, enhances the rapport between performer and listener.

The Choral Union, under the direction of Herman Gunter, is composed of students and townspeople interested in singing from the best literature. It is the largest choral group on campus, and as such, performs an oratorio usually The Messiah around Christmas, and presents a complete opera in the spring. Both performances are usually accompanied with orchestra.

University Singers

The University Singers, directed by Wiley Housewright, is the most select choral group on campus. Sixty students are chosen by auditions for their musicianship, voice, and appearance, and train intensively during the year.

They have an annual spring tour of stadium to two campus concerts, but there are many other activities the Singers engage in. Last year, a select group appeared in the premier of Carlisle Floyd's new opera "Susannah," along with Met star Mack Harrel and City Center star Phyllis Curtin.

The Singers perform a wide variety of music, including contemporary music, folk music, Negro spirituals, and sacred and secular music.

International Debate Set With Cambridge Nov. 29

Two seniors have been chosen to debate in the Intercollegiate Debate with Cambridge University, November 29.

The seniors are Beverly Duperrouzel and Tom Woods, both members of the Florida State University debate team. The international Debate has for many years been a tradition at FSU, usually being held in the fall of every school year.

This year's debate will be on the subject, "Resolved, that the Hydrogen Bomb is the worst of man's many mistakes."

The debate will be a split-team debate with Miss Duperrouzle and K.W.J. Post of Cambridge supporting the resolution, Woods and J. G. York, of Cambridge, will represent the negative.

Practice Scheduled

In preparation for the International Debate, Miss Duperrouzel and Arnold Greenfield will debate Tom Woods and Ralph Wagner at the Federal Correctional Institute on November 16.

Students in inmate classes will quiz all debaters in a single-examination period. The topic will be the same one to be used for the International Debate.

This is the first time in the history of the International Debate on our campus that two seniors have been chosen to represent FSU.

Last year Elizabeth Flory, a graduate student, and Pete Nimkoff, senior, debated Oxford University. The year before last, Bert Bradley, a doctoral candidate and Guyle Moore, Jr., debated a team from India.

Prepare For Invitational

The Debate Squad has also begun its intramural tournament, in preparation for the University of Florida Invitational Debate Tournament, which will take place December 9 and 10.

Round I was held November 8 and Round II last Tuesday. Beverly Duperrouzel and Pianos Alma debated on the affirmative side of the national question, "Resolved, that the non-agricultural industries should guarantee their workers an annual wage."

Arnold Greenfield and Janice Kamma met them on the negative.

Round II included Laura Ley Alexander and Jeanette McLendon vs. Ray Fountain and Charles Mayo. Barbara Crampton and Norma Trippodo vs. Tom Woods and Jeanne Blevins.

Herbert Lenyo and Leeanne Kamma met Jeanne Blevins and Ruby Combs. Barbara Chambers and Norma Trippodo met Tom Woods and Arnold Greenfield with Bruce Fletcher and Lewis Hester debating. Herschel Williams and Kaki Allen

Open To Public

Debates are open to the public and all interested persons have been invited. Written and oral criticisms will be offered by Department of Speech faculty members.

Rounds III and IV, so be held one week later on Tuesday November 22, will be decision debates and will serve as a final for the Varsity Debate Squad.

Arnold Greenfield, sophomore from Miami, received a certificate of excellence in discussion at the Tenth Annual Alabama Discussion Conference held in Tuscaloosa.

Arnold ranked in the upper fifteen percent of the 150 students from 24 schools attending the conference. Other FSU debaters received ratings only slightly below Arnold's. Beverly Duperrouzel, Bruce Fletcher and Jeannie Batchen.

Beverly Duperrouzel, Bruce Fletcher and Arnold Greenfield served as chairman for the three panel discussion conference, graduate assistant in speech, accompanied the group and served as judge during the conference.

Fearsome Forensicators—Beverly Duperrouzel and Tom Woods, above, will debate with Cambridge here.

Senator Asks, "What Has Happened To Committee?"

By MARGARET MILLER

Senator Gordon Gaster wanted to know in Wednesday's Student Senate meeting why the committee on reapportionment had not yet reported to the Senate.

He stirred up a bit of controversy when he moved that a time limit be placed on committee action on this issue. 'How many meetings have you held on this matter?' he asked committee chairman Jimmy Soles.

"Three," said Soles.

"Over a period of how many weeks?" pursued Gaster.

Soles replied that it had been over eight or nine weeks. Senator Karl Edwards earlier protested that the committee had been making "sincere efforts" to reach conclusions on the issue, but the procedure, he said, is involved, "although we are moving as fast as we can."

"Defeat this motion," Edwards urged immediately after Gaster made it.

"Principle" Involved

Senator Jim Moore, one author of the bill in question, supported Gaster's motion with the comment that the main complaint of the committee should be the "principle" of acceptance or rejection reapportionment, and stated that this decision needed to be presented to the Senate.

Soles appealed to Senate President Jimmy Joanos to clarify the confusion on the motion, however of his committee. Joanos stated the conclusion that "the whole question seems to be whether or not reapportionment is necessary."

Senators Joanos, Jim Moore, Gaster and Sims all reminded the Senate that reapportion had been thoroughly studied last year, and expressed the opinion that considerable more controversy set to come.

Finally, Joanos ended discussion by leaving the chairs and appointing a committee of three, on that a time limit be set for Dec. 7, a limit more generous than the previously mentioned.

Satisfied with this compromise, Senate voted to pass the motion as amended.

Moore's Motion Defeated

Senator Gaster moved that Jim Moore's motion that elections for Senate President Pro Tem be ignored. Most of the freshman senators, Paisley Douglas, Bruce Rhodes and Moore, were attending their first Senate session, expressed the desire to learn the rules of parliamentary procedure before Joanos stated that voting would be held at the next meeting.

With no discussion, Senate passed the Buchanan a motion that the committee-recommended dance bill be adopted This bill governs the "rendering of services" emanating from last year's student affairs expenditures.

Publications Keep Funds

Since publications's help finance themselves with advertising the bill provides that publications may keep the remainder of their left-over funds for purchasing capital equipment instead of having this money reappropriated among other student activities.

George Goldstein, Sandpaper committee member, explained that the problems faced by his committee and the plans for its reorganization this year. His explanation followed a proposed resolution that Student Senate support the Sandspur committee The resolution was passed

New appointments made by Student Body President Corie Moore were accepted: Louanne Self, University Court; Scotty Dickinson, Student Senate, Nancy Jo Bowers, Student Events Committee; Priscilla Moss, Secretary of Basic Committee, and in Organizations Committee, Hazel Benson, Carol Dietz, Marjorie Moreland, and Pierre Kelbourne.

Seven Prizes To Be Given This Weekend

Seven prizes will be awarded during Homecoming weekend announced the awards committee.

The committee, composed of Dr. Royal H Ray, chairman, Professor J. Richard Stevens, Dr. Ralph Sidney Kolves will present the various awards at the Pow Wow and Garnet and Gold Banquet and barbecue.

First prize of a set of Encyclopedia Americana will be the winner of a 200 word essay on "Suggestions for Improving Homecoming at Florida State University."

The essays must be turned in at the Alumni Office no later than 4 p.m. Thursday. FSU students, alumni and friends may enter.

Second Prize

The second prize essay winner will be awarded a Jim Dandy Gym Set, donated by the Little Folks Store.

Dr. Ray will present the Homecoming Queen with another Jim Dandy Gym Set donated by Cass at the Pow Wow Friday night.

A Book of Knowledge is the prize to be given the alumnus who has traveled farthest for Homecoming. The winner must be present at the Garnet and Gold Banquet to claim the prize will be awarded.

Homecoming Banquet

For the alumnus who traveled the greatest distance to attend Homecoming and who has previously attended the Alumni Office, a 10 K electric clock donated by Kent's Hardware Store, will be awarded. It will be presented by Dr. Kolves at the Barbecue Saturday noon.

A Door Prize Card Table donated by Cox Furniture Company will be given to the alumnus who has the most children attending or having attended FSU. Alumnus must be present at the banquet and presented with the Alumni Office to be eligible.

'New Moon' Sales Will Start Today

Tickets will go on sale today, announced Dr. Robert Briggs, director of the New Moon.

Price is contrary to the date which was published in the story on New Moon to be given by the Light Opera Guild here, published in another section of the paper.

Tickets are 75 cents and will be sold in Bellamy. Ticket booth stated the director.

this past weekend, said "There's no excuse for losing a gamegame like we did Saturday. It was a shame and a disgrace"

We'd like to hear Warren tell that to the players who took that whipping. No team loses purposely and no team is flagrant by losing

But Warren explained that "losing is bad publicity for the state. We should have a winning football team at Florida to benefit the state."

Advertising—is that what a football team is for? We didn't know.

Regardless, we'll hold to our prediction that Bob Woodruff won't be around come 1957. And we'll go one up ourselves and say that when it comes time to pick a new coach for Gainesville—

Our own Tom Nugent will be high among those mentioned.

Let's hope not. We kinda like the guy.

THE TRIBE BY TWELVE

Tomorrow afternoon, it'll be homecoming football time. And the Tribe will be looking for win number four.

We think they'll get it. They're favored by as much as 16 points in some systems—by just seven in others.

As usual, head coach Tom Nugent isn't paying much attention to the oddsmakers. He's just going along by what he knows.

Nugent said recently that "a lot of people might be surprised by what they see in Campbell Stadium Saturday afternoon. The Citadel is a rising ball club. They've won five games while losing only three and they're improving all the time.

"Besides," he added, "I understand General Mark Clark has ordered his boys to win."

Well, we hate to see the Keydets leave that discipline by the wayside tomorrow, but we think it'll take a bit more than General Clark's 'order" to win to pull The Citadel through.

We can't be anything but optimistic and say, the Tribe by twelve.

Dorms To Hold 'Open Houses'

"Open house" is the feature attraction at dormitories from 10 to 11 p.m. after the Pow Wow tonight

Landis Hall will be decorated for Garnet and Gold for the Open House. Refreshments will be served by the East and West Laodis House councils and social committees. Dorm presidents, Pat Perer and Pat Rooney will pour and other council members will serve as hostesses. The Open House is being planned by Mary Ann Sorad and Babs Pavlovic, social chairmen.

House decorations have been left up to the women's residents' dorms for the Homecoming theme. Broward Hall's decorations under the directorship of Sandra Rosenberg will display the Indians burning a Citadel prayer," the stake.

Bryan Hall will have Indians with hatchets coming down on the Citadel cadets with the "Spirit of Jennie" Th; Jennie Murphree display will be a ten-foot Seminole standing on a hill, a goal post with a football attached and a worn out Bulldog in the background. The caption will read, "Bulldog Bites Dust."

Florida Hall's decorations will show large Indians storming the Citadel while Cawthon Hall has planned some KP duty entitled "Penalty for Underdistinction." Reynolds will have a similar display with the theme, "The Citadel Falls Again."

Magnolia

An east-foot Indian will grace the lawn of Magnolia Hall for Homecoming decorations "The Indian will be saying a 'Bulldog' with water.

Mallory Hall will have an imitation "Mock Circle" to emphasize the name of General Mark Clark, who will be here for Homecoming and the Pow Wow dance.

The eleven-story dormitory will have their own Homecoming Formal with the committees supervising the music Saturday night.

After the Pow-Wow there will be an open house By open house people in that Next York's Apple will be allowed to enter the dormitories and go up to the roof on Friday and Saturday.

Theatre Dance

Miss Dickinson recalls my dance classes mostly involved flowing robes and rather artistic stralined impressive movements. We had an awful lot of fun, but, of course, no technique."

First Reaction

Then I saw Martha Graham perform. I suppose my first reactions were very much like those of most students here when see the Theatre Dance Group perform for the first time. The people in that New York audience rose to their feet when she finished, then kept it up and stamped, and applauded I wondered why. But although I thought it weird I relized that it had something, and I wanted to find out what. Well, I found it, and I've made it my life's work ever since."

Miss Dickinson estimated about five years ago that she has spent over 4000 hours of extra study in dance. Of course, she has even more hours now, as she has continued to study during the summers.

Psychology

She says her doctor-father expressed some perplexity concerning her constant summer courses. When friends asked her father about her, he would explain, 'Well, I'm sort of worried about that girl.

"Because of summers ago, she wanted money to study under Martha Graham. Then last summer, she came to me again and said she wanted to go back as she just didn't catch on to that stuff the first time. After that second course, she said she was just beginning to catch on, and now she's back again this summer. I sure hope she catches on this time!"

Came in 1954

Dr. Nafe came to FSU in the fall of 1954 from Washington University, where he was chairman of the psychology department. Kendrick who has been on the campus for five years, received his B A and Ph D, degrees from Washington University, where he did research for his doctorate degree on the effects of various amounts of sleep deprivation on behavior.

Working in a black-painted room up on the third floor of the Education Building, Dr. H D Kendrick and his colleagues have completed the conclusion that as far as the eye vision, we are almost "primitive" Even when peering at a semi-darkened closet, our eyes must and do undergo instantaneous changes.

Tea Aspects

There are two aspects of the problem: I How long does it take to become adjusted to extremely small changes in illumination, when peering into a closet? II How much and how well.

The first tea thousandths of a second after night vision and the change in light"

Dr. Baker and Mr. Michael ran also of the psychology department, plus several graduate students have found that in the first second after being subjected to sudden alteration of light, a person's eyes undergo a change in size.

Even in darkness the pupil changes in as high as 100 to 200 different sizes and apparatus being used similarly designed for this research by the engineering academy at Johns Hopkins University. Eventually the psychologists plan to use a number of students as the eyes pass to tell what they see under various controlled conditions.

Several Papers

This project has been the subject of several scientific papers Dr. Baker was invited to read to appear before the Optical Society of America. The Society is composed of physicists, psychologists and psychologists interested in optics and vision.

Before coming to FSU five years ago, Dr. Baker did research at the Naval Medical Research Institute of the Navy. He has also worked for the government at the University of Pittsburgh. As a graduate student at Columbia University, he did his doctoral research on visual adaptation.

All this research may seem a long way from training is possible for pilots to fly more safely and soldiers to live longer, and I just exactly that Aaain and Dr. Kendrick and his colleagues feel that their work is from a purely fundamental point of view, but important thing is that out on Wakulla Springs Road, near the Florida State University campus, there are tracking down clues that will eventually lead to a better understanding of this creature and how he sees and how he feels.

Magazine Director Will Give Interviews

Miss Polly Weaver, College and Career Director of Mademoiselle Magazine, has informed the Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement that, while she will conduct some individual interviews, she will also devote a block of her time to group meetings for girls interested in the Mademoiselle College Board Contest, Art Contest, and Fiction Contest.

Miss Weaver, which will be sponsored by the Student Faculty Institute, has been arranged for 2:30 p.m. Wednesday, November 30, to which all women students of FSU who are interested in College Board are invited.

to make courtship so pleasant."

Then for as long as one could stand and listen, he would take about Florida State University in the old days, the state of the nation, or how he would build the new buildings if it were up to him.

He became a sort of campus fixture or well known future to those who frequented the area between the Sweep Shop and the library. Lately however, no one seems to have seen him around. At first some thought the sudden period of cold weather had kept him in, but the days are warmer now, yet he is still mysteriously absent.

Perhaps he has moved away; perhaps his flowers are all dead, or perhaps he is ill. Does anyone know? What happened to the little man?

Greek Colonies Talk Scheduled

... of western Italy and Sicily ... today's Florida State University English ... Coffee Hour.

In the ... House at 4 ... afternoon Dr. Eunice Work ... review classical ... with special attention ... men of ancient Greece who traveled to Italy and Sicily.

A native of Norfolk, Virginia, Dr Work earned her two advanced degrees from Cornell. She recently retired from the faculty of Wheaton College, Norton, Massachusetts where she taught classics for thirty years.

Studied Coins

The study of ancient coins down through the years accounts for her extensive work at the British Museum. ... the author of a monograph on early coins of Southern Italy, and has written many articles on this subject, based on her study of coins, both English and foreign.

Also an authority on the archeology of Roman Britain Dr Work is keenly interested in the recent excavations of Roman ruins uncovered by the bombing of Britain in World War II.

In January she plans to join archeologists from the University of Chicago in an expedition to excavate the site of the ancient Isthmus Games at Corinth.

Phi Beta Kappa

Dr Work is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, the American Numismatic Society, the Royal Numismatic Society, the British Classical Association, the New England Classical Association, the American Philological Association, and other scholarly and professional organizations.

Faculty members, students, and general public have been invited to the weekly English department sponsored lecture.

Eberle Plays At Pan-Hel Dance

Ray Eberle and his orchestra will play for the Panhellenic Christmas Dance to be held next Saturday in the Suwannee Room from 9 to 1 a.m.

This, said Panhellenic officers, is an annual affair of the Panhellenic and is a girl-bid dance, open to non-sorority members as well as sorority members.

Formerly featured with Glenn Miller, Eberle has been in show business since he was 18 years old. Beginning with Miller, he consistently won vocalist polls and was regarded as a top band singer.

He went on his own just before World War II.

He has made eight feature films and six short subjects for Universal and was a star of his own CBS radio show from California. He has also been featured twice weekly on WPIX-TV, New York.

Tickets for the dance went on sale yesterday in the Westcott ticket booth. Tickets are $1.00 per person or $2.00 per couple.

The dance is the culmination of Panhellenic weekend, which will also include a luncheon and various workshops Saturday.

The schedule for final examinations is printed in this issue on page 6.

Singers Present Yule Concert At 8:15 Tonight

Opening the Christmas season on campus, the University Singers will present a concert tonight at 8:15 in Westcott Auditorium.

The program is divided into two parts, the first part general religious works, the last, carols from different countries of the world, said Dr Wiley L. Housewright, director.

Soloists are Allen Crowell, Sam Jordan, Carol Ann Nydegger, Barbara Schaller, June Kight, Beverly Brown and James Ralston. David Ward-Steinman will accompany the group.

Included in the first half of the concert is Bach's Cantata No 106, "God's Time Is the Best." It is "one of the composer's most famous choral works," in the opinion of Dr Housewright, who describes it as "a joyful song of martyrs in heaven."

Six instrumental soloists will be featured in the cantata: Dale Jensen, Frank Freedman, flute; Thomas Stone, viola; Gordon Kenny, Owen Sellers, violoncello; and Robert Leslie, organ.

Also on the first part of the program is a Victorian motet sung in Latin.

Fan-Fare

"The second half of the program begins with a regular fanfare of bells and celeste. 'Noels' come from every direction," said Dr Housewright.

Christmas folk carols follow, from the countries of Poland, Spain, Czechoslovakia, France and Greece, as well as one from the Kentucky mountain area. A number of the carols come from the fifteenth century, many having contemporary arrangements.

Is 'Outstanding'

Outstanding among the carols according to Dr. Housewright, is the Czechoslovakian "Carol of the Drum," arranged by K. K. Davis, and the Greek works.

University Singers is a selected group composed of 68 members, chosen from over 300 students who auditioned for it last September.

The concert is free and open to the public.

First Concert Of Composers Slated Here

Phi Mu Alpha, men's professional music fraternity, will sponsor the first in an annual series of Campus Composers' Concerts tomorrow evening at 8:15.

The concert will take place in Opperman Music Hall. "Realizing that there are a number of talented composers on campus, Phi Mu Alpha is, for the first time, presenting a concert devoted entirely to FSU composers. It will feature representative works of the most outstanding of the group, in order to acquaint the public with their work," explained Karl Mohr, president of the group.

Chamber Music

This year's concert will feature chamber music. Participating groups will include the Faculty String Quartet, FSU Woodwind Quintet, Women's Chorale, and many smaller instrumental combinations, such as bassoon and piano, trumpet and piano, trombone and piano, duo-piano and solo piano.

Faculty composers represented will be Carlisle Floyd, whose opera, "Susannah," was presented last year; John Boda, recent finalist in the Serge Koussevitsky orchestral competition; and Lester Bruch, well-known for his work with the Theater Dance Group.

Others Present

Pat Johnson and James Yelvington, recent graduates, will also be represented, in addition to several students, Ryan Edwards, David Ward-Steinman, Charles Donaldson, and Jack Jarrett (now at Gainesville).

Advanced students and faculty members will perform the works. The Faculty String Quartet, composed of Robert Sedore, Thomas Stone, Eugene Crabb and Owen Sellers; pianists John Boda and Carlisle Floyd; trombonist William Kramer and trumpet soloist Robert Braunagel will play.

A variety of music, representing many different styles, will be performed, said Mohr.

Smoke Signals will be placed in post office boxes today. Day students can get their magazines at Smoke Signals office, 410 Longmire, any afternoon.

Students Study Proposed $600,000 Student Center

A student committee to help plan a proposed $600,000 combination student center and hotel for campus visitors has been appointed, Coyle Moore Jr, student body president, disclosed Wednesday.

Moore said Dr A B Martin, FSU vice-president, requested him to secure recommendations for the allocation of 25,000 square feet of floor space to be used by students.

$250,000 of student government funds will go into the structure, originally contemplated as an addition to the present student center but now anticipated as a separate building nearby, Moore explained.

Offices, Recreation

The student half of the building will likely house publications offices, conference rooms, student government chambers, recreation area, lounges and other exclusively student functions, he commented.

Moore said he will head the committee to draw up plans. Other members are Jim Joanos, student body vice-president; student body vice-president; dent Jo Jones, women's vice-president, Paul Ort, secretary of welfare.

Other members are Nancy Vaughn, secretary of state, Dave Bachmen, student senator, Barbara Graham, Honor Court chief justice; the chairman of the Board of Publications when he or she is selected, and one other member of the publications group.

Guest Accomodations

The larger part of the building is to be designed as hotel accommodations for parents, guests, high school visitors, participants in short courses, convention delegates and visiting athletic teams, Moore said. It

Choralists Plan Handel Oratorio

A campus tradition will be resumed this year when Choral Union presents Handel's "Messiah" Thursday, December 15, in Westcott Auditorium, beginning at 8:15.

Except for last year, when schedule difficulties interfered, Choral Union has sung the famous oratorio annually since the university became coeducational in 1947.

Anyone not in Choral Union wishing to sing in the "Messiah" is urged to attend rehearsals, said Herman Gunter Jr., Choral Union director. This invitation includes students, faculty, and townspeople, he said.

Rehearsals are scheduled for Monday from noon to 1 p.m., Tuesday from 7 to 10 p.m., and Wednesday from noon to 1 p.m.

The following week's rehearsals will be held Monday, noon to 1 p.m.; Tuesday, 7 to 11 p.m.; and Wednesday, noon to 1 p.m. and 7 to 10 p.m. They will be held in the Music Building Choral Room.

Soloists, Gunter announced, are yet to be chosen.

The Choral Union's will be an abbreviated presentation of the "Messiah," which in its entirety takes over three hours to perform. It is George Frederic Handel's most famous work.

Its best known excerpt is the Hallelujah Chorus, during the singing of which it is traditional for the audience to stand.

Work Begun On FSU-UF Football

Definite efforts are being made by the Florida State University administration to comply with a Board of Control order requiring FSU and the University of Florida to play each other in football next year, Dr Doak S Campbell, president, said yesterday.

"We are earnestly trying to work it out," Dr Campbell said.

The president said no details have been worked out and that negotiations with the University of Florida are quite informal.

He said he anticipates scheduling difficulties will be more serious than any possible disagreements on the game's location or the division of the gate.

The Board of Control, meeting on the FSU campus Nov. 18, ruled strongly that the two universities must schedule a football game next year.

Member J Lee Ballard, however, indicated recently the Board's order might be modified.

St. Petersburg Times sports editor Bill Black quoted Ballard, former board chairman, as saying he would ask for reconsideration should the matter arise at the Board's December meeting in Gainesville.

Ballard was quoted as saying he does not believe the board has any reason to issue such an order and questioned whether it would have been given had he and member S. Kendrick Guernsey of Jacksonville not been absent from the November meeting.

Hurricane Hunters Discuss Attack Strategy At Meet

By MARGARET MILLER

Hurricane hunters put their heads together at a symposium held in Florida Hall Tuesday and Wednesday.

Weather experts from various states met to plan their strategy of attack in probing the secrets of hurricanes. By a variety of weapons and intense research, they plan to "take the wind out of the sails" of hurricanes by better prediction of their force and direction.

By providing enough advance warning to coastal residents, hurricanes can be changed into "just another weather phenomenon" according to the U S Weather Bureau, Navy, Air Force and private research groups who consulted together.

Hurricane Traffic Jam

So many plans for tracking and research missions were made, in fact, that Commander William Kotsch, Navy meterologist from Washington, was led to remark there is a possibility of having future traffic jams in a hurricane.

In light of future plans, he said, it is possible that 60 people in five airplanes could be in the vortex of the same hurricane on different missions.

As controlling altitude is somewhat difficult in hurricane conditions, this situation would be somewhat dangerous. In past years, few people could boast of flying into a hurricane, but this year there have already been times when two planes were flying in the same hurricane. Considering the collision hazard, he doubted more than two pilots would be willing to share the same hurricane.

Jets, Rockets, Balloons

Jets, rockets, balloons, radar and past research will be used by the hurricane hunters in order to accurately forecast storm movement. Radar, stated Gordon Dunn, chief forecaster of the Miami Warning Center, promises best protection against killer storms.

He asked the experts present to develop a formula which would indicate "the maximum intensity a hurricane will eventually reach." Such advance warning would greatly reduce loss of life and property, he stated.

Dunn commented that the last hurricane season produced 94 hurricanes, one probable hurricane and three tropical storms, with 367 persons killed in the United States and 1,211 dead elsewhere. Property damage was approximately two billion dollars, only a fourth of it outside the United States.

Florida Research Center

The Weather Bureau, granted research appropriations by Congress, will conduct its most extensive research from a station located "somewhere in Florida." The station will be manned by 25 experts who will study the data derived from the flights of research planes.

These planes, flying three at a time in different levels, will cover an area of from 1,000 to 45,000 feet. Simultaneously, camera-equipped rockets will soar to a possible 50-mile height to obtain a photographic record of the storm.

According to Capt G D Good of Norfolk, the Navy will keep a plane circling inside a hurricane 24 hours daily from the time the storm is born until it dies out. They will also lay smoke bombs for color photography.

Hamlet Opening Slated Tonight In Conradi, 8:15

Florida State University's department of speech will ring up the curtain tonight at 8:15 on William Shakespeare's Hamlet at Augusta Conradi Theatre.

Hamlet, which is to run December 2, 3, 5, and 6, is under the direction of Dr Lynn E Orr with technical direction supervised by Mr. Charles Reimer and costumes by Mrs Jane Barry.

An original score for the production has been composed by Ryan Edwards, a student in the School of Music. "Some of the music has been written to set mood and emphasize the emotional impact of certain scenes, explained Dr. Orr. Other parts of the score have been created in the visual aspects of the production, and still other sections have been done to indicate sound effects."

The music has been scored for two pianos; Ryan Edwards and Lowell Roddenberry will play.

34 Costumes

Thirty-four costumes have been made especially for the production, and are of 15th Century design. "The numerous scene changes require three operators at the control board to handle the lighting effects," said Reimer.

"The set, which is an architectural structure consisting of many levels," he continued, "has only one 4 by 6 foot playing area actually on the stage floor. All the rest of the playing areas have been built up above the stage floor level."

The Cast

The cast is as follows: Francisco, Walter Saric; Bernardo, Ron McCall; Horatio, Bill King; Marcellus, Gordon Pschirer; Claudius, Franklin Adams; Laertes, John Anderson; Polonius, Don Spivey; Hamlet, Eb Thomas; Gertrude, Katherine Culpepper; Ophelia, Nancy Adams; Ghost, Franklin Adams; Reynaldo, Walter Saric; Rosencrantz, Max Estes; second player, Ronald Webb; third player, Vince Tata; fourth player, Dick Crawford; Fortinbras, John Ficklin; Captain, John Davis; Messenger, Jack Terwilliger; Osric, Ed Franklin; four captains, John Davis, Dick Crawford, Walter Saric, Max Estes; Lords and Ladies of the court: Gordon Pschirer, Ron McCall, Ronald Webb, Inia Jean Pruitt, Barbara Rynski, and Vernell Vinzant.

All seats are reserved, and tickets may be obtained at the central ticket office on the first floor of Westcott between 9:00 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. daily. Tickets will be on sale at the door on the nights of performances.

The price is 75 cents to general public, and students, 40 cents plus number 16 stub from the activity book.

"HAMLET is a difficult and challenging show to produce," explained Dr Orr. "It is one of the most ambitious productions the Department of Speech has ever undertaken to produce."

Students Must Register, Says Tally-Ho Editor

Registration for the 1956 Tally-Ho will begin tomorrow from 3 to 5 p.m. and will continue through December 9.

Only those students who did not have a picture for the class sections need register. Those students who had a picture taken are automatically insured of receiving a copy of the '56 yearbook, explained Jim Broderick, Tally-Ho editor.

Since this system definitely reserves a copy of the book for those students who have either registered or paid for a class section picture, anyone who does not comply with this directive cannot expect to receive a '56 Tally-Ho, emphasized Broderick.

This system of registration has been introduced in order that an exact number of copies can be ordered from the printer, thereby eliminating left-overs, and saving money that can be used in the book itself, he disclosed.

Registration can be made either in person at the Tally-Ho office, fourth floor Longmire, or by calling 4841 3 to 5 p.m. weekdays.

Tally-Ho class section proofs have not yet returned from Jacksonville. As soon as they are in and sorted, notification will be made to the student body via the Florida Flambeau.

SEMINOLE FLYERS MEET WEDNESDAY

There will be a meeting of the Seminole Flyers next Wednesday in the Trophy Room of the Student Center. The meeting will begin with a Dutch treat dinner at 5:30 p.m. and a business meeting at 7 p.m. Coffee and open discussion will follow.

Another Chance To Speak

A most sound and proper goal for student government is that it be able to cooperate amiably and effectively with the university administration.

Such a willingness on the parts of both student and administrative leaders has been shown in the establishment of a student committee to plan what will truly be a student center.

This committee, formed at the request of Dr. A. B. Martin, University vice-president, will recommend plans for that part of a proposed new building which is to be used for student functions.

Recreation, publications, conferences, student government, and lounges will all be considered by the committee. In deciding how some 25,000 feet of floor space will be allocated, this committee will in effect be spending $250,000 of student funds, most of them future savings.

Had the administration so wished, it could have automatically appropriated the money and done as much or as little with it as thought necessary, but instead student government has been given a voice coequal in responsibility.

Its voice is in theory that of the student body. Now is the time for student organizations and individuals, who will all be affected, to voice their opinions and desires. We don't want to hear in the future some plaintive wail to the effect that a dictatorial administration and an inefficient student government forgot somebody's butterfly pinning room or ignored the desires of a student art enthusiasts. Now is the time to speak.

Jolly Good Sport, Eh?

Florida, the Land of Flowers, was not doing so well about two weeks ago.

The ruinous habit had become ingrained. No longer did peace and tranquility reign upon a people blissfully going about their daily lives. Instead a giant, dark shadow had cast its pall across the broad beaches of Florida—from the coral sands of Miami to the sun-drenched stretches along Santa Rosa Sound, the ever-present New Thing caused scurrying and confusion in its path.

A cry had been stirred up, born upon the deeds of a lordly group of men who bespoke the scorn-tinged words of wrathful demand.

Across the state the news hurtled with all the speed and fury that could be mustered by giant presses and towering aerials. People stopped in their tracks when they heard the cry. Their astonished faces assumed startled expressions. They could not believe their ears; the news was too stunning. A few paused—they began asking questions. Others joined in. Cares of the day were forgotten.

On everyone's lips the questions sped. They raced from tip to tip of the peninsula, the echo thundered back in increasing momentum. The questions reached the farthest catacombs of humanity and were hurled back with renewed vigor:

Will Florida and FSU play football next year?

Is it True?

Why did the board do it?

Is it true that Bob won't be coach next year?

It is upon such monumental questions that nations have risen and fallen. Who cares about the world vs. the H-Bomb; Stevenson vs. you-name-it—the important thing is, Does FSU stand a chance?

No one stopped to question the importance of the Board of Control's decision—it would seem that civilizations have toppled for reasons of less import.

Who cares whether Collins is re-elected Governor—what we want to know is, will Woodruff have to pull up stakes?

All of the confusion seems strange to those who are most affected—the students of Florida State University and the University of Florida. All around us the turmoil rages faster and faster, we take the New Thing in stride.

The hue and cry continues unabated; the noise only interrupts our placid existence.

Yet why should be question it?

It is an interesting spectacle to watch.

Glad He's White, But . . .

Minister Discusses Unfinished American Revolution

(Editor's Note: The Rev. Kelly Miller, associate secretary of the Southern Baptist Convention of the Christian Conference, delivered the following sermon, in a modified form, at the Church-by-the-Sea, Miami Beach, Sunday morning. He has permitted the Flambeau to print it here. The following day, and he requested it now for what he considers its obvious value.)

"I am glad I was born white, since this is a white man's world. There are lots of reasons I can also—one any kind of a store, for example, a clothing store, and be first for a suit like it. I can try on a dress in any dress shop in any city in this country.

We can board a bus or train or boat, if we can pay for the ticket, and we can occupy any seat that is available, and no questions asked.

"I'm glad I am a white man. I can go to any theater, and choose any seat I want. If I were a Negro, I could not do that. I enjoy baseball, and when I go to Ft. Lamy Field, all I have to have is one dollar and I can enter the main gate and go anywhere I choose in the great shaded grandstand. The Negroes have to sit on benches out in the sun. I'm glad I'm a white man.

"I'm glad my children have the privileges and advantages of freedom. The public schools that have been open to them are free schools. They could attend any private school or college in the country to which I could afford to send them and for which they are intellectually qualified. They may choose their own career. They may apply for any job in the country, and the only requirement is that they have the ability to perform the work. And that they be white. I'm glad my children are white, since this is a white man's world.

One of my sons turned out to have a good deal of musical ability. He specialized in the clarinet. He played with the High School orchestra, then joined the St. Petersburg Symphony orchestra and worked up to first clarinet. When the road show South Pacific' came to St. Petersburg for a week, he auditioned for the clarinet and he played with their orchestra and he earned as much in a week as I earned in a week as a minister. We were proud of him. And I'm glad I am white if he had been a Negro, he could have played in the Negro High School orchestra, but he could not play in the city's symphony orchestra or in 'South Pacific.'

"I am glad I am white, since this is a white man's world.

Not Altogether Glad

"And yet I'm not altogether glad that I am a white man. There is something on my mind. Since this is a white man's land, I suppose I should get the impression that I'm a better person than the Negro. I'm more intelligent, more cultured.

"Take the matter of money, for example. I know how to spend money fairly wisely. I don't spend it as fast as I get it, and I could not relief where it is going. I'm glad I own a television set because I can't afford it. I don't drive a Cadillac because I spend my money, there are other values that I prize more highly. The Negroes who live in numbers, down shacks have forests of TV aerials on their roofs that many love to drive flashy and powerful cars. Their cultural scale is obviously lower than mine. Or so I am tempted to think.

"I'm not satisfied. Nothing bothers me. It just happens that I like to live in an adequate and modern house, set on a spacious landscaped lot in a pleasant residential section. But what if what I would do if this privilege were denied me? How do I know what I would do if I had to live in the narrow confines of a crowded slum? If it were impossible for me to go out and buy, or build, or rent the kind of a house I like? If I could not go to the better churches, could not spend my money at the better theatres, could not play golf at the country club? I imagine I'd get a television set as soon as I could manage the down payment! Would I be able to keep up the payments? I don't know. If a white man and I work together in a certain place and the employer has to lay off one of us, I'll be the one laid off. I can't be sure of the future anyway. I might as well enjoy TV while I can. And if there have to be cuts, let the other guy suffer, since this is a white man's world.

Symbol of Success

"And it's for the Devil. This is a white man's world. And in this white man's world, a Cadillac is a symbol of success, achievement, of power and prestige. I happen to be a white man, there are also other ways in which I can satisfy the urge to be something, other ways in which I can prove myself worthy. I don't have a Cadillac. But if those other avenues were closed to me, if I could not have a good home to live in, if I could not hob-nob with the best people, if I could walk through the front dining room as a waiter but not as a guest, if I could go out on the Municipal pier with a broom to sweep the floor but not with a fishing rod, then that of my wife could go into the homes of the rich and refined and to serve tea but not to take tea—you know, I think a Cadillac might be tempting.

"No, I'm not altogether happy about being a white man in a white man's world. This world gives me the impression that I'm a better man. But the terrible and disturbing thought is that I may be wrong. The cards are stacked in my favor. The comparison is not fair. Maybe I'm an inferior person, and don't know it.

"And I'm not entirely happy about my children being white. I suppose, like any fond father, I thought my boy was the best clarinetist his age in town. But how do I know? There were hundreds of youngsters who never had a chance to show. Maybe I'm unconsciously afraid that I'm not a better man. Maybe I'm not really sure my boy is such a superior musician. Maybe he'll be afraid a black boy might beat him out. Is that why I'm glad he's white? . . .

"We went to see 'South Pacific' when it came here. I thought the picture was great. It was worth the price of admission just to hear one certain song in that play.

A song that goes like this:

You've got to be taught to hate and fear.

You've got to be taught from year to year.

It's got to be drummed in your dear baby ear.—

You've got to be carefully taught.

You've got to be taught to be afraid

Of people whose eyes are queerly made.

Of people whose skin is a different shade.

You've got to be carefully taught.

You've got to be taught before it's too late.

Before you are six or seven or eight.

To hate the people your relatives hate.

You've got to be carefully taught.

"We white people have been taught carefully taught, by the etc., and could be written provided you let the content. We are not interested, repeat, not interested, in that type of review. Give us more of the Gershwin or, I, for one, will start using the Flambeau for assisting appendicitis . . . again.

culture in which we live, that we are the superior race. It has been drummed into our dear little ear until we believe it. The only trouble is, it just possibly isn't so.

"No, I'm not entirely happy about being a white man in a white man's world. There is something growing on my conscience. I do not feel comfortable that I and my sons are depriving me to other and children. His children can't go where mine can. His children can't do what mine can. His children can't live in the children can do. There are doors that close White we elevate ourselves by stepping on the necked race. It is the same as we send the colored race down. When we decree ourselves into notions of minds and God given superiority by the same token we pass limes force upon the Negro a sense of inferiority which deems him so live was below his best. If he is sensitive and he is human, something gets crinkled. Why faint against a stone walls. Why push in where you obviously are not wanted. Letters To The Editor

THE FLORIDA FLAMBEAU welcomes letters to the editor on any topic, and provides this space for student opinion. The letters do not have to coincide with the views of the paper, but must be in good taste. Unsigned letters will not be printed, but names will be withheld upon request. Letters should not exceed 250 words, or 25 typewritten lines. Letters exceeding the limit may be printed, but may be cut at the discretion of the editor.)

Kudos To Columnist

TO THE EDITOR:

I note with particular interest the criticisms of campus musical events written by David Wa.d-Steinman in the November 4th issue of the Flambeau, and wish to offer my congratulations for an article that is extremely well written. It would be difficult to find anyone more qualified for this type of work.

There are many of us around the country who formerly attended the FSU School of Music and are genuinely interested in the events and concerts that take place there. Many of your so-called criticisms are merely "hum-drum" accounts of the selections presented and that "so-and-so" played brilliantly" and was presented with a "gorgeous bouquet of roses," live,

A Better Measure

A Just Maturity Or Just A Maturity?

By JEROME BERNSTEIN

The world grows older and it comes a maturity. Volcanoes erupt and oceans wash against the shore. Mountains come and mountains go. The earth grows older and at the same time more serene.

Man is the same true of man. Like the earth about him, man grows older and at the same time more mature. In time past he lived in caves, hunted and now in sometimes luxurious buildings rising hundreds and thousands of feet in the air.

LIKE MOTHER Earth, man too is forever changing his habits and is slowly evolving to a better way of living. Sometimes he gets worse doing about in tubes, killing without reason and acting in a manner which deems him unfit for later city-states. Here he settled and here he remained.

From ancient biblical times to the era of the Greek City-State man lived and found his way. Then came the Dark Ages and man's development until he receded almost into nothingness. Out of this recession came a new civilization. Rome, which learned the hard lessons of material gain and even moral living.

With the event of Rome came Christianity and a belief in God. Just laws came into being and religious creed was at last given to the masses. Man had at last succeeded, but he failed. Like the very nature about him, he grew older and more mature and rivers cluttered his mental and material life.

AGAIN, OUT of the recession sprang new life. Cities again rose and from them nations. With nations man reached glorious new heights.

Material and mental gain increased. Man made tremendous strides in this same era. Movement of the people, by the people, and for people".

His sight expanded and new horizons were born. And as man still matured, he took a breath in the fresh air of freedom. He lived it and used it in his struggle toward glory and with his struggle he began to lose sight of his self.

He stumbled and began to fall. Bewildered and confused he looked at him, as never a stripling. He picked himself up and set out to conquer his physical surroundings. Once he did but now he fell.

AND SO TODAY we have man at his greatest. Man is the most powerful being he has ever been. Man caught in his own folly. Forever reaching this point of his life he has attempted to split himself into two worlds—his world. A vanity shuch, if heeded, will send him under and end the experiment.

Thus man comes face to face with the problem of full emancipation. Should part of man's mind be divorced from the rest and new world of him share in his full destiny? Should we compell that part of him which asks for more treatment to do his bidding, or should he realize to the fact that all of him is essential to the life, if he wants an honorable and happy end?

Should he take his medicine, even if it is hard at times, and realize that he is mature it, and in doing so reject his heritage?

Like the world, man is changing and with the change must come the maturity of attitudes. A just maturity.

Federal-State Discussion Stimulating

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

Florida State University has probably never witnessed as stimulating an event as the conference on Federal-State relations which started the Homecoming celebration two weeks ago.

If any of the students who contributed to overflow the auditorium were there just to cut a class they probably found out that political disagreement can be as interesting as football.

THE ONLY regretable thing about the conference was the fact it was eclipsed, in some papers, by sensational stories concerning the lack of football relationships between Florida State University and the University of Florida.

No one will deny the conference, which dwelt on Federal aid to the schools, had all the vitality of a no-holds-barred debate. Indeed, it burst out in applause for timidity and reticence.

It could be questioned whether any new ideas were advanced, but to the majority of those in the auditorium, those who had come out of curiosity and at the suggestion of their professors in introductory political science, the full exposition of old views was enough in itself.

THE GENERAL nature of the opinions was conservative. The keynote speaker, Howard Pyle, a member of President Eisenhower's staff, made what was at the time openly termed a genuine "Southern Democratic States' Rights" speech." Fred Kent, chairman of the Board of Control; Sam M. Gibbons, of the Florida House, and Pyle seemed set against even emergency aid to state schools. John Rackley, secretary commissioner of health, education and welfare; Thomas D. Bailey, state superintendent of public instruction; and moderator Bob Congressman from the third district, came in favor of temporary aid only.

Many groups in the country are firmly committed to permanent aid, contending that the states are able to afford to support their schools in a decent manner they are willing to do so.

The conference may have suffered in that from the positively negative aura it established at its outset. To hear and believe it be said, the Federal government is totally bad. it may behave well but just as soon as the people use the treasury the big evil monster will devour them and we will have not only an all-powerful state.

IF WE ARE to take him seriously it would be better to let our grammar-school children go barefoot and uneducated than take benefaits from the Federal government.

Mr. Pyle evidently ignored what most adult children have to learn to pass sixth grade: the people are the government. It's their money. Rather than shrink in terror from the imagination they should, through acts of congress insure the democracy and fidelity of the Washington. We can assume that they will be ignorant of the popular basis of government, does he then distrust his associates in Washington?

In The Wings

Audiences Enthusiastic About Le

By DAVID WARD-STEINMAN

Opening with a Cole Porter medley, "From This Moment On," Les Brown and Company set a terrific pace before enthusiastic audiences in Westcott Tuesday night. Unfortunately, the vaudeville finally showed the music out the door, but the band proved it could justify its many kudos.

Brown's new pianist, Don Trenner, had some exciting moments, in spite of his apparent predilection for repeated flatsandos. After all, anyone can drop their hands up and down the keyboard, it takes rare talent to improvise choruses that keep building in excitement and intensity, and more surging rhythm that swing.

NEAL TYSSELTON, Brown's new tenorman, probably came closest, playing with taste and a warm tone. Trombonists Vern Priby, who replaced Ray Sherman, and Ed Sims, played well, as did trumpeter Rolf Erickson. Ronny Lang, leader of the saxophone section, was impressive as a jazz soloist because of his wide vibrato, which had unpleasant overtones of the chevsyr. Lombardo has overdone this effect in the Art Pepper-Paul Desmond type of sound, but to each his own.

Vocalist Jo Ann Greer and comedians Stumpy Brown and Butch Stone should be forgiven if for the sake of completeness we need prefer not to.

Technically, the band is one of the best. No other group, with the possible exception of Sauter-Finegan, does as much with dynamics. Phrasing is flawless, and the execution is sharp and crisp. The musical arrangements are work and enthusiasm is always contagious.

LARRY SIMMONS, pianist, played a Gramm Monday night that few students will even dream of accomplishing much less successfully. His Mozart Rondo and Beethoven Sonata in C Minor were handled efficiently set forth; his Debussy group showed a mastery of nuance

The first movement of the recital was Chopin B-flat minor Sonata and the Brahms Lullaby. In this it more simply showed the and the intelligence of the audience that moved when the familiar Funeral March began. Although Mr. Simmons has been known to snicker or smile indulgently, his easily-to-follow style of the last concluding Presto was taken at a most tempo, but Simmons' touch was light and featio;

THE ISAMEY is not heard as much was in the nineteenth century, but there is reason why it shouldn't be. It is a real virtuoso piece and a wonderful program-closer but it is far equal to it. Simmons, however, gave a complete control and set a mark that will be a long time to surpass. If it ever is, we'll be with Jim Staples, Ryan Edwards, and a few others Simmons is one of the school's best and to enter the concert field.

Wandering With Wiljohn

St. Nick May Bring Dreamweavers

BY WILJOHN

Well, Les Brown got here and gave a tremendous performance. The audience was big, by all reports, the best. At least it had the raunchy number for the finale. Les was a bit worried after the show that he hadn't got the thing get a little out of hand and perhaps offended someone. I doubt it seriously and Mel Vernon, the wonderful woman who makes the good impressions for FSU when an artist appears by being so charming, assured him that his show was a great success. Les said he hadn't let Butch do his "Honeymoon" routine or the other routines that were enjoyed so much, during the first show because he noticed that there were a lot of girls in the audience and didn't want them to be embarrassed or get the wrong impression of the group. He noticed that the second audience was predominately boys so he let his gang "tear it up." Well, we have heard the smoothest band to ever play the Westcott moons and who shall we start hollering for now?

LET'S SEE: On December 10th the Dumbell Dance is going to feature Ray Eberle. Again? Ray Eberle? Wasn't last year's session of "Eberle's Ebbinns" enough for this bunch or do we have stronger stomachs on this campus than anyone has thought? Ray is one of the current touring band-leaders. He doesn't bring his own band (or at least he hasn't up to now) when he plays somewhere. He picks up free musicians in whatever local group has caught his eye in the session of the country he happens to be billed in. In this case, he gets his men from Atlanta, probably. They rehearse a few times and hit the road. When he is ready to make sections of the country, he changes musicians. That's why their arrangements were all stock stuff last year and the rhythm of the group was something akin to the chaotic jerkies of a freight train coming to a halt.

Everyone presumes that they can't afford a big name cause students don't turn out to support things on campus in sufficient numbers to make it pay. Well pshaw—Who is going to turn out for second rate stuff? If somebody decent were offered support would be on hand in abundance. So good luck to Panhel anyway on the Eberle dance. Ray Valdeza be with you.

BY SOME WAY, there are, at present, some plans under foot to have a dance here the last Thursday before we go home for Christmas. I would probably be held in West Hall and be cosponsored by West Hall and several of the fraternity and band honorary fraternities and sororities. And surprise, surprise! The music will be furnished by the Dreamweavers. You know—The proditional undertaking will, of course, require some student support. You, I take it, are a student. Will YOU support it? I'd like to hear from several of you besides the dozen or so oddly-assorted girls who claim to have been pinned, going steady, married, or in love with one or the other of the Dweavers.

Hydrogen Bomb Discussed In International Debate

Spectators Conclude Weapon Is Not Man's Worst Mistake

By ELEANOR KIRBY

The hydrogen bomb is not the worst of man's many mistakes.

At least that is what a majority of spectators concluded after hearing Tuesday night's international debate on the motion, "The Hydrogen bomb is the worst of man's many mistakes."

The debate featured two students from Cambridge University, Kenneth W. J. Post, secretary of the Cambridge Union Society, and John G. York, formerly an officer in the Union Society.

York teamed with Tom Woods, Florida State University debater, to argue against the motion. Post collaborated with FSU's Beverly Duperrouzel to present the affirmative case.

In a 15-minute constructive speech Post launched the affirmative case by stressing that because mankind has not yet attained a degree of morality commensurate with his technology it was a mistake to place the power H-bomb in his hands.

Doesn't Care'

"Mankind doesn't really care what appalling things happen so long as they happen a long way away," Post said. To illustrate his point he said Westerners don't really care if the bomb is dropped on the 'dirty Commies'; likewise, Communists don't care if the bomb is dropped on the "capitalist hyenas."

Replying to those who defended the construction of the H-bomb on the ground that it was a deterrable, even desirable, result of a struggle for supremacy between political powers, Post said, "We must remember that if we go to war we will be slaughtering living human beings. Murder is murder, and sin cannot be condoned on the basis of politics or political whim."

'Ridiculous'

Woods, taking an opposite position, asserted that it is "ridiculous" to call the H-bomb evil per se. He drew a parallel between the invention of the bomb and the invention of the wheel. The wheel, he pointed out, was used for purposes of warfare, but "one cannot on that basis say the wheel should never have been invented." Like the wheel, the H-bomb can be used for good as well as evil, he added.

Miss Dumperrouel pointed out in her affirmative speech that "every man of the scientists most closely connected with the development of the bomb despaired its actual construction," realizing the evil potential of such a weapon in the hands of irresponsible human beings.

War Futile

Arguing the negative case York then expressed the belief that the very existence of the scientists most destructive potential of the bomb would have the effect of making men realize that thermonuclear war is futile.

He pointed out that man's greatest mistake was not inventing the H-bomb. Adam made an even greater mistake when he et the apple," York said.

Serious Vein

In a more serious vein, he reinforced Woods' point that "all matter is put to good or mis-use one can make it either good or evil." He further expressed the conviction that perhaps the H-bomb "will bumble man before the face of his maker," leading mankind to the realization that he is not, after all, all powerful.

At the conclusion of the debate, spectators were asked to vote for or against the pro or the affirmative. The results showed 130 votes for the negative, 40 for the affirmative.

Embark Week

The Cambridge debaters, who are sponsored by the Institute of International Education, are currently in the eighth week of a 16-week tour of American colleges and universities east of the Mississippi. When they embark to return to England Dec. 16 they will have debated in over 40 schools.

Their next stop is Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Auburn, Alabama. From there they will travel to Agnes Scott College in Atlanta, Georgia.

The Honor Code

EDITOR'S NOTE: This theme was submitted by an FSU English professor considered its publication merited. Written for English 101, it expresses freshman's analysis of our Honor System.

By BARBARA KROGLAND

Code of the first. Items that impressed me about FSU was its honor code.

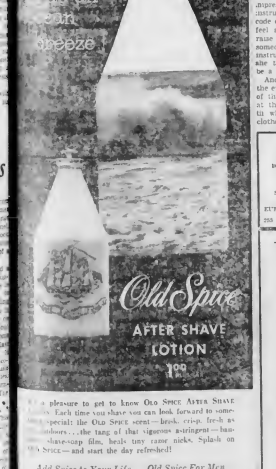
As we sat in Westcott Auditorium during orientation week, we learned about it and how it works. At almost every meeting we were told about its importance and about how we, the students, are responsible for ourselves. As I sat listening, I thought that this honor code was a wonderful thing and that the students of FSU must really be mature and responsible people. While I was thinking this, I began to hear several people, sitting near me, laughing and making anything remarks. I even noticed that some of the student officials on the stage were smiling with them. When I observed this I was very disgusted and began to wonder if this honor code were a reality or just a joke. Even though I was tempted to jump up then and ask those older students just what the honor code meant to them I restrained myself and decided to notice the reactions of other students after classes started. In this way I could form my own opinion as to its worth.

As time went by and we became more freshmen began to find our way about, I had time to observe the honor code in action. In some of my classes, the teachers seem to place their notice trust in the students and even leave the room when we have a test. In most of these classes, the students seem to be impressed by the trust of their instructors and live up to the code entirely. In other classes, I feel as though I am afraid to raise my head for fear of seeing someone cheating. One of my instructors actually said that she thought the honor code to be a joke, incapable of working.

Another way in which I notice the evidence, or lack of evidence, of the honor code is in activity at the gymnasium. The lockers to which we keep our campus clothes during class were issued to us on the first day of classes, along with a heavy lock and instructions to keep them locked always. A few girls who took this advice lightly returned to their lockers to find their clothes and money missing.

In my dormitory, too, there is evidence of people who do not live up to the honor code. Typewriters are left out, but closed for the residents' protection. I have been found open, with clothes and money stolen from some of the rooms.

Actually, I consider all of these things. I am afraid to leave any of my belongings unprotected for a moment. However and I would like to leave our door unlocked when we go out, but we are honestly afraid to do so.



I believe that we can make the honor code really work when each student will take responsibility for his own behavior and honesty and when everyone will have complete faith in all others. If a student is responsible for himself and everyone else in him, he will not betray that trust. When this is done, we will have made it "humanize nature" to be honest. I believe that certain aspects of human nature, such as that honor are what we make them. It is as natural to be honest, then those who do not will be decently will be honest also. Honesty can be upheld on this campus if this attitude is here to greet the freshmen on their first day. They will be proud of their new school and home and will want to keep it as it is.

The honor code can be a reality here at FSU when every student and every teacher has complete faith in it and their fellow men. Then when a freshman reads the honor code, pledging himself to uphold honestly, he may ever doubt the words "on the part of others", When he has observed the honor code of the student and teachers of Florida State University, he will be able to say with satisfaction and pride, "It really works."

EDUCATION HONORARY SCHEDULES MEETING

Kappa Delta Pi, the honorary organization for majors in education will hold its December meeting in Longmire Auditorium today at 8 p.m.

Dr. W. P. Vordenberg, Director of the Florida State University Personnel Office, assisted by Mrs. Vordenberg, will present a puppet show. The puppet show will be followed by the singing of Christmas carols and a social hour.

Students Asked To Get Counsel

All students should contact their educational counselors between December 1 and 16 to plan their schedules for the Spring semester, revealed Mattvina Hardee, coordinator of counseling.

During the counseling period, students will receive through the mail an appointment card with instructions for pre-registration. This appointment card will show the time the student should pick up registration cards at the Registrar's Office, 102a Westcott.

The pre-registration period begins at noon on January 3 and continues through January 16, 1956. In order to receive, students must have counselor's approval of their schedule, which is indicated by the counselor's signature in ink on the green trial schedule slip.

Any student uncertain of the name and office location of his educational counselor should contact the Office of the Coordinator of Counseling 301 Westcott, telephone extension 5331 or 5321 for the information.

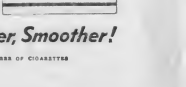
For solution, see paragraph below.



HERE'S A DROODLE THAT PACKS A PUNCH. It's titled: Lucky smoke rings blown by prizefighter with tooth missing. It packs a moral, too: Why knock yourself out looking for a better-tasting cigarette when all you have to do is light up a Lucky? Luckies taste better, first, because Lucky Strike means fine tobacco. FSU Troubled With Parking, Study Shows

By JEROME BERNSTEIN

For several semesters now Florida State University's traffic problem has been sion by but surely getting out of hand No matter what steps were taken, they always seemed to fail

Then last July a traffic committee was formed Under the chairmanship of student Joan Halford, the committee consisted of Trudy Perry and Carolyn Refem, students; Sam Alderman, Student Government; Dr. Merritt Ockle and John Blackburn, faculty; Rod Shaw, Business Manager, and Harry Day, Assistant Business Manager.

Together the group considered the problem and accepted for study the following proposal which was submitted by Chairman Halford and Dr. Under the proposal the street areas running South from the Old Demonstration School to the Library, Westcott Circle and approaches, along with the parking lots of the Music School and Old Demonstration School were designated as a restricted area.

What Cars?

The question of what cars were to be allowed to park in the restricted area was answered by determining what cars would be considered campus cars and what cars off-campus cars. Under the following areas were classified as campus or adjacents to campus:

Virginia Street on the north; Boulevard Street on the east; St. Augustine Street on the south; and Murphree Street, running from Treasurer Street to Doak Campbell Stadium, on the west.

Complaints Began

Soon after the fall semester started, however, complaints started rolling in concerning the ban on campus street parking between the hours of 1 a.m. Thirteen of the Residents of the various dormitories objected to it and vehemently protested the zone parking. When it was explained the purpose of the ban was to allow parking spaces for faculty members and off campus students back in the morning on a "first and see" attitude was learn.

The committee countered that most resident students who owned cars did not use them until mid-morning or late afternoon. Therefore why should they take up their much needed by persons living off campus because of necessity? they reasoned.

All in all 61 cars were forced to park off campus at night because of the ban.

Is 'Legitimate'

Admitting the resident students did have a legitimate complaint Karl Edwards, newly elected committee chairman announced this week the parking ban would be partially lifted The street behind Magnolia Hall and the Women's Gym on Call Street is not now included in the ban.

Edwards also announced that arrangements were being made to have the Carlton Hall area lot enlarged which when completed will hold 20 additional vehicles.

URA Sponsors Marianna Trip

The University Recreation Association will sponsor a trip to the Marianna Caverns on December 10.

A bus will leave the Womens' Gym at 8 a.m. and will return by dark. Students will provide their own picnic lunch which will be eaten at the park.

The trip thrum the Caverns will be planned by URA and is described persons should sign the Bulletin Board at the Student Center.

URA is also sponsoring an Intramural Program Tuesday night will feature table tennis from 7 to 9 p.m. and Wednesday nights badminton will be played from 7 to 9 p.m.

Five Women Are Initiated Into Honorary

Five sophomore women who maintained a minimum 3.0 scholastic average during their freshman year were initiated into Alpha Lambda Delta recently.

New initiates into the national honorary freshman scholastic fraternity were Charlotte Abney, Jacqueline Boulder, Yvonne Duval, Mary Elizabeth Graves and Ann Kelly.

President Jan Kamuna led the impressive candlelight ceremony which was held in the Longmire Lounge Thursday evening, November 17.

Two new officers were added to the previously elected slate at the November business meeting immediately following the initiation service Elected were Catherine Dunn, chaplain, and Frances Wynn, publicity chairman.

The entire slate includes Jan Kamuna, president, Glenda Briscoe vice president; Linda Harris secretary; Betty Cox treasurer; Crystal McRae senior advisor, and Dr. Irene Bolleck, faculty advisor.

Discussion a, the business session centered around the purpose of Alpha Lambda Delta, which is to serve their university by encouraging and maintaining high scholastic attainment on campus.

In addition, social service projects, a special Christmas Carol Serenade was planned for the December meeting.

Rita Bailey, refreshment committee chairman, served punch and ice cream at the informal social period which followed the meeting.

CUSPIDORS ANYONE?

COMMERCE, TEXAS —ACP— There are still loads and loads of athletic contests, but it looks as if the East Texas State Teachers College has come up with one to top them all. They've got a junior down there named John Chapel, who for two consecutive years has won tobacco spitting contests.

John won the contest two years ago by expelling a stream of juice 23 feet. A year later he defended his title with a spit 21 feet, 3 inches The loss of distance the second time was due to a strong wind.

Now he's going after the title for the third year in a row. This is the spirit of living in America Tobacco company might get hold of and really exploit.

Schools Asked To Gather Data On Segregation

Florida State University and the University of Florida have been asked to gather information to aid the Florida Supreme Court in determining how and when Negroes will be admitted to either of the state universities.

The universities were allotted funds, at the Board of Control's November meeting, with which to make the study.

Dr. Doak S. Campbell, FSU President, said yesterday he expects work to begin soon upon the appointment of faculty members to head it.

Probably Akin

He said the information probably akin to the study made by the Attorney General of Florida and others in the Supreme Court decision outlawing segregation in the schools, will be submitted to the Board of Control The Board in turn would forward the survey to Circuit Judge Murphy of Gainesville.

The judge was commissioned by the Florida Supreme Court to collect information pertinent to the results of possible admission of Negroes to American Education" at 8:15, and a social that will follow the debate

Ohio Professor Analyzes Insecurity

Cincinnati, O. —(I.P.)— Most college students suffer occasional emotional insecurity, Dr William B Cameron, University of Cincinnati assistant professor of sociology declares in his paper "Normal Insecurity in the College Student."

Further, there is no statistical correlation between security and intelligence scores or between security and grades, Dr. Cameron said.

The findings are based on a study of 500 college and university students at several mid-west, Ivy League schools, Miami University and the University of Cincinnati.

Student descriptions of their insecurity fell into five general categories: intensified sense of ousness of self and situation, uncertainty and apprehensive-ness about situations, lack of confidence in self, physical symptoms of tension and anxiety and overall discomfort and conviction of probable inadequacy in future operations.

The most frequent cause of insecurity reported by the students was economic. Dr. Cameron said economic insecurity might be considered a "normal" insecurity and students reporting only this cause scored high on clinical tests of security. According to his test results additional sources of insecurity brought down the score. However, persons having some strong psychological support in their area of life tended to score higher than those with the same insecurities and no corresponding support, Dr. Cameron found.

Director Is Guest At Fashion Tea

Miss Polly Weaver, College and Career Director of MADEMOISELLE, was the guest at a tea given Wednesday by the Student Fashion Institute.

About 60 students and faculty members were on hand to meet Miss Weaver. While coffee and cookies were served. Miss Weaver talked to all those interested in the College Board, and other phases of fashion.

After the tea was under way Miss Weaver conducted a group discussion on the MADEMOISELLE College Board Contest.

Entrys Due

Entrys for the College Board Contest are due Monday, December 5, she revealed Several hundred students are chosen each year to represent MADEMOISELLE'S College Board After being chosen for the College Board, students present two assignments for judgement, in February and March From these entrys, 20 are chosen as guest editors.

Guest editors spend the month of June in New York City at the expense of MADEMOISELLE Here they receive training in the field of fashion, and help in the publishing of the college issue of MADEMOISELLE, explained Miss Weaver.

She emphasized the importance of becoming a guest editor, as an excellent means of becoming a staff member of MADEMOISELLE

"Start at Bottom"

Among other points emphasized by Miss Weaver, were the importance of obtaining a knowledge of typing and shorthand. To reach the top in the fashion world, one must start at the bottom, she continued. A secretary's job offers a good beginning, and can soon lead to an assistantship, if the person is alert and willing to work

College Recommended

Miss Weaver also recommended a college education before attending a school of fashion. A fashion designer must be a well rounded person, and this is certainly obtained by a good college education.

In conclusion, Miss Weaver stated that modeling schools are not important. Most of them are jackets, and the same experience may be obtained from another model She listed qualifications of a model as graceful carriage, poise slimness, and the willing to work

Student Poem Is Published

A poem written by Faye Pierce, junior speech and drama major, has been accepted for publication in the Annual Anthology of College Poetry.

The Anthology is a compilation of poetry written by college men and women of America.

The poem, entitled "My Unconfessed Love' is her first published poem.

Miss Pierce transferred this year from Marx Hill Junior College Marx Hill, N.C., where she was active in literary and dramatic circles.

MY UNCONFESSED LOVE

We could have been so happy Dear
Had we not been just friends,
If with your heart you could fear
The love my own heart sends
But life has been happier, Dear
Because of that love for you
Though it is been unconfessed, for fear
Of loosing friendship too.
And as the years go by, my love
I'll always be your friend
And will ever thank God above
For your love as a friend.
And when love comes to you May it be a love that is shared.
And may you have the happiness I too
That is wished you by one who cares.

EDUCATION BEST WAY TO END RESTRICTIONS

FINGSTON, R I (I.P.)— Education instead of religious or racial restrictions imposed by some large fraternities can be accomplished more effectively than by legal fiat or even coercive decrees, Dr. Frank Woodward, president of the University of Rhode Island, declared.

The dropping of membership restrictions either by a university or a local chapter itself," he adds, "will make the spirit of brotherhood more real.

"It does not follow that this will be any change of practice in university, or in attitude of its members. In fraternities, for example, the chapter is more likely to oppose the effect, by making and building up sentiment and resistance. Thus courses the very thing it seeks to avoid. It would be backward step if compulsion were removal of resistance driven underground. We would have not to encourage hypocrisy.

Basketball In, Football Fades

From The Sidelines

By Pierce Lehmbeck
Sports Editor

AN END AND A BEGINNING—

It's a big week in athletics at Florida State University.

The football squad closes its rugged slate tomorrow night Tampa and the basketball team opened an equally ambitious schedule at Raleigh, N. C. last night.

At Tampa, the Tribe will be trying to finish their campaign with even mark—five wins and five losses. Many think they'll do it.

But that optimism isn't so prevalent around the FSU practice squad. The Tampa crew has, on more than one occasion this season, gone above the 50-point mark for a single game's performance. And any team that can do that isn't an easy mark.

Regardless, the Tribe will be on the rebound from their 21-7 loss to Mississippi Southern. And we think they'll go all the way.

The Tribe by 16.

As for the FSU-North Carolina State basketball game last night, the Wolfpack entered the contest a heavy favorite. And rightly so, it seems.

Many experts have tabbed the Raleigh school as possible national champion. The times have been few and far between that the N. C. State hasn't finished among the nation's best.

But Rud Kennedy's Seminoles are beginning to make a name for themselves. Anyway, we'll know today.

FSU IN THE SEC?

Athletic Director Howard G. Danford announced late this week he'd appear at the Southeastarn Conference's regular meeting in Nashville that month with a formal application for FSU membership.

Though such a move doesn't come as too much of a surprise to Seminole followers, it is something to watch with interest. SEC membership is the ambition of just about every independent in this part of the country and we're all trying to get in.

Other schools having already filed for a spot include the University of Miami, Mississippi Southern and Houston.

In making the announcement, the ane thing Danford didn't disclose is who will sponsor FSU for membership in the conference. And that's a pretty important thing.

To become an SEC member, a school must file an application to be sponsored by a conference member and be accepted by two of the other conference members.

The University of Florida has already agreed to sponsor FSU. The only other SEC schools FSU has been "in good" with are Georgia, Georgia Tech and Auburn.

We've got a feeling Auburn might be the pick.

"WE'RE ALL FOR IT"—THE TRIBE

With all the talk being tossed around about the Board of Control's action in directing FSU and Florida to begin football competition next season, we decided to carry a fish of the Semi-Pro to see how it felt about the idea.

We were surprised at their answers—but, pleasantly so.

You'd think after running into such powers as Miami, Georgia Tech and Georgia this past season, that Seminole team with the Irish taint would be weakened a bit.

Take so Listen to them sound off.

Quite Hal Cummings, sophomore back: "I'm glad to see us get the chance to play the Gators—even if the Board of Control is forcing it about. We'll be graduating in a few years, you know."

Bill Musselman, sophomore guard: "If the Board hadn't acted, we'd probably never have gotten a Florida schedule. This is our chance to show them we're as good as they are."

Junior Henderson, sophomore back: "I'm glad to see it happen. I think we're ready to play them—anywhere."

Lee Curso, sophomore back: "I've waited ever since I came up here for the chance to play Florida. I believe if we'd scheduled them for 1957 I would have sat out next season just to get to play against them."

Only co-eaptain and senior center Bob Crenshaw failed to show a great deal of optimism. Though he admitted he'd gladly welcome another four years to get a chance to play against Florida, he posed a good point about the game being played next season.

There's no doubt in my mind that our first team could whip with anything Florida could put out," he said. "But I'm a little bit afraid we should wait until we have sufficient depth."

So winning is the basic thing, then we're inclined to agree with Bob. But, if its good keen competition with the University of Florida the Tribe's looking for, then we're all for it.

And that's what the game is for.

Court Season Here Opens With Rollins

By LARRY BLOCK

Florida State University opened its 1956-57 basketball campaign last night against North Carolina State's Wolfpack at Raleigh.

The Tribe hardwood corps entered the contest a shaht underdog due to the fact that the Wolfpack owns a rated number four in the nation in scrincies.

Shavlik Back

Back for his last year of college competition is the 6-9 all-American Ron Shavlik. Not allowed to compete in post season play last year the Wolfpack will be out to make up for lost tournament this season.

The Tribe was at least a ten point underdog for this game, and was out to pull one of the biggest upsets of the year.

Monday night, the Tribe will return here where Rollins' Tars will be out to make a good start at bettering last year's 22-4 record. The Tars lost two games to the Seminoles by 86-84 and 110-66 scores.

Rollins will lack height, and will count as good outside shooting a host of veterans. Heftermen, Hal Lawler, Al Fannand Dick Dreyer, will be the big guns in the Tars' attack.

The Tribe will be their third game of the 1955-58 season, having downed the Stetson Hatters in road last night at Raeligh against North Carolina State, and tomorrow's Rollins Club with East Tennessee State as their opponents.

FSU Players

Coach Rud Kennedy took twelve players on the trip Jim Oler, Tom Garcia, Garry Wold, Bob Williams, Tom Ashley, Tom Powell, Jim Hogan and Vic Manna just never did get their maths on the bucket.

Meanwhile the first team, guard by player building, was exhibiting as neat an exhibition of ball handling as one would like to see.

Manager Bob Jones used all 12 men and every man got in the act. The game ran true to pattern all the way with the last men ahead 15-7 at the quarter, 31-16 at the half and 61-24 at the third quarter.

Dorm lineup: R. Fraier Rebels, 9, Tom Powell ;Peninsular, L. Vic Hanna& Methodists; 7, Wally Hamrick ;Magnolia; 7, Jim Hogan ;Senior Hall; 8, Sam Moates ;Senior Hall; 4.

Frat: Ashley 12, Schafer 4, Kirby 4, Hasfurder f. Callahan 5, Perkins 10, Hemple 6, Crisp 5, Williams 5, McAfee 4, Copps 2.

Tennis

In the fraternity singles championships Sonny Sellers of Sumo Rii became the new tirst tennis champion last week when he defeated Jim Maddock of PDT in straight sets 6-2, 6-4.

Sellers had little trouble in the first set, but Maddock gained more confidence and showed flashes of the kind of tennis that had brought him to the finals in not dropping a game, until he hit Pat Dey of PDT in the finals of the loorer bracket Maddox had beat Ley 6-4, 6-1.

In the dorm division it was Johnny Torrey who won the championship. Competition will be too found the going not too

THE BIG AND THE LITTLE of the FSU basketball team. Reading left to right, they are 6'8" center Bob Williams, guards Tom Garcia and Jim Oler, both 5'8," and 6'8" forward Gary Wold. All were in FSU's starting lineup at Raleigh last night.

Frat Cagers Top Dorm Stars; Mural Tennis Season Closes

The intramural basketball season looked up for the reason during the Thanksgiving Vacation period."

In the inter-league playoffs and all-star games it turned out to be even-steven.

Senior Hall, champions of dorm section beat the frat champions 46-40 at the Florida High gym to give Senior Hall the all-campus championship.

But in the all-star game the tables were turned. The Frat All-stars took an early lead and were never in trouble as they beat the dorm-stars 60-36.

The dorm team played with a handicap of only six players on hand, but high scoring Tom Powell, Jim Hogan and Vic Manna just never did get their mitts on the bucket.

Meanwhile the frat team, guard by player building, was exhibiting as neat an exhibition of ball handling as one would like to see.

Manager Bob Jones used all 12 men and every man got in the act. The game ran true to pattern all the way with the frat men ahead 15-7 at the quarter, 31-16 at the half and 61-24 at the third quarter.

Tennis

In the fraternity singles championships Sonny Sellers of Sumo Rii became the new first tennis champion last week when he defeated Jim Maddock of PDT in straight sets 6-2, 6-4.

Sellers had little trouble in the first set, but Maddock gained more confidence and showed flashes of the kind of tennis that had brought him to the finals in not dropping a game, until he hit Pat Dey of PDT in the finals of the loorer bracket Maddox had beat Ley 6-4, 6-1.

In the dorm division it was Johnny Torrey who won the championship. Competition will be too found the going not too tough. He whipped through the championship set 6-1, 6-0 against Lamarr Pratt of the Methodists. This was a repeat of the 6-0, 6-0 win against Pratt in the earlier rounds. This brought the trophy back to the West Hall Penthouse.

In the doubles it was another matter in the dorm section. The West Hall Pirates' Gary Kimmel and Ronnie Fisher had beaten the Methodist team in the winners bracket 6-4, 6-4.

The Wesley club then eliminated the Air Force's Miles Cleve and Bruce Burer 6-0, 6-3, and were back again for another crack at the title.

P K Rao and Paul McClain won 6-2, then lost 4-6 as darkness closed in. On the following day after playing to a 5-5 draw the Wesley team won 7-5.

In the double elimination, this was one loss sash and bloom, an extra final. It was a repeat performance with the match going 2 sets with the Rao, McClain team winning 6-4, 1-6, 6-4.

The fraternity doubles was won by McElroy and Woods for PKT. They entered the winners bracket final by beating Leon Cutler and Don Schwartz of TEP 6-4, 6-3.

Cutler and Schwartz then got back in the finals by beating Eberhardt and Hamner of PDT 6-4, 6-3. In the final Delwyn McElroy and Tommy Woods played steady tennis to win the crown 6-0, 8-6

Bowling

The men's intramural bowling championships are now under way in the bowling alleys in the women's gym building.

Both the fraternity and dormitory-independent divisions are rolling each day from 5 to 6 P.M.

The quarter-finals of the double elimination tournaments will be scheduled next week beginning on Monday. Students are invited to watch the teams in action.

Nine Seniors Lead Seminoles Against Tampa In Grid Finale

By ALAN WHITMARSH

Nine Florida State University seniors take to the gridiron for the last time tomorrow night as the Seminoles meet the University of Tampa in Tampa.

A capacity crowd is expected to be on hand as the Tribe and the Spartans renew the oldest gridiron rivalry that the Seminoles have.

The two teams meet tomorrow for the eighth time in a series that began in 1940 with a 33-12 FSU victory. Since then, the Seminoles have won five and the Spartans two.

For Florida State, 1955 has been a rugged year—as they find bowing into the excellent football league business at its best.

Coach Tom Nugent's Seminoles have been able to post only a 4-5 against considerably tougher opposition than the Tampans have faced in running up a 9-1 mark.

All this may be forgotten tomorrow night, though, for there is talk that this may be the last game played between the two teams, and while 1956 schedules have not been announced yet, this may serve as an inspiration for both teams.

Outlook Encouraging

Despite the nine seniors who are leaving, the outlook is most encouraging for the Tribe, particularly in the backfield where no

Seniors have played a key part this year.

The nine gridders who will play their last game for FSU include Seminoles: Bill Procter, Jerry Jacobs, Tom Feamster, Vicee Gilmore, Charles Kirchlgner and co-captains Don Powell and Bob Crenshaw.

The only two graduating men in the backfield are halfback Gene Cox and fullback John Gunner, neither of whom have been consistent starters this year.

The Seminole starting lineup will most likely read much the same as it has the last few contests, with one exception. It is probable that Billy Weaver will start at right halfback in place of injured Buck Metts.

Metts' injured leg will not yet permit him full-time duty, and Weaver may start in his place. The rest of the backfield will remain much the same as it has been all year.

The combination will probably have steadily-improving Vic Printiss at quarterback, Lee Corso at left halfback and Joe Kail at fullback.

Nugent has used many different line combinations this year, but probable starters include Feamster and Procter at tackles, Burger at the ends, Proctor and Trey Barnes at tackles, Lewis and Al Parilles at guards and Crenshaw at center.

However Gibson and Sophomore Leo Baggett will probably see plenty of action in the line as will such stalwarts as Ron Bisbee, Bob Barber, Ray Staab and Hobo Ackerman.

Tampa Threats

Chief threats for Tampa, which graduates ten seniors, are quarterback Bill Minahan, and halfbacks Don Hegndon, Tom Spock and Ken Nunnelly.

Minahan is a top-flight passing threat, and has been the starting quarterback ever since his Freshman year. Herndon, just a sophomore, is the leading ground gainer on the team.

Spock is second to Herndon in total ground-gaining this year and Nunnell is enjoying his best season. Both boys will perform as a Tampa uniform for the last time.

Seniors who lead the Spartan line are end Bill Howance, center Bill Greene and tackle Bob Lord. Mario Maffeo and Tom Mahun, and guards Ed Duray and Henry Garcia.

Tampans Labor For FSU Contest

The University of Tampa's Spartans showed just about everything possible in the six week of practice before the FSU game at Tampa Saturday night.

Head coach Marcettia Hureia worked the Tampa outfit hard on fundamentals with the stress on goal line defense.

"We don't want to same thing that happened to us in our second game," he said. "We just fell apart every time FSU got within our 10-yard line."

Florida State edged Tampa last season, 13-0.

Indications, too, were that Tampa would go to the air a lot against the tearing Seminole aerial defenses.

"We'll probably start the game by trying to see if we can't get through their big line," Hureia said. But our secondary is pretty tough. And if we can't run through it, then we'll throw over it."

Florida State hasn't looked too good on pass defense all season long. The weakness contributed much last week to Mississippi Southern's rout of the Seminoles at Hattiesburg 21-6. The Seminoles were expected to arrive in Tampa by plane sometime tomorrow afternoon.

Co-Ed Corner

By Juanita Jacob

Hi there Co-Eds.

The volleyball tournament is now over, concluding a very successful season.

The final games found Reynolds losing the dormitory champions and Alpha Gamma Delta the winners of the sorority league.

In the last game between Reynolds and Alpha Gamma Delta, our two teams played a very exciting game. The final score was Alpha Gamma 34 with Reynolds close behind, having a score of 26.

These games would not have been possible if it weren't for the officials who came out each day to help call the games. Thanks from the physical education department and many members of the individual teams are to be complimented for rendering this service so that these games might be played.

What is next on the program for this year?

A soccer clinic is the activity which is before us now. Yesterday was the first day.

The purpose of this clinic is to teach individuals the techniques and fundamentals of the game. If will be conducted under student leaders. Three days a week may be used for this; Monday, Wednesday, and Thursday.

Everyone interested please report to the soccer field at 5 o'clock. It lasts one hour.

It will be a great opportunity to meet and associate with new people. At the close of the clinic, teams will be chosen. It will be a lot of fun. We would like to see everyone there to come out and participate.

Touch Football Begins Monday

The men's intramural touch football championships for both fraternity and dorm-independent teams begin on Monday, Dec 5 at 4 p.m. All of the fields adjoining and south of the Campbell stadium will be used as well as those of the demonstration school.

An exact schedule of games was not available at press time but tentatively it will be posted on the student center and Longshore outdoor bulletin board.

The intramural board has stressed the rules in some areas so as to complete the more "rugged" finals. will be of two 10 minute quarters, instead of the usual 15 min.

The finals will be played in the football stadium after the Christmas vacation.

Panelists—At Job-Getting Seminar were, l to r, Sam Myrick, William Renz, Marvin Thomas, Malcolm Johnson, Polly Weaver and J. F. Wilson. They appear above during discussion.

Sponsors Say Job Seminar 'Wonderful'

"It was wonderful" reports Mrs. Fay Farmer of the Vocational Guidance and Placement Office on the success of the Seventh Annual Job-Getting Seminar.

Over four hundred attended this Florida State University campus-wide function, which included informal interviews, a panel discussion, and personal interviews in its two day schedule.

The Seminar was opened Tuesday at 4 p.m. with an informal meeting of faculty members and some 35 representatives from government, business, and industry. These 35 recruiters gave over one thousand interviews on Wednesday.

Panel Discussion

At 7 that evening the panel discussion was held where the fields of insurance, government management, journalism and sales were represented. Due to the Les Brown concert this part of the program had to cut short.

The purpose of the Seminar was to give students especially graduating seniors, the opportunity to meet their future employers in an informal setting and talk with them

Doc To Help

According to Mrs Farmer much of the success of the Seminar was due to the co-operation of the various student groups which helped in its planning and presentation. These groups included Alpha Kappa Psi, Delta Sigma Pi, Future Business Leaders, Gamma Alpha Chi, Scullions, Senior Class, Student Python Institute, and University Government Association

Plans for next year's Seminar will be started next week.

ZTA Scores '55 Homecoming Prizes Awarded

Zeta Tau Alpha made a grand sweep of awards during Homecoming weekend by winning trophies for the best skit at the Pow Wow, the best house decorations, and the most original float.

In the fraternity division, Pi Kappa Alpha received the honors for house decorations, while honorable mention went to Phi Kappa Tau and Sigma Chi.

Honorable mention in the sorority division went to Phi Mu and Kappa Delta. West Hall and South Carrison coped the dormitory division, while the Methodist Student House won first place in the non-resident student group.

Brian Golden, chairman of the house decorations committee, said that the judges looked for originality, effectiveness, clarity of idea and appropriateness in determining the winner.

The judges were especially impressed with the "simple and clever" assortment of the float in the Zeta display. The sound track, movements and lighting were good points of the fraternity winner

Lambda Chi Alpha received first place for the best comic skit at the Pow Wow. Runners-up were Alpha Xi Delta and Pi Kappa Phi.

Delta Gamma won the most beautiful float award with their pink and white Homecoming queen tent to Gamma Phi Beta and Sigma Chi.

Other awards were presented by the awards committee consisting of Dr. Boyd H. Bode, professor J. Richard Stevens, and Dr. Sidney Kobre

A set of Encyclopedia Americana was won by Forrest Allman, graduate student, for his essay on "Interpretation of Law" in the Homecoming at FSU. The Homecoming theme was suggested by Mr. Singer also received a set of the encyclopedia.

Mrs W. J. Oven, class of '05, was awarded a Book of Knowledge, for the alumni with the largest family award. She has seven children.

Miss F. W. Phillips, class of '07 received a Durham Card Table for having the most children

FSU Cartoons Are Reprinted

"Thirteen cartoons from last year's Student of Smoke Signals were reprinted on a cartoon pocketbook called The Bowls of Ivy," revealed editor Dave Bloodworth.

The book, published by Bantam Books, Inc and edited by Harry Bollinger contains all the best college cartoons from college humor magazines all over the nation.

As Bostinoff describes it, "It is my collection of the best works of the college humor staff."

Other college humor magazines represented in the collection included California Pelican, Wisconsin Octopus, and the Yale Record.

AN "A" FOR EFFORT

BATON ROUGE La., ACP — The Daily Reveille at Louisiana State University reports this story from a college in the neighboring state of Texas.

Making an "A" in education was easy for a student at East Texas State Teachers college. The student was Miss Mary Elizabeth Kinser. After Miss Kinser was absent on final exam day her instructor told her, "You had an "A" average anyway because you have produced more in our class than any other student."

Miss Kinser's grade book is a baby on examination day.

Unfinished American Revolution

look with pride on the struggle carried on by our spiritual ancestors in the founding of a nation freed not only from foreign domination but freed from the caste-ridden nobility, freed from the over-burdening of an aristocracy born above the common man. We need to be reminded that less than two centuries ago in most of the world, 90 per cent of the people, regardless of race, were thought to be unworthy to be educated, unworthy to vote. People like you and me, children like yours and mine, were not good enough to go to school, at least with the silk-clad children of the aristocrats. It was who have attended FSU. Six of her children have attended and one grandchild is now enrolled here.

An electric clock was given to Mrs Ann Billingsley Drake, class of '32, who traveled the longest distance, from Ft. Carson, Colorado, to attend the Homecoming festivities.

Board, Centennial Are Queried

Publications Board Blocked As Soles Questions Power

Because of a hold up in Student Senate, the newly formed Board of Publications will not meet Tuesday as planned.

The Board had scheduled its first meeting for Tuesday but the elections and appointments committee of Student Senate refused Wednesday to approve Student Body President Coyle Moore Jr., board appointee.

Senator Jimmy Soles, chairman of the elections and appointments committee told Senate Wednesday his group will not vote on Fred Roberts and Joan Cunningham unless they declare the board is not to be used as a disciplinary or news policy to the publications.

Unaware at the time of Soles' report Moore told The Florida Flambeau Wednesday he had not informed the appointees their duties were to include editorial or news regulation.

Admits Possibility

"The Board of Publications is just an overall policy making group for student publications," he asserted. "Eventually I assume it could do anything it wants to," he admitted

When the Board was established by a constitutional amendment last spring approximately double the number of passage were cited it would supervise Student publications, Florida Flambeau, Tally-Ho, and Smoke Signals, and select their editors and business managers.

Individual senators, commenting on the Board, after confirming Moore's appointments, said their objections were neither to Roberts nor Miss Cunningham but to their allowed ideal of the board to so act in a censorial capacity.

The Student Body President said he would confer again with the appointees and would not call the Board into session on policies of the kind critized by the senators

Wednesday night he issued a prepared statement

Statement Issued the Elections and Appointments Committee deferred approval of Roberts and Miss Cunningham because the committee thought I had told the appointees that their board is expected to censor the editorials of the Flambeau.

"This situation was the result of a misunderstanding which I believe could have been cleared up easily when the appointees have been more considered if the committee had asked me about it, as I was in an adjacent office at the time.

However, I have since talked with Senator Soles, Chairman of the elections and appointments committee and I don't think there will be any further misunderstanding. The matter should be cleared up without further complication."

Moore announced Wednesday appointment by Dr. Dean S Campbell, University President of Dr. Richard Joer, engineering; Dr. Earl Beck, history; and Dr Elston Ready, political science, to the board. They are the three faculty representatives provided by the amendment. Elected student members are Dick Victory, Jane Putnam, and Sam Alderman.

The chairman, to be elected by the group, will be one of the student members.

Moore had planned for the Board to meet this Tuesday afternoon at 4:30. He indicated the meeting will be postponed a week on the expectation that two appointees will be accepted in next Wednesday's Senate meeting.

Student Talks With Advisors Begin Today

dents may begin conferday today with educational sors for second semester. Registrar's office has announced.

ssisting will end December with pre-registration beginon January 3 and lasting ough January 16.

fore December 16, said Dr. Homer Harden, coordinator of ademic guidance, students would obtain from their sors lists of approved ses on the green trial schedwhom which they must later ng with them at registration ay-eve Cards.

dents will receive appointcards through the mail ing instructions for pre-regis- the registrar's office said appointment card will show ime a student pick up registration material in the Registion office HCA Westcott.

ter the material has been ained students will go to class card area in the Suore Room, where they will cards for those courses on ng their schedules.

End Process

schedule checking and fee ayment will end the process ng which they their fees at the time will have their ID cards validated but those who have not will have their cards ated and held until payment is made. If such is not to the beginning of second semester the class cards are voided and a late registrafee of five dollars assessed. All students who pre-registered decide not to return must notify the Registrar's office by January 11. Students cancelling registration by then will receive a refund of fees.

Those who complete registration and find it necessary to change their schedule may do so during the regular period for dropping and adding courses

Senators Block Redistricting

Reapportionment in student representation has been blocked at least temporarily by two members of the three-member student Senate special committee.

Chairman Jimmy Soles said Vic Atwater and Karl Eddins have voted against committee bills providing for living unit representation which were added to the committee for the effect a compromise.

He will submit at tomorrow afternoon's Senate session a minority report advocating a change from the present class system of electing Senators. Soles disclosed he will vote for a new committee.

Tomorrow Deadline

Tomorrow is the deadline for the committee's report, established when Senator Gordon Gerber demanded earlier this fall immediate consideration of the bills.

Although many senators have expressed an interest in studying reapportionment, only two outside of committee members and authors of the bills attended open hearings held on them," Soles charged.

Draws Bill

Soles drew up one of the bills providing for a basic system of combined class and living unit representation in Student Senate. Senators Jim and Barbara Sanders drafted the other, which is more extensive, more detailed and provides for a greater number of senators from more areas.

In opposing reapportionment Edwards and Miss Atwater, Soles said, seem to feel senators should be elected by classes but wanted to attend meetings and discuss the opinions of dormitory, day student, fraternity and sorority governing bodies.

Reynolds Action Brings Restriction

Reynolds Hall residents must be in their dorms by ten o'clock on week-day nights for the rest of the week announced Mary Ann Cawthon, house president, yesterday.

The punishment was due to a disturbance in the dorm Sunday night. At eleven o'clock a group of students slammed their doors in unison in protest of what some residents called "an accumulation of petty grievances."

The disturbance, called a "riot" by some residents, was considered as minor by a resident counselor.

Junior Counselors for the dorm met following the disturbance in order to decide the punishment.

Since Mortar Board is selling some extensions Friday night residents may stay out until eleven. Regular hours are in effect for Saturday evening

THE NEW MOON—At rehearsals for this year's Light Opera Guild presentation are, l. to r., Bud Greene, Wiljohn Schiffermuller, George Goldstein, Virgil Austin, Martha Slayden and John Zilles. Performances will be given Friday and Saturday nights.

Was Failure

'Moon' Operetta Had Poor Start

By MARTY REEVES

Sigmund Romberg's "The New Moon", to be presented by the Light Opera Guild Friday and Saturday, has not always been the successful show it is today. It started out as a dismal failure.

The operetta was scheduled to open on Christmas Eve 1927. Romberg, with Oscar Hammerstein II his collaborator, was planning on the score when Zieg feld told him that he was planning a show for Christmas Eve, and would Romberg please write a score for it?

In spite of Romberg's protests, the persuasive Ziegfeld got him to agree to write the score, with George Gershwin as collaborator. To make matters worse, Gershwin was also at work on a show of his own.

Tuesday Deadline

It is little wonder, then, that the show described Thursday the Christmas Eve in Philadelphia. It was Romberg's first failure. With a will, he and Hammerstein began to completely revise the show, with the result that when it reopened nine months later, it was a great hit.

Collaborated On Others

Romberg and Hammerstein collaborated on nine other shows after that, but none came near to equalling its success. "The New Moon" played on Broadway for more than 500 performances and contained more hit numbers than any other musical until "Oklahoma!" in 45. Romberg's favorite of all of songs he has written, "Lover Come Back to Me," is in it as well.

The coming performances, scheduled for Wesicott Auditorium at 8:15 p.m., will feature Bud Greene, Martha Slayden, Peter Peck, Barbara Schaller, Charlaine Weeks, Forrest Tibb McGehee, Wiljohn Schiffermuller, John Zilles, George Goldstein, Lonnie Kerns and Virgil Austin.

Tickets are available at the Westcott Box Office for 75 cents. No seats will be reserved.

Penny-A-Minute Time Extension Set For Friday

"Penny-a-Minute Night" will be sponsored by Mortar Board Friday night.

Women students will have the opportunity to stay out until 1 a.m. at a cost of one penny per minute after midnight, which is the usual deadline.

Mortar Board has originated the idea this year with the hope that it will be successful enough to be used in the future. The money collected by the effort will go to a school or campus project. As yet the project for this year has not been decided upon.

According to Nancy Vaughn, Mortar Board President, all women students, including freshmen, must sign out. Money will be collected by Mortar Board members in the Westcott corridors. Miss Vaughn made the request that all try to have the correct change in this time.

Freshmen must enter Bryan Hall after midnight. Cawthon residents enter South Cawthorn, Gilcrist and Landis residents enter through Landis, and Florida Hall residents enter Florida.

The time is limited to an hour, except in the case of the Seniors, who receive only half an hour's privilege because of their senior privileges.

Debators Enter Tourney At UF

Four Florida State University debators will leave Thursday for the University of Florida where they will participate in an intercollegiate debate tournament this weekend.

Beverly Duperrouzel, Norma Trippodo, Tom Woods and Arnold Greenfield will make the trip, accompanied by Elizabeth Perry, a member of the FSU speech faculty.

The tournament consists of six rounds of debate on this year's regular Intercollegiate debate topic, the guaranteed annual wage. Miss Duperrouzel and Miss Trippodo will present the affirmative case, while Woods and Greenfield will argue the negative.

One of Twelve

FSU is one of twelve colleges and universities sending representatives to the tournament. The other schools represented are Alabama Christian College, Emory University, Florida Christian College, University of Florida and Furman.

Mississippi Southern College, University of Miami, Milsaps, University of South Carolina and Wake Forest will also attend.

'55 Fourth Year Of Coffee Hour

By ARLIEDA RIES

The Florida State University English Department Coffee Hour is now in its fourth year of existence.

It was originally started in the fall of '52 by Dr. William Rasdel of the English Department as a meeting of the English faculty to tell of their summer travels. It was to be a small, informal group who enjoyed coffee and talking.

At the first meeting, to which only English faculty and majors were invited, Dr. Sarah Herndon, Dr. Mary Maginnis, and Mrs. Olive Sharma on the score when Zieg- told him that he was planning a show for Christmas Eve, and would Romberg please write a score for it?

gatherings. Interest grew as did the group to about fifty in number. Programs still consisted of humorous readings by the English faculty members and informal discussions.

For the first two years Dr. Rasdel, who is now in Greece on a Fulbright Fellowship, presided at all sessions, which remained small and informal.

Takes Planning

In the summer of '54 Mrs. Olive Cross took over the planning of the Coffee Hour. She worked on a correspondence with a large number of Florida authors inviting them in the name of the English department to visit Tallahassee and talk about their work at this Hour. Invitations were accepted by some twenty Florida writers of national prominence.

Speakers included such noted authors as FSU alumna Edith Pope who was introduced by her former

Business Meet Set Tomorrow

A reception for all students interested in some phase of business is slated for tomorrow night in Longmire Lounge.

The reception will begin at 7:30 and is scheduled to conclude at 9:30.

Charles A. Rovetta, dean of the School of Business, and other members of the Business faculty will be on hand to welcome guests.

The reception planning committee is headed by Don Mayer, who is a member of Alpha Kappa Psi Committee members include Yvonne Weidman of Pi Omega Pi; Harold McNeil, Insurance and Real Estate and Gordon Merrin, Future Business Leaders of America.

Other committee members are Gerald B. Wynne, Delta Sigma Pi; Wayne Shroyer, Scullions, and Elizabeth King, Sigma Alpha Chi.

Glee Club Plans Vespers Event Sunday, 5 PM

Women's Glee Club will present its Annual Christmas Vespers Sunday at 5 p. m. in Westcott Auditorium.

Under the direction of Betty Jane Grimm of the music faculty the group will tell the Christmas story in song, the words taken from the books of Isaiah and Luke of the Bible.

A brass choir, under the direction of William Cramer, will provide a prelude.

Part I of the program entitled "The Prophecy" includes the songs "Low, How a Rose Ere Blooming," "Tota Pulchra Es Maria", "The First Nowell," and "I Saw Three Candles".

The Coming

"The Coming of the Christ Child" is the theme of the second part, which is composed of "Down Bethlehem Way," "Sweet Little Jesus Boy," "O Sheperds As They Watched", and "O Come All Ye Faithful".

Part III: "In Praise of His Coming", consists of "Within A Lonely Stable", "Bring a Torch Jeanette, Isabella", "To Us Is Born Immanuel", and "In Excelsis Deo".

Christ's Ministry

The last section is "Christ's Ministry Pocteotid". It includes "I Wonder As I Wander", "Christmas Prayer", "Christmas Symbol", "They Found Him In the Temple", and the traditional "Silent Night."

Soloists on the program are Mary Jane Marriott, Barbara Schaller, and Charlaine Weeks. Jane Ellen is accompanist, and Roy Finn will do the reading.

Sandspur Turns In Constitution

Sandspur has turned in its constitution to the Student Committee on organizations for approval.

We expect to have this approved by next week", revealed Nancy Cubbon, a member of the student committee on the reorganization of the annual student publication.

"We are planning an organizational meeting for Wednesday, December 14 and hope it will be approved by then."

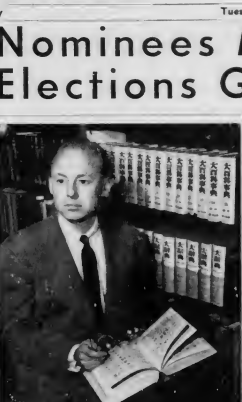
On the date for the meeting as the election of officers for the 1956 issue. The only person not to be elected at that time is the director or president.

Everyone who is interested in working on Sandspur in any capacity is urged to attend this meeting," emphasized Miss Cubbon. We hope to get a large turnout."

Dr. Hilda Tinney, Assistant Coordinator of Counseling and Guidance has been choosen as the faculty adviser for Sandspur.

Scripts for the production must be turned in by January 15 and should be typed. Those interested should attend an FSU is eligible to enter the script competition.

Juniors Meet Tonight For Dance Talks



Plans for the Junior-Senior Prom will be discussed at the first junior class meeting tonight at 8 p.m. in Longmire Auditorium.

The newly approved Senate Bill for a Centennial Homecoming in 1957 will also be discussed along with the picnic and December clothing drive which Junior Class Pres. Emory Lee and distributed to needy children. A report will be made on the class' Homecoming badge sale, which netted $150 for the prom fund.

"All the members of the Junior Class are urged to attend, to find out what the officers have been doing and to offer suggestions for coming events," emphasized Pat Hilton, class secretary.

Representatives of the sororities, fraternities, and other special groups have been notified of the meeting. The Junior Class Senators, members of Judiciary, and Honor Court will also be present.

Lensen Schedules Pearl Harbor Talk

What lessons should the United States learn from the results of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor?

Dr. G. A. Lensen, associate professor of history, will discuss the importance of Pearl Harbor, in a talk tomorrow night at 8 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall.

The program, which includes a 45 minute movie is the first of a series sponsored by Phi Alpha Theta, history honorary.

"The main lesson to be learned from the surprise attack administered 14 years ago, is the need for military preparedness," revealed Dr. Lensen. "By studying the history, habits, customs, and actions of an enemy, we can foresee their future actions," he added.

Brings Memories

Dr. Maurice Victor, professor of history and chairman of the program, related that a dozen years ago the sloran "Remember Pearl Harbor" brought to American thinking the picture of a treacherous attack and the need for revenge. Today, he said we can examine the event and its background calmly to learn why the attack occured as it did to assess its historical importance and to see what can be learned from a study of the years leading up to Pearl Harbor that will strengthen the United States.

"The World at War" is the title of the film which will be shown to supplement Dr. Lensen's talk. It gives the background of events that happened in the ten years prior to World War II, including the Japanese invasion in Manchuria and the German and Italian aggression in Europe

Specialist

Dr. Lensen, a specialist in the study of international relations in the Far East, brings to his discussion not only knowledge gathered from American records and the writings of other scholars, but also a personal understanding of Japanese history and culture developed through the study of Japanese materials and during a year spent as a Fulbright scholar in Japan.

He is the author of the only book published in the country dealing with Russo-Japanese relations in the 1850's at the time of the American Perry expedition and co-author of a book now in press on the Yalta conference and is now working on the Soviet Union's lack and the film will last not longer than an hour and a half.

To Determine Duty Beliefs

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

The Student Senate's influential Elections and Appointments Committee will meet this afternoon with the student body president's two nominees for the Board of Publications

In interviewing Joan Cunningham and Fred Roberts the committee, Sen. Jimmy Soles, chairman, will attempt to determine what the two believe their duties to be.

The hearing is scheduled to begin at 4 p.m. in the Senate Chamber, second floor Longmire.

Soles, and Committee members Mary Louise Dee and Germaine Murray voted last week to postpone acceptance of Coyle Moore Jr.'s appointee due to disagreement and doubt over whether the Board's duties should include determining the editorial and news policies of the publications. Karl Edwards, fourth committee member, was absent.

Soles told The Florida Flambeau both Richards and Miss Cunningham appeared to have been informed by someone, apparently the student body president, that such determination would be part of the eight-member Board's powers.

Under Impression

Both said yesterday they were under such an impression when they appeared before the Soles committee but Miss Dee remembered speaking to Moore since the Senate meeting at which the committee's reluctance to confirm them was voice. At that time Moore denied censorship.

"After all this has happened," Miss Cunningham said, "I have been looking at the amendment which set up the Board. I cannot see where the Flambeau needs anybody over them.

Will Appeal

"Its main duties will be to appoint the editors of the publications and approve the budgets. I believe if they do that they will have a lot of their time taken up."

Said Roberts: "I hesitate to give you a statement on what my duties will be until I've seen the bill in the amendment creating the Board."

Roberts said he understands the duties of boards of publications at other schools can include definition of editorial policy.

This doesn't necessarily mean our board does so. I'm not sure," Roberts said.

Responsibility

He added that if such is the interpretation of the Board it could conceivably require, for example, that the Flambeau "leave out anything that leads to segregation." Roberts said, however, "I would be in favor of it. If I had my way I wouldn't change anything at all."

The individual he will oppose any effort to tell the publications what to print, Soles. Speaking for himself and not necessarily for committee, he said "I feel there should be no censorship of newspapers except in cases of obscenity and libel. I feel that a paper in a university, and Florida State, should be able to express ideas freely and to cover all sides of things and that a paper that can't do these things is not a newspaper but a public relations sheet."

Purpose

Quoting from the amendment setting up the Board, Soles said: "The purpose of the Board of Student Publications shall be to help maintain the best standards of higher education and professional journalism in student publications."

Two of the eight members are appointed by the student body president and in the delay in their confirmation by senate which prevented the Board from meeting today as planned.

Those elected student members are Sam Ackerman, Dick Victory, and Jane Putnam. Faculty members appointed by Dr. Lusk S. Campbell university president, Jr. are Dr. Frank Brady, political science Dr. Earl Beck, history, and Dr. Richard Joel, journalism.

PHILOSOPHY CLUB MEETS TONIGHT

Philosophy Club meets tonight at 8 p.m. in room 313 of the old Demonstration School. Dr. Robert Shaw, professor of zoology department is the speaker for the evening.

ACE MEETING CALLED TOMORROW

The annual dinner meeting of the Association for Childhood Education will be held tomorrow at 5:45. Tickets for this supper at Florida Hall are $.85. There will be a Christmas display of toys from other lands.

Faye Anthony Represents FSU's 'Prettiest Publicity'

By MARGARET MILLER

Representing FSU as its prettiest publicity is Faye Anthony, newly chosen as an Orange Bowl princess.

Selected as one of the five finalists in the contestants in the parts of the state the much publicized Orange Bowl activity during the week-long. Her Tara Farm route in Miami Pro many events in which she will be featured are the Orange Bowl parade on Dec. 31, and the game on Jan. 2.

Faye was required to write a personal letter describing her self, her interests and activities. From these pictures and letters twenty semi-finalists were chosen and asked to appear in Miami for a luncheon and the final judging.

Preliminary judging was held Nov. 19 at the El Comodoro restaurant in Miami. There Faye met the other contestants, was measured for fashion coordination from Burdine's, and interviewed by the judging committee.

Named a Princess

The contestants were then narrowed down to a group of twelve who were subsequently with the judges. Then Faye was made one of the four princesses and Lynn Brown of Fort Lauderdale as queen.

Twenty year old Faye, an English major from West Palm Beach, has already won many beauty titles. She was chosen as first runner-up in the 1950 Maid of Cotton contest; Miss Kansas City Athletics, member of the '55 FSU Homecoming Court; 1955 Military Ball court member, and club membership in the Pi Beta Pi; Beta Theta.

Congrats To Tech

The Florida Flambeau extends its sincere congratulations to Georgia Tech's student Body President, George Harris, for his action in the current Tech-Pittsburgh football dispute involving segregation.

While we do not advocate mob violence as a general practice, we feel Georgia's Governor Marvin Griffin deserves the type of retaliation expressed by the Tech student body. It is regrettable that not all public officials can be reasoned with intelligently.

The Atlanta Constitution, edited by Ralph McGill, expressed Sunday the sentiment which appears to be nation-wide, and Georgia-wide, at least as evidenced through telegrams and phone calls to Georgia Tech. Said the front page editorial in part:

"At a time when the state faces so many problems and decisions vastly more important, it is ridiculous that Georgia should be subjected to the teapot tempest stirred up by Governor Griffin's belated objection to Georgia Tech's playing in the Sugar Bowl because its opponent, the University of Pittsburgh, has a substitute fullback who is a Negro . . .

"Particularly incongruous is the Governor's precipating such a controversy so close on the heels of his recent visits to New York, Chicago and Cleveland for the laudable purpose of inviting new industry to Georgia. How can he expect this state to attract anything except ridicule when its chief executive so constantly seizes upon the slightest excuse to make political capital?

"It is our hope that reason will reasert itself — both at the Flats and in the Governor's office—and that Georgians will be spared any further unnecessary humiliation. It is a time to consider our public problems in a calm and reasonable way and not to incite fiascos over the piddling ones."

We hope this incident will be sufficient warning to those In our own State of Florida, who would act with emotional intolerance, in haste, and for their own selfish political reasons, to bring the dignity of other men down to their level.

It has been said time and again that the younger generation is more tolerant than the older, and this fact is being evidenced not only in the Georgia Tech incident, but in the student press of a majority of the South's universities. Too, petitions have been circulated, according to the Miami Hurricane, at the Universities of North Carolina, Florida, Georgia, and Texas, requesting admittance of Negro students to the respective schools.

While such petitions are more conservative in nature than Tech's riot, they may prove to be equally effective, in presenting the elders with the choice of living up to the standards of youth's tolerance, or forcing youth to conform to the ill-founded prejudices of their ancestors.

Tribe Needs A Mascot

Apparently Flying Seminoles Ed Franklin and Dick Puckett didn't want to wear chains. At any rate, the Warpath Club is still looking for a school mascot.

Spokesman Jaqui Charles said boxes will be placed on campus by Thursday for the deposit of suggestions. The mascot getting the greatest number of votes will be named school mascot by the Warpath Club, she said.

Let's have some originality. No goats, wolverines, de-odorized skunks for us. How about an aardvark or a koala bear?

Pangs Of Justice

This chapter is entitled "Your School's History Can be Interesting," and is taken from the November 20, 1929, Nation.

"A well meaning gentlemen from Florida find himself in an extremely difficult position. He is Mr. ——— of Tallahassee, one of his daughters attends the Florida State College for Women. Mr. ——— discovered that the history books were being exposed to certain textbooks which contained 'very improper and objectionable' matter. So with a colleague, Mr. ———, Mr. ——— caused to be published a pamphlet containing extracts from the improper and objectionable textbooks as proof of the danger the young ladies were in. And, such is an ungrateful and shortsighted justice, both of these public-spirited gentlemen have now been indicted for sending obscene literature through the mails. Alas for public spirit."

"Hamlet" Is Good Presentation

(Editor's Note: The following review was written under the collaboration of several, rather than one, staff members. Any objections or comments will be welcomed. Address Hamlean Drama, Letters from the Editor, Box 391. Unsigned letters will be published under names supplied by the Editor, at the discretion of the latter or the part of the staff to impose themselves to the wrath of the critics.)

By STAFF WRITERS

HAMLET, which concludes its four-day run tonight, is a worthwhile presentation of Shakespeare's drama.

A technically superior production, its acting prevents it from rising above the level of the average student effort. A Shakespearean drama is no place for questionable ability and in a few instances this fact was brought out during the PSU speech department's version of Hamlet.

On the other hand, the large majority of the cast enacted the tense drama in commendable fashion, moving with sureness and capability through the well-known paces of the plot.

The play was divided into two portions with a short intermission, which did not detract from the quality of the presentation. The producers, however, chose to omit the graveyard scene—Which would have made later events seem strange had not the plot been familiar.

ADDING TO the effectiveness of the presentation were expert lighting effects, including the presentation of the "Ghost" illusion. Stage settings by Charles Reimer and an excellently trained lighting crew made the play a delight to view.

A unique touch was provided by Ryen Edwards' chamber-type music. This music was well done, achieving most of its effect through simplicity. Still, some of it should have been left out, especially during the soliloqu. Its use during entrances and exits added much to the excellence of the play. Too bad the pauses were out of tune.

Probably the best acting was presented by Eb Thomas, as Hamlet, although he at times exhibited a tendency to express excitement by long ability rather than acting ability. Thomas nonetheless provided the skill necessary to reinforce this Hamlet production into a creation of substance.

FRANKLIN ADAMS, as the King, did an excellent and quite sustained portrayal of a monarch who wanted too much. He was particularly effective during the prayer soliloquy, which bespeaks of things to come for the young actor

Katherine Culpepper gave a convincing performance as the Queen At times, however, she seemed cold and aloof from the whole production particularly in the play-within-a-play scene. She deserves special commendation for a performance in the last scene. Not everyone can practically stand on his head for 15 minutes without moving.

Nancy Adems, as Ophelia, improved immeasurably as the production moved on. At the beginning of the play, she seemed completely out of character and acted like a not very bright ten year old. She did handle her scene of madness with improved confidence and good execution.

Bill King, playing Horatio, gave a consistently creditable performance although his portrayal was hard to understand at first.

The prohibition of curtain calls, traditional for tragedies, climaxed an effective performance.

Rush Delay Suggested

CHAPEL HILL NC —(I.P.)—The report of the special committee on fraternity rushing at the University of North Carolina recommends delay of rushing until the end of the eighth week of the first semester and that an individual should be required to have a satisfactory record in his scadamic work before pledging a fraternity. A satisfactory record was defined as not more than one unsatisfactory report at mid semester.

This was recommended with the thought that it would allow freshmen to get a substantial footing and yet not burden fraternities financially. A mid-semester rush period seemed a solve the major aspects of all the problems considered. By removing nothing from the rush period and also requiring a satisfactory academic record the recommended system would minimize much of the interference between rushing and the academic process. The committee felt that if a person with academic difficulties undertook pledge responsibilities, it would be harmful to him, the fraternity and the University, and was therefore not desirable.

The Committee agreed also that a person not eligible under this system should not be permitted to pledge a fraternity until a 75 average was obtained. This would prevent students taking additional responsibilities when they were poorly situated academically and would result in a higher level of fraternity scholarship. The committee agreed that first semester difficulty was not necessarily indicative of a poor college record; therefore, they felt that the latter policy should be included as a recommendation.

Finally, the committee felt that it would be appropriate to submit some additional recommendations on rushing in general. It was agreed that the present system evidenced a number of problems both for the faculty and the students concerned. These recommendations are: On Sunday afternoon. Monday night and Thursday night, rushees are to visit all fraternities from which they received invitations. Fraternities will then send out a second set of invitations. The second visit of rushing will take place on Sunday afternoon, Monday night and Thursday night. Shilling night will be Friday and pledging will be after Saturday noon, when rushing will end.

The committee recommended the above schedule for the principal purpose of permitting minimum interference between fraternity rush and academic work and, in addition, to clarify some of the administrative problems of rushing. It should also eliminate some of the unsatisfactory methods of informing students they cannot pledge a particular fraternity at that time.

Greeks Eye Segregation

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa — (I.P.)—A memorandum recommending the study of racial discrimination in Westminster fraternities and sororities was sent recently to the Board of Trustees via Dr Will W. Orr, college president. The paper contained 23 signatures including Prof. Ernest Hoxtad, professional campus Greek organizations and the lone independent group.

Also signing the paper were the presidents of all campus Christian groups, the six honoraries on the faculty, administration, officers of the presidents of Student Council, at least one faculty advisor to each fraternity, the presidents of IPC and Pan-Hellenic Council, and the ed-ior of the Holcad, student news paper. The memorandum, compiled by Dr. Joseph Hopkins, associate professor of Bible, emphasized that by the fraternal "I" in the name does not necessarily represent his group or its policies, but was signing as an individual.

The paper recommended that the Board appoint a committee to study the matter; "the committee to invite the cooperation of the Interfraternity Council and the Pan-Hellenic Council and the Student Council of Religion."

Article Belies Smoke Signals Ar

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

THE DISTINCTION between decency and obscenity, between good taste and bad, is so vague that few people, and no courts of law, have ever agreed on a good definition of either.

One needs no recourse to a written code, however, when a piece of literature has literally struck him to the extent of a feeling of definite distaste.

I refer in particular to one article in the recently issued Second Smoke Signals. In case there is anyone on campus who hasn't been favored or cursed by that issue, it is on page 13 and is entitled "Some Notes on the Operation of Rotary Lawn Mowers."

In all fairness to Smoke Signals and to the author, the story was well-written although its author sincerely states he never meant for it to be published anywhere. He does not, however, consider it in poor taste.

I don't like to bandy on a topic The story, as most students now know, is a treatise on the effects of power lawn mowers on animal excretion.

THERE IS NO topic imaginable, sex included, which is in itself bad, or wicked, or lascivious, or anything smacking of drudery and blue laws. What makes matter objectionable is its usage.

I think the usage of this article, with obvious resemblance to the way a little mulls over and whispers a new word to learned and thinks is deliciously bad, with resemblance to the manner in which an adolescente search out and devour smutty literature and pictures, is in poor taste. Some have been fully out either Smoke Signals had anything worse—everyone marveled at time that the magazine wasn't discontinued was the first issue of the 1933-34 school year.

The article very unfortunately deals from some excellent features the latest did contain.

It calls to attention the primary ways to which a college humor magazine is prone everyone expects it to exert some freedom be saucy, flavor, and unabashed.

The magazine can so easily go beyond of subtlety and become crude, banal and vulgar.

HUMOR CAN BE sexy and not vulgar. is regrettably too easy to tell the joke, "joke" that arouses a leer and an unbecoming guffaw; it takes art to be subtle.

The editorial board of Smoke Signals are intelligent people. Let's hope they use some better judgment in the future.

A Better Measure

Students Want To Be Heard

By JEROME BERNSTEIN

THE QUESTION of segregation has become the most controversial discussion throughout the nation, particularly in the south.

The latest advent in, Georgia's Governor Marvin Griffin's request to the university system's Board of Regents to bar state schools from participating in sports where opponents have Negro players or in games where the spectators are not racially segregated.

To this columnist it seems that state and local leaders are losing it for granted that most college students think the same way they do. Events have shown that this may not be so.

In 1934 both the editor and managing editor of the University of Georgia's student newspaper were forced to 'resign in protest' after an editorial had appeared in the paper criticizing the pro-segregation stand of the state's governor Herman Talmadge.

BOTH EDITORS, native Georgians, were told that if they did not retract the editorial state funds to the newspaper might be stopped. Their answer to this threat was to 'resign in protest.' As it turned out a special control board to make editorial decisions on controversial matters was set up.

The role of the national government in education has long been debated by educators and government officials. Perhaps it is now time to debate the state rule in education. Certainly if state officials can interfere with student publications and tell the college what it can and cannot discuss, they can interfere in the classroom.

Perhaps it is time for students to defend voice on such matters. A recent example of this policy can be seen by the announcement from Mississippi State College for Negroes in Orangeburg, S. C. Delaware, Ohio, where student elections will be held on the question of continuing segregation on the campus

What will be of interest to the observer will be the performance of the white voted on how they voted. The vote will answer the question whether such radical measures as those being advocated by Griffin are widespread.

SO FAR FLORIDA STATE has not had to make such a decision, but with several members of the Board of Control openly opposing the pro-segregation stand of the state's governor Herman Talmadge.

Are Those Days Gone Forever?

END OF AN ERA.

What has happened to today's freshman? Is he stodgy dull, old before his time? Does he make an effort to be in class on time, and does he work faithfully and systematically on his English term paper?

Or does he follow the roaring footsteps of some of his precedents?

Thinking without a purpose usually leads to reminiscing, which leads us back to 31, and we leave us there. The freshman class of that year was unique.

That year, Senior and Magnolia Halls were only dorms for men on East Campus were for the elite, the upper classmen. The freshmen were on West Campus, with bus service by the courtesy of the University and registration fee.

THEY FOUND ways to make life bearable, though, and West Campus has never been the same. Rushing, especially rushing by fraternities and residence counselors showed remarkable ingenuity in the unscrupulous way.

Class assignments were done (when the week's too much of a bother) over breakfast or in the 10 to 8 minutes before class time. Nights were made for "living it up," and they lived it up. Some of them overdid it.

There was the "O" Club, yes, and one could get a good meal for 25 cents there and coke a cupe of orange juice from the machine for a nickel. (This might have a relation with the considerable absence of juice vending machines around lately.)

Perhaps class at 11e best is boring stuff though, and the "O" Club was no place to unleash the wild exuberance of youth. But they needed it.

Orchestra Drowns "New Moon" Cast

By WILJOHN

THIS AUTHOR (?) has just returned from a rehearsal of the "New Moon", in which I have a part, and large, very pleased. It is always a pleasure to work under Miss Grimm and Dr. Briggs and everyone can tell that they have better and more wonderful bunch of people than in this year's cast. However, the perennial many-headed monster has risen again and, as always, it is in the form of the orchestra.

Always in the past Lloyd Spora Guild productions, the majority of enjoyment to be gleaned from the show has been derived by those of the audience that are fortunate enough to be accomplished lip readers. This again seems to be the case. For a company source of amusement to those of us who have to be about ourselves honage to be heard above the music, that musicians, who are to be accomplished as the majority of these orchestra members are, has an opportunity never to use the word "pinnisimo." But they obviously never have because everything is played with full and lusty bow and lung.

Phillipe, played by the Tib McGinley (a boy blessed with a terrific tenor voice), sings the beautiful "Softly As In A Morning Sunrise". In order to be heard by anyone past the third row, it must be sung anyway but softly. And even then, he can only really be heard on his high B flats. This with the aid of few fiver mikes. The rest of the cast runs into the exact same difficulty on everything they attempt.

CONTRARY TO WHAT may be the prevalent thought of the orchestra, Romberg did not write this show to be an orchestral concert. True, the Instruments are blessed with what is probably some of the finest light opera music to flow from the pen of any composer, but the purpose of telling that story is accomplished as the majority of these orchestra members are, but in the present issue of Smoke Signals. If you didn't like the story, I am sure you already know what a rotten minded person I am. If you did, "Remember" has waited for a time again. I would like to say this, I serve the editor with a knife in my hand and with a smile on it, find it. I also think that the editor of the mag is doing a fine job with what limited material is being turned in to him for printing. The story was written for the enjoyment of myself and some friends and I think it was satisfied sufficiently to make it amusing and readable without being too offensive. The standard of mind exhibited by the very great majority of those of you who were insulted by my article I am very sure that you chose to exhibit where non was intended.

OF COLOR, OF RESPECT, AND OF HONOR—

Its been a big year for collegiate football—overall attendance records reached a new peak.

But it'll go down in the books as an infamous one.

For never before have politics so dominated the game. And below by the name of Marvin Griffin outplayed them all.

Doubtless, everyone knows of the situation brought about by the honorable governor of the state of Georgia—the rioting of an angered Georgia Tech student body, a nation stunned, and through it all, a young man, hurt—because of the color of his skin.

A reserve Pittsburgh fullback—Bobby Grier by name, Negro by race—was the lad in question.

Last last week Gov. Griffin asked the Georgia Board of Regents to refuse to allow the Georgia Tech football squad to play New Orleans' Sugar Bowl game New Year's Day because Grier was to run in Pittsburg's backfield and the Pitt cheering bloc was not to be segregated.

You know the rest. Last night, the Board of Regents were to have met in Atlanta to decide the question. By now, the story has been told in your daily papers.

It is not with intentions of conveying the story of a new one that we pen this corner today. Rather, we use one of those accepted freedoms granted us by our founding fathers—that of expressing an opinion.

And you, as a reader, will exercise a cherished freedom, too. You will either agree—or disagree.

Strange how loosely we may speak of those "cherished freedoms." You see, the Bobby Griers were granted a few freedoms—and playing football was one of them.

In Pittsburgh, after the news of Griffin's request had hurned across the country, the Bobby Grier in question could only say,

"I wanted to play football. I meant no harm."

And Pittsburgh officials,

"If Pittsburgh's plays in the Sugar Bowl Grier will get his chance."

In Atlanta, head coach Bobby Dodd said,

"I have no comment now—I will have none later."

You too, probably had a few comments. We heard some and with it were permissable to print them. We heard some, too, we would not care to print.

Thus, we maintain:

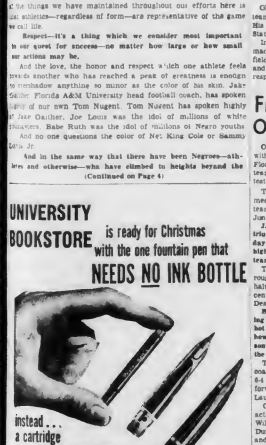
That the progression of time is an inevitable thing; that is deep such is wrong, and that deep down inside, we all realize that.

Enforced segregation, in this country, is no more. No governor no individual or any power, will ever be able to deny this of progression.

And we take the stand that it is pro-reason—literally.

Perhaps, in penning this particular article, we are treading the beaten path usually followed by a sport staff. But only it is things we have maintained throughout our efforts here is real athletics—regardless of form—are representative of the game of real life.

Respect—it's a thing which we consider most important in our quest for success—no matter how large or how small our actions may be.



And the love, the honor and respect which one athlete feels towards another who has reached a peak of greatness is enough to overshadow anything so minor as the color of his skin. Jake Gaither Florida A&M University head football coach, has spoken highly of our own Tom Nugent. Tom Nugent has spoken highly of Jake Gaither, Joe Louis was the idol of millions of white Americans. Babe Ruth was the idol of millions of Negro youths.

And no one questions the color of Ne; King Cole or Sammy Davis Jr.

And in the same way that there have been Negroes—athletes and otherwise—who have climbed to heights beyond the

FSU Basketballers Drop Two

N.C. State, East Tennessee Wallop Tribe In Road Openers

By LARRY BLOCK

After dropping their first two games, FSU's basketball team made their first defense of the Florida Intercollegiate Basketball Conference title last night against Rollins.

East Tennessee State handed FSU its second loss Saturday night, 79-54, after the Tribe lost their opener to N. C. State 88-63.

The Seminoles, who won the FIBC title with 10 straight victories last year, hoped to get into the win column in their first home game of the season.

Rollins had a 14-12 record last season and is again paced by All-State Dick Bessmer. Bessmer scored 331 points last year for 16.7 per-game average.

The Seminoles clinped the Tars twice last year, 87-74 here, and 110-60 in Winter Park.

Stetson Saturday

In Saturday's game Florida State will face a vastly improved group of Bergie Hatters.

To date the Hatters are undefeated in two games, beating Flor-

TRIBE WINS

With Jimmy Cler's 24 points leading a record second half, the Florida State basketball team won its first game of the season last night, beating Rollins, 101-85.

In the opener Chipola Junior College ruined Ham Wernke's debut as Freshman coach by stopping the FSU Frosh, 96-89.

ida Southern 83-75, and edging out highly rewarded Georgia Teachers 90-82.

Stetson and the U. of Miami are currently tied for first place in the FIBC. Florida Southern beat the victim in both games.

The game with East Tenn. was close the early stages but ETS opened up a 38-23 lead by halftime, then pulled away.

High scorer was ETS center Herb Edmonds with 16 points. Florida State's all-State guard Jim Orr led the visitors with 13.

Cler is high point man of the team with 36 for both road games. His 26 against North Carolina State was high for both teams.

In the two road games FSU made 21 and 26 per cent of their field shots, while the Wolfpack and East Tennessee hit 41 and 38 respectively.

Frosh Cagers Open Season

Opening their season last night with a big Chipola team, the Florida State freshman basketball team faces its toughest season test Friday night.

The height-lacking frosh cagers meet one of the top junior college teams in the South, Jacksonville Junior College.

JJC covered their second straight triumph of the year last Saturday night by overwhelming a highly-rated Florida Freshman team, 86-57.

The Seminole frosh have a rough night in store for them in halting JJC's 1-2 punch of 6-6 center Chuck Brendler and guard Dean Hoppman.

Brendler led the team in scoring last year, and is off to a real hot start this year. Oddly enough, however, a 5-11 guard from Jacksonville, Smokie King, is leading the team in rebounds.

The biggest man which Tribe coach Ham Wernke can offer is 6-4 center Dave Horrin and 6-3 forward Steve Era from Fort Lauderdale.

Others who will see most of the action for FSU are guards Joe Williams from Tallahassee, Hugh Durham and Tommy Donovan, and forwards Mike Lamson and Mike DePalmer.

Varsity Swimmers Overwhelm Frosh

Paced by two sophomores, the varsity swimmers easily outdistanced a strong freshman team, 66-22, in the annual Garnet and Gold meet Friday night.

Graham Trechke and Mike Techirret were the aquats who led the way as the varsity grabbed a quick lead and were never in danger.

Teechke took firsts in the 220 and 440-yard free styles and Techirret led the 100-yard dash and finished second behind Trechke in the 220.

Bowling Final Set Thursday

Twelve fraternities get the intramural touch football season under way today as the bowling tournament rolls toward its close on Thursday.

The dormitories get their touch football campaign under way tomorrow with six games on tap.

Touch Football

Twenty-seven teams compose a record field for football, with five leagues necessary. Six fields, including Campbell Stadium, will be used.

An increase in game time with 10 minute quarters rather than 15-minute halves, and the use of the "flag-tag" style game head the list of new rules.

In the "flag-tag" version, each player wears 2 flags 15 inches in length, and to "down" a player, an opponent must pull one of the three.

The schedule for this week:

Tues., Dec. 6, Frat Divisions

PDT vs. TC ..... Field 1
DTD vs. SPE ..... Field 2
ATO vs. KS ..... Field 3
KA vs. PKT ..... Field 4

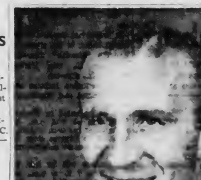
PKA vs LCA ..... Field 4
SN vs. SAE ..... Field 5



Bowling

Senior Hall has won its way into the finals of the dorm bowling division, and the Methodists, Pirates and Penthouse will seek the other berth this week.

Semi-finals in the frat division were on tap for last night in both the winners' and losers' brackets.

In the winners bracket, undefeated SAE met TEP, while PAP faced PDT and KA opposed DTD in the losers bracket. The two losers bracket winners meet tonight, and that winner faces the SAE-TEP victor tomorrow night.

Finals in both the fraternity and dorm divisions are scheduled for 5 Thursday in the alleys at the women's gym with the public invited.

MEET HUGH TAYLOR, the newest addition to Florida State's football coaching staff. A downright nice guy with a winning way, Taylor was one of professional football's all-time greats during his days as an end with the Washington Redskins. Taylor's primary job with the FSU staff will be as a talent scout.

Varsity Gymnasts Halt Frosh; Lecuona Leads Squad Meet

The varsity gymnastics team topped the freshmen 111-59 in the first meet of the season last week.

Co-captain of the varsity, Rafael Lecuona was the all-around champion of the meet with 1,372 points.

His teammate Jamie Ash-more the tumbling Texan, was second with 1,493, and Chuck Cole, co-captain of the frosh, third with 1,455 points.

The match consisted of 10 events: side horse, still rings, tumbling, rope climb, free exercise, trampoline, parallel bars, long horse vaulting, high bar.

Bob Elliot, as was expected, won on the trampoline with 28.7 points. His closest competitor, Don Preisser, had 25.3.

Jim Hanks had the best time in the rope climb, 4.3 seconds.

Lalo Anderson was second at 4.42, and Tom MacDonald, third, 5.92.

This event was a complete sweep in lone horse vaulting, high bar, for the varsity.

Gridders Finish Season At 5-5

Florida State's football team capped a rough entrance into big-time football by evening their record at 5-5 in Tampa Saturday night.

In addition, the 26-7 win over Tampa's Spartans ended an eight year series between the two teams.

It was a happy end for a season filled with defeat and frustration for Tom Nugent's Seminoles, who found major-college football more than a challenge.

Despite Tampa's tremendous desire to end the series with a win, the Seminoles were in command from start to finish.

Three of the Tribe's backfield stalwarts the year long, Len Swantic, Buck Metts and Joe Cerne scored three of the touchdowns and Corso passed to end Ham Bisbee for the other.

Tampa moved into FSU territory only once on its own offensive and that came in the fourth quarter, mainly on the strength of a 25-yard pass play to the FSU 33.

Volleyballers 2nd In St. Petersburg

Florida State's national champion volleyball team finished second for the second straight year in the annual St. Petersburg YMCA tournament last weekend.

The Seminoles won their first eight games, but lost the final to the St. Petersburg Recreation Department team.

Hi There Co-Eds.

We would like to remind you of the Soccer Clinic which is now in full swing.

If anyone is interested in participating in this activity come out on Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays. The time is from 3-6.

The fundamentals of the game have been taught and now the women are engaged in actual play. As they play, the instructors observe and help them when they have trouble with the various plays.

The game is a lot of fun and causes much excitement, so come on out and join in.

Two other activities that are going on at this time are badminton and ping pong. Both of these are open to both men and women. Badminton is played on Wednesday nights in the gym. Ping Pong is played in the afternoons from 3-6. They have just started so it is not too late to come out and take an active part.

Lambda Chi, Theta Chi Set Grid Game

The annual Campus Chest football clash between Lambda Chi Alpha and Theta Chi fraternities will take place at 8 p.m. Friday in the Demonstration School stadium.

All proceeds from the game, which is a full tackle contest, will go into the Campus Chest fund. Tickets sell for 25 cents each and may be obtained from members of either participating fraternity.

Sociology Club To Hear Ogburn

Dr. William F. Ogburn, visiting professor in the sociology department at Florida State University, will address members of the Sociology club tomorrow at 8 p.m.

He will discuss "Seven Great Events and Five Mistakes of 1955 As Seen By A Sociologist" in the Louimere Clubroom.

Dr. Ogburn, formerly chairman of the department of Sociology at the University of Chicago, joined the FSU department in 1952.

Author of many books and articles, he is probably best known for his Social Change. He is co-author with M. F. Nimkoff, head of FSU's Sociology department, of Sociology and Psychology and the Changing Family.

In addition to his contribution as teacher and writer, Dr. Ogburn holds the distinction of being the only person to serve as president of the American Sociological Society, the American Statistical Association, and the Social Science Research Council.

Holly-Hop Set By Two Halls

The "Holly-Hop," a semi-formal co-hop, sponsored by Florida and Magnolia halls will be held in the Florida Hall recreation room Friday night from 8-12.

The entertainment and band are supplied by Magnolia Hall and Florida Hall residents will prepare refreshments and decorations. Jeff Bradford's band will play for the dance and Tom McDonald and Clay Green will MC the program.

It includes a tumbling act by Don Holder and Jamie Ashmore, Nettie Black, accordionist, and Jackie Charles, dancer. Also included on the program are a song and dance team of five freshman girls, and an appearance by Santa Claus.

The dance is open only to Florida Hall and Magnolia Hall residents and their dates.

Reaver Presided

Dr. Russell Reaver was the chairman who presided at these programs, while Mrs. Cross managed the publicity. Westminster House was soon packed and jammed every Friday with students, faculty, and townspeople. An average attendance of from two to four hundred each week enjoyed meeting and talking with these Florida writers.

Such authors as Wylie and Slaughter had to speak in Westcott before crowds of some 1,600 persons.

This year Alan Thomson is presiding at the programs, which feature distinguished speakers from different departments all over the University campus. Again large numbers, from one to two hundred, of students, interested townspeople, and faculty members gather for this hour of relaxation and stimulation.

As the English members are the hosts at all coffees, Mrs. Cross comments in conclusion, "Full professors make fine dish washers. They put several hundred cups through the suds each week."

Communications Course At Iowa

Cedar Falls, Ia. (IP)—The Department of Language, Speech and Literature at Iowa State Teachers College has introduced an experimental course in Basic Communication this fall.

This method of teaching freshmen English and speech is also being used at the University of Iowa, Michigan State College and other institutions of higher learning.

The purpose of the experiment in teaching Basic Communication is to compare the effectiveness of a communications course which includes the integration of skills in reading, listening, speaking and writing with the effectiveness of the traditional beginning course, English 1, II and speech 20 — or more specifically, to determine whether a communications course can accomplish as well the purposes of English 1, II, and speech 20 and in addition improve the student's ability to read and listen to a degree that the present courses do not.

With this purpose in mind, the Committee on Communication has set up an experimental course of six sections in Basic Communication for a three quarter sequence for 120 students, and a control course of six sections of English 1, II and speech 20 of 120 students. All students will follow the sequence of courses in the humanities during the three quarters. However no attempt will be made to control the sections of Humanities in which the students are enrolled.

Singers Sought For 'Messiah'

It is still not too late to join Choral Union in the singing of Handel's "Messiah" Thursday, December 15, said Herman Gunser, Jr., director.

This invitation includes students, faculty, and townspeople, he added.

To be presented in Westcott Auditorium at 8.15 p.m., the performance has been an annual tradition on campus since the university became coeducational in 1947.

Rehearsals will be held tonight from 7 to 10 p.m., and tomorrow, noon to 1 p.m. Next week's rehearsals are scheduled for Monday, noon to 1 p.m.; Tuesday, 7 to 11 p.m., and Wednesday, noon to 1 p.m. and 7 to 10 p.m. They will be held in the Music Building Choral Room.

Next Wednesday

Bands Prepare Christmas Show

Marching Chiefs and the Symphonic Band are planning a joint concert on Wednesday, December 14.

"This is the first time the bands will present to the University", explained Manley Whitcomb, director of the group.

The concert, scheduled in Westcott Auditorium at 8.15 p.m., will have Christmas as its theme, he revealed.

A special number "Echos of Campbell Stadium" will have The Flying Semmoles, the majorettes and Marching Chiefs presenting some of their most popular football numbers.

The Symphonic band will present Alfred Reed's "Russian Christmas Music' based on old Russian Christmas carols. This marks the first performance of the work in Tallahassee.

Charles Carter, graduate assistant in the School of Music, did the arrangements for the groups.

The program will also include audience participation in the singing of Christmas carols.

"This is the first time the Chiefs have played in a concert but we've had so many requests that we decided to try it," said Whitcomb.

Glee Club Sets Vespers Event Sunday At 5

Christmas Program In Westcott Tells Of Birth Of Jesus

Florida State University women's Glee Club, presents its annual program of Christmas Vespers Sunday at 5 p.m. in Westcott Auditorium.

Under the direction of Miss Jane Grimm, of the School of Music faculty the program tells the story of the birth of Jesus in song as the words from the Bible are read by Flynn, director of communications and radio at FSU.

Flynn will read the scripture lessons from the books of Isaiah and Luke.

The prelude for the performance will be a brass choir, by William Cramer of the music staff.

Since the program will include many traditional carols, the songs dating from the 15th century, and other religious music with a religious theme.

Also featured in the program are several numbers arranged by Earl Alderman, well-known Jacksonville music circles as a pianist, composer, and musical guide.

Janet Klein will accompany the choir throughout the program.

Featured soloists of the program are Mary Jane Marriott, soprano, and Charlaine Weeks, mezzo-soprano. Barbara Schaller, soprano, and Carol Anne Bryan, contralto.

The program which is divided into four groups, begins with "Prelude" by Cramer, followed by "Lo! How a Rose E'er Blooming," "Thou art Fair," by Marcello, "The First Noel," and "I Saw Three Ships."

The second section of the program includes "The Coventry Carol," "Child" is composed by Boris Bethleben Wolf, "Ride Through the Olive Trees," by Alessandro As They Watched by Night," "Come All Ye Faithful," and "Silent Night" by Franz Gruber.

The theme of His Coming" is the vesper program, which includes "A Lowly Star," by Mary Jane Marriott, "How Bright a Torch Arose," by "To Us Is Born a Son," and "In Excelsis Deo" by Barbara Schaller.

The fourth and final part of the program is "Christ's Ministry" and is composed of "Prayer of a Wanderer" which Charlaine Weeks singing the "Christmas Prayer" "Peace on Earth" is a Swedish song, "In The Temple", and "Christmas Silent Night" by Gruber.

Messiah' Will Be Presented Thursday, 8:15

The familiar strains of Handel's Messiah will fill Westcott Auditorium Thursday night when Dorothy Thoen and the University Singers, under the direction of Dr. Seder present the oratorio at 8:15.

Students, faculty, or townspeople interested in singing "Messiah" are urged to join the group, Dr. Seder said.

Rehearsals are scheduled for Monday from 7:30 to 9 p.m.; Tuesday from 7 to 11 p.m.; and Wednesday from 6 to 7 p.m. and 7 to 10 p.m. in the Music Building Choral Room.

Soloists consist of a faculty quartet composed of Gunter, Edith Betty Jane Grimm and Herman James.

Mrs. Yoe Cast In Production

Mrs. Pauline Yoe, Lambda Chi housemother, and Kenneth Hansell, professor of law and insurance, will be the cast of the Tallahassee Theatre's first production, opening tonight.

Norma Harris, of the School of Music, will direct Sidney Howard's "The Late Christopher Bean." It will begin at 8:15 in Allen Hall behind the Episcopal Center.

The Little Theater said the play will continue tomorrow, Saturday, and Tuesday nights. Tickets are $1.25 and 50 cents for those who present ID cards. Mrs. Yoe plays the wife of a England doctor whose family thinks a faithful servant out of his paintings which have literally become of great value. Sharer plays an "art ex-

Blood Donors Must Take Test

Groups selected to donate blood for the months of November and December have been notified to report to the blood tests at the infirmary this week, said co-chairman Margaret Ann Ballenger and Marty Barrett.

The drive is operating on a new system this year with different groups on campus donating each month throughout the school year, instead of in one big drive. Three groups consist of all Greek organizations, dormitories, day students and faculty members.

Contributions of each organization will be announced at the end of each month, with recognition given to the group donating the largest amount at the end of the year.

A November's group, unable to contribute that month due to the absence of a lab technician at the University Hospital, consists of all faculty members. Kappa Alpha, Phi Kappa Tau, Pi Kappa Phi fraternities, and Landis Hall. Scheduled for December are Mallory Hall, West Hall floors 1-5, and Florida. Jennie Murphree, and Byrd Halls.

Each unit donating should arrange its own transportation to the Blood Bank, Miss Ballenger said. Before going, blood tests must be taken as well as the presentation of parents' permission by all minors not in ROTC.

No appointments need be made beforehand, it was announced, though Dr. H. G. Hathaway of the University Hospital and Miss Mary Rice of the Blood Bank requested that potential donators notify them a few hours to advance.

THE GENERAL CULTURE TEST, required of all Juniors and Seniors who have not had it before, will be given on Monday evening, from 7-10 p.m. in Westcott Auditorium.

'Moon' Brings Hit Show To Campus Theater - Goers

Theater-goers don't have to be in New York to see a Broadway show. Surmund Romberg's hit, "The New Moon", will open tonight in Westcott Auditorium at 9:15.

Presented by the Light Opera Guild under the direction of Dr. Robert L. Briggs and Miss Betty Jane Grimm, the show will run Friday and Saturday nights.

Receiving top billing are Marylin Slayden, as Marianne Beaumont, daughter of a shipowner, and Elvin "Bud" Greene, playing Robert Musson, a French revolutionist who flees from authorities to New Orleans, where he becomes bonded to Beaumont.

Lead Roles

Also taking lead roles are Peter Peck as Alexander, another shipowner; Barbara Schaller as Julie, Marianne's maid; Charlaine Weeks as Clotilde, of the "Lovely Ship" Florette; Tim McConley as Phillippe, friend of Robert; William Schiffermuller as Monsieur Beaumont; Virgil Austin as Beaux boatswain of "The New Moon;" Lonnie Keene as Jacques, a ship's carpenter; George Goldstein as Vicomte Ribaud, a Parisian prefect sent in pursuit of Robert, and John Ring as Captain Duval, commander of "The New Moon."

Bit parts are played by members of the chorus, a group numbering over 30.

Bit Tunes

Many of the songs in the operetta, because of its time in 1928 the year of its first successful performance, "Lover Come Back to Me," said to be Romberg's favorite of all the tunes he composed, is in it as well as "Wanting You." "Stouthearted Men," "One Kiss," and "Softly As In a Morning Sunrise."

Scenery was constructed by students under the direction of Ralph Gabriel. Both the scenery and lighting were designed by Hal Poe. Richard Mayo will operate the lights.

Tickets for the production are now on sale at the Westcott Box Office 75 cent apiece, no seats will be reserved. They can also be bought at the door.

'Hour' Slates Music, Reading

In observance of the forthcoming holiday season today's English Coffee Hour will present a special program of Christmas music and readings.

At 4 p.m. in the Westminster House members of the English department will present selected poems and short stories appropriate for Christmas, while music will be sung and played by a former music graduate of Florida State University.

Featured on the program will be a varied group of Christmas carols and folksongs by Miss Hugh Russ, teacher of music at Elizabeth Cobb Junior High School. She will sing the following selections. "I Wonder As I Wander" American folk carol; "What Child Is This?" English, 16th century; "Sleep of the Child Jesus" French, 13th century; "In the Bleak Mid Winter" Christina Rossetti, music by Gustave Holst; and "Joseph Dearest, Joseph Mine" Germao, 16th century.

Also, "O Mary, Where is Your Baby?" American Negro spiritual. Miss Russ will accompany herself on the autoharp, an instrument resembling the zither.

Dr. Hazel Stevenson will read "Dickie's Christmas," a short story by the American humorist Stephen Leacock; and Dr. Sarah Hermon will read "The Reverend Christmas Tree," a short story by the Russian novelist Fyodor Dostoyevsky.

Miss Elizabeth Blanding will present poems by two twentieth-century American poets, "The Ballad of the Harp Weaver," by Edna St. Vincent Millay, and "The Boy Who Laughed at Santa Claus," by Ogden Nash. Dr. J. Russell Reaver will read "How Come Christmas?", a short play by Negro dialect.

Refreshments will be served at the Coffee Hour, to which all faculty members, students, and townspeople are invited.

'Lesson To Be Learned By Pearl Harbor'—Lensen

The lesson to be learned from Pearl Harbor is that Americans must overcome their tendency to underestimate Asian peoples and their reluctance to study Asian culture, in the opinion of Dr. George A. Lensen, associate professor of history at Florida State University.

Speaking Tuesday night on the anniversary of Pearl Harbor Dr. Lensen, who spent a year in Japan as a Fulbright scholar, asserted that the United States should have been prepared for Pearl Harbor. That they were not so prepared stems from what Lensen called "a sort of mental block in American relations with the Japanese".

Despite the fact that our personnel had broken Japan's secret code and knew before Pearl Harbor that Japan's diplomatic relations with Washington were to be terminated, America was unprepared for the attack. Why? "The possibility of attack seemed only theoretical because in our eyes the Japanese were inferior," Dr. Lensen said.

The American inability to understand the Japanese is basic in our dealings with all Orientals, in Dr. Lensen's opinion. "We tend to lump all Orientals into one group, completely forgetting that all the Orient really has in common is that it is not the Occident," he said.

Using Korea to illustrate this American tendency toward overenlargement of Orientals, Lensen pointed out that the American military command in Korea seemed to have completely forgotten the Korean conflict that "the same audacious forcefulness of purpose that was proving so effective with the demoralized people of a defeated Japan would prove equally effective with the highly-civilized Chinese Communists who had just woo out in a long civil war at home and were therefore scarcely in the same mood as the Japanese."

What all this means, Dr. Lensen asserted, is that the behavior and the conflicts which came to pass at Pearl Harbor could be illustrate the necessity for Americans to understand foreign policy and, even more important, to understand fellow man.

"There is the danger today that mutual lack of understanding may blind the respective outlook of the peoples of the United States, Russia, and the countries of Asia," he said.

"Let us remember Pearl Harbor and those who gave their lives for you and me, therefore, by dedicating ourselves to the study and better understanding of the history, culture, and aspirations of other nations, so that some day there may be peace on earth and good will toward men," he concluded.

DISCUSSION SLATED ON RULE PHILOSOPHY

The philosophy behind the university's social regulations will be discussed Tuesday night by a newly formed student religious group.

Bruce Cole, spokesman for a group which plans to affiliate with the Liberal Religious Youth organization, said the discussion will be held in 403 Longmire beginning at 8 p.m.

The LRY is co-sponsored by the Unitarian and Universalist churches.

Magazine Censured For Academic Freedom

Board Of Publications Places Smoke Signals On Probation

The Board of Student Publications voted yesterday to "forcefully censure" the Smoke Signals, campus humor magazine, and place it on probation for remainder of the academic year, 1955-56.

The resolution censured the author of a particular article in the fall issue of the magazine and the editor for "lack of good judgement" in printing it.

The Board assigned to Smoke Signals Editor Don Heidel that, during the period of the publication's probation, the board will check any matter, which he considers "might be suspect" of offending "the average lay reader," with publications adviser Dr. Reid Montgomery.

If Dr. Montgomery and Heidel cannot agree the Board will make itself available to appeal. The warning lacks, however, the force of censorship. In the resolution, introduced as a suggestion by faculty member Dr. Richard Joel, it was said the final responsibility will rest with Heidel. The magazine will be liable to a semester's suspension should a similar event occur during the probation.

Passes Unanimously

The ruling adopted unanimously by three faculty and four student members with student chairman Dick Victory not voting, climaxed hearings which began Thursday.

Schiffermuller spoke several times in his own defense. The principal contention of the magazine's staff and interested parties in general is that the article in question was not vulgar in itself.

'Risque'

Jack Norton, offering a brief to the Board before it made its decision termed the article "a risque bit of humor and that's all."

Norton earlier challenged the constitutionality of the board due to the resignation of Dean Mildred R. Mathias before it ever met. The constitutional amendment creating the board, he asserted, contains a stipulation that one of three faculty members be the Dean of Students. He questioned whether Dr. Doss B. Campbell, University Registrar, could assume the office. Both body president the board disregarded the issue.

Only Thing

During the discussion preceding the board's action, faculty member Dr. Earl Beck commented, "I don't think we should make an impression on Mr Schiffermuller's article was the only thing undesirable" in the magazine."

He later said he had taken a opinion poll in his history class and found "a number" of students who felt offended by the questioned article. "If you do that," he asserted, "you're not doing the best job."

'Just Bad Taste'

"This is not worth the time-it's mendacious undertone," he commented. "It's just bad taste."

Dr. Joel and Beck, the two faculty members who participated most in yesterday's discussion, both voiced confidence in Heidel's ability to edit the magazine and did not mention earlier suggestions by Dean of Students R. R. Oglesby that the magazine be suspended.

After the meeting, Heidel said he had no comment to issue.

'55 Directories Go On Sale Here Monday

Students' directories will be available to all students at the University Book Store Monday. The price of the new 1955-56 directory will be 25 cents.

The 1955-56 directory was designed by Franklin Adams, a graduate art student. The cover is in two colors, blue and white.

There are more than one hundred pages of student names, campus addresses and home addresses. More than six thousand names are listed in the directory.

Robert Leith, Director of Publications and supervisor of the printing of the directories stated that this year's directory also includes a complete listing of student organizations offices, advisors and their addresses. It includes a list of the sororities and fraternities with the names and phone numbers of their presidents.

First Meeting Was Wednesday

The newly formed Board of Publications met for the first time Wednesday and elected Dick Victory as chairman.

The first order of business before the group was a discussion of complaints concerning Smoke Signals, campus humor magazine.

After hearing discussion on the matter, the Board postponed action until four o'clock yesterday so that members could study the situation more fully.

Penny-A-Minute Night Is Here

Tonight is the night women students may stay out until 1 a.m. —provided they pay a penny for every minute they stay out after the usual curfew of midnight.

Penny-A-minute Night, sponsored by Mortar Board, women's honorary, requires women students to sign out before leaving on a date. They are also asked to have the correct change when they come in.

The time extension project is being sponsored for the first time by the Mortar Board to collect money for a school service project. Mortar Board hopes the idea will be a financial success enough to be used in the future.

Money will be collected by Mortar Board members as the women come in. Freshmen must enter Byrd, Hall after midnight. Cawthon residents enter South Cawthon, Gilchrist and Landis residents enter through Landis, and Florida Hall residents enter Florida.

Seniors Thing

Seniors will receive only half an hour's extension because of senior privileges.

STUDENT CENTER OPEN LATE

The Student Center will be open until 12:45 tonight for a Penny-A-Minute Night.

PLAYS FOR PAN-HEL
Ray Eberle

Eberle Plays

Pan-Hel Formal Slated Tomorrow

Panhellenic will hold its annual Christmas formal tomorrow night in the Suwannee Room from 9 to 1.

Ray Eberle and his orchestra will provide the music.

Tickets are now on sale at the Westcott ticket booth for $1 per person or $2 per couple. According to Harriet Davis, Panhellenic president, it is a girl-but dance open to non-sorority members as well as sorority members.

Traditional Christmas greenery will cover the room. Included in the decorations will be a stand Santa Claus standing behind the backstand, a Christmas tree, and a kissing ring, decorated with holly.

Lighting the room will be colored lamps bearing each sorority's Greek letters.

Ray Eberle is familiar to many students from his appearance here last year at the Homecoming Dance. He was formerly featured with Glenn Miller and since leading two vocalist polls afterwards.

Since going on his own, he has made eight feature films and six short subjects for Universal and was a star on his own CBS radio show from California. He has also been featured twice weekly on WPIX-TV, New York.

Dance chairmen include Grace Schmidt, Binance; Jane Rogers, chaperons and invitations; Mary Louise Dee, decorations; Bessie Jo Cozart, refreshments, and Elaine Brenton, tickets.

Chaperones are Dr. Carl Dimmey, Dr. Werner Hertz, and Dr. Harry Walbonsky.

VETERANS MUST SIGN FOR CHECKS

All veterans must sign next week for December checks, warned Miss Carolsa Howard, veteran's coordinator.

Checks for this period will be sent out on Jan. 1, 1956.

Veterans already have not received their September and October checks yet, revealed Miss Howard. These students are asked to report to her office, 115 Westcott.

FSU Basketball

Students Broadcast Games

Calling The Card—Students who participate in the broadcasting of home basketball games are, l. to r., Bill Osterhaudt, spotter, Neil Labar, play-by-play; Charlie Allen, director and color, and Ross Jamieson, eng neer.

Sports fans on campus will be able to hear the action of the FSU-Stetson basketball game via radio.

The School of Journalism TV-Radio Workshop, which originates all home FSU basketball game broadcasts, has been granted broadcast rights by the FSU Athletic Committee, and will begin broadcasting the Hatter-Seminole game at 6 p.m. Saturday.

Last year's broadcasts were heard as far west as New Orleans WJBW and as far north Albany as Statesboro, Georgia WGNS. Jamieson Spotter is Bill Osterhaudt.

The current broadcast is carried here by Tallahassee commercial station WTNT, and by FSU's educational station WFSU.

The show will be produced by Graduate assistant Charles Allen, assistant is Jesse Banks. Play-by-play is handled by Neil Labar, with engineering by Ross Jamieson Spotter is Bill Osterhaudt.

The School of Journalism TV-Radio Workshop's job is to coordinate the games for the stations which carry them.

A Board Is Born

Amid some aggravating confusion as to the legal status of members, both students and faculty, the Board of Student Publications made its way into existence on the campus scene this week.

Unfortunately, their first action had to center on publication content, one of the most serious and potentially controversial matters any Board can put its hands on.

It might be added that the question concerning Smoke Signals was literally dumped in their laps by members of the administration who voiced the opinion that if there had not been a Board, they would have suspended publication of the magazine immediately.

This action brought a question from a faculty member of the Board who queried the resting place of final authority. He asked if the administration could overrule the Board's decision in the event it did not see eye to eye with the opinion handed to them with the case. The question still stands legally unanswered, but one answer is probable, and another, possible pending future legislation.

First, the Board could be held responsible to the administration. If such is the case, then the administration could overrule any action it takes and institute its own. If this is so, why have a Board of Student Publications?

Second, the Board could be made responsible, through legislation, to the State Board of Control, as is now the standing of the Board of Student Publications at the University of Florida. It may be feasible to interject here, that under the present Government system of our sister school, is responsible to the Board of Control through charter.

But regardless of the present status of the Board's authority, we should like to commend their action in this, its first case. Having listened to much debate pro and con on the quality of the Fall issue of our humor magazine, faced with finding an answer for townspeople who had voiced vigorous and active objection to it, and realizing that human judgment is not infallible, the Board made what we consider a wise decision.

"Democratic" Notes

While we do not wish to jump on the Donkey's back or on the Adlai Stevenson-For-President bandwagon at this point, we must commend some wealthy comments he made on education while in Miami this month.

Interviewed by Sam Polur, editor of the University of Miami's Parent Age, a monthly newspaper for parents of students, Stevenson expressed the following views, uncommonly liberal in comparison with most public statements today.

Q. Are universities becoming too regimented in their teaching? Are students tending, as a consequence, to be formists? Are college faculty tending to default in their role of leadership?

Answered Stevensnn: "I would answer all three with reluctant affirmance. I have noted a trend to conformity in many of the institutions of higher learning. But there is a healthy quarrel in all education circles regarding this too-passive role of many educators in the great questions of our day. Many students, I regretfully think, today tend to accept the status-quo without a vigorous and articulate expression of personal choice. We must, however, never be content and passive. Our state of mind should be searching and vigorous. I would hope conformity and apathetic compliance with doctrinaire thinking of the day will be shaken by faculty and student body alike.

Misrepresents His Feelings

TO THE EDITOR:

When the student journalists of the "Flambeau" have graduated and are fulfledged members of the Fourth Estate, they will find out their hallowed and precious "critical informative will so cease to normal issues, have come to consist. their editorials will say what the publishers and owners want them to say. This is merely a fact of existence, and as democratic a circumstance as any other. No newspaper can operate without funds.

The Florida Flambeau operates on the actuary fees of all the general thousand students at FSU, and its editors are the elected representatives of that body. In this not the same basic situation as that of the student government? Do not in a democracy the elected officials of the press as well as those of government bear the same responsibility to the electorate? No one subscribes to a paper whose editorial policy he finds repugnant for long. Neither ever allows the views of his paper to suppress his own, or to misrepresent his feelings.

A. J. "A REALISTIC SOUTHERNER"

Editor's Note: While the Florida Flambeau feels such an editorial would settle many arguments, according to psychologists such elections would not produce sufficient evidence from which to draw a valid conclusion. This would only indicate the number of students actively interested in the question, because it has been shown through past election turnouts, the majority of the student body who didn't care one way or the other, would not vote. In this regard, we appreciate the personal support for either side.

We feel a more valid measurement may be drawn at the conclusion of surveys now being made by FSU's Sociology Department.

The Editor feels, however, that no less an she has not been lynched by students, professors, bored is effigy, or threatened with impeachment, that she has severe repercussions. The opinion of student opinion as this example or in the editorial page of the issue writing for its lack of it.)

Good St. Nick

TO THE EDITOR:

Since the holiday spirit is now in the air I think this is a good opportunity to pass on to you wholehearted "thanks" for the way you and your staff have put out an excellent paper so far this year. I think I can easily say that this year's Flambeau is the best I've seen since I've been on campus.

You seem to be able to cover more of the campus events than any previous paper and several of your new columns or features are fine additions to the paper.

BEST WISHES,

Former Editor Covers Governor Griffin's Last Stand

(Editor's Note: The following column is written by Florida Flambeau editor emeritus Bert Gallphin, who is now a correspondent for the Atlanta Constitution.)

By BRUCE GALPHIN

Atlanta—Old memories stirred when Gov. Marvin Griffin's Buzz Bowl demand prompted a storm of fury about the gubernatorial early over the week-end.

Almost exactly two years ago another controversy raised about Georgia university-system politics.

Then there were no enraged student demonstrations. Publication was not mobilized to make politicians eat a deserved fare of crow.

Some one has suggested that the difference is that two years ago only the principle of free speech was involved. This time the institution of intercollegiate athletics was at stake.

Way back in 1953 the "Red

STORM CLOUDS

Rumblings and storm clouds gathered in Autumn, 1953, out of Roy Harris, member of the Board of Regents, which governs the state university system.

Referring to the "little handful of slimy, misguided squirts," Harris wrote that every time I see one of these little asses bona banging around some college, the more I think every one of them ought to be made to play football.

«Regent Harris later had some reservations about who should be allowed to play football, and when, as we shall see.

The Red and Black charged Harris with threatening to cut off state funds from the paper. Blow followed verbal blow.

Governor Griffin spoke in the subsequent statements. these events emerged two sets of student editors restrained, and a conspiracy of rules and laws imposed upon the Red and Black, providing in part for prior censorship of issues of controversial material.

Another storm was stirred.

Shortly after the Red and Black affair, the Flambeau editorially criticized the Georgia paper's treatment. In a column I called a gentleman named Roy V. Harrassed.

Some time later, when the Student Senate decided to hold a committee hearing to decide whether I should be appointed as editor. one accusation against me was that I had attacked the president of another university.

Well, I was not adverse to attacking college presidents who deserved criticism, but let the record be set straight.

Roy Harris not only is not the president of the University of Georgia. He is also not exactly an impartial educator.

He is a politician of long standing in Richmond County and in Georgia. He is one of the most ardent supporters of Herman Talmadge. He is editor of a tabloid weekly newspaper which might moderately be described as sensationalist and racist.

RUMOR HAS IT

Unsubstantiated rumor has it that Roy was one of those who whispered in Griffin's ear in issue his "Armageddon" telegram which brought the regents to prohibit any athletic contest between a Georgia team and a mixed team. At any rate he said he was for the governor "100 per cent."

But whoever gave the advice the governor fished, backfired and exploded.

One cynic here remarked that Georgia needs more high schools to prevent segregation but that's a mess with their football teams.

Tech students jumped to Acting Governor burned and hanged Griffin in effigy—the cam- Ernest Vandiver Jr. Pus Poinis, at the Capitol. They marched en masse down historic Peachtree to the Governor's Mansion, uprooting trash cans and parking meters along the way.

They halted before extensive police cordons at the mansion and chanted "We want Griffin." The demonstration was reasonably orderly to my eyes. Though the governor did not appear, the students went home without bloodshed. without the need for tear gas.

FORMER PLAYER CREDITED

A former Tech football player who is now a member of the governor s personal staff with cooling the pistons of students. The Atlanta stayed any untoward action police. Gov. Griffin, it be added, was not informed about the incident and he credited no bond for his restrained student.

More mature minds were at work behind the scenes on the bowl request. Citizens, a group of prominent Atlantans, worked vigorously. A recent issue called the proposal Immature.

The governor withdrew his program on Friday Bowl and the regents met Monday night. It was obvious that they have to be done. After regaining the good will of Georgia Tech and Georgia Tech alumni, the governor, the board and the university would have played unrivaled team.!

Can any lessons be drawn from the two Georgia incidents? Perhaps.

The governor did not stir up to action. But public opinion does have its effects. Students and other citizens are not "dead." This is not a silent, generation after all.

THE BARD OF COLLEGE LIFE

MANHATTAN (ACP)—Someone at Kansas State College did a little dissing and came up with this observation on college life:

Studying in the library: "More light, you knaves, and turn the tables up, and quench the fire, the room is grown hot." — Romeo and Juliet

Cramming at 3 a.m.: "How dull, weary, flat, stale and unprofitable seems to be all the uses of via to the world." — Hamlet

Cramming at 7 a.m.: "It is not for gentle maids to know how to mit your weak condition to the raw cold morning." Julius Caesar

Fountain pen leaks: "Out, damned spot! Out, I say!" Macbeth.

QUITE A SCARE

A story from Asbury College tells of a fraternity initiation president who gave her roommates quite a scare.

The dumb lady found she had locked herself out of her room and thought she could repair the situation by climbing out her own window. But things didn't turn out quite the way she had planned. She got out onto the roof, but then she had closed the window behind her; she couldn't get in; her own window was locked. That left her stranded on the roof and created great alarm among the other dorm residents who saw the mysterious figure moving about in the dim light.

SHORT CUT TO A DATE?

AUSTIN, Texas (ACP)—At the University of Texas, many of the girls living in Kirby Hall take a short cut to the campus via a rock wall that runs in front of the Campus Guild Men is from the Guild have been very accommodating. Earlier this fall, they chased away overzealous limbs and branches, and next attempted to put a stop to burning by posting information about their activities on bulletin boards in nearby tree. Currently, the men are sponsoring a beauty contest, and the winner is to be known as Miss Wall Walker of 1955.

Reynolds Affair Not A Riot, But . . .

By MARTIN DYCKMAN

SOME PEOPLE call the Reynolds Hall incident of a few nights ago a "riot."

This is a rather strong term to use for nothing more than the organized, punctual slamming of doors. Furthermore it seems that the girls had the doors coming to them.

Using the word, however calls to attention some facts about the causes of the affair. They don't just happen. Something causes them. The trigger usually is, like the proverbial last straw, the result of a long list of irritations.

Some Reynolds residents say the noisy event was caused by the accumulation of petty grievances." Other girls hotly resort it was caused by nothing but childishness and was merely organized amusement.

THE ISSUE is not whether their protest was just, or proper or silly. Whether the junior counselors in the hall had the authority to advance closing hour for the night of the week.

Why did it happen?

Freshman women's rules are partly the fault. They are unrealistic and unfair.

Any upperclass woman with a reasonable amount of respect for authority and for others, and some common sense can abide these councilid and judiciary.

Freshmen, many of whom have never been away from home before, run into a system which makes some of them feel they're regarded as potential criminals.

From the start they're surrounded with a phalanx of rules, rules rules limits everything they do. If they don't pass Knowledge for College test they're campused. If they fail to follow the pattern with which the entire system is conceived, simplemindedness.

Then they SEE some of the offenses for a freshman girl must face house council.

Running in the hall. Being out of dorm after 11 p.m. on week nights. Being out during study hours. Taking a shower between 7:30 and 10:30 p.m. (study hours?) Having the sign on door when not studying. Isn't supposed to flush the toilets during study hours. Having a male visitor without a chaperonly! Calling from windows. Going to the wash room between 11 p.m. and midnight without slippers.

There are others more ridiculous and which are apparently unenforced. But the going examples are enough to prove that some may help to encourage study and conformity, the rules can also crush the more mature student.

Woe to she who forgets to sign out and sign in.

I cannot abide the contention a freshman girl is so weak and shiftless she needs legislation to keep her from being a delinquent narrow. Furthermore, do we want a university full of robot automatons of people with enough spirit to be different from one another?

Says Music Best Part Of Hamlet

By DAVID WARD-STEINMAN

THE MOST controversial and undeniably interesting thing about the recent production of Hamlet was the incidental music composed by Ryan Edwards. It was panned in the Democrat and praised in the Flambeau. It was also subjected to the undercurrent of the soliloquies. Neither gave it the detailed attention it deserves.

Purists who object to "background music" per se as the Democrat seemed to do; just don't know their Shakespeare. Numerous references in Shakespeare's own day always included an orchestra gallery. Beethoven himself was commissioned by Goethe to write music for Egmont. His overture to "Coriolanus" by Shakespeare, and the music to Byron's "Manfred" performed works in that medium. Some of our best known contemporary composers, Aaron Copland, Leonard Bernstein and Samuel Barber, have achieved their success principally through music of this kind.

Edwards has written some notable music which in most of the scenes, heightens, rather than detracts from the dramatic action. He is at his best in the bridging interludes during scene-changes. The only time the music intruded were in the first Hamlet soliloquy and the King's Prayer Scene. Edwards has not yet learned the trick of writing non-melodic melody, undominated by the measure bar. The insistent upon four-square rhythm was obviously what distracted some of the critics.

Wandering With Wiljohn

'Moon' Will Shine; But Eberle Won't

By WILJOHN

TO THE many friends and supporters of the Smoke Signals and myself who have written in letters of protest against the charges made against us, may Don Heidel and I offer the quietest and most humble thanks ever heard around here.

Tonight "The Moon Rises!" Westcott Auditorium will feature what is probably the best Light Opera Presentation ever seen on this campus. The entire cast of "New Moon" feels relaxed and ready to go. I can't remember any other time around here when a show has been ready to hit the boards with all the kinks worked out and all the cast working as well and satisfactorily before time. Usually, the directors have serious production rush up till the final curtain. This time, however, everyone is keyed to performance pitch and not nervous about the results. I think you will be pleased for many a "New Moon" before you will find a performance to rival the entertainment value of this one. If you miss it, you miss a treat.

Tomorrow night is the Panhel dance featuring Ray Eberle and his orchestra (?) Good luck, Ray! To a wonder to me that the student body hasn't flustered out before this that the only way to get better attractions on campus is not to go to the poor ones offered. It will be long after the box office starts to drop that some top talent starts to make an appearance around here. Of natch, the girls have to pay their $2.00 anyhow, I hear, so they will all want to go. I have before me the list of touring bands at the present time These are a few of ones that could have been obtained for Flamingo, Sadie Hawkins or the Spring Carnival: Pee Wee Hunt, Stan Kenton, Ray Mc Kinley, Ralph Marterie, Billy May, Art Mooney, Buddy Morrow, Charlie Spivak, and Claude Thornton. So you see, it isn't through lack of availability that we aren't getting great bands. It is there just waiting for us to go after it.

INCIDENTALLY, I wonder if anyone realizes that Mantovani is making a tour of this country? Perhaps some one should contact him and induced to appear here for a concert. It is a refreshing thing to get away from the same old of the country's finest jazz combos now touring around the land and they could no doubt be booked into Tallahassee here. Be nice to have someone like the Australian Jazz Quartet, Dave Dagetts' swinging Five of Clubs, Dizzy Gillespie, Erroll Garner, Ivory Joe Hunter, Modern Jazz Quartet, George Shearing (who is currently touring the South), etc.

By the way, for those of us who like Brubeck, there is a new LP out on the Columbia label called "Red, Hot, and Cool" after a well-known brand name of the same name. If you like the unusual in Brubeck, dig the "Lover" tune with the 5/4 time signature. The whole disk is about the best DB has done with the exception of "Jazz at Oberlin" on the Fantasy Columbia record number is LP CL 6-6. If you are interested.

Letters To The Editor

Editor's Note: The FLORIDA FLAMBEAU received all of the following letters regarding SMOKE SIGNALS' latest issue, prior to the decision made by the Board of Publications. The letters are printed here, verbatim, to allow the opinions therein to be aired, even though some may be outdated by the decision of the Board.)

TO THE EDITOR:

It seems that too many people have entirely missed the point of Mr. Dykman's recent column on a certain issue of Smoke Signals article by Willohn Schiffermuller.

While I sincerely maintain the opinion that the article was in poor taste, I would call the reader's attention to remarks I made about some excellent features the magazine did have and the comments I voiced in its editors.

Smoke Signals should not be discontinued, nor should the subject matter in question be retracted or fired. This campus would sooner witness articles of a more mature nature than have its name blackened by arbitrary censorship.

Those who misconstrued my opinion column in a way as to cast me in the role of a censor are qualified to judge anyone's writing. Readers' remarks are agreeing on the quality of the issue. Smoke Signals article were antiseptic. One might regret that a topic of interest is not discussed by writers of a far greater importance.

But now, I find I should be ashamed of myself for even having read it. At least that's the impression received after reading Mr. Dykman's article.

I've always believed that anything humorous can be taken as light or as heavy as one wishes.

Even a clean joke, if one tries hard enough, can be made dirty. Wasn't it probably written to be taken with at least a little "grain of salt"?

Friends have told me that while the story may be close to the borderline, it certainly doesn't deserve the pounding that Dykman gave it.

Some stories in other college magazines have far outweighed this one in suggestiveness. I'm kind of curious as to what kind of article would appear if he got hold of a certain nursery rhyme that is now in children's books, "Rub-a-dub-dub. Three men in a tub."

Respectfully,
TOM SAWYER

TO THE EDITOR:

This is in protest of the discontinuation of the Smoke Signals and more specifically against the expelling of Willohn.

Most certainly the magazine could be better, but only with the cooperation of the entire student body and more really good copy to select from. Instead of discontinuing this publication let's get behind it and make into what we want it to be.

As for Willohn, true his article could be considered in bad taste but when has a slight mistake in judgment warrant being expelled? Answer that if you can. Undoubtedly, Willohn has learned his lesson after the protests raised and will use better judgment hereafter. If this is truly a democratic school, we say give him and the Smoke Signals another chance!

Sincerely,
MARTIN DYCKMAN

TO THE EDITOR:

I have never written a letter to the editor before, and I didn't intend to but a certain article in the last issue of the Flambeau prompted it. It's about a fine journalist, who, as the expression goes "has gone and did it again." I refer of course to Martin Dyckman, who gets more than his share of letters than anyone I know. If this is what you call a good bet I'll be glad to be let down.

When I first read the story in the Division of Rotary Lawn Mowers in the recent issue of Smoke Signals I thought it rather humorous and not quite a few notches out of it.

TO THE EDITOR:

I was completely shocked upon reading "The Dissenter" in today's Flambeau. I didn't realize such narrow minded people still exist. If an innocent article in a humor magazine can cause such an uproar it must be that there are more filthy minds around this campus than I would have imagined.

'Greatest Achievements' Of '55 Told By Ogburn

Noted Sociologist Explains Views In Campus Address

Seven Great Achievements and Five Great Mistakes of 1955 were the topics of Tuesday night's Pearl Harbor Anniversary address by Dr. William F. Ogburn, Florida State University sociologist.

Dr. Ogburn, who was for many years head of the Sociology Department of the University of Chicago, called these achievements the outstanding ones of the current year:

1. Tacit renunciation of war with hydrogen bombs at the Geneva Summit Conference.

2. Return in part way to civil liberty, including the disappearance of McCarthy from front page of newspapers.

3. "Magna Carta" for Asian and African States at the Bandung Conference.

4. Atoms-for-Industry Start, including Atoms-for-Peace Conference at Geneva.

5. Utilization of power from the sun, including the operation of a telephone line near American Genoa, with power from a silicuc solar battery.

6. Vaccine for the prevention of common colds, including the development and successful testing of a vaccine by the National Institute of Health.

7. Labor goes middle class as General Motors and Ford contract with the Auto Union for a so-called annual wage. Also American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations unite.

Dr. Ogburn's nominations for the great mistakes of 1955 are as follows:

1. Failure (so far as is known) to reach settlement on the Formosan situation, which if not resolved soon may mean war.

2. Abandonment of realistic discussions of disarmament plans by Russia and the U. S.

3. Neglect of the educational crises in public schools and colleges with shortage of buildings, teachers and funds

4. Electronization of privacy and continued wiretapping.

5. Refusal to provide funds for a roadbuilding program a wartime preparation measure as well as a peacetime utility.

At The Movies

Show Gives 'New Slant'

"Good Morning Miss Dove" which is now playing at the Florida certainly presents a new slant on the schools of America. In recent years there has been an overabundance of films about juvenile delinquents, and the violence and terror they create. "Good Morning Miss Dove" protects American youngsters as decent, law-abiding boys and girls who grow up to be wholesome, well-adjusted citizens.

Against a small town background Miss Dove, portrayed by Jennifer Jones, is depicted as an old-maid school teacher known to her students as "that terrible Miss Dove". One day as she is seated at her desk she is stricken and rushed to the hospital. While she is lying in bed awaiting serious surgery—performed by one of her one-time "boys"—various incidents recall her earlier experiences with many of the city's more prominent citizens. While her life hangs in balance the entire community mourns.

At State

A double-feature program is playing at the State today and tomorrow. The two films are "Apache Ambush" and "The Night Holds Terror."

"Apache Ambush" stars Bill Williams, Richard Jaeckel and Alex Montoya. The story is set in days immediately following the Civil War, and presents Williams as an Indian scout and former Union soldier who undertakes to drive a herd of cattle from Texas to Abilene, to relieve the food shortage in the North.

Columbia picture's "The Night Holds Terror", starring Jack Kelly, Hildy Parks and Vince Edwards is a drama of a young American family whose home is invaded by three killers.

Ritz

At the Ritz today and tomorrow is "The Divided Heart" starring Cornell Borchers, Yvonne Mitchell and Armin Dahlen.

Yvonne Mitchell plays the part of a Yugoslav mother whose husband is shot by the invading Nazis, trying to reclaim the baby that was lost when she was thrown into a concentration camp. The story of the struggle between Miss Mitchell, as the real mother, and Cornell Borchers as the woman who adopted and raised the boy as her own, forms the basis for the production which is a J. Students Argue But Pass Report

By MARGARET MILLER

Tempers were on edge and argument was quick and hot in Student Senate Wednesday.

Nearing the close of the meeting, which lasted about an hour and a half longer than usual, Jim Soles' minority report on reapportionment was accepted by a 15-11 vote above Karl Edwards' and Polly Atwater's majority report.

By accepting Soles report, Student Senate approved the idea of having living unit representation, or having senators elected from dormitories. Living unit representation would then be combined with class representation.

Edwards gave the majority report first. His objections to living unit representation included his feeling that it would "encourage senators to have their hands tied." He felt that dormitory representatives would present only the interests of their dormitories without considering the interests of students in other dorms.

Dorm Politics

He further stated that dormitory representation might not be true representation. "We all know," he said, "that some dorms on this campus are run by a few."

Edwards continued that "the larger group you have, the harder it is to exchange ideas." A statement which unwittingly contradicted his purpose as Soles was quick to point out.

Soles said that class representation alone is not good for that very reason. As class members are scattered through various dorms, sorority and fraternity houses and off-campus residences, it is difficult to represent them.

In giving his report, Soles quoted the Moore-Vaughn Report of 1954-55. In favoring living unit representation, the report stated, "a senator living in close proximity to the students he represents will be more representative of their interests."

The report added that under the present system of class representation, communication between senators and students is considerably hampered.

A Virtue

Soles deeped that it would be wrong for a senator to base his actions on the sentiments of the group he represents. Rather than wrong, he considered it a virtue.

"Will not class representation be as ineffective under this new combined plan as it reputedly is now?" Edwards asked Soles.

There was a lengthy debating over the merits and disadvantages of class representation or the proposed mechanics of the new plan and Senator Jim Moore reminded the group that the only issue to be considered at that time was whether or not we want dorm representation.

"Isn't dorm government run by a few?" McCann asked Moore.

"In class government run by a few?" Moore retaliated.

Senator Peter Dunn wondered "what if this proposed bill would cause students to take more interest in student government. Last year, the Freshmen I talked to just didn't seem to be interested. They seemed to think that because they elect six freshmen senators, student government is not responsibility also."

Senator Atwater seemed to feel that having senators in residence would make no difference to students. "Lets face it," she said "Students are just uninformed about student government."

Atwater stated again Edward's belief that dorm representatives would consider only the opinion of their dorms, thus causing conflict in Senate.

Dunn had earlier stated that she couldn't see how dorm interests would be "so radically different."

Out of Order

Senator Gordon Gaster again reminded the group that "half the discussion is out of order." He presented the facts that most of the senators lived in sorority or fraternity houses whereas few dorms had senators in residence.

Paul Ort a visitor to the the Senate, agreed with Gaster that "most of you here don't live in dorms I don't see how you can know the situation of many students as well as could dorm representatives." However, when asked by Gaster if he favored reapportionment, Ort commented that "I'm here as with an unbiased opinion, and I don't know yet."

Gaster commented that he felt that each senator represented all students equally. Tres added that according to statistics each senator represented 60 students.

Senator Rhodes commented, "Not that many students vote." If we represent the students who elect us, we don't represent that 60 per cent of students and don't need reapportionment, he said.

"But we don't represent just the voters," replied Tres Ibralin. ically. "We represent all the students."

Even though Edwards later remarked that he didn't think he could represent all class opinion was working, he said.

"A class looks the opinions of all groups, not just one."

Jim Moore replied that a class group is not as concrete a group as a dorm group. Membership in a class may depend on the factors of class hours, and also, class members are scattered.

Let's Vote

Eventually, discussion was necessarily ended, and a vote by roll call was taken. The close vote indicated Soles report in favor of living unit representation was accepted

Soles was appointed Dee. Bachman and Douglas with Tres an ex-officio member to a committee to study a reapportionment plan.

THE GIFT HORSE

Today's column is about Christmas gift suggestions, and I suppose you think I'll begin by suggesting Philip Morris. But the joke's on you. I'll do no such thing. Why should I? Anyone with two brains to knock together knows that Philip Morris makes an absolutely sma-shing Christmas gift. Only a misguided soul with atrophied taste buds needs to be told about new Philip Morris' its bracing flavor, its freshness, its lightsome pleasantness, gentleness; it's truth, its beauty, its brotherhood in this directionless world of ours. So why should I waste time telling you what you already know?

Let us, instead, turn to less obvious gift suggestions. If no one I bet you never thought of:

Christmas is the best time of year, but it is also the beginning of winter. How about a gift that reminds one that though it has come, spring is not far behind? I refer, of course, to baby chicks. Similarly, on Easter one can give Christmas chicks.

Next, we take up the problem, common to all undergraduates, of trying to buy gifts when you have no money. To this dilemma I say—Faugh! It is not the price of the gift that counts; it is the sentiment behind it.

Take, for example, the case of Outerbridge Sigafoos. Outerbridge, a sophomore, finding himself without funds last Christmas, gave his girl a bottle of good clear water and a nice smooth rock, attaching this touching message to the gift:

Here's some water
And here's a rock,
A present for you, daughter,
Around the clock.

And the whole delightful gift cost Outerbridge less than a penny!

I am compelled to report, however, that Outerbridge's girl did not receive these offerings in the spirit in which they were tendered. In fact, she flew into a fit of pique, smashed the water on the rock and stabbed Outerbridge with the jagged edge. From the experience was not without value for Outerbridge. For he discovered that the girl was not his type at all. Second, he learned how to make a tourniquet.

But I digress. Let's examine now a common complaint about Christmas shoppers: "What do you get for someone who has everything?"

To this I reply, "Does he?" Does he, for instance, have a unicycle? A sled dog? A serf? A burnoose? A bi-chail? A bubble starter? The bung starter, incidentally, was invented by two enormously talented men, Fred Bung and Otho Starter. Their partnership thrived from the very start, and there is no telling to what heights they might have risen had they not split up over a silly argument. It seems that Bung was a firm believer in reincarnation; Starter was just as firm a disbeliever. Bung insisted so violently on the truth of reincarnation and Starter scoffed so positively that they finally decided to go their separate ways. Singly, alas, the two fared badly. Starter gave up business altogether, joined the army, and was killed at San Juan Hill in 1898. He is today buried in Arlington National Cemetery. Bung drifted from job to job until he died of breakbone fever in Elizabeth, N. J., in 1902. He is today a llama in Uruguay.

The makers of Philip Morris, sponsors of this column, beg leave to add one more gift suggestion—IF AS SHULMAN'S CLASSIC TOME OF CAMPUS HUMOR, a collection of the funniest stuff ever written on or about campus—now on sale at your bookstore.

From The Sidelines

A REACTION AND WE'RE HAPPY—

It was quite an experience witnessing the reactions to the way we had to say about the Ga. Tech-Pitt Sugar Bowl situation this corner Tuesday. There were relatively few derogatorys—there were many who said we expressed their views almost to the word.

One fellow in particular took the trouble to drop by and say, "The things you people say are those which most of us think about and never quite get around to saying because afraid of what others might think. . . ."

Actually, we never thought of it that way. We felt an inside had been done and we said so. But it is something to think

People, outwardly, appear to be different. But deep down their basic ideas and beliefs are much the same. And of stop shouting at them long enough to let them think things for themselves, they'll come up with the right answer almost Cheyre pretty darned nice.

MEET YOUR BASKETBALL TEAM

Football's in the past now, and basketball has become the center of interest. Tomorrow night, FSU's FIBC change will fashion for a second conference win in a game with Stetson.

A pretty swell crew head coach Bus Kennedy has wearing Garnet and Gold in this sport. And no local writer could know better than Larry Block. He's been with the squad his first started working out back in November.

Here's Larry—

The basketball team will be playing the toughest schedule any team that preceded it. Since the season is already underway let's meet some of the team's personnel.

The man who looks least like a basketball player is the scoring senior guard Jim Oler, from Eronomy, Ind. Last year the chunky 5-9 set-shot artist scored 549 points to lead the Seminoles in scoring and is leading the way again this year.

Oler, playing his last year for FSU is Dick Artmeyer from Tampa. Ind. Dick is the kind of ball-player every coach wants. The man Anytime Dick is in a game he'll never stop hustling. Here's what the score says for Artmeyer.

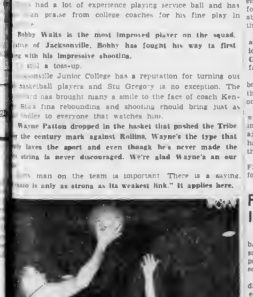
The big boys, 6-7 Gary "Bones" Wold and 6-8 Bob Williams are really starting to come along. The Rollins game is proof of this.

Big Bob led in rebounds, 13, with Bones right behind Everyone of the squad is confident he'll keep up the good work Bob and Bones Indiana boy and he'll be back for one more season.

The other starting guard position coach Kennedy is still allocating Tom Garcia and Bobby Waits.

Tommy at 5-8 is the smallest man on team, but he more than makes up for his lack of height with his fine set-shooting and ball handling.

Waits had a lot of experience playing service ball and has shown praise from college coaches for his fine play in the past.



Bobby Waits is the most improved player on the squad, states coach Kennedy. Bobby has fought his way to first string with his impressive shooting.

Waits has a toss-up.

Jacksonville Junior College has a reputation for turning out basketball players and Stu Gregory is no exception. The boy has brought many a smile to the face of coach Kennedy with his fine rebounding and shooting should bring just as much pleasure to everyone that watches him.

Wayne Patton dropped in the basket that pushed the Tribe to the century mark against Rollins, Wayne's the type that always the sport and even though he's never made the starting lineup he never discouraged. We're glad Wayne's an our

Every man on the team is important. There is a saying, "A chain is only as strong as its weakest link." It applies here.

Jimmy Oler, FSU's star guard goes up for two in the basketball game with Rollins Monday night. Oler scored 24 points as the Tribe walloped the Tars, 101-67.

Tribe, Stetson Clash Tomorrow

Cagers Seek Second Straight Win Against Surprising Hatters

By LARRY BLOCK

Riding the crest of a three game winning streak, the Stetson Hatters oppose FSU's basketball team tomorrow night at the Florida High Gym.

The Hatters' victories came at the expense of Florida Southern, Georgia Teachers and Wofford. Scores were 89-75, 99-93, and 90-83 respectively.

Coach Bud Kennedy stated that "Stetson will really be up for this game. Coach Morehouse and his team would rather beat us than any team they play."

Stetson is led by returning lettermen Bobby Crumpton at guard and center Mack Slones.

New Face

A new face on the squad is Curtis Moffett, a transfer from Campbellsville, Ky. Junior College who has figured strongly in the Hatter's attack this year.

Moffett is teamed with 6-2, jump-shot artist Dave Howard at the forward positions.

Stetson's big win was over the Georgia Teachers, one of the finest small college basketball teams in the south.

The winner of the game will move into first place in the Florida Intercollegiate Basketball Conference.

Monday night, the Seminoles take their defense of the FIBC crown by halting Rollins 101-67, showing the strength of a 57-point final half.

The half-time score of the game with Rollins was 44-40. During the first half the lead changed hands several times. Rollins, led by Al Folds called on center Dick Boerner for the scoring that put the Tars in the lead.

In the first half the Tribe made 38 per-cent of their shots from the field, and raised it to 50 per-cent in the second half.

It was right the wide open early in the third quarter that started the convertible points making the score 67-45.

After the Tribe's ugliness the outcome of the game was never in doubt.

Boerner Leads

Dick Boerner, Rollins' leading scorer, played almost the entire second half with four fouls, finally fouling out with about 2 minutes remaining in the game.

Any chance Rollins had of scoring the Seminoles exploded when starters Gary Gabbard and Jack Rugales sizzled out in the third period.

Coach Kennedy emptied his bench in the last quarter, but the Tribe continued to pour it on.

Jimmy Oler was high man with 24, making a total of 62 points for the 3 game average. Forward Dick Artmeyer had 18, and Bob Williams was tied with 12.

Second in total scoring for FSU is Jack Artmeyer with 28 followed by Gary Wold with 20.

Record Number For Intramurals

A record number of 102 athletes participated in the dormitory-independent basketball league according to official intramural figures released this week.

Seven teams took part, with Senior Hall edging out the West Hall Pirates in a sudden-death final series.

Pirates High

Statistics released indicate, however, that the Pirates did manage to take high team scoring honors by outdoing Senior Hall, 277-262.

The championship Senior Hall team used the most men to effect their victory, as 18 students were into action for the runaway champions.

The Cosmos had no individual scorer higher than ninth however, as Tom Powell of the Pentagon led all league scorers with 90 points.

Second was Tom Adams of Senior Hall with 79 points, while Dave Galloway of the Baptists was third with 71.

The first 15 high scorers for intramural dorm basketball follow:

Player	Team	Points
Powell—Cosmos		90
Adams—Pirates		79
Galloway—Baptists		71
Taylor—Penthouse		68
Blackwell—Cosmos		67
Condemin—Pirates		65

Seminole —Shorts—

By SAMMY SEMINOLE

Since we get 'weekly' quite a lot of small stories and flutters that are not worthy of a big story, we thought it might be a good idea to print a little shorts' column every now and then.

So, here goes the first effort in the series

Picked up on the basketball circuit: Yards Cavalier State, who made the FSU basketball team as 58-63 victim earlier this year, was 3rd in the country in basketball poll. Na disgrace far the Tribe here, certainly.

Speaking of that North Carolina boy, here's back off to Tribe center Gary Wold. Few Seminole fans realize the job Gary did in stopping State's All American center Ron Shavlik

In 33 minutes, Gary held Shavlik to a mere 10 points, while scoring 11 himself. "Bones", as his teammates nickname him is a 6-7 Senior from Madison, Wisconsin.

FSU's new assistant football coach Hugh Taylor, who played college football at Oklahoma City, holds three all-time records for the pro Washington Redskins.

Taylor totaled 200 points in 8 seasons with Skins, and caught 235 passes for 4,374 yards and a 19.5 average per play, all team records.

Now that the FSU Florida football game is definitely on the docket, it might be interesting to quote the records of the two teams meet scheduled here Feb 17 is the first regularly scheduled contest between the two schools.

Tonight in Nashville, Tenn., Florida State's athletic director, Howard Danford is scheduled to make an official application for the Tribe's admittance to the Southeastern Conference.

Houston, Mississippi Southern and the University of Miami are also expected to make formal applications.

Frosh Cagers Bow In Opening Game

The Florida State freshman basketball team moves to Jack sonville tonight for what will probably be their toughest season test.

The Baby Seminoles, under the direction of Ham Wernke, opened their season Monday night, falling 96-89 to a strong Chipola Junior College quintet.

Forward Mike Lamsea and guard Noah Durham paced the Frosh with 18 points apiece, while guard Tommy Deanyan added 12.

Wernke's starting five consisted of, guards Durham and Joe Williams, center Dave Sutton and forwards Lamsea and Steve Ets.

Chipola led throughout, holding a 54-37 halftime margin which they refused to relinquish. Wernke's charges narrowed the gap in the final ten minutes, but couldn't pull it out.

Tonight, the Junior Tribesmen face one of the top junior colleges in the south and one of the top scorers in the state.

The team? Jacksonville Junior College. The scorer? 6-6 center Chuck Bradley, who led the team in scoring last year and is averaging close to 20 points per game this season.

In addition, the Seminoles will do well to worry about guards Dran Hoggatton and Sonny King. Hoggmann hit for 22 points last week as the Dolphins nearly trounced the Florida Frosh, 84-57.

King, although he is but 5-10, has amazed fans by grabbing 21 rebounds in the two JJC victories thus far. Forward Billy Oswald is another rebound threat.

The other JJC victory was an 81-53 conquest of a strong Alumni team a couple of weeks ago. In this victory, the Dolphins hit 80 percent of their free throws.

Swantic, Prinzi Total Offense Leaders For 1955 Footballers

Quarterback Len Swantic led the 1955 Florida State football team in total offense according to final statistics released this week

Swantic added 19 net yards rushing to his team-leading 576 yards in the air to total 595 yards in 116 plays from scrimmage.

Behind Swantic who is only a junior, was sophomore quarterback Vic Prinzi who netted 131 yards rushing and 328 yards in the air, a total of 459 yards in 99 plays

It is immediately evident that these boys dominated the quarterbacking for the Tribe, for next in line in total offense is a halfback, junior Lee Corso

Corso netted 431 yards rushing, highest on the squad, and add added 16 yards via the aerial route in the final game, including a touchdown pass. Corso totalins 447 in 113 plays.

Trailing Corso in rushing was halfback Billy Odom, also a junior, who drove 294 yards in 69 plays for a 4.9 average.

Odom, Buck Metts and Billy Weaver led the regulars in claiming average with 4.9, with Corso following at 3.9.

Swantic also led the team in scoring, but he had to share the honor with Metts Both boys scored four touchdowns for 24 points. Corso had three scores and an extra point for 18.

The biggest ash in comparing Metts first, Versprille second, this year's statistics with last year's is in the passing department.

Last year, the Tribe was one of the leaders in the country with 19 touchdown passes, and 1745 yards gained through the air altogether.

This year, they went to the other extreme in aerial warfare completing only three tosses in the end zone, and gaining but 990 yards through the air.

Pat Versprille and Metts led the team in punting for the second straight year, but reversed positions. Last year, it was Metts first, Versprille second, this year just the opposite.

Versprille booted 15 times for a 41.8 average while Metts declared 25 punts for a total of 960 yards and a 38.4 average.

Lee Corso, whose six pass interceptions was among the best in the nation last year, again led for the lead in this department.

Corso led with six last year, but grabbed only three this year, using Joe Hoit, the one-time ace, to move than one, as the Tribes 10 was but half of last years total.

Last year, it was only three.

Co-Ed Corner

by
Juanita Jacob

Hi there Co-Eds.

There was a mistake in this column in the last issue Ping pong is played on Tuesday nights beginning at 7 instead of in the afternoons from 5-8.

Here's a reminder that badminton is in full swing now and is played on Wednesday nights beginning at 7:00 Both of these activities are a lot of fun We would like to encourage you to come out and participate in either of them or both if possible

SIDELINE As a little extra news, I would like to tell you something about the Physical Education work-shop convention which was held this past week-end at Crystal Lake.

At this time men and women from the Physical Education, Recreation and Health Education departments got together to discuss problems and relate new games to each other.

Schools and colleges from all over came and experienced a well-planned work-shop.

Speakers at this convention included Rev J. R Noffsinger, who spoke on the topic, "Character and Sportsmanship," and Dr. Simon McNeely, Health, Physical Education and Welfare, U.S. Office of Education.

Dr McNeeley's topic was "Opportunities in Health and Physical Education in the Growth and Development of Boys and Girls."

The program included techniques in volleyball, tennis, golfing, square dancing trampoline, and archery; also panel discussions, sketches, exercises, and several general sessions were held.

It was very successful and informative Many new ideas will be taken back to the various schools and colleges and enable new games and techniques to be taught to many children of elementary, high school, and college age.

Special note — Basketball starts soon Some of the teams have started to practice for the games. The enthusiasm is really running among the dormitories and sororities, so watch for the date of the first game

Board Of Control Meets In Gainesville

The Board of Control met in Gainesville yesterday to discuss the programs of the Florida FSU football game, which has now been a tentative set for Nov 22, 1956.

The two schools agreed on the date last week, but it must receive official approval from the Board. It was generally thought that the date would be approved.

Christian Group Changes Name

The Student Christian Association after a series of discussions has decided to change its present name to the Student Religious Association, revealed Betty Joyce Wilson, chairman.

Recognizing the need on this campus, she explained, for religious and spiritual development for increased knowledge of the faiths of the world, and for cooperation of different faiths on campus. Some of the purposes of Student Christian Association are:

1. To stimulate interest and participation in religious activities.

2. To study special problems of religion on campus and design ways of solving them.

3. To serve as a coordinating agency for the promotion of projects within the sphere of religious interest on campus.

4. To provide an opportunity for those not associated with any religious sect, to explore and study the various religions.

At the last meeting Miss Wilson was elected temporary chairman of the group. There will be another meeting Tuesday in the small lounge of Longmire at 4:45.

Kappa Sigma Schedules Two-Day House Opening

The formal openings of the new Kappa Sigma house will be held this afternoon from 2 to 4 p.m. and Saturday afternoon from 2 to 5 p.m.

The public is invited to attend, Tom Day, fraternity president announced. The house is located at 112 South Woodward Street and has just been completed at the cost of $120,000.

Features of the house include complete air conditioning, terrazzo flooring and walls which are 60 per cent glass.

The Kappa Sigs held their annual Founder's Day banquet on Wednesday night. Alumnus activities, and pledges attended the celebration.

Awards presented at the banquet include scholarship awards of $100 and $50, respectively to Don Smith and R. J. Gangloff; the Scholarship Improvement Plaque to James Thomas, and the Outstanding Pledge Award to Nat Haaland.

ATO

Ralph Newman, Alpha Tau Omega alumnus and Tallahassee oil distributor, was presented the 25 year Silver Circle Award last Sunday night by Vernon Edgar, fraternity president.

The award was presented Mr Newman for his outstanding and unselfish work for Alpha Tau Omega and Florida State University.

ATO Bob Crenshaw was recently named to the Air Reservist All Southern AF ROTC football team. Crenshaw, FSU co-captain, was listed by the Air Reservist, national Air Force publication, as one of the finest football players in the south.

DG

Delta Gammas, Bobbie Potter and Shirley Hamblin were recently pledged into Crullion, dance honorary, and Tau Beta Sigma, band honorary, respectively.

PIKES

The Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity held elections Monday night. The newly elected officers are Eugene Turano, president, Ray Turner, vice-president, Roy Harris, treasurer; Carmine Monteleone, secretary; Dick Bennett, historian; and Alan Nelson, house manager.

Men recently pledged include Ted Randall, Fred Bosa, Charles Curry, and Richard Harrell.

DZ

Delta Zeta recently entertained Lambda Chi Alpha at an informal party. Games were played an a humorous monologue was offered by "The Minister," Duncan Grey. Group singing and dancing highlighted the evening.

AO PI

Yesterday Alpha Omicron Pi celebrated the date of the sorority's founding with a banquet at the chapter house. Attending were actives, pledges, and alumnae.

Tree-trimming will be tonight at the AOPi house with dates helping out. Refreshments and dancing are planned. Last week the AOPi's entertained the Sigma Nus at a party.

SX

During the past two weeks, Sizma Chi has been entertained at parties given by the Alpha Gams and the Pi Phis.

This past weekend the Sixs were hosts to their pledge brothers from the University of Florida, for the annual Florida-FSU Sizma Chi pledge football game. The annual pledge-active game will be held at the Saturday practice field.

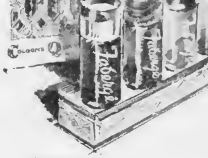
Selections for the Campus Sing in February have been chosen and scheduled practices will begin after Co-directors this year are Neil Bowers and Dudley Davis.

Pledging ceremonies were held for Bob Leroy of Lake Worth Wednesday night.

PDT

Gale Porter entertained about twenty Phi Delts and their dates, and a number of other guests at his home in Tampa after the Tampa game. Tomorrow afternoon is the annual Pledges vs Actives football game. The losers will buy refreshments for a party to be held later.

Dick Nagode from Euclid, Ohio is a new Phi Delta Theta pledge.



KD

The Kappa Deltas entertained the Phi Delts at a casual party Thursday evening. Dancing, mixer games, and discussion of the holidays highlighted the party.

The Kappa Deltas are being honored by Dr. and Mrs. Benjamin Rogers as an Open House this afternoon. Dr. Rogers is a history professor and he and Mrs. Rogers are KD patrons.

Frats Clash In Charity Bowl

Theta Chi and Lambda Chi fraternities will clash for the fifth time in a Charity Bowl game Friday night.

The game, scheduled for 8 p.m. on the Demonstration School field is a full tackle contest. Uniforms and equipment will be furnished by the university. All proceeds from the game go into charity.

In this year's contest Lambda Chi will be out to avenge last year's 6-0 loss at the hands of the Theta Chis. In the four games played thus far, Lambda Chi's won one and Theta Chi has been victorious three times.

Both fraternities are being coached by members of the varsity football team. Lambda Chi coaches are Len Swantic, Bob Crenshaw, and Jerry Jacoba. Theta Chi is coached by Vince Gibson, Bob Barber, Lee Corso and Burk Metts.

TO THE EDITOR.

I understand that one of your staff members Martin Dykman, was rather disgusted with Wilson Schiffermuller's article entitled "News on the Operation of Rotary Lawn Mowers". Mr. Dreckman seemed to think that this article was quite a bit off color. I have read this article two or three times and have not found anything wrong with it yet.

I believe that the administration at Florida State University has not yet realized that this is a coeducational institution. Most persons now-a-days are a little more broad minded than people of thirty and forty years ago. They have learned to read such articles as Wilshin wrote in the recent edition of Smoke Signals, laugh and forget it. But it seems that we have some immature people here that seem to have rather vulgar minds to have taken the article as nastily as they did. It was written for that purpose.

I certainly hope that these people are not so ridiculous as to use such drastic means as I have heard by the "grapevine", to expel Wilshin and discontinue the very good humor magazine, Smoke Signals. I have also heard by the same "grapevine" that the editor of Smoke Signals, Don Heidel, is going to be fired for printing the article. Don't you think this is putting a minor matter much too far? Do you think it necessary for Wilshin to be expelled from school because of such an innocent article? The Orange Peel at the University of Florida happens to be an awful lot worse than our magazine. True, they have been discontinued on several occasions, but because of a very vulgar article, picture, or joke.

I would appreciate quite a bit of thought on the matter mentioned before such drastic means are taken.

Sincerely,
GERALDINE ANN SMITH.

Speaks to Kiwanis

Dr Ralph L. Eyman, dean of the FSU School of Education, pointed out that if senior colleges restrict enrollments, there will be a greater need for junior colleges. It is not difficult to pick the best students and educate only them as is done in Europe and the Orient, but rather in a democracy teachers should develop their talent in seeing how much they can do for students who wish to be educated, Dean Eyman said.

Dr. Johnson said that some junior colleges have an excellent counseling program whereby a student's high school and junior college record is reviewed and then the student is advised as to whether he should attempt to go on to a senior college or whether his scholastic record and aptitude tests show he might better enter a trade, business, or some other vocation.

One Donation Received So Far At Blood Bank

Only one person has gone to the Blood Bank so far this year to make donations to the FSU student or faculty accounts. She couldn't be used.

Faculty members, Landis, Florida, Jennie Murphree, Bryan, Magnolia, West Hall floors, 1-5, and the fraternities of Kappa Alpha, Phi Kappa Tau and Pi Kappa Phi have been chosen by Blood Drive chairmen to contribute in the month of December.

Some of these were originally planned for November, but weren't able to due to the absense of a lab technician at the Infirmary.

So far none of these groups have donated but 30 Bryan women have reportedly signed up to give blood as a "Christmas gift" to the university. The one person who went to the Blood Bank was a resident of Bryan

New Plan

The plan of the drive this year is for several chosen campus groups to donate blood each month over the nine-month school year. Instead of having one big drive authorities, authorities, fraternities, day students and faculty members are included. Members of groups with private accounts are allowed to put their donations in these rather than the student account, however.

At the present time, the university has 64 pints in its student fund and 15 in the faculty one, as well as several private accounts. This is not critically low, said a spokesman of the blood bank, but donations must remain in steadfir in order to keep it at this level to offset the large amount used up every month, he said

Transportation

Transportation to the Blood Bank is being left up to the groups donating. Before going, blood tests must be taken at the University Hospital as well as presentation of parent's permission for all minors not in ROTC. No appointments need be made beforehand. It was announced.

Friday Night

Penny-A-Minute Night Nets $255

Counting pennies replaced the usual pre-curfew activity in front of dorms and sorority houses Friday night as women students stayed out for "Penny-a-Minute Night"

The Mortar Board sponsored project which allowed an hour's time extension earned about $225, revealed Nancy Vaughn, president. Miss Vaughn decided PSU needed a "Penny-a-Minute Night" while at a national Mortar Board convention she attended this summer.

The money will be given by the group to a worthy campus project which has not been decided upon, Miss Vaughn revealed.

500 Participants

Close to 500 participated and all the precautions seemed to be favorable in spite of the cold weather.

A Junior American studies meeting with the Penny-a-minute night was "an excellent idea." He said the project should be carried out every night with theprocceds going towards improving student facilities.

'Mare Often'

Wilma Sue Fagin, sophomore Judiciary member, also thought it should be done more often. "It's a painless way of extracting money for a useful cause," she added. Her date, Bob Payne, Sigma Chi, said it was well worth the money.

Lee Corso, football player, thought it was a good idea. "Great idea" he said "They should do it every Saturday night."

The only complaints heard concerning the project were due to the cold weather. Miss Vaughn said she thought more money would have been made if it hadn't been so cold Friday night.

Honor Notice

A student was charged with cheating on an examination. This violation of the Honor Code was reported by fellow students to the Student Honor Court. A trial was held on December 8, 1955. The student was found guilty of the charge and suspended from school.

Holiday Extended For Extra Day

Students will get an extra day of Christmas holidays revealed Dr. A. B. Martin, Vice President of the University.

Classes will be resumed at 8 a. m. on Wednesday, January 4 to allow students an opportunity to attend bowl games. The action was taken due to "popular demand", Martin said.

Executive action was taken on after Student Senate passed a resolution asking for the extra day. The extra day will give students a chance to get back safely after the games, explained Dr. Martin.

'Signals' Queen Entries Chosen

Twenty-five coeds have been selected to appear in the Smoke Signals Queen Contest.

The following girls are contestants for the contest which will be held January 12, 1956.

Shirley Jean Allison Temple man, Jeani Kitchens, Sally Mendenhall, Sue Throckmorton, Jeanette Porter, Rosemary Stephenson, Frances Curry, Beverly Smith, Pam Dube, Kathie Johnson, Nancy White, Sye Bolton, Jane Anderson, June Sillay, Anita Anderson, Linda Jones, Betty Prather, Priscilla Moss, Paula Parsons, Rita Parsons, Rita Nelms, Stephanie Gunderson, Rosmille Ellis, Beverly Alexander and Beverly Laurent.

The winner and four others will be featured in the next issue of Smoke Signals. The semi-final selections were made by Rick Hollister, disc jockey of WTNT, from photographs submitted.

Will Present Yule Season's Last Concert

As the final Christmas concert before students leave school for the holidays, Choral Union and the University Symphony will present Handel's "Messiah" Thursday, at 8 :15 p.m. in Westcott Auditorium.

The "Messiah" program has been an annual tradition on campus since the university became co-educational in 1947 and was broken only last year, when schedule difficulties interfered.

Under the direction of Robert N. Seder the presentation will be an abbreviated form of the oratorio, which in its entirety takes over three hours to perform.

Most of the selections are from Part 1, "Prophesies and Fulfillment." The second part concerns "Passions and the Triumph" while Part III depicts the "Spread of Christianity." The best known excerpt is the Hallelujah Chorus, during the singing of which it is traditional for the audience to stand.

Soloists

Soloists in the performance are Nancy Hall, graduate Music Center, Jr., director of Choral Union, Walter James, faculty member, and Edith Kaup. Dr. Edwin Hartz, University chaplain will give the invocation

Handel's famous oratorio was written in only 27 days, in the year 1741 when the composer was 56 years old. At the time he was working Handel was physically handicapped by a severe illness and a near nervous collapse.

Faced Age

With a lifetime of experience rich in friendships and fortunes behind him, the great composer now faced advancing age and an increasing blindness which would not be stayed for the last six years of his life.

The work was first performed in Dublin, in 1742, under the direction of the composer.

Silent Sentinel

Standing before a background of dark pine branches, she is the silent sentinel of all mankind's hope. She waits there patiently and serenely and in her material arms the students have formed the Christ child. They did not shape the baby's face but instead, they placed a light there, that all observers might see and remember that He has been called "the light of the world."

At night, other decorations are bright with gaudy color and their gay lights fits well with the campus spirit of merriment and holiday anticipation.

Despite The Noise . . .

But though all about her, car horns honk riotously and laughter and shouts shatter the cool night air, the madonna, faintly illumined in blue halo, bows her head reverently and gazes upon the baby child.

Perhaps some may think that the saintly statue with her attitude of holiness is out of place in the hurry and confusion about her, but, too, she may occasionally stir a kindred spirit in the heart of an observer, who sees her and suddenly remembers the real meaning of Christmas.

THE MADONNA

Madonna Statue Denotes Eternity

By MARGARET MILLER

There is a statue of the madonna, standing in front of Westcott fountain. She is only a paper mache' madonna, a temporary decoration to be removed as soon as Christmas is over. But she symbolizes eternity.

College art students, working necessarily in some haste, shaped and patted the paper and then with a smooth, sculptured form. Perhaps half unconsciously, they expressed in their work man's age-old ideal of peace and everlasting life.

Marching Chiefs Schedule 1st Concert Tomorrow Night

In observance of the holiday season, Band Director Manley Whitcomb has planned a Christmas Variety Concert featuring the Marching Chiefs and Symphonic Band, to be held tomorrow night at 8:15 p.m. in Westcott Auditorium.

Making up the Symphonic Band, 70 musicians will open the variety production with Ferde Grofe Goldman's "Christmas March." Also on their programs are Russian Russian Christmas selections, all by the contemporary Alfred Reed—Children's Carol," "Antiphonal Chant," "Village Scene," and "Cathedral Chorus."

The Marching Chiefs, 124 strong, are usually heard in the football stadium, as Whitcomb is counting on the audience being enthusiastic since this is the

Debators Win Third Place In UF Tourney

Florida State University debators placed third in a field of 12 at the University of Florida intercollegiate debate tournament last weekend

FSU's negative team, Tom Woods and Arnold Gerber, won four rounds and lost two, duplicating the record of the affirmative team, Beverly Duperoural and Norma Trippodo.

The University of Miami won the tournament with a total of 10 wins and four losses. UM and Wake Forest took home the two tournament trophies.

The tournament consisted of six rounds of debate on this year's regular intercollegiate debate question, guaranteed annual wage. FSU was one of 12 college and university representated in the tourney.

Beer Can Decor Removed

Wa notice that the Christmas tree decerated with beer cans and enlisted lasses, which stood at the corner of Woodward and Pensacola Sts., has been taken down.

We hope the removal of the sacrilegious object was a voluntary astion by the group who set it up. Needless to say, townspeople found the spectacle in obvious poor taste.

Dreaming Of A 'White' Christmas

(Editor's Note: THE FLORIDA FLAMBEAU prints the following satirical poem by Con Horn with the prediction that such drama will not go unrecognized in the coming years).

By CON HORN

Passa on earth good will toward men;
It's almost Christmas time again.
I know
there isn't any snow, but who cares? As long as the sun is out you can't say ona is out of luck because he's in the South at Christmas time. Why, shut mah mouth.
It's just as bright and clean and fina down here, all sweetness and light.

* * *

"And brother we aims to keep it just that way, you hear."
Suppose some damfool nigger boy DID disappear
In Mississippi? What was his name . . .
Till? Well, just the sama.
I ain't worryin' about it none, and I'd advise you to forget it too. Eyes is useful, provided they sea the right things.
So watch out what you sea or soma night things will start to happen 'round YOUR house. Keep your nose in close if you want to enjoy your sleep."

How about a Christmas hymn for Sheriff Windy McCall?
Sing hallelujah in a southern drawl.
Quick on the trigger, with a deadly aim,
just like tha old-time sheriffs. Deadly. He must like to shoot first and ask questions later;
ona thing sure—there's not a yardman,
shoeshins boy or waiter,
or any other member of the Negro race above five years of age who doesn't know his place in sweet Mr. Dixie.
Hell, what's a nigger mora less if we can make that clear?
And a happy new year,

* * *

I'm catching on. You've got to learn to overlook some things. Don't let them turn your stomach. Enjoy the beach, the suhsina, the warm breeza. What difference does one shine dead or alive maka in the indefinite aclame of things?
Forget it. Dream of things to come—a clean pure happy land for white folks.
That's right, folks.
It's Christmas tima.
Give a dime
to the garbage man and shut the door, avoiding his face. He'll be drunk before the night is through.
They're all the same. By God, there's ona damn thing we've got to do.
Evan though
There's not snow
let's make sura it's always a "white" Christmas.

Letters To The Editor

TO THE EDITOR:

Poor Wiljohn! Some say his wife has the chairmanship of the rotary lawn mower special.

Wiljohn made a mistake. In Writing for a Campus Magazine" on page 2 of the Smoke Signals he mentioned that me shouldn't write about something people know about. If some of the readers and members of the Board of Student Publications had had any experience with the rotary lawn mower, and obviously some of them must have let poor grass grow in the lawn all by himself, they'd have seen the humor in the fiery and tribulations of the rotary lawn mower operator in a laissez-faire neighborhood.

An article of this type dealing with a problem that is true, funny, and exasperating is much more acceptable than one absorbed in impressing the sacred subject of sex.

Wiljohn did exaggerate a little. I am willing to match my 1100 RPM rotary mower against his 3450 RPM mower any day, when it comes to throwing power.

Every Year
At this time,
The sky dims
And the clouds
Turn to lead.
Burning the chill promise
Of the season.

But
No one cares.
For with the frost
And rusty leaves
The Christmas chimes
Proclaim the joy
Of the season.

Christmas is nearing—
Bells you are tolling?

In the words of the Bard:
"To send, or not to send,
That is the question.
Whether it is better
To husband my meagre resources.
And spread the cheer of the Season
By word of mouth,
Or to spend freely,
Scattering gifts lavishly
Far and wide.
With the true spirit of Yule,
Trusting, of course,
That generous reciprocity
Will result."

Dear Mama Seminole

DEAR MAMA:

Georgie not see'm so good, mama. University seal used to sa/ 1851 now when me look'um at it, it seem to say 1851. Eyes play tricks on George or else some funny spirit are creeping around changing dates everywhere. Guess some folks not want to see'm university to be 100 next year, but sorry.

Me not care'um for gift this year, but Santa good to some other people. Me would like-um him to bring Smoke Signal's special typewriter. Typewriter that not write bad words to get'um Smoke Signals in water six feet above head. Would like Santa to bring one campus member special gift, too, so council member not have to keep going to Georgia and hunt'um whatever it is him want'um up there. And then to lota people everywhere some guts they need for their job. For tired, rest, for worried, peace; for lonely, friends; and for wavering, courage. Guess that include gift for everyone.

Students cabinet have'um heap discussion on how to spend'um money left over from student fees. Debator suggest use it on speaking bureau to send students on speaking tours. Me not sure of other members' main interest, but him suggest money be spent to repair heat on campus benches. Is good to see student leaders look out after tribal interest.

Many braves already concerned with elections. One brave want'um to be vice-president, but him never hold any office for experience. Him should read basic politics book . . . it say'um political science not easy and no older people! Me think him should consider before him make'um rash decision to seek'um big office. Him brave thing they want to be vice student chief, Georgie think one not be good one, one not have grades, one not have interest, one not organized to campaign, so guess last brave was easy. Two girls would serve months well, me loss coun then vote.

Me look forward heap happy to friendly pow wow last this moon. Be good to see'um mama squaw, Chief-Who-Send-Us-Check, and even maiden-who-cry-much.

Already me prepare'um for new year. Make um resolutions—next year me not take time eat, sleep, talk even—instead me study. Next year me write'um you every week . . . on time. Next year me not autlaw mad at braves who now spend George. Next year me think me probably be bored so bad just drop-um dead.

Paper today say'um "South said listen in to Adlai." Me think that understatement of year, south colder for Adlai than Gaser Hidden is to Georgia Mama, that pretty cold. Since hand-shaking not do trick for Adlai with South, maybe him better try brainwave practiced each night in front Gilchrist. That look pretty effective for better understanding.

Bit-Players Rival Stars Of New Moon

By DAVE WARD-STEINMAN

THE LIGHT OPERA Guild's production of Romberg's New Moon was notable in many respects. It was one of the best jobs of casting ever done by that organization. At least three of the leads and two of the leads and several other minor players turned in excellent performances. Martha Slayden and Elvin Greene, the romantic leads, tossed off their parts with professional ease, especially during the second act. Greene while not possessing a large voice, sings with real style and feeling, and Miss Slayden has one of those voices we never tire of hearing.

George Goldstein, as Vasount Ribaud, turned in a consistently good performance, as did Chuck Weiss, one of those leaping hermines who has appeared in small but important roles for several years with the Guild. A real find was Barbara Schaller, whose "Julie" surprised everyone, yet an even bigger find is Jo McGehee, who was one of the few actors that lived his part every minute of the time. He also has an especially fine voice.

THE BIGGEST and most enjoyable surprise of the evening however, was Peter Canfield in the interpretation of Alexander, a bonderverant. It was Peck's show from beginning to end, and he had the audience eating out of his hand. He obviously enjoyed his role and played it to the hilt. Enthusiasm we have said before, is always contag Peck should have a brilliant future.

The chorus sang better and with more and precision that it has had in a long except for the last verse, its acting stiff and stylized. Musically, also, quite satisfyins. John Zilles, who had a fault role, handled it capably, as Wood Schiffermuller did his.

THE WOMEN'S GLEE Club under the rection of Betty Jane Grimm, presented its nual Christmas Vespers program in Westminster Sunday evening. The fact that the group memorized all their music added immensely to the effect. Kept their eyes glued on Miss Grimm, and consequently she had some wonder perfect control of her tone, rhythm and dynamic control were excellent, rivaled that of many professional groups.

The singing under Miss Grimm's direction was usually imaginative, adding much to the overall effect. It was a pleasure to see a group that had no troublesome music to bury its head in, diction was markedly improved as a result. Miss Grimm's unfailing attention to detail and musical color paid off handsomely—entire performance was a revelation.

William Cramer's Brass Choir opened the program, effectively setting the mood for the appearances of the Glee Club.

Wondering With Wiljohn

On Rustlers, Rattlers And Coughers

By WILJOHN

THE WOMEN'S GLEE Club gave what is probably the finest concert heard on campus this year on Sunday. The music was as pure as and crystal clear as anyone can ask for and the tradition, of putting so much life into familiar things that they sound entirely new, has been kept by them again. The lighting and special effects which are the trademark of WGC productions were perfect. Unfortunately, they worked under one of the worst and most familiar handicaps this writer has ever seen or heard.

I have attended concerts, operas, musicals etc., from here to Broadway and back. I have seen many a poor audience as well as a poor show. But the audience attending the concert Sunday night was by and large the worst thing I have ever run across anywhere. They ranged from inconsiderateness and discourtesy to downright rudeness and boorishness.

AN AUDIENCE COMES prepared with a large and assorted bag of tricks to distract and obliterate the performers. Sunday's watchers had some real professional "Rustlers", "Rattlers" "Whisperers", and probably the finest collection of "Coughers" ever brought together under a single roof for any purpose. At certain times during the show, the coughing became so loud and obnoxious as to drown out the chorus almost entirely.

You know, you get these "Coughers" together, in pairs or one by one, and you will hear hear even a cleared throat from them. But put them together in the midst of audience who is trying desperately to be what is going on on the stage and they are invariably start hawking and expectorating making everyone generally sick to their lective stomachs.

It is almost like they were holding a versation. All will be quite still and sudden none of the "Rustlers" will give his prize a vicious shake to signal the beginning their chat. A badly throated old lady in balcony will hold a soliloquy on a subject understandable only to others of the clan. when she is through, the others will give their ments on her vitals, speaking from all sections of the Auditorium. I know that this their system because you will notice that never interrupts while another is speaking sorry, coughing. They cough discreetly and one at a time.

GENERALLY, THERE will come a sud "Rustle" that when everyone runs to brin simultaneously. This is always alienated by "Speaker of the House", who possesses loudest hack of all. During this time, "Rustlers" have been shifting in their seats a furious rate, the "Rattlers" have listened their programs to shreds by their coughing and the "whisperers" have become very popular by making it a point for their friends to hear each other.

Next time will you all be quiet?

GREETINGS TO FSU

They've 'Zest For Life' In Greece

Editor's note: Dr. William Knight of the Eastern department is on leave of absence on a Fulbright award in Greece and is traveling to FSU students and faculty.)

Athens, Greece

Seven days (September 30) around the Greek Line ... were a relaxing introduction to the music, the food, the late hours, and the zest for life of the people.

We boarded a garden suburb ... where we found a white house with five doors; ... inside and three onto a covered terrace where seven days, we lunched and supped in view of Hymettus and Pentelli, mountains of us, we ate from Wedgwood. The house, ... in and near Athens is a small lot, fenced in ... intensively cultivated, ... on three sides, fruit and grape vines in back, flowers, trees, and shrubs ... like those in Tallahassee — the hot dry summers — but camellia, and Rose, gardenia, eclipsing ... more recently chrysanthemums make us feel at ... to the oleander and ... Tamarisms and pittosporum and the pines.

Attend School

... to school. Randy ... both attend the ... school system ... and chiefly for the ... Mission. Since ... aim at preparing ... to the best ... address the curriculum ... conservative and there ... considerable home work, ... the children have ... omb

Randy is learning French, Betsy, Greek. Bill and Janet are also learning Greek. In a daily class French is widely spoken here, and we are depending on our limited skill in it until our Greek is stronger.

Beautiful Car

We brought with us a small Studebaker and have very much enjoyed it for short excursions. The main roads are fine; there are also other roads. We have found coves to swim in, groves for picnics, and of course there is the rest of ruins to explore and mountains to climb. We have stood on the mound, at Marathon, where the Greeks who were killed in the battle are buried. We have taken our first island boat trip, touching at Aegina, Poros, Ydra, and Spetsai, where we stayed two days, rode on rented bikes, swam, and ate our first octopus—really delicious.

The islands, bright with their white-washed houses, and with no automobiles, are a far cry from crowded modern Athens. The city is quite metropolitan and if many streets and houses are dingy there are fine modern apartments with breath-taking views. The University is in the city's heart and rather jammed into too little space. The professors run the place; the rector and the deans of the several faculties serve for just one year.

25-30 Hours

Students carry 25-30 hours a week but, with no extracurricular activities beyond an occasional "demonstration" over such issues as the very lively Cyprus question, study is their whole life. We examine at the end of each year and, as in Helsinki, only at the end of four or more years of work; but students may go over whatever they fail or do not take exams, and then student X may be taking third-year work before he has passed his first-year exams.

He may defer as long as he pleases, and may repeat the exam three times. The University students are highly selected, all deadly serious about their studies — and many as poor as church mice. (My title incidentally, is absurdly impressive: Scholarly Professor of American Life and Civilization. I have a colleague, C. P. Lee of the University of Tennessee, who has to be content with the title Fulbright Professor of American Literature. Ironically, I teach most of the literature, while he teaches mostly English grammar and history.)

Hard To Describe

It would be hard to describe the universal disappointment of the Greek people over the United Nations' semi-final discussion of the Cyprus question in the United Nations. Their volatile nature has inevitably led to much dissidents as the dingy diner here in the port of Patras. But the strong Greek tradition of hospitality to strangers obviates any possible trouble for us, and the Greeks we have come to know make us feel they love us. We have been to name-day and birthday parties, and to a double christening (in a tiny private church not in a field). Part of their warmth rises from the fact that we want to live their way, not insulated by the consulate-ary and other extra-territorial privileges of the military and diplomatic families.

The Kodachrome slides that we brought have already helped us in entertaining neighbors and groups of students, pictures suffer no language barrier. Trips to provincial cities, to show the slides to larger groups, have been postponed until feelings settle down somewhat; it would take only one school to cause an unpleasant incident. Janet, however, has been volunteer work with the USIS library, helping entertain groups visiting the library, with book reviews or films or discussions, and visiting underprivileged schools with a film and a story.

Strange To Americans

It is very foreign country, there is much to get used to; the usual "rest of the afternoon, the nine o'clock dinner hour, the tile or terrazo floors, pedestrians in the streets, the way butchers hack at meat, the almost total absence of beef, no screens, the rich desserts, the secondary place assigned to women, but it took no time at all to accept the beautiful weather and the enormous, excellent vegetables and fruits, and above all the generous friendship the Greeks have offered us.

During our Christmas we plan to go to Egypt, from there on Christmas morning we send to wherever you may be one of the Greek ways of saying "Season's greetings" or "Best wishes":

Janet, Bill, Randy, and Betsy Randel.

Marching Chiefs

first time the Chiefs have played in a concert.

They will begin their second half of the program with Charlie Carter's "Fanfare and Opening," and continue with "Christmas Medley," and "Echoes of Dodd Campbell Stadium" including "Alexander's Ragtime Band," "That Old Black Magic," and "The Saint and the Sea," all arranged by Carter.

A graduate assistant, Carter came to FSU with Whitcomb from Ohio State and does all of the arrangements for the Marching Chiefs.

Also appearing in the show will be the Flying Seminoles, Dick Puckett and Ed Franklin and the comm majorettes.

The audience will be invited to join in a Christmas Carol Sing as an appropriate send-off for the holidays, concluded Whitcomb.

Extra-Curricular Activities Are Restricted At Idaho

MOSCOW, Idaho — (UP) — Students who have received a bachelor's degree or completed the academic requirements for the degree shall be ineligible for extra-curricular activities, beginning with the fall term, according to an announcement made here by University of Idaho officials.

This new clause has been added to the Admissions Requirements and Regulations section of the University's catalogue.

Registration Rules

1. Any student not making satisfactory progress toward graduation requirements (cumulative grade point average of 2.0 or better) is subject to probation or suspension.

2. A student goes on probation automatically for the semester following the one in which he is more than 12 grade points deficient from a cumulative average of 2.0. If he brings his cumulative average within 12 grade points of 2.0 by the end of the semester, he goes off probation automatically.

Suspended

3. If a student fails to achieve the required grade points by the end of the semester of probation, or if in any semester a student passes in less than ten credits and concurrently fails in more than one course, he is suspended. He may be reinstated by one of the following methods:

a. If he secures his dean's approval for immediate reinstatement; or

b. If he re-registers after the lapse of at least one semester.

Hardee Writes On Guidance

Dr. Melvene Hardee, coordinator of Florida State University's counseling service, both edited and served as an author of the recently published "Counseling and Guidance in General Education."

Dr. Hardee was asked by the National Committee on General Education to serve as editor for the study, which compiles the successful counseling and guidance programs of approximately 400 American colleges and universities.

Other FSU authors who contributed to the study are Dr. Katherine Montgomery, director of Physical Education for Women; Mrs. Margaret Blair, acting director of Vocational Guidance and Placement, and Bert Powell, a special staff counselor for students.

The book published by the World Book Company, includes questions and answers on vocational guidance, personal counseling, and coordinating relationships between teachers, students administrators, counselors and parents.

Other projects have been selling candy kisses for Campus Cheat, serving at the Information booth in front of Westcott during Homecoming and ushering for Speech Department productions and Artist Series events.

France Offers Study Grants To US Grads

American graduate students may be able to study or teach in France next year. It was announced today by Kenneth Holland, President of the Institute of International Education.

The French Government is offering 30 university fellowships and 40 teaching assistantships, he said the former for students with definite projects or study plans, and the latter for future teachers of French.

A joint committee of French and American educators working with the French Cultural Services and Institute of International Education will nominate the candidates. Closing date for application is February 1, 1956.

Open To All

The awards are open to both men and women, Holland said. Applicants must be United States citizens, have bachelors degrees by departure, good academic records, good knowledge of French, correct usage of English, good moral character, personality and adaptability, and good health, he said.

Teach English

Recipients of teaching assistantships will teach conversational English in secondary schools and teacher training institutions in France. A few applicants with special training in American literature and some college teaching experience may be selected for lecture posts in French universities.

Awards will cover living expenses but applicants should be prepared to pay their own travel costs, Holland said.

Applicants should write to the United States Student Department of the Institute of International Education, 1 East 67th Street, New York 21, N. Y.

CHUCKLE? NO, THIS IS A REAL GASSER

AUBURN, Ala. (ACP)—Sonny Ople recorded this one in his column in the Auburn Plainsman.

One car owner installed a carburetor that was guaranteed to save 20 per cent on fuel. Then he put on special spark plugs that saved 20 per cent, an intake superheater that also saved 20 per cent, along with special rear axle and high pressure "cords" . . . all saving 20 per cent.

And now, with a fuel economy of 120 per cent, he has to stop every hundred miles and bail out of the gas tank to keep it from running over.

THAT'S TELLING HIM!

EAST LANSING, Mich. — (ACP) — This one comes via the Michigan State News, which in turn gleaned it from the Associated Press.

At Albuquerque, New Mexico, when Professor Norton Barr Crowell commented that he served in the last war, a student cracked, "Oh, are you that young?"

Replied Crowell breezily, "I'm pretty young. And I'm younger now than I'll be next year when you take this course over again."

Women Eligible For $500 Radio, TV Scholarship

A $500 scholarship to be awarded to a young woman interested in a career in broadcasting television is open to Florida State University coeds.

Designed to encourage talented young women to enter the broadcasting industry, the scholarship is awarded annually by the American Women in Radio and Television, Inc. Those eligible are women currently enrolled as juniors at an accredited American college or university offering a degree in radio and or television.

The FSU School of Journalism and Department of Speech offer majors in radio and television leading to degrees in journalism and speech.

TV or Radio

The AWRT scholarship must be used for academic study in television and radio or for necessary expenses in on-the-job training, subject to approval of the AWRT Board of Directors.

Each applicant must have the recommendations of two faculty members under whom she has studied and the Dean of Students, as well as two personal references.

Application Blanks

Application blanks may be obtained from Prof. Daniel Woodrnak of the School of Journalism. Deadline for entries is January 16 1956.

Judges for the 1956 grant are Mrs. A. Croft Bullitt, president of the KING Broadcasting Co., Seattle, Wash.; pottery woman broadcast executive Margaret Cuthbert, formerly of NBC and now living in Florida; and Herbert E. Evans, president and general manager of the Peoples Broadcasting Corp., Columbus, Ohio.

Also Harold Pellows, president of the National Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters, Washington D. C.; and Earl Wynn, chairman of the Department of Radio, TV and Motion Pictures at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill.

126 Cadets Receive Orientation Flights

One hundred and twenty-six cadets in the Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps of Florida State University received orientation flights in jet trainers during the fall phase of the detachment's jet indoctrination program.

Col. Howard J. Withycombe, professor of air science and the recently completed program was given at Tyndall Air Force Base. In addition to their orientation flights, the students who went at different times during the program, ter toured base facilities and were briefed on the operation and used in the T-33 trainer.

Blair Is Acting Placement Head

At the present Mrs. Margaret Blair is acting director of the Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement due to the director's absence.

In July of the present year Dr. G. E. Tully, vocational director departed on a two-year leave of absence with the U. S. Office of Education. During his absence Mrs. Blair is assuming his duties, which include the placement of teachers, the co-ordination of placement activities as a whole by contacting representatives of industry, business, and government, consulting the faculty members of various departments, and working with other placement offices.

As well as being the assistant director for some time, Mrs. Blair has been active in the Southern Placement Officers Association, this year holding the office of vice-president. In the past she has held various offices in this organization which gives its members the opportunity to meet and work with representatives of some of the largest and most influential firms in the country.

Acting as her assistant Mrs. James P. Baker handles placement in all other major fields. In these areas he works closely with the department heads and faculty members in arranging for personal interviews between candidate and recruiter, forwarding placement credentials, and disseminating job opening information to all concerned.

In regard to this year's Seminar Mrs. Blair said that it is not possible to overemphasize the value of the many professors of all the candidates for job placement.

"Closely coordinated with the Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement these people contribute much of their time and effort toward the placement of their major students."

Further, these professors recommend eligible and qualified students, pass on and make or make in business and industry. Also important, are the type of personal recommendation that is invaluable to placement office and employer alike.

"Students, likewise, should assist the major professor by keeping him informed of their job goals," Mrs. Blair advises the graduating seniors and undergraduates. "It is the faculty who know the student's best."

VA News

Veterans Issued New 'Reminders'

Veterans Administration today listed some helpful reminders for the two-thirds-of-a-million veterans now in training under the Korean GI Bill.

First, V. S. Parker, Manager of the Pass-a-Grille Regional Office urged veteran-trainees to make sure they fill out the "Certification of Training" form their school will give them at the end of each month of training. The completed form must be returned to the school which, in turn, will send it on to VA.

The law requires that this monthly form be in VA's hands before the agency may mail a veteran his GI allowance check.

Be Prompt

Veterans should fill out the forms promptly after each month of training, VA said, since a delay on their part may lead to delayed receipt of their checks.

VA's second reminder is for veteran-trainees eligible for higher GI allowance rates because they have dependents. These veterans should submit evidence of dependency as soon as possible, VA said.

The veteran who wishes to claim an increased allowance because of his wife should send VA a certified copy of the public or church record of his marriage. Persons with a VA form called "Declaration of Marital Status." Other records will be needed if the veteran, or his wife, have been married before.

Submit Copy

To claim the higher rate because of a minor child, the veteran-trainee should submit to VA a certified copy of the public record of birth, or a certified copy of the record of baptism.

Finally, VA reminded Korean GI veteran-trainees that they should notify the VA immediately if any of the following occur:

1. They change their address.
2. They plan to change their training program.
3. They quit or drop out of training.
4. Their dependency status is changed, through divorce, birth of a child, or death of a dependent.

In notifying VA, veterans should be sure to give their claim number and full name and address. The reason for this, VA explained, is that all veterans' records are filed by claim number. By using this number, a veteran can assure himself of faster service.

SO YOU'RE GOING TO BE A FRESHMAN . . .

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—(ACP)—Just about every college newspaper either welcomed, saluted or berated the freshman this fall, but it remained for the Syracuse Daily Orange to define the first-year college student. Here's how columnist Frank Kreiscoer sees him (or her):

What are freshmen?

They are the First Plague on academic life.

How may one recognize a Freshman?

One may recognize a Freshman by his bright, shiny face, upturned on the threshold of education to the sun; by his high carried head, clear mind, girded loins. These signs will all have vanished by the sophomore year.

What subjects will the Freshman take?

The Freshman will take all required subjects and like it.

MIT Scholar Sets Speech On Enzymes

Dr. John Buchanan, Head of the Division of Biochemistry, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, will speak on certain enzymatic reactions and his work in these today at 8 p.m. in the Science Lecture Hall, Room 124 Science Building.

Buchanan will speak on the formation of one of the most important groups of chemical compounds found in nature, the purine compounds. Purine compounds and their derivatives are components of nucleic acids and nucleoproteins, the substances that comprise the chromosomes, genes and are otherwise of great importance in the organization of life.

Dr Buchanan will describe recent research efforts to find how these biologically important compounds are synthesized by the tissues of the body.

Find Sequence

In order to find out the sequence of molecular arrangements in the biosynthesis, the tissues are exposed from the animal and the enzymes are extracted and studied for their catalytic and structural reactions with the technique, Dr Buchanan says. His associates have found that the biosynthesis of purines occurs in some 10 or 12 intermediate steps from compounds. A whole series of new enzymes have been discovered to account for this investigation, the biochemical process.

Dr John Buchanan was born in Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada. He received his B.A. degree from DePauw College, and his M.A. from the University of Minnesota and his Ph.D. in 1943 from Harvard. He rose from Assistant Professor in 1943 to a full Professorship at the University of Pennsylvania in 1950. During this period he engaged in two years of post-doctoral research at the Medical Research Institute in Stockholm, Sweden.

In 1953 he accepted his present position that of Professor and Head of the Department of Biochemistry at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Dr Buchanan is a member of the American Society of Biological Chemists, the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, and the American Chemical Society.

Professor Buchanan's visit to the FSU campus is sponsored by the Florida section of the American Chemical Society.

Tribe Triumphs, Tampa Next

From The Sidelines

INDIVIDUALISTS?—MAYBE SO

Basketball fans who were lucky enough to squeeze in the [illegible]nstration School Gymnasium this past Saturday night, for most part, were downright impressed.

Coach Bud Kennedy's free-wheeling Seminoles had every[illegible] pretty much their own way as they went over, through [illegible] around Stetson's Hatters at a 91-78 clip. And everyone left [illegible] gym feeling that, had Kennedy not cleaned his bench with [illegible] ten minutes remaining in the final period, the Tribe [illegible]ld have eased over the century mark for the second game [illegible] succession.

The win was also a big one in that it moved FSU into a [illegible] tie for first place in the Florida Intercollegiate Basket[illegible] Conference with the University of Miami. Both have 2-0 [illegible]rence records.

You can read about the game elsewhere on this page. We [illegible] to tell you about some of the crew wearing the Garnet [illegible] Gold this season.

Resolved—they're an individualistic bunch.

Now, a lot of basketball outfits—and especially the coaches—[illegible] get a bit upset the minute you ever suggested that their [illegible] was made up of "individualists." The word has a bad con[illegible]on in the game. When the term is used in reference to a [illegible]etball player, the first thing others think is "he's all for [illegible]self."

Not so with Kennedy's Tribe. And taking them one by one, [illegible] try and tell you why.

Dickie Artmaier is perhaps the best example. The 6'1", [illegible]sburg, Ind., forward is something to watch on a basketball [illegible]. He isn't the most consistent scorer on the court by any [illegible]ans but he's a scrapper—the kind you pull for when you're [illegible] stands watching him perform. In Saturday night's contest [illegible] pulled down four successive rebounds while the Seminoles [illegible]ed one basket.

There were times, too, when Arty got a bit riled—though [illegible] never showed on his face—you'd have thought he would have [illegible]de quite a football player. But, we think the Stetson coach [illegible]tty well summed it up. Says he,

"What can you do? The kid's just tryin' hard—"

And that's Dick Artmaier.

Jim Oler, too, is a bit of an individualist. But there are few [illegible] will deny that he isn't a valuable one—perhaps the most [illegible]able of Kennedy's outfit. The Economy, Ind., guard dumped [illegible] points last season—and this time around he's already scored [illegible] markers in 4 games. That's an average of 22.5 points per game.

Jimmy's the "boss" when the Tribe's under fire. He calls [illegible] plays and he keeps things moving.

But every now and then Jim will run off on his own—and [illegible] you know it, he's eased his way through enough holes to [illegible] considerably to the score. Against Stetson, you'd have thought [illegible] was driving a jeep around the deck for about two minutes [illegible] eight points. Jim spotted hole after hole and simply moved [illegible]gh at his own will.

[illegible] it is with Jim Oler.

Then there's Gary Wold—"Bones", the fellows call him. The [illegible] thing about Gary is that he's always experimenting. Whether [illegible] under fire or just working out in a practice session, if you [illegible]ch Gary you'll note that he's forever trying to improve himself [illegible] the big center—he stands at least 6' 7"—pulled as neat a [illegible] against the Hatters as you'll witness in the game.

It was the third period when Gary pulled it off. He moved into the center slot, took a pass, went through the motion of tossing up a hook, balanced the ball on his fingertips for a few precarious seconds, then pulled it down when the defensive center was moved out of position and simply laid it up for an easy two points.

Improvement—that's Gary Wold.

Tom Garcia is a surprise to many. The 5' 8" sophomore guard [illegible] wild scoring-wise while he was pacing the freshmen c[illegible] season. This season, Tommy's found another place he fi[illegible] and he's taking to it in a fine sort of way. He hasn't [illegible]ing so much this season, but he's developing into one [illegible] finest team players on the squad. When he can set another [illegible] then that's what he'll do.

And Tommy sums this change up in his own way:

"I've got scrapbooks to show I can score," says he.

And we'll bet they're impressive, Tommy.

[illegible] a bit tough to call this fifth man. Bobby Williams, a [illegible] who works around the backboards like he owns them [illegible] handling most of the forward chores—and needless to [illegible]s been doing a swell job.

Bob was sidelined with an injured ankle Saturday night, and Sid Gregory, a 6' 5" former Jacksonville Junior College campaigner got the starting nod. Those of you who were there saw his performance. Fifteen points he dumped while playing a tremendous defensive game. When he left the game in the final quarter, he received what came pretty close to a standing ovation.

[illegible]d you can bet you'll be seeing plenty of both these fellows.

Regardless, those are your Seminoles. There are others, cer[illegible] who'll be coming into their own soon. But these are the [illegible] you'll see the most of at present.

Give 'em a bit of support and Florida State should bring home another FIBC crown.

Seminoles After 3rd Straight Win

By ALAN WHITMARSH

After putting two straight decisive FIBC victories under their belt, the Florida State basketballers go to Tampa tonight, in search of the conference lead.

Saturday night, the Tribe thumped previously unbeaten Stetson, 91-78, in a game not so close as the score indicates.

Seminole coach Bud Kennedy claims that Tampa has "its best material in years," and a 3-1 mark thus far this year would seem to bear him out.

The Spartans were dumped decisively by Miami, 86-58, in their opening FIBC clash however, then had to rally in the late minutes to overcome lightly rated Florida Southern, 90-83.

Bernstein Key

Key to the Tampa offensive is high-scoring guard Howard Bernstein. Bernstein was the highest scorer in the state last year as a Sophomore.

In addition, a big threat is 6-8 center Charles Smith, a transfer from the University of Florida.

Tampa's other two victories were against service teams Bartow Air Force Base and the Charleston Navy team.

In Saturday's contest, the Seminoles jumped to an early margin, and would have made a runaway of it had not Kennedy cleared his bench in the final ten minutes.

The Tribe had a 14-7 lead after only five minutes, increased it to 28-16 at the 10-minute mark and 48-33 at the half.

Center Gary Wold and guard Jim Oler led a quick splurge in the second half which carried the winners to a 72-46 lead with ten minutes remaining and put the visitors out of reach.

Oler Leads

Oler continued to lead the Tribe in scoring, pouring in 28 points to bring his season's total to 90, and average of 22.5 points per game.

Wold had his best night of the season [illegible] seven from both the field and the free throw line for a total of 21 points.

Rapidly improving Sid Gregory hit 15 points for the Tribe, and Dick Artmaier 14. Forward Jim Kitchens with 18 and guard Dick Layer with 16 led the losers.

The Seminoles have averaged 76.8 points per game in the first four contests, somewhat short of their record-breaking 88-point average of last year but have a 96 average for their two FIBC contests.

Forward Bob Williams has come up with a sore ankle and was not available for the Stetson contest, and may not be ready to go tonight against Tampa.

JJC, Brendler Halt Freshmen

Florida State's freshman basketball team lost its second game of the season Friday night, assumedly to Jacksonville Junior College, 117-68.

However, when one closely investigates the box score, it shows that the Baby Seminoles outscored most of the JJC team 78-68.

Then there was Chuck Brendler. The 6-8 JJC center didn't make a point until nearly eight minutes had elapsed, but after that he turned the game into a rout.

Brendler poured in 49 of the 117 JJC points, the greatest night of his career and the most that the Green Dolphins have ever scored in one game.

Until the JJC pivot man began his night's work in earnest, the Seminole frosh made a great battle of it, leading in fact, 17-14 as late as six and a half minutes into the game.

However, Brendler's height and accuracy was more than the smaller Tribe could cope with, and the Dolphins quickly ran up a 30-21 lead once he began to hit.

Free Throws

In addition to Brendler, the Dolphins accuracy from the foul line drastically hurt the frosh chances. JJC hit 45 of 51 attempts from the charity line.

Coach Ham Wernke's charges were also hot from the free throw line, but got much fewer chances. The junior Tribesmen made 22 of 27 attempts.

The halftime margin was 60-40 but JJC coach Frank Rourke seemed determined to make a runaway of it, as his regulars continued to roll up the score, to 91-59 with ten minutes left.

Guard Hash Durham set the Jacksonville crowd back with his set shots in the opening minutes, and dunked 18 points altogether to lead the FSU frosh.

Mike Lamson was second high for the frosh with 13, and guard Dean Hoppmann hit 21 for the winners, 13 of [illegible] coming from the free throw line.

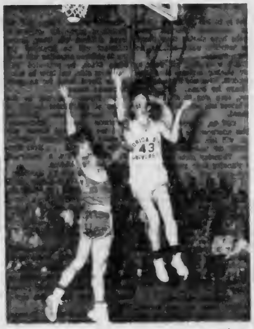
Seminole —Shorts—

By Sammy Seminole

Of [illegible] interest [illegible] tennis fans, FSU's schedule will be announced very shortly pending final approval by the director of athletics. Six SEC matches are on tap, and two with Big Ten teams. Numerous independents are listed, such as Miami and Rollins.

Saturday night provides one of the outstanding basketball scraps of the season when the West Virginia Mountaineers face the N. C. State Wolfpack in Raleigh. This should be of interest to all Seminole followers.

Again on basketball. The last time the Tribe lost on its home court was Jan. 7, 1954 to Loyola of the South, 66-62. Quite an enviable record.



Yale, one of the teams in the Miami tournament, was beaten by Holy Cross Saturday 89-84. Holy Cross is one of the finest teams in the East. Yale will be tough in Miami.

FSU is the only college in the state of Florida to go through a season of football unbeaten and untied. This was in 1950 under coach Don Veller with an 8-0-0 record. The Tribe scored 219 points and held the opposition to a mere 54.

Flambeau needs sports writers. No experience necessary.

Touch Football Begins Slow Due To Rains

By M. L. WALTERS

Contrary to any propaganda of the Florida Chamber of Commerce, it rained plenty last week which definitely dampened the opening of the intramural touch football season.

The Baptist Student House and A.K.P. Business fraternity slipped off to the wildest start with the B.S.U. team gaining a 34-18 win.

Senior Hall, with the basketball title under their belt, had themselves a murky time winning their first contest by a slim 18-13 margin over the newly organized Gators' Club.

The neophite invaders spotted the Hall boys a 10-0 lead then came close to beating them.

The West Hall Penthouse had a field day at the expense of Magnolia Hall and rolled up a 32-0 score. The West Hall Rebels dampened the Methodists by a 24-6 score.

Another new team, the Feds, shut out the Air Force 18-0. The Newman Club defaulted to the Pirates.

The fraternity leagues got under way last Thursday with the "tight" game of the day being a squeeky 7-6 victory by P.D.T. over D.T.D.

The PDT's are last year's champs. In another tussle with plenty of uproar from players and followers, Kappa Alpha nosed out ATO 14-13.

Sigma Nu flashed some excellent running and passing to swamp SAE 40-18 and Sigma Chi rolled up a 38-6 win over PKT. SPE won going away, in their game with TEP, 39-7.

The new 10 minute quarter rule, instead of last year's 15 minute half, was all to the good in giving more scoring in the games.

The use of the new "flag" tackle system also put some added zip in the games.

Charlotte, Miami Tourneys On Tap

By LARRY BLOCK

Six thousand students go on vacation Friday, but the Florida State basketball team remains to face its toughest competition of the season in the Orange Bowl Tournament at Miami and the Charlotte Tourney in North Carolina.

The Tribe's first tourney is in Charlotte Dec. 19 through the 21.

Some of the teams are Wake Forest, Clemson, Boston University, Colgate and Tennessee.

FSU faces Clemson in the first round. Last year the Tigers had the worst season in its history with a 8-31 record.

The Wake Forest Deacons are the favorites to cop the tournament. The Deacons lost their biggest gun with the graduation of Dick Hemric but a trio of veterans remains including 6-3 Lowell Davis, 5-10 Jack Murdock and 6-0 Ernie Wiggins.

Miami

The Miami tournament teams include West Virginia, New York University, PSU, Santa Clara, Tulane, Columbia, Yale, and the host team Miami U.

At present West Virginia and NYU are the early favorites, but face another week of tough competition in their attempts to enter the meet unbeaten.

All-America Hot-Rod Hundley is averaging 27 points a game for the Mountaineers.

Returning for the NYU Violets are 6-3 Art Tierney, Ed Kramer, 6-7 Jerry Kessler and 5-11 Jimmy Nidds, a good playmaker and the best team man on the club. Coming up from the frosh are 6-5 Bob Brown and 6-5 Alex Panus.

Tulane will lack a big man but will do a lot more running and probably spend a little more time concentrating on its outside shooting.

6-0 Ray Stoll is back with 6-4 Stan Stumpf, 5-11 Bob Delpit and 6-3 Tom Murphy all of whom should be in the starting lineup. Center will be handled by 6-4 Calvin Grosscup, a transfer from Purdue.

Dark Horse

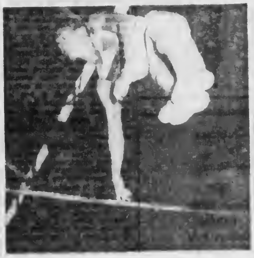
Yale, dark horse of the Ivy league this year has won its first two games of the year against Colby and the University of Connecticut.

Its hopes are based on a good group of sophs. Two of them, 6-3 John Lee and 6-10 Gerry Glynn, are rated as among the best prospects in the league. Lee was a high school all-America choice at Brooklyn, New York.

Miami, host team of the tournament is considerably improved over last year. Dick Miani is back again and Marty Burdette and 7-0 center Carl Paulus have moved up from last year's frosh.

Coach Lou Rossini's Columbia Lions can be expected to give any team a rough battle. Led by little Chet Forte, a possible all-American guard and 6-4 Frank Thomas the Lions wound up last season in a first place tie in the Ivy League.

Co-Ed Corner



by Juanita Jacob

Hi there Co-Eds,

Congratulations are in order for those women who were selected to represent the 1955 volleyball intramural all-star group. These women were chosen from among the sororities and dormitories. They were rated during the volleyball tournament. Sixty-three were selected from all those who participated.

Making an all-star team is a stepping stone towards being tapped for the Women's F Club. This club is an athletic honorary which gives awards for outstanding achievement in the intramural program. Only those women who have exhibited outstanding sportsmanship, cooperation, interest and enthusiasm are selected as its members.

The club itself, is a service organization and is very active in campus activities. The main ideals of the club are sportsmanship, friendship, and service.

Grads Face Varsity In Second Intra-Squad Gym Meet Tonight

The NCAA varsity gymnastics team takes on the Gymkana graduate students tonight in the Women's Gymnasium.

This will be the last competition for the varsity before they entrain to Sarasota for three meets during the Christmas holidays.

The meet starts at 7 p.m. and will consist of 10 events: trampoline, free exercise, high bar, parallel bars, long horse vaulting, rope climb, flying rings, side horse, tumbling, and still rings.

Don Holder, Jack Miles, Jim Tanaka, Miroslav Ceska and Jim Padigan make up the graduate team, with Holder and Miles as co-captains.

The varsity consists of co-captains Rafael Lecuona and Ronald Amster, Jamile Ashmore, Laird Anderson, Bob Murray, Joe Gusic, Don Smith, Tom MacDonald, Larry Beslman, Don Preisser and Jim Hanks.

Points will be awarded only for finishing in the 1-2-3 places. Seven for first, five for second and four for third place.

Judges are Clarence Hale, Juanito Lopez and Chick Chico. The announcer is Jim Jackson.

The first competitive meet during the holidays will be the North-South competition on Dec. 27 at Sarasota, Fla. On the 29th the Pre-Olympic trials begin at the Sarasota Municipal Auditorium.

The next day they face the University of Minnesota at the St. Petersburg Y.

In addition to the varsity, Don Holder, Jack Miles and Chick Chico will also compete in these meets.

Greeks Begin Activities For '55 Christmas Season

Not to be left out of the Christmas activities, Florida State Greeks have started their Christmas activities which will last until this Friday.

That's when they will pack up their shields, arrows, stars, and crescents, kites, and five-arm stars to leave for home. Before they leave, let's stop in at a few of the houses and see what they have planned.

CHI Os, KAPPA SIGS

This afternoon the X and Horseshoes will join the Kappa Sigs in a party for underprivileged children. Thursday night the Chi Os are planning their annual chapter party—gifts will be given to a local welfare organization.

One of the most active week ends of the year was given by the Kappa Sigs this past week-end. To celebrate the opening of their elaborate new house, the Kappa Sigs planned a week-end of all week-ends which included a founder's day banquet, a costume party, open house Friday and Saturday afternoons, a formal dance Saturday night, and a tea Sunday, in honor of Mother Lloyd, their housemother.

TRI-DELTS, KAs

Judging from the red carpet, brushed off welcome mat, and portraits of Robert E. Lee throughout the house, it isn't hard to tell that the Tri-Delts are planning to be hostesses to the KAs.

Tomorrow night after their annual Christmas Vesper Service, the southern gentlemen and the 3Ds will carol throughout Tallahasee concluding at the governor's mansion. Thursday night Tri Delt pledges will sing their pledge songs, and guests and dates will be invited to their chapter Christmas party.

KAPPA ALPHA

The Kappa Alphas will hold their annual Christmas party for underprivileged children on Thursday from 7 to 9 in the chapter house.

Elton "Scooter" Daniels will play the role of Santa this year, with the member's dates helping to distribute toys and gifts. And besides the ice cream, cake, movies and carols, the kids will have a grandstand seat for a special shown set out on by Tommy Watts, Buddy Jordan, and several other members of "Flying High."

The KAs have received excellent co-operation from several Tallahassee merchants in buying useful gifts as well as toys to have Santa Claus give the children, and with such all-round Christmas spirit, the party will surely turn out to be another great success.

A D PIs, PHI DELTS

Sunday afternoon the ADPis and Phi Delts entertained underprivileged children. This sorority-fraternity affair was one of the first on campus to combine their ideas and plans for Christmas parties for underprivileged children, which are so popular now. Monday night the ADPis had their chapter party. Goat songs were sung by the pledges and active members.

SAEs,

The SAEs and Zetas are having a charity party tonight followed by a Christmas dance Wednesday night at the SAE house. Thursday evening the SAEs will have dates over for a Christmas dinner.

PI Phis, LAMBDA CHIs

The ring-ching-ching girls and the Lambda Chis are planning a Christmas party at the Pi Phi house Thursday night. Tonight the Pi Phis are caroling for their sponsors and advisors, followed today at the SAE house. Thursday evening the SAEs will have dates over for a Christmas dinner.

PI PHIS, LAMBDA CHIs

The ring-ching-ching girls and the Lambda Chis are planning a Christmas party at the Pi Phi house Thursday night. Tonight the Pi Phis are caroling for their sponsors and advisors, followed tomorrow night by their chapter Christmas party when the pledges will sing songs. Dorcas Collins, Mary Ellen Finley, and Hazel Jackson will sing carols to the passersby in front of Westcott

The Pi Kappa Alphas and the Sigma Nus this week. Wednesday night is the traditional Banquet party for the DGs, while the Sigma Nus will have a chapter party Thursday night.

Last Sunday the Trophy Room was the scene of much laughter and excitement as the Delta Gammas gave a Christmas party for underprivileged children.

KDs

The KD pledges will sing pledge songs at their chapter party tonight. Just a few of the KDs many Christmas projects include giving gifts to the welfare department and a Christmas basket to a needy Tallahassee family. Sunday afternoon the KD pledges entertained the actives and their dates with a tree-trimming party.

ACO

The members of Alpha Chi Omega had their annual Christmas party Sunday night at the home of one of their alums, Mrs Gibson of Piney Z Ranch.

Traditional Christmas music was rendered by some of the women and it was followed by the singing of goat songs by the pledges. Unwrapping of Christmas gifts was next on the agenda for the evening. The party concluded with refreshments served to the girls by the alums.

ZTA

The Zeta Tau Alphas were truly a happy bunch of girls Saturday night at the Pledge-Active Dance when they learned that their sorority had been chosen for the Most Outstanding Sorority of the Year Award, given annually by the Delta Tau Delta's, and that they had also won the Pan-Hellenic inframurals trophy.

Sunday afternoon found all the Zetas entertaining at their annual Christmas tea held at their house on College Ave. The event was in honor of alumni, faculty members, dormitory counselors, and dormitory, sorority, and fraternity presidents.

Fraternity Sets Up Pennell Scholarship

Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity chapter at Florida State University has established a scholarship in memory of an alumnus and former student body president who was killed this summer.

Honored is William Thomas Pennell, who was a probation officer in Columbus, Georgia, until his death in an automobile accident.

The scholarship will be for one in Florida State University unless the recipient wishes to pursue a course of study not offered by the school in Tallahassee. It must be awarded by September, 1956.

Pennell was Student Body President in the school year ending June, 1952.

The scholarship fund established by the Lambda Chis will grow annually and be held by the Alumni Development Foundation which will eventually pay the scholarship as determined by the fraternity.

In Chicago

Ogburn Receives Honorary Degree

Dr. William F. Ogburn, professor of sociology, was given an honorary LL.D. degree by the University of Chicago recently at the 25th anniversary of Social Science Research Buildings.

Before coming to FSU in 1953, Dr. Ogburn was the Sewell L. Averey Distinguished Service Professor of Sociology at the University of Chicago. He participated in the planning of the Social Science Research Buildings over a quarter of a century ago.

Others receiving the honorary doctor of laws degree were Arnold Toynbee of the Royal Institute of International Affairs and Research Professor of International History, University of London; Andre Siegfried, member of the French Academie and Professor Emitus of the College de France; Walter Lippman, author and writer for the New York Herald Tribune; Harold Rotelling, Professor of Statistics, University of North Carolina; Jacob Viner, Professor of Economics, Princetim University; and Fay Cooper-Cole, Professor Emeritus of the University of Chicago.

Universities were present from 121 colleges, universities, and learned societies. Lippman delivered the convocation address, which was attended by prominent social scientists from over the nation. About 15 round table discussions were held. Dr. Ogburn read a paper on "Industrial Organization and Economic Growth."

Kappa Sigma Awards—Were given last weekend to Rat Ragland, Best Pledge of 1954, Tom Day, Man of the year Award for 1954, Bob Patterson, Fraternity Advisor, Mr. Chris Natvig, National Worthy Grand Treasurer, Floyd Gangloff, Outstanding Achievement Award; and Russell Johnson, Certificate of Merit.

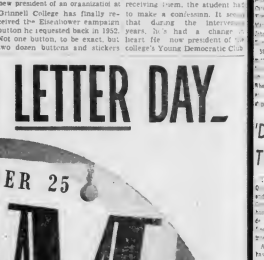
IN DESEGREGATION

Louisville, Ky (UP)—Kentucky now ranks second among southern states involved in desegregation of their institutions of higher learning, according to a report by Dr. Charles Parrish of the University of Louisville Sociology department.

Dr. Parrish, who is Southern Regional Council Field Consultant, has met during recent months with citizens' councils and educational groups in seven southern states to plan for complete desegregation of all schools and to prepare the citizens for the change.

"Acceptance of the plan depends upon individual school boards," Dr. Parrish stated. "Opposition can develop on any point. Political opinions influences much of the news. For instance in Jackson, Miss., 2003 people met to discuss and plan, but the morning paper received notice in the papers

"One college in Jackson, Miss., which holds regular meetings of college students has a Negro boy as chairman and a white girl as secretary."



Institutions of higher learning are not yet desegregated in Florida, South Carolina, Georgia and Mississippi.

BAPTIST STUDENTS
SLATE VESPERS

Baptist Student Union will have Christmas Vespers tonight with local underprivileged children as guests.

The program is "Student Night at Christmas" beginning at 6:30 p.m. A party will follow at 7:30 p.m.

Morning Watch Friday will be at 7:30 a.m. Mr. Gordon Speed will be a speaker for this occasion.

Rushing Changes

Institution of fall rushing commenced Monday Sept 26, with the traditional IFC smoker, at which time the general outline of the program and its rules and regulations were presented to the freshmen. Tuesday, the following day, was a closed date, with no rush functions in progress.

First semester rushing was designed to improve the procedure from both the fraternity and rushee aspects of the situation. It is hoped that by integrating the potential brothers with the respective fraternities at the earlier date will help raise the level of freshman scholarship and the operational efficiency of the houses.

It is believed that internal pressure from the fraternities will help pledges maintain the scholastic requirements necessary for initiation, an improvement over previous semesters pledging on mid-semester grades, which proved a poor indication of freshman scholarship and caused many pledges to be denied initiation and to be placed on an inactive status.
